AT PLEASANTON TRACK.

THE FAMOUS TRAINING TRACK at Pleasanton is about the busiest place in California just now. No less than seventeen trainers are working horses there and the trotters and pacers occupying stalls number a little over one hundred. "There are more coming," said track superintendent Sutherland last Saturday, "and by the first of next month there will be one hundred and fifty horses at work."

The track was never in as good shape as it is now. Last fall a surveyor ran a correct line for a regulation mile track in place of the old one, and Mr. Anderson, the owner, had the corrections made at once. By widening the track at the turns, making the stretches straight and cutting down the grade on the back stretch, an oval was made that measures four inches over a mile three feet from the pole. The turns were then thrown up, and a prettier track does not exist in the State. The gophers have been troublesome for a year or so, but Mr. Sutherland went at them with bisulphide of carbon and has cleaned them out entirely. He pours a small quantity of the volatile stinking stuff on a rag, thrusts it in the gopher hole quickly and covers it over with dirt packed down with the foot. He says that every gopher within a radius of twenty-five feet dies within a minute. There is not a gopher hole on the track at the present time and Sutherland says there will not be as he is on the lookout for signs and carries the bisulphide with him.

The stables and stalls are all kept in first class shape this season and the entire premises show care and attention. The change from last year is a great improvement in every respect and Mr. Anderson, the owner is to be congratulated upon it.

The fastest horse at the track, and probably as handsome a stallion as there is in America, is in charge of Bert Webster. This is Bonnie Direct 2:05½, winner of nearly eight thousand dollars last year on the grand circuit and the fastest green horse ever campaigned. The great showing made by Bonnie Direct is due to Mr. Webster, who broke him and trained him to go fast. He showed so much speed that the late Thos. Keating offered Chas. Griffith ten thousand dollars for him on behalf of James Butler of New York. The offer was declined but Keating took Bonnie Direct East and raced him. He was a race horse when Webster turned him over to Keating and had shown his ability to pace as fast as anybody's horse. He is making a season in the stud but may be raced again this year. He looks to be as perfect a horse physically as any stallion in the world and he undoubtedly is.

There are fourteen colts, fillies and aged horses in Webster's string. He has a four year old by Rect 2:16½ out of Bon Bon 2:26, dam of Bonnie Direct 2:05½ and Bonsilene 2:14½, that is a promising trotter; a two year old filly by Chas. Derby and a yearling by Steinway, both out of Bon Bon, are highly prized members of this stable. The two year old is a pacer and has shown an eighth in 19 seconds with no work at all. The yearling by Steinway is a chestnut colt and one of the largest and at the same time best formed youngsters we have seen for a long time. He will be a 16 hand horse. A two year old by Directum, dam a Piedmont mare, is a bay beauty. Has been a quarter in 40 seconds and as it is entered in all the big Eastern colt stakes, is looked upon as a future bread winner. The most promising of the others in this string, all being the property of Mr. Griffith, are Domino by Rect out of a mare by Robert McGregor, a yearling by Steinway, dam by Nutwood; a four year old gelding by Diablo 2:09½, dam by William L.; colt by Erastus C. (son of Palo Alto), dam by Steinway, and a three year old by Waldstein, dam by Robert McGregor. All these horses look well and that there will be some money winners developed from them is a foregone conclusion. Mr. Griffith will breed a filly to Bonnie Direct this year that is bred unlike any other mare we ever heard of. She is two years old and is by imp. Sain, Barney Shreiber's grandly bred thoroughbred stallion. Her dam is by Gen. Benton 1755, second dam by Hambletonian 10 and third dam a thoroughbred mare whose breeding has slipped our memory. The filly is a handsome piece of horseflesh and a natural trotter.

James Thompson, the well known trainer who, since his memorable speech before the Board of Appeals, is known as the California Demosthenes, is getting ready a string of crackerjacks with which he will go East, starting in time to race at Denver in June. He has Clipper 2:06 by Diablo, Little Thorne 2:07½ by Hawthorne, Goshen Jim 2:10½ by Moses S., Rajah, a four year old by Chas. Derby out of Edon by Gen. Benton, next dam Emma Robson by Woodburn; a three year old filly by McKinney out of Lullaby; a mare by Rory O'Moore from Los Angeles and Thornway, a three year old by Steinway, first dam by Allandorf, second dam by Mambrino King, third dam by Blue Bull 75, fourth dam by Tom Hal. Thompson's string all look well. Clipper is heavier than ever before and he will be kept that way. Little Thorne is several pounds heavier than he was last year, looks fit to race now and his flesh is firm and hard. That Goshen Jim is about right can be seen by the engraving on the first page, taken just after he had been driven a mile in 2:16½ last Saturday. He did the mile so easily, with Thompson pulling hard to keep him back as he overtook Tags 2:13 at the head of the stretch, that it looked to us as though a mile in 2:10 would not have been beyond the big pacer's reach that day. He is going smoother and better than over and has also improved in looks over his last year's form. Goshen Jim is a 2:05 horse sure, if no accident happens him. In the three year old pacer Thornway, owned by Mr. J. C. Kirkpatrick, of this city, the Oakwood Stock Farm has turned out another Klatawah. Thornway looks and acts like a race horse. He worked a mile last year at the farm as a two year old in 2:18, before Mr. Kirkpatrick purchased him. He is a full brother to Sable Steinway 2:23½ and Allandora 2:18½. He is a large colt, but not gross and has the appearance of one that will stand lots of work and keep in condition easily. If he does not get a low mark and win some good three year old races this year we will miss our guess a long way. The four year old, Rajah, owned by Mr. Goodall of this city, is the colt that Keating drove a mile in 2:13 at Pleasanton last year in April. He looks to be in good shape, takes his work as though he enjoyed it and can show as much speed as any horse on the track. Mr. Thompson has not asked him nor the three year old to go fast for any distance yet, in fact Goshen Jim is the only horse in his string that he has gone a fast mile with and as he has been jogged all winter and is in fine shape the mile in 2:16½ was only a jog for him. The three year old filly by McKinney is a nice looking youngster and a great prospect. The mare Vic by Rory O'Moore arrived from Los Angeles a few days ago. She belongs to D. B. Stevenson of that city and is a promising trotter.

When M. Thompson went to Pleasanton last fall he rented a house near the track, fitted it up in splendid shape and there keeps bachelor quarters that are not only neat and cozy but comfortable and elegant. His Chinese cook is an artist in his line. Mr. Thompson entertains the owners of the horses in his string and others of his friends who go to Pleasanton in a manner that makes a visit most pleasant.

J. M. Alviso, whose memory of men and horses around Pleasanton runs further back than the founding of the town, has a small string, but it tests 100 per cent. of good ore. He has but three, one his own colt Rey del Diablo, that took a three year old record of 2:23½, and the other two the property of Mr. L. C. Crellin. Rey del Diablo, always a very handsome colt, is better looking than ever. He is pacing like a whirlwind again this year, as a quarter in 32½ seconds a few days ago gave evidence. Anita is the name of a four year old pacer by Diablo that Alviso thinks will earn money for Mr. Crellin if started this year. She is fast and steady. Nora, a bay mare by Direct, a square trotter, we saw work a mile in 2:27 Saturday. Nora is a large mare for a Direct, and has such a nice way of going that she looks like 2:15 before the summer is over. The last quarter of her mile in 2:27 was trotted in 32½ seconds.

Dr. A. W. Boucher, has lately moved from San Jose to Pleasanton with his great four year old son of Miss Logan 2:06½. He is by Harry Gear, son of Echo. Our readers have read of the wonderful half in 1:01½ this colt worked at San Jose several months ago. Dr. Boucher does not believe in racing colts extensively, and for that reason did not start this one last season. He had no stake entries and though a wonderfully fast colt, the Doctor thought too much of him to put him in against aged horses. He will probably go East about June 1st with him.

William Welsh was for several years with Keating and before that with some of the leading trainers of the East. He has a public training stable at Pleasanton now and is doing well. We were interested particularly in the two sons of Allerton that he has in charge. One, Geo. W. Archer, is advertised in our business columns. On entering his stall we enjoyed our first view of an Allerton, and if they all look like this fellow it is no wonder that C. W. Williams secures such a large patronage to his horse and that they sell so well. Geo. W. Archer is a blood bay, with a beautiful head, wide between the eyes and of the Arabian type, powerful loins, short back, and strongly muscled limbs. His bone below the knees and hocks is a little too light for his size but this only adds to his beauty. We think him one of the handsomest horses we have ever looked upon, and it is no wonder an Eastern buyer offered a big price for him with the idea of cutting off his tail and converting him to a show horse. He has speed, too, and has worked a quarter in 36 seconds lately. The other Allerton is Nerio a chestnut colt foaled in 1899. He is out of Lexington Girl by Kentucky Wilkes 2:21½, second dam by Hambletonian 506, and on through thoroughbred lines to the fifth dam, a daughter of Medoc. Nerio is also a handsome colt and will grow to be a good sized horse. He will be a valuable addition to the breeding ranks of California horses.

Mr. Welch is handling about a dozen colts and aged horses. He worked Geo. T. Bennett, "the Honolulu horse," a mile in 2:22½, last quarter in 32 seconds Saturday. This pacer is by Alex Button, first dam by Cresco 4909; second dam by Echo, and third dam by Jack Hawkins. He is a large, good-looking bay and last year paced a trial in 2:16. He should make a great roadster and could win money racing. Deborah 2:21½ by Sable Wilkes is in this string as are two of her foals, one a yearling by Searchlight, the other a four year old by Oro Wilkes. The Searchlight yearling is a large colt for his age and is marked just like his sire. Among others being worked by Welch are a gray pacing filly by Welcome 2:10½, out of the dam of Gaff Topsall 2:17½ that is a very likely pacer, a three year old filly by Secretary, a natural trotter, and a three year old colt by Diablo out of a mare by Alex Button. This last one is a very promising youngster. He is the property of J. W. Marshall of Dixon.

Fred Chadbourn, a young man who gives promise of developing into a first class trainer, is working a number of horses for James Sutherland and others. We saw him work a handsome bay trotting stallion a mile in 2:27 and asked about the horse. It was Charley G., a full brother to Roy Direct 2:10 and De Voras 2:11½, the two fast pacers that made Vera a great broodmare last year. There is not the slightest suspicion of an inclination to pace in Charley G. and as he worked a mile last year in 2:18 as a four year old, and moves like the real thing, we shall expect Vera to gain further honors by his performance before this year is ended. Mr. Chadbourn has several youngsters belonging to W. E. deB. Lopez in his string. There is a black filly by Direct out of a Naubuc mare and two fillies by James Madison that are showing speed. Jerry is the masculine name given a filly by Direct out of the gray mare Queenie that was on the circuit last year. Jerry is fast and has already worked a mile in 2:30. A three year old by Falrose out of a Tilton Almont mare, is a natural pacer that will be heard from. Mr. Sutherland is using Harry Hurst, a son of "the fastest, broken legged horse in the world," Delwin, as a roadster, but may put him in training for the races.

S. K. Trefry was working out with several of the trainers Saturday with the little black stallion Direct C., a son of Direct. This pony built little pacer is not much bigger than a fox terrier, but he can pace like a cyclone. He worked miles in 2:27 and 2:25 with Mr. Trefry driving with almost a loose rein and taking him back with the very slightest pull or sending him to the front with a word. Mr. Trefry is working a son of Direct C. that he calls Freddy C. He shows considerable speed and will be raced.

The trainer that every one inquires for on reaching Pleasanton is Johnny Blue, one of the quietest and at the same time most genial men in the business. He has had many flattering offers to go East and enter the employ of wealthy owners who campaign on the Grand Circuit, but says the numerous trips he has made has taken the romance out of it and California is good enough for him for a year or so. Johnny is training seven handsome and very promising young horses for Mr. Juan Gallagos, who resides at Mission San Jose and began breeding harness horses for pleasure during the past few years, having purchased a number of mares at the Corbitt closing out sale. The four year old gelding Diablito pictured on our front page is one of the good ones in Blue's string. As his name indicates he is by Diablo, his dam being a mare by A. W. Richmond. This gelding will get a low mark at the pacing gait and that he is endowed with good looks can be seen from his likeness. A five year old mare by Direct is a speedy one, and paces so nicely and without effort, although too heavy as yet, that she attracts much attention from the railbirds. When this mare gets in condition she will make some of them think their watches have been tampered with. A two year old pacer by Nutwood Wilkes out of Sable, the dam of Sable Wilkes and others is a very handsome filly and one that will certainly be fast. She is just getting her first lesson and has shown a quarter in 37 seconds already. One of the mares purchased by Mr. Gallagos at the Corbitt sale in 1898 was Lindale a daughter of Sultan. She is one of the finest formed mares Mr. Corbitt ever bred and trotted very fast as a two year old but was put to breeding instead of being trained. She produced Linwood Wilkes 2:20½, now owned at Santa Rosa, and Rutger Wilkes 2:27½. Mr. Gallagos has two foals out of her, one a three year old bay filly by Oro Wilkes that was at her side when he purchased her, the other a two year old filly by Prince Airlie 2:04½ to which horse she was bred in 1898 at the Corbitt farm. Both are handsome fillies. A couple of two year olds by Prince Directs are also in Mr. Blue's charge and are doing well.

Nutwood Stock Farm is represented at Pleasanton by eight young horses in charge of William Cecil who has trained and driven the colts of this farm for the last seven years. The only two record horses in the string are Bob Ingersoll 2:14½ (one of the heaviest money winners in California last year, and a horse that will trot in 2:10 this year if any horse will, provided he meets with no accident) and Irvington Boy 2:17½, one of the gamest pacers ever seen on the circuit. Both these horses look well. A fair picture of Bob Ingersoll is shown on our front page. A full sister to John A. McKerron 2:09 was being driven on the track while we were there. She is one of the most promising three year olds we have seen for some time and although she acts like the majority of green youngsters, shows that she knows what is wanted and tries to do it. The colt T. C., a big-boned chestnut, that looks like he might trot fast, is getting slow work. He is too big and growthy to take any chances with, but he has shown quarters repeatedly better than 40 seconds without being pushed. One of the fillies in this stable that attracts much attention by her long striding action is a full sister to Central Girl. She can trot fast now, and when she learns how to go will be a very fast one without doubt.

There is not a colt or filly in this string (and all are sons or daughters of Nutwood Wilkes) but can show speed. Rob Ingersoll is good enough to be sent East, to race on the Grand Circuit and we should like to see him sent over in charge of some good man to contend with the Eastern horses in his class. We are certain he would make a good showing and be a money winner.

Det Bigelow is located at Pleasanton this year. His mare Tags 2:13 that started in a green race and won him a good bunch of money, is looking to be in fine shape and will be a fair mare in her class this year and she can knock a second or two from her present record. The handsome colt, El Primero, a three year old, a blood bay by Diablo out of Lucy B. 2:17½ by Alex Button, is a very promising youngster and if he is as fast as he is good looking, will get some of the money. He showed wonderful speed last year, but has not been moved fast as yet this season. Bigelow has a daughter of old Button out of Carrie Malone, full sister to Chas. Derby, that is also very promising. The three year old filly Pearl S. by Hanford Medium 2:11½ out of the dam of Kelly Briggs 2:10½, is owned by Kelly Briggs, of Winters, and he is taking care of her while Det does the training. Pearl S. is a fast pacer and a nice, smooth article on the track. She will be raced this year.

John Sawyer, trainer for the Van Do Vanter Stock Farm of Washington has seven head that he is getting ready for the circuit, but has not yet asked any of them for speed. He has Pathmark 2:17½ by Pathmont, and a half dozen horses without records. He has two McKinneys and others by Lemont, Freddie C., Guyceas and Altas—all showing speed enough to warrant entering them if a circuit is arranged.

P. W. Hodges is occupying four stalls with his horses. He has but two so far that will be raced this year, Queen R, 2:12½ by Redondo, and the roan pacer by Dictatus that has been talked about so much lately. Hodges was jogging him when he visited the track and as he went by we said to Dr. Boucher, "Did you ever see that roan pacer work very fast when Hodges had him at San Jose?" "I did," replied the Doctor, "I timed him a mile in 2:14½ on the first day of last January on that track." They say the roan is faster now that he was then so he must be a pretty fair green one. He is a short backed, round barrelled horse, with good bone and powerfully muscled all over. He'll do for the green classes in any country. The other two that Hodges has are the mares Hazel Kinney 2:09½ and Atherine 2:16½. They are both in foal to Stam B. 2:11½.

Millard Sanders, who has educated as many champions as any trainer in California, is getting ready for the Eastern circuit as nice a string of trotting mares as can be found on any track in America. They are Dolly Dillon 2:11½, Janice 2:13½, Czarina 2:13½ and Julia S., a green mare by Daly 2:15 that he says has shown greater improvement in the short time he has had her than any trotter he ever handled. Now Millard has trained a great many fast trotters that came to their speed early and quickly and when he makes this statement it means that he has something mighty good in this daughter of Daly. She is owned by the Rose Dale Stock Farm and is a handsome, rangy mare that trots like a winner and can go the route. Dolly Dillon, Janice and Czarina we saw jogged and they are all looking good.

As we were walking up the stretch inspecting the track, two pacers went by with a "zip" that caused every head to turn as they seemed to be going a two-minute clip. The black we recognized as Rey Direct 2:10, winner of five races and over two thousand dollars last year in California. He has more speed than ever, but his owner Geo. Davis, of Rancho del Valle, was driving the other pacer, a bay that was hog fat, but kept alongside the black whirlwind with ease. It was Mr. Davis' road horse flying Jib 2:04. Since Mr. Davis began driving him he is one of the best dispositioned horses in the country, and is an ideal roadster. Mr. Davis has not yet sent his horses to the track, but sends one or two over to be jogged every day. He has secured stalls, however, and will soon have them stabled there. Rey Direct will be sent East to race. His colts are a great lot of youngsters.

Louis Carrillo is in charge of two horses belonging to W. A. Shippee that he is putting in shape to sell as road horses. They are all five or six years old and are by Hawthorne, Dictator Wilkes, Moses S., and Stamboul. The gelding by the last named is a fine looker and has been a mile in 2:28. Mr. Carrillo has all his horses in good shape and is rapidly making well-mannered roadsters of them.

Among those who have engaged stalls at Pleasanton is Mose Hart of San Francisco, the well known dealer in high-class roadsters, and he will go up next month with two or three. The trip to the "horse centre" can be very easily and pleasantly made by rail. The broad gauge ferry boat which leaves the foot of Market street at 8 a. m. connects with a fast train that stops only at Niles before reaching Pleasanton, and one can reach the track before 10 o'clock. Returning there are two trains for the city in the afternoon, one leaving the Pleasanton station a few minutes after 2 o'clock, the other at 5:30. This gives a visitor ample time to see the horses taking their work, and a pleasant day cannot be spent by those who love the harness horse than a trip to Pleasanton one of these beautiful spring days.

Anent Colt Racing.

The following interesting remarks in regard to colt racing are made by L. D. Sale, of Washington, D. C., in the last issue of the Chicago Horse Review:

The decadence of colt racing, which set in eight years ago has, to my mind, detracted greatly from the interest of trotting meetings. Whatever inspiration and enjoyment the average racegoer may receive in witnessing a contest between high class aged horses, there is a certain interest and gratification in viewing a struggle between youngsters, that the finished product cannot give.

I particularly desire to emphasize the word interest, for in the term dwells the germ that preserves light harness horse sport. A promising colt is like a promising boy—one cannot correctly forecast his future. But the joy of dwelling in the realms of speculation as to his success in life is an enchanting luxury. If the boy is father to the man, the colt is father to the race horse. And so through the several stages of his development he is the object of solicitude and hope; if successful, of pride and self congratulation. And when we finally sum up all the big and little things that go to fill the measure of human happiness none are dearer to us than the success of the object on which we concentrate our ambitious hopes and affection.

The argument advanced against racing youngsters extends far beyond the time of Hiram Woodruff. The same arguments advanced in favor of and against the project are as strong now as they ever were. A certain percentage of colts will be ruined, without question, because of natural physical defects, or because of overwork. Others will better stand the strain on muscles, feet and tendons, and, perhaps, will fall in more skillful hands. The late Leland Stanford once said to me that he could rely on a certain number of his colts going wrong, no matter how carefully they were worked. He observed that he made calculations for such a contingency in his breeding equations. Perhaps, he said, they would have gone wrong if worked when more mature. From my own experience and from what I have seen of colts and aged horses, I think the late Senator was sound in his philosophy.

I hope to see colt racing revived. No scheme devised will add a greater stimulus to breeding, and breeding of the right kind. Better mares will be bred, better stallions will be patronized, and out of it all will come the uplifting of the American light harness horse and an increased demand for him in the marts of both hemispheres.

A collection of horsehoes belonging to F. C. Snow, of St. Louis, attracts much attention among the horsemen wherever shown. It embraces all sorts of queer things made in all parts of the world for the purpose of protecting the foot of the horse. An excellent piece of workmanship, not radically different from the modern shoe, was made in 1743 by a Pontiac Indian. Another notable shoe in the collection was made in Arabia. It is a very crude affair, that would ruin a horse that wore it on the rough payments of the cities.

Murray Howe's New Scheme.

Murray Howe, Secretary of the new Memphis association, whose first meeting will be held in October this year over the new track at that place which is to be one hundred feet wide the entire length, has sent out the following communication to horsemen:

"In common with a large majority of horsemen who have been privileged to study harness racing from all standpoints, I am firmly of the opinion that the system of racing in vogue is a serious handicap to the sport. There is a growing demand among the patrons of the game for a change that will shorten races, introduce novelty and variety and do away with the evil of laying up heats. The dash system could do all this, but until the inclination to break and run has been bred out of the harness horse, his owner will always demand more than one chance to get back his entrance fee, hence any new plan of racing, to meet with general approval must be a compromise between the heat and the dash systems. In studying the various remedies that have been proposed, I have hit upon a new plan of conducting harness races, which I believe will do away with more of the evils and incorporate more of the advantages of both the heat and the dash systems than anything that has been tried to date.

"I have submitted the scheme to a great many owners, trainers and track managers, who were favorably impressed with it, and now turn it over to the public for general criticism. I am well aware that many will condemn it, simply because it is new, but unless some one points out a more serious flaw in it than I have been able to detect, the plan will be tried on at least two of the five stakes that the Memphis Trotting association will announce in the near future. The new plan, in brief, is as follows:

"Three heats a race. First heat—One mile, for 34 per cent of the purse, divided in three moneys. Second heat—One and one-eighth miles, for 46 per cent of purse, divided in three moneys. Third heat—One half mile, for 20 per cent of purse, divided in three moneys. Pools to go to winner of most money.

"The scheme of making the heats different distances introduces variety and quick action and gives me an excuse to divide the money in a way that is fair, and yet makes it extremely hazardous for a horse who is out for the race to lay up a heat.

"I make the second heat a mile and one-eighth instead of a mile and a half, because a mile and one-eighth will not frighten anyone, and at the same time it is a greater test of endurance for horses that have learned the length of a mile than most people will imagine. The horses will be started at the seven-eighth pole in the mile and one-eighth and at the half in the half-mile, of course. A race under this system will be a fairer test of the relative abilities of a field of horses than a race under any of the older plans. It will introduce an element of uncertainty that will make it a better betting race for books, mutuals and pools than the ordinary heat race.

"It will enable a track manager to start and finish a program on schedule time, and, I believe, will do more to popularize harness racing and make it an up to date sport than any innovation yet proposed, and the scheme of dividing the money pays every horse for his effort.

"A horse that trots third or better in any heat gets a piece of the money, if he stays inside the flag in the other heats. It gives money to the game horse and money to the sprinter. It makes it possible for one horse to win 60 per cent of the purse and yet, in case a large field happened to be wonderfully evenly matched, nine horses might win money.

"This plan of dividing the money and giving the race to the winner of the most money precludes the possibility of two or three horses tying for first place, which is the big objection to the ordinary three-heat plan that was tried by several prominent associations last year.

"The matter of dead heats, distanced horses, entrance, etc., will, of course, be regulated by special conditions. Here are a few illustrations of the way the money will be divided:

2:02 class, pacing, purse $3000. One mile, first, $612; second, $306; third, $153. One and one-eighth miles, first, $828; second, $414; third, $207. One-half mile, first, $360; second, $180; third, $90.

Anaconda, b g by Knight.....(Trout) 1 1 1 $1800
Searchlight, b g by Darknight.....(McCarthy) 2 2 2 900
Coney, blk g by McKinney.....(McHenry) 3 3 3 300

2:06 class, trotting, purse $3000. Mile, first, $408; second, $204; third, $102. One and one-eighth miles, first, $552; second, $276; third, $138. One-half mile, first, $240; second, $120; third, $60.

Lord Derby, b g by Mambrino King.....(Geers) 1 2 2 $804
*Grattan, b h by Grattan.....(Miller) 4 1 1 792
Charley Herr, b h by Alfred G.....(Kelly) 2 4 4 204
York Boy, b g, by Wilkes Boy.....(Smith) 3 3 3 200

*Grattan Boy laid up a heat and lost first money.

By this method the placed horses can be so divided as to give seven money winners.

THOROUGHBREDS.

ARTILLERY (Imp.)	J. J. Grant, Sacramento
RILEY	J. J. Grant, Sacramento

AT A MEETING of the Pacific District Board of Appeals of the National Trotting Association held March 7, 1901, the matter of the rehearing of the cases of L. E. Clawson, T. J. Crowley and the Vendome Stock Farm vs. the Chico Association was presented. The evidence showed that the purse in which the entries were made under the conditions advertised did not fill, and under the changed conditions the nominators could not be held. It was ordered that the applications be granted and money paid under protest returned. The foregoing is one of many instances where horse owners and associations have been put to much trouble and annoyance, and appeals made to the National Trotting Association to settle the difficulty, which could all have been avoided had the officers of the associations making the suspensions understood the rules governing entries. Last summer the Colusa, Red Bluff and Chico associations offered large purses for 2:12 trotters, which races failed to fill, there being four entries in each, while more were required. The associations notified the owners to this effect and also sent notice that the races would be permitted to go if the owners would consent to a reduction of the purses. To this but one owner agreed and took his mare (Hazel Kinney) to the places mentioned and enjoyed a walk-over at each place for the entrance money paid in and due. The associations suspended the three parties who failed to re-enter, under the idea that the original entry held where notification was sent of a reduction of the purse and changed conditions. The suspended parties paid the amount of the suspensions under protest and at the first hearing of the case were released, except as to the Chico association, the evidence in that case for the appellants not being introduced through an oversight. When this fact was discovered a rehearing was asked for as to that case and granted with the result as above stated. It is unfortunate that horsemen should be suspended for claims which are entirely illegal, and it sometimes works a great hardship on them, as many are not blessed with a surplus of the coin of the realm and to be compelled to put it up to release an illegal suspension and wait for months before it can be recovered is annoying to say the least. A different condition of affairs exists in California in regard to race meetings than in any other part of the United States. Here the racing outside the large cities is in nearly every instance giving by the district agricultural associations which draw appropriations from the State treasury annually for the purpose of holding fairs. No part of these appropriations can be used for paying race purses or the expenses of holding race meetings, but must be legitimately expended for an exhibit of the district's resources and the payment of premiums therefor. Owing to this state of affairs the district boards of directors are in most instances composed of business men, agriculturists and horticulturists who know nothing of racing or the rules governing the same, and a Secretary is usually selected who is no better acquainted with this part of the program. As the Secretary is usually required to devote but two or three months of his time to the fair and race meeting and for a very small salary is compelled to act as general manager of the whole proceedings, he finds no time to study and become familiar with racing rules and it is not to be wondered at that many mistakes occur. The wonder is that they get along as well as they do and have so little trouble. District associations would do a very wise thing were they to engage the services of some person familiar with the laws governing harness and running races to attend to that part of the fair programs and thus leave the Secretary free to devote his time to the fair proper. In the majority of instances California district fairs, even with the aid of appropriations from the State and another from the citizens of the towns where held, fail to show a profit and it is considered good management when they strike an even balance at the close of the meeting. On the other hand a week of racing given by the P. C. T. H. B. A. and other organizations in some of the country towns has in most instances paid a profit. The reason is that the district boards, not understanding the racing game, have many expenses which the others do not. That a properly managed fair and race meeting in any enterprising town of two thousand or more inhabitants should pay a profit especially when aided with a fund from the State treasury, is to be expected, and if the district boards will make an effort this year to have the racing position of their programs intelligently managed they will have a balance of profit as a result, and establish their annual fairs on a sound and enduring basis.

THE PRESENT OUTLOOK is that speed horse will reach a price as high as in what we call the boom days of the trotter—twenty-five years ago. It is a mistake, however, to compare the so-called boom prices with the prices of to-day. Twenty-five years ago extreme speed was so exceedingly rare that only four or five persons out of our then forty millions of people were able to purchase it. It was the extreme rarity that had much to do with the value. In 1867, we had only one Dexter 2:17 1/4. In 1900, Dexters were so common that we have not taken the trouble to count them. As nearly as 1874 we had but one Goldsmith Maid 2:14. In making comparisons of speed values we fail to note the fact that rarity had everything to do with the extreme prices that prevailed in the so-called boom days. Prevailing prices fully justify the opinion that the outlook for the immediate future of the harness horse is brighter than ever before. The road and speed horse, and the show horse are all in fashion, and fashion rules the world. Take our advice and breed liberally in this bright year of the now century. Not only is the demand active and growing at home, but it is growing abroad. In fact the civilized world is ours. No country has produced a horse equal to the American trotter. And while they are buying our best in Russia, Austria, Germany, England and France, and borrowing our ideas, it will be at least a quarter of a century before they reach our standard. And if there is any one in this great booming land of ours that is secure it is the harness horse.—Western Horseman.

THE WESTERN HORSEMAN, one of the best of the journals devoted to harness horse affairs, has issued a souvenir number that is a beauty. The cover pictures, printed in colors after paintings by Frank Whitney, are works of art, and the number is profusely illustrated with half tones. There are many interesting and valuable articles and the issue is a credit to the publishers and the printers.

ONE WEEK FROM MONDAY the Terre Haute Matron Stakes, $10,000 for foals of 1901, will close with Secretary Chas. R. Duffin of the Terre Haute Trotting and Fair Association. The $10,000 is divided as follows: $2000 goes to the two year olds that trot $1000 to the two year olds that pace, and the balance, $7000, to the three year olds that trot. It only costs $5 to nominate March 25, $10 on December 2d this year when foals must be described, and nothing more until the year of the race. All the other big stakes for foals of 1901 have closed, and the Terre Haute Matron Stake is the only one left open. Every owner who failed to get in on the others should see to it that the 25th inst, does not pass without filling out an entry blank to this rich event and mailing it to Secretary Duffin, and those who have entered in them should add this one to the list, as it is the earning capacity of a colt that makes it valuable and justifies its owner in asking a big price if it is fast.

ALL THE STOCK of the California Jockey Club is now owned by Col. D. M. Burns and Thos. H. Williams, Jr., those gentlemen having bought out the other stockholders this week. The other Directors will remain the same as before, each one retaining just enough shares to permit him to act in that capacity. The purchase was agreeable to all concerned. That there will be any compromise in the race war now going on here is extremely improbable. Messrs. Burns and Williams believe they are in the right in the stand they have taken and are willing to stand all the losses that may result from their action in the present trouble with the other association. For this reason they desired to secure the other stockholders against any loss and purchased their stock.

THE MATINEE NUMBER of the American Sportsman is one of the best ever issued by that progressive journal. If one wishes to look at the counterfeited presentments of all the prominent roadsters and matinee horses of Cleveland and the Western cities he should buy a copy of the Sportsman as they are there. A picture that will interest Californians is on the cover and represents the California stallion John A. McKerron 2:10 by Nutwood Wilkes defeating Senator L. and Temper in the memorable cup race at Boston, which has since been the subject of so much controversy. The list of 2:20 performers is very valuable and the table of money winning stallions in 1900 is of especial interest to us as it is headed by the California stallion McKinney 2:11 1/4.

CREDIT is very seldom given to any stallion for daughters that are the dams of speed siring stallions unless they are likewise the dams of standard performers. Take the case of American Star 14, for an example. The Year Book credits him with four standard performers, seven speed siring sons, and thirty-five daughters that are the dams of forty-five trotters with records of 2:30 or better, but fails to mention the fact that he is the sire of the dams of fifty stallions that are sires of standard performers. While Abdallah 1, sire of Hambletonian 10, is represented in the Year Book with the dams of only seven performers, twenty-seven of his daughters were dams of speed siring stallions.

A HORSE going a mile in 2:30 covers 35.20 feet per second; in 2:25, it is 36.41 feet per second; in 2:20 it is 37.71 feet per second; in 2:15 it is 39.11 feet per second; in 2:10 it is 40.93 feet per second; in 2:05 it is 42.24 feet per second, and in 2:03 it is 42.59 feet per second. The difference in energetic force between a mile in 2:30 and a mile in 2:03 is 7.38 feet per second. It is the pace that kills—that exhausts vitality and strains tendons. The horse that runs a mile in 1:35 covers 55.57 feet per second, a test that seems beyond physical capacity. None but the best of lungs can sustain action of the purest kind at this high rate of speed for a mile.

THE MONTANA CIRCUIT will begin on June 29th and run sixty days. The racing will be at Anaconda and Butte. There will be four or more running races each day and one or more harness events. A number of valuable stakes have been opened, which will be found together with conditions and other necessary information in our advertising columns. Horses that race in Montana can return in time for the California State Fair at Sacramento.

THE CONDITIONS of the $5000 four year old trot at Readville are the most liberal to owners of any race opened for the coming season. For fifty dollars, one per cent. of the purse, horses will be carried until the night before the race, and the total entrance is but five per cent. with no reduction from winners.

A GOOD PROSPECT is offered for sale by William G. Layng in our advertising columns this week. The horse is a good looker and has paced a trial in 2:22.

A Notable Purchase.

Through an advertisement printed in this paper, Hon. Jesse D. Carr, of Salinas, has sold to Mr. John Parrott, proprietor of the Baywood Stud, eleven trotting bred mares, which have been shipped to San Mateo and will be mated with Mr. Parrott's Hackney stallion, Green's Rufus. These mares were bred by Mr. Carr, who has always pursued the policy of breeding for good looks first and speed afterwards, and Mr. Parrott is much pleased with his purchase. Each of these mares is a good individual with good bone and plenty of substance and all but two are in foal. It will be noticed that many of the mares carry the blood of Elmo, one of the handsomest stallions ever brought to the Coast, and the blood of Carr's Mambrino, a son of Mambrino Patchen, is also prominent. Two of the mares are by Hambletonian Wilkes. Ten of those purchased are the following:

MISS BEAUTY—Foaled May 22, 1891. Sire, Gabilan; dam, black mare by Elmo. Stinted to Boodle Jr., April 7, 1900.

JULIA—Foaled May, 1894. Sire, Mambrino Jr.; dam, Puss. Stinted to Thor March 28, 1900.

News from Sacramento.

Our Sacramento correspondent, D. L. Crane, writes us that Princess Wilkes 2:30, one of the greatest prospects in California, died at Sacramento this week from pneumonia. She was owned by Mr. J. E. Terry, the well known lumber merchant and Director of the State Agricultural Society and was in Vet Tryon's string. Princess Wilkes was a daughter of Clarence Wilkes and her dam a daughter of Dexter Prince. She was a trotter and made her record of 2:30 in a race at Carson several years ago. In Mr. Tryon's hands she showed great improvement, in fact a record of 2:10 was confidently expected for her, and as she was a square trotter and game a great future would very likely have been hers had she not contracted the fatal disease. She was as handsome as a picture and very attractive in harness.

While standing on K street the other day our correspondent saw a fine span of pacers coming down the line and on second look recognized Baby Button and Pehoe hooked together and driven by Charley Payne. They looked all right and Charley probably was fully aware of the fact, and he wore a smile of confidence in their ability to throw gravel in the face of any pair whose owner was rash enough to attempt to pass them.

There are quite a number of horses working at the track and the certainty of district fair appropriations has put confidence in the minds of the trainers for a good season of harness racing in California. Zombro 2:11 is making a good season. His colts are such grand looking youngsters and show so much speed that all horsemen believe he will be one of the leading sires of speed within a very few years. None of his colts have ever been started in a race yet but some of the three year olds will be this year. Geo. Beckers has him in such good shape and he shows so much speed in his exercise that many believe he could reduce his already low mark.

Stam B. 2:11½ is also getting a good patronage. Hi Hogoboom has him in charge. The Stam B. colts are good lookers and show speed. There will be a few of them seen in the stake races this year.

C. J. Hamlin, the veteran breeder of trotters and pacers, has decided to spend his remaining years in Florida. The venerable breeder is as enthusiastic about his horses and their great deeds as he ever was, but he is now hardly in shape, on account of his great age, to withstand the sudden changes of temperature even in summer on the shores of Lake Erie.

James Butler is said to have added a fast one to his East View farm string, which will be campaigned down the grand circuit. He will also try to have Klatawah 2:05½, the sensational pacer of 1898, in shape to go down the line along with Hetty G. 2:05½. The latter is slated to get the record for pacing mares any time she is right.

Neva Simmons, who last fall worked a mile in 2:08½, looks like a hard nut to crack for the green brigade, yet some good judges who have seen her say she will prove of the Sagwa, King Vasco, Axtello order.

Vilette, the only sister to Star Pointer 1:59½ and dam of Venona 2:15½, has been booked to John R. Gentry 2:00½. The two-minute pacer should result, but its dollars to doughnuts that it don't.

John Splan, Glonville, O., has bought the chestnut gelding Eureka 2:15½ by Ira, and will look for a polo mate for him. Eureka was bred in California and made his record here.

It is said that a twenty-nine year old mare by Swigert, owned in Clinton, Ia., produced a foal last season and is now again in foal.

A Wonderful Broodmare.

[Chicago Horse Review.]

Considering all that has been, and is being, written about great broodmares, we confess to a feeling of surprise that due prominence has not been given to one certainly among the greatest, but whose fame has been so neglected that her name is seldom, if ever, seen in print. We refer to Sally Adams by John Burdine, one of the three mares enjoying the distinction of having produced four 2:15 performers.

Sally Adams is a brown mare, foaled 1883, and at the close of 1900 she was credited by the Year Book as the dam of the trotter Sally Simmons, four year old record 2:13½, and the pacer Margery 2:12½. Last year she contributed two more 2:15 performers to the turf, the trotter Dolly Bidwell 2:13½, at four years, and the pacer Rosalet 2:12½. This does not constitute a world's record, because two performers out of the same dam have previously entered the 2:15 list in the same season, and there are also two other mares that have each produced four 2:15 performers. But, despite this, Sally Adams is in some respects, as a dam of extreme speed, unequalled. The two other dams of four 2:15 performers are Nell by Estill Eric, dam of one trotter, Belle Vara 2:09½ and three pacers, Vassar 2:07, Susie T. 2:09½ and Ambidexter 2:11½, and Possum Pie by Otteroon, dam of four pacers, Judge Hurt 2:09½, Dr. Flowers Hill 2:12½, Lena Hill 2:12½ and Abbot Hill 2:14½. Of the produce of these two mares, two of Nell's are by Vatican 2:29½ and two by Ambassador 2:31½; all four of Possum Pie's are by William M. Hill 2:20. Sally Adams, however, possesses the unequalled distinction of having foaled four different 2:15 performers by four different sires. Sally Simmons 2:13½ (who, with Roseleaf, holds the trotting team record in a race 2:15½), is by Simmons 2:28; Margery 2:12½ is by Warfare, son of Aberdeen, Dolly Bidwell 2:13½ is by Inglewood 2:24, son of Onward 2:25½, and Rosalet 2:12½ is by Cleveland 2:29½, son of Zilcaadi Goldust. Moreover, Margery and Rosalet are the sole standard performers to the credit of their respective sires. It is also a notable fact that all four of these 2:15 performers of Sally Adams' are mares, and that every one of them entered the 2:15 list the same season that they first made a standard record.

In early life Sally Adams was known as Lady H. The Register (Vol. XIV,) gives her simply as by John Burdine, with no information about her dam. She was bred by Mr. J. D. Creighton, the well known Lexington, Ky., breeder, and her last recorded transfer (1893) was to the Rumbarger Live Stock Company, Indianapolis, Ind. The catalogue of this firm—the Brooklyn Heights Stock Farm—for 1894, gives her as a "brown mare, black points, no white; 15½ hands high" and states that her dam was by Mambrino Columbus; grandam untraced. Her sire, John Burdine, was a son of the great Almont and a brother of the well known sire Antar, his dam having been the famous matron Puss, by Brown Chief, also the dam of Frank P. Porter 2:27½ (sire of two), and grandam of Nelly McGregor 2:14, Arcadian 2:23½ (sire of Little Edgar 2:14½, etc.), and Ferguson Wilkes 2:25. John Burdine does not figure in the "Great Table" in the Year Book, but he is the reputed sire of Lady Almont 2:27½ (dam of Bob 2:28), and beside Sally Adams, of one other producing daughter, Nomis, dam of Prelude 2:29, and grandam of Burns McGregor 2:29 at two years, a famous colt trotter burned to death early in his third year. Mambrino Columbus, sire of Sally Adams' dam, was by Mambrino chief out of Fly by Barclay's Columbus. Mambrino Columbus is not a standard sire, but has one producing daughter, the dam of Verlinda B. 2:20. He was, however, own brother of one of Mambrino chief's best daughters, the celebrated Vic, dam of Mattie Graham 2:21½ and Dainty 2:26½, of Tattler Chief (sire of Dolly B. 2:14½, pacing, and the dam of Fred S. Wilkes 2:11½, sire of two in 2:10) and grandam of six below 2:30. Vic is also the third dam of Baron Dillon 2:12 (Sire of Dillonite 2:14), Utility 2:13 and Carrie Shields 2:13½, and the fourth dam of Phrase 2:12½. The Vic family is one of the most prolific broodmare strains in the Register, in the matter of extreme speed.

Sally Adams was foaled 1883, as above stated, and produced her first foal in 1890. This was Sally Simmons. Margery was her second, Rosalet her third and Dolly Bidwell her fifth. Thus, of her first five foals, four are in the 2:15 list. She is, indeed, a wonderful broodmare.

In all probability there will be a grand trotting carnival held at the Brighton Beach race track, New York, this summer, the dates figured on being August 12-17. Prominent Parkway Club officials are behind it with money in abundance, and Charles A. McCully will, beyond doubt, be the secretary and race manager. A $5000 stake is to be opened, and five others of $2000 each—surely a splendid chance open to owners to race.

Several owners of horseflesh at Davisville, Yolo county, have leased a piece of land just east of that town and are building a mile race course on it. They expect to have it finished in time for racing in the early part of May, about which time the annual spring races at Dixon occur. Quite a number of local horsemen intend entering horses in the Dixon meet, and will probably enter at Davisville if the race course is finished.

For the Massachusetts purse New Hampshire has a candidate who, if he should train good this year, will bear watching. This is Idolita 2:12. Last year he was off and did not start. Thomas Lawson has a fine prospect for the big events at Readville, Providence and Lexington, in Dreamer 2:14½. Last summer, as a three year old, this handsome colt could reel off halves better than a 2:08 gait.

A. B. Rodman of Woodland, was made happy one day this week by the advent of a handsome colt presented him by his mare Advocatrix, a daughter of Atorney. The sire of the colt is McKinney 2:11½. The youngster is entered in the Breeders Futurity and Mr. Rodman thinks he has a mortgage on first money.

Eastern Racing Dates.

The long delayed meeting of the Stewards of the Jockey Club for the adjustment of the coming season's racing dates for the Eastern racing associations was held in New York, on the 6th inst., when the turf schedule of 1901 was arranged and racing officials for the year were appointed. August Belmont, whose illness was the chief cause for the delay, and who had just returned from Florida, presided. The other Stewards present were J. H. Bradford, F. R. Hitchcock, H. K. Knapp and Andrew Miller.

The meeting organized for the coming year by re-electing all the Jockey Club officers, Mr. Belmont continuing as Chairman, with James R. Koone Vice Chairman and F. K. Sturgis Secretary and Treasurer. In the selection of racing officials the meeting reappointed all the members of the Jockey Club's racing staff who served at the close of the Eastern racing season of 1900. These are:

Starter—C. J. Fitzgerald; Judges—C. McDowell and C. H. Pettingill; Clerk of the Scales—H. G. Crickmore; Handicapper—W. S. Vosburgh; Timer—W. H. Barreta; Paddock and Patrol Judge—J. L. Hall.

The arrangement of dates for the racing associations under the jurisdiction of the Jockey Club was made without altering in any way the order that has been observed for the various meetings for several years. The opening of the Eastern racing season, however, is fixed five days earlier than the opening last year, the Washington Jockey Club's spring meeting being announced to begin on March 28th this year, against April 2d last year. The meeting will continue to April 12th giving Washington fourteen racing days, with three Saturdays.

The New York racing season is arranged to open at the Aqueduct track on April 15th, racing to continue at Aqueduct until May 2d, giving Aqueduct sixteen days. Racing at Morris Park for the Spring meeting follows, beginning on May 4th and continuing to May 23d, making seventeen days available for that track, though it is probable that the association will follow its custom of racing not more than five days a week. Gravesend, Sheephead Bay and Brighton Beach follow in that order, Gravesend getting eighteen days, beginning May 25th; Sheephead Bay seventeen days beginning June 15th and Brighton Beach getting twenty-six days of continuous racing, beginning July 5th. The Saratoga meeting is set to open August 5th, and runs to August 30th, which, as Brighton Beach closes August 3d, gives Saratoga its full meeting without conflict with racing in New York, a concession that was expected, since the Saratoga track has passed into the control of members of the Jockey Club. The schedule of dates follows:

SPRING MEETINGS.

Washington Jockey Club—March 28th to April 13th.
Queens County Jockey Club—April 15th to May 2d.
Westchester Racing Association—May 4th to May 23d.
Brooklyn Jockey Club—May 25th to June 14th.
Coney Island Jockey Club—June 15th to July 4th.
Brighton Beach Racing Association—July 5th to August 3d.
Saratoga Association—Aug. 5th to Aug. 30th.

AUTUMN MEETINGS.

Coney Island Jockey Club—Aug. 31st to Sept. 14th.
Brooklyn Jockey Club—Sept. 16th to Oct. 5th.
Westchester Racing Association—Oct. 7th to Oct. 26th.
Queens County Jockey Club—October 28th to Nov. 9th.
Washington Jockey Club—Nov. 11th to Nov. 30th.

Annabelle 2:27 1-2.

A St. Helena subscriber asks that the breeding and produce of Annabelle 2:27½ be given. She is by Dawn 2:18½, son of Nutwood 2:18½ and Countess (dam of Strathway, sire of Toggles 2:09½, etc.) by Whipple's Hambletonian. The dam of Annabelle was Pachoco, thoroughbred mare by Hubbard, son of Planet; second dam Mercedes by Lodi; third dam Trampolito by Billy Cheatham; fourth dam Emma Taylor by imp. Glencoe, etc. Annabelle produced La Bello, two year old record 2:16, and Robert I., a three year old that was a close second last year in 2:15 and will get a low mark this year beyond a doubt. For a list of her foals and the names of their sires write to R. I. Moorhead, Santa Clara.

F. M. Ware, secretary of the Newport Horse Show, suggests a novel plan for bringing together The Abbot, Cresceus, Charley Horr and Boralma, without forcing the champion to start against more than one horse at a time. Mr. Ware suggests that the New England Breeders' Association, or some other association in the Grand Circuit, offer a purse of $20,000 for three races, the horses to start in pairs. Before the first race he would have the drivers draw lots to determine which horses should compete against each other in the preliminaries. The winners in these trial races should then trot another race to decide the championship. Mr. Ware would give $5000 to the winner of each of the preliminary races and $10,000 to the winner of the final. This proposition would doubtless suit the owner of The Abbot, but would hardly be attractive to the other owners, the public or the association over whose track the race was given. Match races between two horses have nearly always proven unsatisfactory, either one of the contestants lays over the other so much as to make the race a farce, as was the case in the Cresceus-Tommy Britton matches last year, or else on the day of the race one of the contestants is out of shape, and by not racing up to his previous form gives the event a bad look. If the owner of The Abbot holds to his decision not to race the champion against a field of horses there are Peter the Great 2:07½, Lord Derby 2:07, Georgena 2:07½ and others that would not be out of place in any company. A race between a good sized field of evenly matched horses, will always be more satisfactory than a match between two horses, even if the latter have the fastest records in the world.

SULKY NOTES.

It is said that M. E. McHenry will have just four horses in his stable this year.

There will be ten members of the Lake Erie Circuit the coming season, with customary $400 purses.

Dr. E. E. Frost, of Worcester, Mass., is driving the pacer Ed. B. Young 2:11 by Direct on the road.

Harness racing will begin in California about August 1st or perhaps as early as the last week in July.

Charles Marvin has a yearling trotter by Belsire 2:21, that he expects to beat 2:30 with this season.

Horsemen all over the country will be glad to hear that W. B. Fasig is recovering from his long illness.

The Villago Farm catalogue shows that there are 450 head of horses at the great breeding farm at East Aurora.

A Suffolk Punch stallion, nine years old and in first class condition is offered for sale by one of our advertisers.

Wilmont M. Chapman, who was connected with Turf, Field and Farm for many years, died on February 24th.

Lucy Wilton, the dam of Gayton 2:08, has a bay colt by Axworthy (3) 2:15, at Shultshurst Farm, Portchester, N. Y.

Caid 2:07, who last year won $9325 on French and Austrian tracks, was driven in all his races by "Cincinnati Jack" Miller.

Three hundred and sixty-five horses, among them ninety polo ponies, were shipped from New York to Liverpool last Saturday.

C. W. Williams will breed a lot of his best mares to St. Vincent 2:13; he believes him to be one of the very best of Wilkes' stallions.

There is a very promising green trotter owned in Hartford, Conn., that is by Arion 2:07, dam by Paola 2:18, brother to Palo Alto 2:08.

J. C. McKinney of Titusville, Pa., has a great prospect in the mare Carolita by Dexter Prince. She has been a mile in 2:15 and a half in 1:04.

Rey Direct 2:10 prior to this year had been bred to thirty-one mares, and he has thirty-one living foals. That's a record that few stallions can beat.

It is reported that twenty-two mares have already been booked to Cresceus 2:04 for the fall season to be made by him in Orange county, New York.

The rumors that James Butler has bought Neva Simmons, trial 2:08, probably arose from a mistake in names, as he has bought Edna Simmons 2:12.

It is said that the pacer Little Boy 2:06 worked a mile in 2:02 last year, and that in the race he won at Boston, he was separately timed in 2:05, 2:04, 2:05 and 2:07.

M. H. Tichonor & Co., of Chicago, recently sold to an Eastern dealer 20 head of coach horses for $40,000, all of them trotting bred, some of them standard and registered.

Fred Nagle's mare by Wapsie, a full sister to Nelly Bly, dam of Our Boy 2:12, has a fine colt by Hambletonian Wilkes, foaled at Green Meadow Stock Farm on the 11th inst.

By the first of April the horses at Pleasanton will begin moving a little faster and by the first of May quarters in 31 or 32 seconds will be common on that celebrated track.

John Gleason, who for ten years handled the horses of the late Robert Bonner, has taken a lease of the Bonner farm near Tarrytown, N. Y., and will open a training and boarding stable.

United States army officers are buying a number of short, stocky cow ponies for the Philippine service. This purchase is entirely without precedent and is understood to be an experiment.

At a sale of registered Percheron stallions and mares held at Corning, Iowa, last week, 22 mares sold for $7720 and eight stallions for $3625. The highest price paid was $1175 for the imported stallion Louis.

There will be one or more harness races each day at the meetings to be given at Butte and Anaconda. Sixty days' racing will be given. The program for harness races will be announced on or before May 12th.

The mare Beatrice by Tilton Almont, belonging to P. T. Foster of Yolo, has a colt by Falrose 2:19. It was foaled February 8th. Mr. Foster claims the name X-Ray for the colt, which is entered in the Breeders' $6,000 Futurity.

Lou Starr, well and favorably known to many California horsemen, left San Francisco on the sailing vessel Santiago this week, in charge of twenty-seven head of horses and mules consigned to Geo. S. McKenzic, Hilo, Hawaiian Islands.

An Eastern gentleman who has been visiting the California tracks remarked to us the other day that he noticed the get of Diablo 2:09 were nearly always handsome horses. There is no question but Diablo sires good looks as uniformly as any horse in California.

Dick Benson will leave Kansas City about May 1st with the string of trotters that he intends to campaign on the grand circuit this year. Among the California horses that will be in the string are The Roman 2:18 and Sybil S. 2:16. Benson will campaign eight or ten horses.

Addison 2:11 has been running out for a few months but was brought in this week by his owner, F. Hahn, who has again placed him in Ed Lafferty's charge at Alameda. He will be jogged for a while to get him in shape to race if purses are offered for the classes to which he is eligible.

It is reported that several months ago Soprano, the dam of C. F. Clay 2:18, and four others in the 2:30 list, died in Illinois at the age of 26. She was a full sister to the Oakwood Park stallion, Steinway, one of the greatest sires ever owned in this State. Steinway is still alive at the age of 25.

The Roman 2:18 is now at the Alameda track. He is being jogged and gets some work Tuesdays and Fridays. His principal workout day is Tuesday. Budd Doble is driving him in his work and likes him very much. He will take him to his owner, Mr. Christie of Kansas City, about May 1st.

A prominent carriage builder of New York has expressed the opinion that road wagons built with high wheels, steel tires and standard straight bearing axles, are faster on a straightaway course like the Speedway than are the wagons built with pneumatic tires, small wheels and ball bearing axles.

Sidlette 2:22, the gray mare by Sidney, has a colt by Rey Direct that measured 51 inches high the day it was foaled. It is as black as a coal as is this mare's yearling also by Rey Direct. There is not a more impressive sire than Rey Direct in this State. He has been bred to 31 mares up to this year and as a result there are 31 foals, and all are black.

Robert I., by Hambletonian Wilkes, dam Annabelle 2:27, by Dawn (dam of La Belle, two year old record 2:16) is at the Alameda track. No handsomer horse is owned in California and he is fast enough to win money in good company though he has no record. He was second last year in 2:15 in two different heats at Tanager, and showed that he was a game colt.

The California trainers who have made nominations in the Denver purses are James Thompson, Pleasanton; Dr. Boucher, San Jose; S. Thompson, Los Angeles; W. G. Durfee & Co., Los Angeles; B. O. Van Bokkelen, San Jose; J. C. Wallace, San Diego, and A. L. Mulcahy, San Francisco. The full list of nominators appears in this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

P. C. Knox, of Pittsburg, who it is said will succeed Mr. Griggs as attorney general of the United States, was one of the four or five who stood ready to pay $25,000 for The Abbot 2:03, when the champion trotter was sold last fall, but he did not get an opportunity to make a bid. In Wert 2:15 and Dr. Leek 2:09, Mr. Knox owns the fastest pair of trotters in the world, and what is more, he has himself driven them the fastest mile ever trotted to pole—2:10.

English exchanges comment on the official statement by the British Board of Trade that no less than twenty million pounds sterling have within the past three years been lost in the bicycle manufacturing business. Speculators, it is also said, have lost heavily in the auto-truck and automobile making business, the public having turned completely from the self-propelled vehicle to the horse. The Board also comments on the augmented demand all over the world for high class driving and draft horses.

C. K. G. Billings, of Chicago, has purchased from John B. Stewart, of Lexington, Ky., the five year old high acting gelding Billy K. by Poem, dam Kitty by Argonaut, for $2500. All good judges of this class of horses pronounce this gelding an extraordinary good one, with not only the right kind of high action all round, but speed along with it. It is said that Billy K. has been a mile in 2:19, a half in 1:07. He is handsome and good mannered, and looks like a prospective prize winner at the Madison Square Garden shows.

With all the outcry against hoppers the pacers that wore them last year got a large proportion of the money. The fastest heat of the year was by Prince Alert, a hopped pacer who beat Anaconda and Indiana in 2:02. In the 2:06 pace won by Coney at Cleveland, and in which eleven horses started, the four money winners wore the straps, viz.: Coney, Prince Alert, Ace and William Mac. The time of the three heats in this race was 2:04, 2:02 and 2:04. All the other horses in this race paced without the Indiana pajamas.

The "big" horses at Goshen are wintering finely and may be seen jogging on the streets every pleasant day. "Billy" Andrews sees that Stamboul and Gentry do not suffer for want of exercise. John Dickerson is looking after Advertiser and Lord of the Manor, and his brother, "Will" Dickerson jogs Joe Patchen and Fred Kohl from the Parkway Farm stables. Potential and Nonesuch, from Capt. Tuthill's stables, attract attention when Mr. Rossmore brings them out. The person who loves horses can see a lot to interest him on Goshen's streets these pleasant days.

"Though the Year Book and the unofficial compilations in this country still credit Greenlander with the 'world's' record at two miles, and Senator L. with the 'world's' record at four miles, the best time of both American champions has been beaten by trotters on the other side of the Atlantic. At Blackpool, England, on Sept. 11, 1899, the American mare Bertie R., 2:12, trotted four miles in 9:58, cutting fourteen seconds from the mark made by Senator L. in 1893. Caid 2:07, an American stallion, trotted two miles in 4:27 in a race at Vienna, Austria, on Sept. 27, 1900. Greenlander's champion American record at the distance is 4:32."

Consul-General Ho Yow visited Pleasanton last Saturday with C. F. Bunch, of San Jose, and purchased from John Blue the mare Solo 2:23 by McKinney, dam by Stamboul. Solo bears a very close resemblance in size, conformation, color and gait to the Consul's mare Braw Lass by El Benton, and he proposes making a pair of them. If they travel well together they will attract attention in the park when driven by their new owner.

While the theorists are studying and figuring out some plan by which they can breed trotters from trotters and pacers from pacers, will they please to note that there is a bay stallion now at Pleasanton called Charley C. He is by the pacer Direct 2:05 and out of the mare Vera, two of whose foals, Rey Direct 2:10 and De Veras 2:11, are both natural pacers with a high rate of speed. But Charley C. is a square trotter with lots of action and has never shown the least inclination to pace. He has worked a mile in 2:18 and is thought to be a coming 2:15 performer to a certainty. According to the Gen. Tracy idea that the producers of pacers should be cut out of breeding farms where fast trotters are desired, Vera would be a cast-off, and Direct, sire of that good trotter Directum Kelly 2:08, would not be of any use.

The McMurray Sulky Company is making two styles of bikes for 1901. This company is now selling the pneumatic bike all over the civilized world, or wherever the harness horse is raced. They have a good trade in Austria, Russia, France and Germany, and their home trade is better than ever. They make the following points: Perfect construction, light weight, superior strength and easy running. They are also building a jog cart that is very popular at a reasonable price, also gentlemen's pneumatic runabouts for fancy driving, also with solid rubber tires, and pneumatic speed wagons. All these are new styles for 1901. Kenney the Bikeman has them for sale. Call on him and look over those he has in stock and inspect the catalogue of fine vehicles turned out by the McMurray factory.

September 10th to 13th will be the dates of the next horse show in Denver. The officers elected for this year are C. E. Tubbs, President; W. W. Porter, Vice-President; John W. Springer, Treasurer; C. F. Martin, Secretary; J. A. Burnett, Assistant Secretary. Directors—William Cooke Daniels, George L. Goulding, Dr. E. R. Kust, Harry J. O'Bryan, J. C. Burger, J. Fred Roberts, Harry K. Brown, John M. Kuykendall, Dr. Sherman Williams and Judge A. W. Rucker. There is $412.27 cash in the treasury. The receipts from the last horse show amounted to $11,967.35 and the total expenditures, $6883.27. There is a permanent asset in the way of leases and other property valued at $2500 which brings the assets of the club up to $6912.27. The original capital of the association was $6000, so that there has been a profit of $912.27.

The last day of the Woodward-Shanklin sale at Lexington was marked by a commendable act of generosity on the part of the horsemen present. The mare Archletta by Almont Arch, and her yearling filly by Electric Bell were entered in the sale by Mrs. Irving Halsey, widow of the trotting horse writer, Judge Halsey. This was his entire estate. The mare was bid up to $30 and there it stopped. J. E. Bathgate of Newark, N. J., placed a five-dollar bill on the mare's back as a contribution to the widow. This example has followed until $218 were raised. The youngster was next offered and was going at a low figure when it was proposed that bids of $5 be made, the last bidder to get the filly and each one contributing his bid. There were thirty-six bidders. Sheriff Henry Bosworth secured her and gave her back. She then brought $101, being knocked down to Frank Gentry of Lexington. In all $529 were secured. A farmer who had been keeping the mare and filly donated his feed bill and the sale company its percentage.

At a meeting of the Directors of the New England Breeders Association, held March 1st, the possibilities of a $20,000 stallion race were canvassed, and it was decided to lay the matter on the table for the present, as no such class of stallions appear to be in training, as was the case last season. If it appears later that a good stallion or free-for-all is possible, the stake will be given. Two classes were opened for the annual breeders' meeting, which will be held at Readville, commencing September 16th. One is a $10,000 purse for 2:10 trotters under usual conditions, while the other is a guaranteed $5000 purse for four year old trotters eligible to the 2:25 class. In the latter class the entrance fee is $50, and nothing more is due until the night before the race, when starters will pay $200 more each. No percentage will be deducted from winners. In addition to these two races, there is a $5000 Futurity for three year old trotters, and $1000 for three year old pacers, which will be raced at this meeting, as well as at $2500 division of the Futurity for two year trotters. The purse events will be announced later.

Attention has lately been directed the world over to the cream colored horses used in the British royal coach. Some inquiry has been made as to the breed to which these horses belong. To that question reply may be made that much difference of opinion exists as to the origin of the tribe. Some authorities call these horses a breed, others only a variety. The fact probably is, according to the best authority, that these cream colored horses are a distinct breed, originating in Denmark, but transplanted wholly into Hanover. The royal horses of Hanover were white—who has not heard of the "White Horse of Hanover?"—and white horses were used in the king's coach. At one time or other an ingenious chamberlain conceived the idea of putting cream colored horses in the queen's coach and ever afterwards horses of that hue of coat were bred and maintained in the royal Hanoverian stables. The probability is, however, that both the whites and the creams will soon be represented solely in the stables of the British crown, for we learn that for the past two decades or so the Hanoverian studs have not been kept up as they should have been if intended to supply any great number of the beautiful coachers for which they have been so justly celebrated.

The new track at Memphis, Tenn., which is now in course of construction, is to be 100 feet wide its entire length. It should be an ideal place to wind up the grand circuit although we fear that it will prevent the Los Angeles people from continuing their custom of getting big attractions from the East at their fall meetings, as the Memphis date is as late as it will be safe to advertise a California meeting.

"Uncle Davy" Cahill, the Kentuckian who owns Charley Herr 2:07, in a recent interview regarding the future of his great stallion, recently said: "While I have had no negotiations with any trotting associations or the owners of Cresceus and The Abbot for a proposed race between these great horses, I am ready to race one or both of them for a purse such as would be given for a race of this kind, for one heat, two heats, three heats or any number of heats." I am inclined to think that Charley Herr will show more improvement so far as speed is concerned than either The Abbot or Cresceus this year, and if he does show material improvement in this respect, he will not be outclassed by either of the other horses in a race. He is much such a trotter as Joe Patchen is a pacer, for he saves himself as much as possible, is always going the gait he ought to, and can take the severest kind of punishment in a losing heat and come up sweet tempered for another tilt. Such horses are few, and they usually continue to improve for a longer period of time than those which have to be handled more carefully.

Mr. August Belmont, although prominently identified with thoroughbreds, is a great admirer of a square going trotter; one that steps high, is free gaited, stylish and of such a disposition that the owner can drive him. Mr. E. H. Harriman, some four or five years ago, when he had Stamboul in the city, took Mr. Belmont out riding one day in a cutter, and Mr. Belmont was very much impressed with the desirable qualities which Stamboul displayed—being a horse of fine manners and very brushy. The horse that can out-brush Stamboul on the trot has never lived. The late John A. Goldsmith trained Stamboul one year in California, and one day brushed him an eighth of a mile in 13½ seconds over the Stockton track. Mr. Belmont bred a granddaughter of Volunteer to Stamboul with fine success, and has now sent to Goshen to be bred to him, a very handsome trotting bred mare called Rainbow, by King Rene, dam Fiddle String by Fiddle Stick, son of Lexington. Stamboul has one marked characteristic which will appeal to all those who have been influenced by reading the recent article of General Tracy's in which the General animadverted against the pacers—Stamboul always sires trotters. He has forty-four in the 2:20 list, four of them are in the 2:12 list—and he has never sired a pacer.—Spirit of the Times.

Chas. L. Griffith was busy last Saturday figuring how much a black foal born at Pleasanton the night before would have to win if raced, or be sold for to make him even on the original investment on his dam and her cost since. The foal is a black son of Direct 2:05½, his dam Vida Wilkes 2:18½ by Guy Wilkes. Mr. Griffith paid $9500 for Vida at auction in New York and has bred her nearly every year since he owned her. She has slipped foals twice, and the only live foals she had previous to this one, fell and broke its neck when a yearling. Several years she failed to get in foal at all, and Mr. Griffith was rather surprised when he found that this little son of Direct was a healthy looking little chap and was taking his nourishment as though he enjoyed it. He is a granly bred one and if he lives and has no ill luck should be a wonderful horse. His dam was one of Guy Wilkes' fastest daughters and would have taken a very low mark had she not gone wrong. She took her mark as a three year old. The dam of Vida Wilkes is Vixen (dam of 3 with standard records) by the great Nutwood, and the next dam is another great broodmare, Sister (the dam of Albert W. 2:20 and Bonanza 2:29½ and grandam of Waldstein 2:22½) by John Nelson. The writer never saw Lady Bunker, but if the photographs of her that have been published are at all correct, Vida Wilkes bears a very marked resemblance to her. We remarked this to Bert Webster and he said he had often been struck with the same idea when looking at Vida Wilkes.

A number of trotters and pacers are being worked at Pendleton, Oregon, this spring, and owing to the climate, good breeding and horsemanship this place has turned out some of the best horses Oregon has ever produced, which is likely to continue, judging from present prospects. At the Perringer & Simpson track they are stepping along some already, and the boys are confident they will win their part of the big purses this year. Cris Simpson is working Alta Norte 2:16½, Phil N. 2:21, Mack Bonner, a green trotter by McKinney out of the dam of Bonner N. B. 2:17, Santiam (p) 2:26 by Caution and the two year old Charley S. and New Moon, both by Bonner N. B., which are entered in the Breeders' Stake at the State Fair. Simpson's horses are looking well and are in good condition for the season's work. James Erwin is working a very promising stable, and they all show the good care and careful handling they are receiving. He has Starkey (p) 2:15½, John Edison (p) 2:16½, Oveta 2:21½, Saltsee, a green trotter by Caution; Ollie M., a two year old pacer by Westfield; Oregon Sunshine, a two year old pacer by Bonner N. B. Both these two year olds are entered in the Breeders' Stake and are promising colts. Geo. Perringer is jogging Mt. Hood by Westfield and Kinney Mack, a three year old by McKinney. They are both looking well and in good condition. L. Thompson is placing his faith in his two year old trotter, Promise, by Westfield, and to our mind is one of the best two year olds in the State; keep your eye on her. Frank Frazier, who brought out the fast pacer Chehalis 2:04½, has Hassalo, a green pacer by Westfield 2:22½ out of Alta 2:23½, that will show the boys Frank's old time horsemanship when he turns him loose. Frank also has a Westfield two year old that he says can beat anything in Umatilla county and this includes the best ones in the State. We advise our West Oregon friends to look out for the Pendleton aggregation, for they are full of bone.—Portland Rural Spirit.

At the Nightingale farm at Cordolia, Solano county, there is standing for public service this year the stallion James Monroe, a son of James Madison 2:17½. James Monroe stands 16 hands 3 inches high and weighs 1320 pounds, but is so handsomely proportioned that he does not look to be as large as he is. He was worked some as a four year old (he is now eight) but was such a big colt that his trainer was afraid to do much with him, although he showed great speed at the trot and had a nice way of going. His dam was by Whipple's Hambletonian out of a thoroughbred mare by Owen Dale, son of Williamson's Belmont. James Monroe is a Mahogany bay with black points and should be a good horse for the farmers of Solano county who wish to raise carriage horses and roadsters to breed to, as size and style are in great demand in the horse market and will always be. The service fee has been placed at $25.

We desire to call the attention of breeders to the fact that the horse Educator advertised for service in our columns to day is one of the most profitable horses to breed to in California. He is said to be the handsomest son of Director which is no slight compliment as many of the Director family are noted for their great beauty. Educator's get, the oldest of which are coming three year olds, are noted for their handsome proportions, and as he is a sure foal getter and so prepotent that all his get look like him, the breeders of Alameda county are giving him an increased patronage this year. Educator is a jet black horse, foaled June 1892, stands 15½ hands high and weighs 1170 pounds. He is a natural pacer and his action is perfection. With lofty carriage and a perfect disposition he is a show horse that is hard to beat in any company. He was sired by the old champion Director 2:17 one of the greatest race horses that ever trotted in America, and a sire of champions having produced Directum 2:05½ and Direct 2:05½, besides many others. Educator's dam was Dolly by Vermont Messenger. Dolly was noted in Alameda county as a handsome roadster with great speed and wonderful endurance, it being a common occurrence for her to be driven from Haywards to Broadway street, Oakland, a distance of fourteen miles in fifty minutes hitched to a buggy. Dolly's dam was a handsome representative of the Morgan family of trotters and it is from this happy combination of the beauty, speed and endurance of the Director, Messenger and Morgan blood that Educator gets those qualities and the power to reproduce them in his offspring. The late T. E. Keating worked Educator for a short time, and said he showed a 2:20 gait easily, but as the horse was suffering from a severe cold that nearly developed into influenza he was let up on and Mr. Henry being a farmer and not a racing man concluded to keep him in the stud, especially as many of his neighbors desired to breed to him. At the low service fee of $25 Educator will be a very profitable horse to breed to. He will get speed in all probability and good looks to a certainty. The latter commodity does not have to be developed and brings the ready cash in the market. All of the get of Educator are black or brown, and from three mares with white faces and white legs he has produced three solid black colts. The cut herewith of a three year old filly by Educator, that is owned by James McConaghy of San Leandro, shows the type of horse he is siring. By turning to our advertising pages a small picture of Educator will be seen, as well as some particulars in regard to him.

Ever since The Abbot changed hands there have been rumors of matches and races. At first the only idea was a series of matches between The Abbot and Cresceus. Then it was pointed out that Charley Herr and two or three others would like to come in, and then Thomas W. Lawson, who will go in for anything from a $30,000 pink to a $500,000 yacht, declared that he would put up $10,000 on his gelding Boralma 2:08 for a $60,000 sweepstakes. This has brought out a distinct declaration from Fire Commissioner Scannell defining his position, and what he will do. He says: "Having seen the notice of Mr. Thomas W. Lawson, desiring to race his gelding Boralma against other trotters for $10,000 a corner in a sweepstakes, and mentioning among others he is desirous of meeting the champion of the world The Abbot, as owner of The Abbot I beg to say to Mr. Lawson and all other owners of trotters that The Abbot will not race in any sweepstakes, but stands ready to trot any horse in the world for any amount of money over any track of the Grand Circuit after July 25th, the race to be trotted over the track of the association offering the best inducement. I wish to show that The Abbot is the champion of the champions, and am ready to make any kind of a race to substantiate the claim of champion trotter of the world, and will also endeavor to beat his own record of 2:03½ before the end of the year."

Palmer Clark makes the following sensible remarks in a late issue of the Chicago Inter-Ocean: Some complaint is being made in various quarters at the non-appearance of volume fifteen of the Trotting Register, it now being three years since the last volume was issued. It is presumed the stringent rules and high fees for registration are retarding the registration of stock, both handicaps to the business that have no excuse for their existence and could be regularly rectified. The term "standard bred" has long since ceased to have any significance. I have always contended that the "standard" should consist of just two rules—viz.: a horse that has performed in a public race, acquiring a record of 2:30 and better, or a horse or mare that has produced one or more such performers; otherwise all trotting or pacing bred horses, regardless of rules, should be admitted to the register at a nominal fee, just as a matter of record, the only requirement being that the pedigree be authenticated. This would make the tracing or establishing of the breeding of any horse a simple matter instead of a great hardship, which it is getting to be more and more as horses multiply and registering is not maintained. It would also place the value of the standard on the only basis on which it can hope to live—the speed or speed producing test, doing away with the idea of admitting to standard rank all the probable no-account relations of already registered animals, the only merit to the rank which some of them possess being that they or their ancestors were admitted when the rules were less stringent, a fact in itself that shows the absurdity of applying any blood standard as opposed to the performing test."

McKinney 2:11½, stands at the head of winning sires in America. The American Sportsman of Cleveland, Ohio, has compiled a table of the sires whose get won over $1500 last year and McKinney leads them all. The Sportsman says: "For the first time since 1892, when this paper began its table of money winning sires, a stallion under fifteen years of age stands at the head of winners, and that stallion belongs to California, it being McKinney, one of the most talked of young stallions of the day. It goes without saying, that with harness races in progress in all parts of the United States, many of them never reported, it is impossible to compile a table of winning sires that will be absolutely complete, but it can be made so nearly complete that a meeting here or there will not change the standing of any horse materially. The table of winning sires for 1900 shows some peculiar facts; for the first time in many years, the stake winners have come from families that were represented on the turf by only those particular horses. As the winner of the Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, Boralma was Boreal's only performer; Annie Burns was the only prominent one of the Bobby Burns family; Charley Herr the only one of the Alfred G. family; Connor the only one of C. F. Clay; Lady Geraldine was Constantine's only big winner, and the futurity which has in many years made the champion sire, went to the Moko family, which has produced only two trotters as old as three year olds. The get of McKinney won $15,000 in California, while in the East Coney won $5000. The reputation this young horse is gaining is certain to keep him in the foreground as a sire of money winners. He was a great race horse himself having won twenty-five of the twenty-eight races he contested, and never behind the money, while as a sire he stands as a champion. At thirteen years of age he has thirty performers, and fifteen (one half) are in the 2:15 list; three in 2:10, and six below 2:13. The list puts McKinney first with $20,000, Robert McGregor $18,215, Onward $16,825, Direct $14,805, Bobby Burns $14,157, Alfred G. $14,042, Mambrino King $13,420, Allerton $12,663, C. F. Clay $12,377, Constantine $12,295, Moko $11,000, Wilkes Boy $10,120, and 47 others whose get won from $9112 down to $1592.

There is more life on the Vancouver, Wash., track this spring than for years past. The return of J. W. Tilden to this popular winter track has created quite a bit of interest in trotting horse circles, and those who quit the business some years ago are again to be seen and heard talking horse. It was on this track that Mr. Tilden brought out the noted race mare Ella T. 2:08½ and the unknown quantity Kittitas Ranger 2:11½, but since that time the inner field has been planted to a prune orchard and the track dropped out of notice. The return of Mr. Tilden has brought the track to life again, and people are beginning to visit the old training grounds once more, which is a convincing argument that a fine stable of horses can "trot rings around a prune orchard" in attracting a crowd. Mr. Tilden is working a dozen or more head, mostly youngsters or green ones. He has the big stallion Package 2:24½ and May Tilden 2:29½. Package is fully 16 hands high, rather on the coarse order and would not impress any one favorably as a race horse, though the records show that he is a consistent performer, and Mr. Tilden winks the other eye when he speaks of him. May Tilden by Altamont, out of Pussy Ivanhoe, second dam Daisy Dean, the dam of Ella T. 2:08½, is a racy looking beast, and if she does not go along some we miss our guess. The best thing we saw in Mr. Tilden's stable is the gray three year old filly by Touchet, out of Pussy Ivanhoe. She is a clean cut pacer and goes without either boots or pajamas. Hattie Holly is a $25 filly that Mr. Tilden brought out here to win the pacing division of the two year old stake at the State Fair this fall. Golden Scarlet is a Washington bred colt by Scarlet Letter, entered in the two year old stake and looks more like a winner than Hattie. Doc Sperry is also at this track; in fact, he has never left it since it was built. He has Scarlet Letter, Vinmont 2:21, a green trotter by Coeur d'Alene, out of Venetia, by Almont 33, and a three year old by Malheur. Scarlet Letter is looking big and fine, and will be kept in the stud again this season. Perhaps no horse on the coast with such ultra fashionable breeding has been kept so isolated as Scarlet Letter. The few colts he has are nearly all fine individuals with plenty of natural speed to warrant training, but they have, unfortunately, been in the hands of those who would not give them a chance.—Portland Rural Spirit.

At the Traps.

The Lincoln Gun Club announces the following schedule of shoots at Alameda Point for this season, to be held on the third Sunday of the month, commencing March 17th and ending August 18th. The regular club race will be at 25 targets, class shooting; $150 will be distributed among the winners. Event No. 2 at 25 targets for the Neustadter trophy, for members only. Event No. 3 will be the favorite "continuous break" match. Four entries in one day will be allowed. Suitable prizes are offered the winners. Other events will be announced from time to time by Manager Edg. Forster.

The rain interfered with the blue rock shoot of the Empire Gun Club on Sunday. A good attendance of shooters were present but nevertheless several events were necessarily postponed, among them the contests for the "Yellowstone" and "Schumacher" trophies.

In the club championship diamond medal race, twenty-four men faced the traps, A. J. Webb was high gun. A summary of the scores made is the following: Debenham 15, La Motte 17, Lambert 13, Lewis 14, Fish 14, Cullen 17, Baird 19, Wood 11, Juster 15, Hauer 10, Webb 19, Guyett 9, Howard 7, Jacobson 10, Reed 14, Soarls 15, Gero 13, Seavor 17, Hoyt 18, Sweeney 17, Ireland 6, Houtp 10, Gregg 10, Jansen 3.

The second club event, the money match, followed. In this race the shooters are classified by scores made in the medal race, a club purse is divided among four classes each month. For the initial time in the history of a club shoot, the first class was not represented, not a man could break 20 targets in the previous race. Time again a target would be blown from the trap to the shooting score, thus making the shooting in wind and rain exceedingly difficult. In second class Cullen won first money, Debenham and Fish divided in third class. The fourth class men partially shot out their scores. Guyett, Ireland, Hoyt, Gregg, Jansson and McLain were compelled to postpone shooting in this class until next month. In this race the shooters were handicapped in distance. Targets were thrown from the maugtrap. The handicap distances and scores made were the following:

Despite the inclement weather a large gathering of sportsmen attended the pigeon shoot of the California Wing Club at Ingleside last Sunday. Weather conditions militated against high scores during the regular club race. A high wind prevailing carried several dead birds just over the boundary line and thus cut ragged edges in scores. Clarence Haight had a clean run of kills broken by the wind, his fifth bird, well contored and killed clean, dropped a few inches over the line. Five shooters with fourteen birds each were the high men in the club race. Williamson and Haight divided a $25 side pool in the club match. Six bird pool races then prevailed. In the first six bird pool five shooters with straight scores divided the purse, they were Walsh, Shaw, Nauman, Tod Sloan and Klevesahl. In the second six bird pool, six shooters, Dwyer, Lougee, Shaw, Nauman, "Heidelberg" and F. Feudner were in the money division.

Eight shooters divided the pool in the third race, they were Dwyer, Sloan, Ireland, Lougee, Shaw, Shields, "Heidelberg" and F. Feudner.

Following the six bird races two miss and out events were shot. In the first one Lougee went out on his first bird, dead out. Tod Sloan then missed his fourth bird; this left four men in with five birds each; a division of the pool was agreed to and another miss and out started with five men up. This proved to be the most interesting event of the day. The shooters started from the 30 yard slot, after the fifth round, with each man straight, the shooters stepped back to the 32 yard mark, then shot from the 34, 36 and 37 yard scores successively, as each round was shot out straight. It being inconvenient to get back further than 37 yards, Frank Ireland proposed that but one barrel be used, which was agreed to; Dick Dwyer wanted every shooter to shoot left handed, this was barred and single shots prevailed. The birds were rather easy and favored the difficult shooting conditions. The first man to drop out was Sloan on his eighth bird, a strong one. "Heidelberg" next fell out on his twelfth pigeon, a strong "magpie" from No. 3 trap. Frank Ireland's hopes for the purse were spoiled on his eighteenth pigeon, Dwyer also fell down in the eighteen row. Nauman, with eighteen birds scored, won the purse. The rain, during this race, made shooting conditions very difficult.

The underground system of operating the traps now in vogue, proved to be effective and of the highest convenience. The new apparatus was critically inspected by a number of trap shooters, who were all delighted with the improved facilities for indulging in their favorite sport.

The method of retrieving was a practical innovation that had the strong approval of the shooters. Within a few feet of No. 3 trap and inside the row of traps, a pit had been dug in the ground. This hole was covered over with a banking of earth, the portion of the hood furthest from the shooter being open and raised nine inches higher than the surrounding ground. In the dugout a man and two dogs were safely esconced, the dogs being placed on a shelf were enabled to see every trap as it opened and without difficulty could locate all birds that were shot and fell beyond the trap circle. For retrieving birds that fell between the pit and the shooting platform boys were employed. The whole system, as used last Sunday, worked smooth and satisfactorily. The emerging of a Pointer or Setter from, apparently the bowels of the earth, and then a quick dash for the bird and after coming in a few feet the disappearance of the dog into the ground again was a peculiar new phase in trap shooting that will be long remembered by those present.

The blue rock shoot of the San Francisco Gun Club at Ingleside Sunday was postponed. Several squads shot in practice early in the morning; the club events were started and several scores at 25 targets shot up by Dr. Derby, N. Neustadter, W. Weil, E. Klevesahl, Ed Forster, Ed Wands, O. Fisher, G. G. Gauld, H. Hocht, F. Feudner, W. J. Golcher and J. Karnoy. The incessant downpour of rain sent the shooters to shelter and prevented further continuance of the program for the day.

The Game Bill.

The game bill passed the third reading in the Senate on Thursday. The best features of the bill are the prohibition of the sale of quail and a limit on individual bags of feathered game. That the "apostles of game protection" were not actuated by an honesty of purpose for game protection is shown by the omission from the bill of the very features that a majority of the sportsmen of the State desired in the interest of legitimate game protection, viz.: prohibition of night shooting, sink-boxes, snook-boats, the trapping and netting of ducks, a provision relating to trespass, the use of illegal devices and large bore guns, animals or animal blinds in slaughtering ducks, the frivolous limit on black brant, non-protection of shore birds, no protection whatever for English snipe, etc. The individual who was most assiduous in drafting bills and sending letters to the interior press in favor of this peculiar game law is well aware that the wanting features in the game bill are the very matters most obnoxious to Eastern game law makers, whom he has continually quoted as bright examples for our sportsmen to follow. Their omission from the present bill shows a positive lack of good faith on the part of the principal advocates of the bill.

As a recompense for what was lacking in the game bill, we have the establishment of a Game Commissioner ($7500 was appropriated for game protection this year) and a gun license law, taxing sportsmen one dollar per annum. This tax will be used to furnish a fund to run the Game Commissioner's office. How, when, where and by whom the tax will be collected is an interesting problem. This is game protection with a vengeance—the idea and principal is a good class proposition, but we believe that the gun license law will not stand the test of the courts, it is not constitutional.

The Butcher Bird.

The following interesting story concerns a denizen of the thicket and field that has, with many, a reputation for mischief and marauding that is believed by most authorities to be undeserved:

All of us who have lived in California any length of time know him, and such of us as are new to this "land of sunshine" will soon make his acquaintance, for he is such a nifty chap that he challenges at once our attention and our admiration, writes Harry H. Dunn in the Los Angeles Herald. It almost seems from his very dash and energy as well as his carnivorous nature that the butcher bird should have been classed among the falcons and smaller hawks, rather than to be placed off by himself among such peaceful birds as the vireos and waxwings. His Latin name is Lanius, which means literally "a butcher," but his proper name among English-speaking people is the California shrike—not butcher bird. There are many other kinds of shrikes, and they inhabit every country in the world from the cold boreal regions to the torrid zone. In North America alone we have some four distinct species. The largest of these is the Great Northern shrike, a bird much larger than ours and seldom, if ever, seen at this low latitude. Two others about the size of ours inhabit the States to the east of us and are known as the loggerhead and white-rumped varieties. The California shrike was formerly called the "white-winged" on account of the white spot which you can plainly see on each wing.

The shrikes are ferocious, bloodthirsty birds, always on the warpath against lesser birds, especially such as are confined in accessible cages. Yet all the cage birds ten shrikes could destroy in a whole year could not possibly balance the good one pair will do in destroying mice and large insects. Just now they may be frequently seen perched on some dead limb—usually in pairs, for their nesting season is close at hand—watching the ground and air beneath for creeping or flying life. The appearance of a moth or other insect is the signal for a hawk-like swoop into mid-air, returning, if successful, to some perch where a convenient thorn or perch provides a suitable receptacle for the captured prey. This habit of hanging up game in forks of branches or impaling it on thorns is peculiar to this family alone. There seems to be no reason for it—at least I have never known the birds to return to this improvised larder for their victim, and it is not commonly done by a pair after their young are hatched. Then, indeed, papa and mamma shrike have all they can do to procure food for their nestful of youngsters.

Some time in March or April the nest is built, both birds contributing equally to the labor of constructing it. Outwardly it is a rough mass of coarse twigs, but this is only a protection from creeping enemies that would seek to despoil the home. Inside the rough basket we shall find a soft nest of string, fine grasses, bits of cloth and horse hair, sometimes an inch in thickness, whereon the six or seven gray, spotted eggs repose. For the building of this nest some thick, bushy tree is usually chosen. Many times it is one of a cypress hedge, more often a heavily thorned orange tree, while sometimes it is placed within a few feet of the ground in a clump of "water moccasins," or scrub willows. No bird or animal can come near this nest when the eggs are laid and Mrs. Shrike is at home without hoarding from her in no undecided tones, often reinforced by blows from her strong beak.

The nesting habits and eggs of the other shrikes are exactly like ours, except in the case of the northern bird, which, being larger lays a larger egg. The shrikes are regular inhabitants of our parks, and anyone who is interested in bird life may spend a profitable hour or two watching them, especially in Eastlake park, where bird life is noticeably more plentiful than in almost any other of the city's breathing spots.

As supposed by many persons, rifling and breech-loaders are not of recent invention. A breech-loading magazine gun was made by Cookson as early as 1586. A breech-loading revolver was patented by Buckle in 1717, and a single trigger double-barrel sporting gun, having a lock similar in almost all essentials to that of the most modern form of weapon, was patented by Joe Manton in 1792. The use of fulminate ignited by percussion was patented in 1807, but the invention had been employed by others prior to that date. It is mainly the invention of the cartridge making its own gas-tight joint and carrying its own ignition, and the substitution of steel for iron that has rendered the modern forms of small arms and ordnance possible. Breech-loaders were invented long ago, but they did not come into use because it was found impracticable to design a breech mechanism which could be opened and closed quickly, but which would nevertheless make a gas-tight joint. The made-up cartridge for ordnance is now often replaced by the obturator, but the obturator was suggested by the cartridge, and the idea is the same—namely, that the tight joint does not depend on the fit of the breech block. The principal improvement in ordnance is the introduction of the divided breech screw.

In the contest for the William Payne Thompson Cup, valued at $600, emblematic of the Carteret Amateur Championship at live birds, Mr. Harold Money won the trophy, shooting with a Parker gun, over a field of seventeen of the crack amateurs of the country. H. B. Kirkover and Col. Thos. Martin, second high guns, also shot with a Parker gun. The distance was 30 yards rise and 30 yards boundary. In a miss and out for a cup, valued at $100, given by the club, Mr. Money again proved the winner; he shot from the 33 yard mark and killed 17 straight.

W. L. Gerstle had the misfortune to break his high grade Lefever gun during the live bird shoot at Ingleside last Sunday. Both barrels were fired at a bird, on the second discharge the recoil caused the stock to break in two at the grip. An examination of the wood showed a cross grain in the walnut which weakened the stock considerably.

In the Country.

There's a sort o' kindly feelin' in the wind that rustles by,
There's a kind o' warmer color 'long to'ard evenin' in the sky;
You can see the buds a-swellin', an' in almost ev'ry place
There's the pussy willows weavin' patterns out o' soft gray lace;
Grass is greener in the pastur' an' has started in to grow;
You can see it run in ripples when the meadow breezes blow,
An' a solitary robin, of the birds the pioneer,
Pipes a promise from the poplar that the spring will soon be here.

The New Fish Law.

The principal changes in the new fish law now in force have been introduced to curb many abuses arising from purely commercial causes. The close season on steelheads in tide water, it is hoped, will stay the rapacity of the net fishermen. If this result is achieved the true sportsman will not begrudge the curtailing of the period for angling that hitherto has prevailed. Another thing, the law as it stood, by reason of the inaccurate amendments and ambiguous changes introduced by the enacting legislative body, was of no force or effect. This fact was not generally known. It was patent to the Fish Commission officials and the county authorities, however. In Marin county for instance, a case was never brought to trial, for the reason that the law in so far as "trout" were concerned would not stand the test. Trout of any kind may now not be taken at all above tide water except with hook and line in open season from April 1st to November 1st. The open season for taking steelhead in tide water is from April 1st to February 1st of the following year.

A close season during the month of June will be in force for striped bass. The legal weight limit will now be fish of one pound weight or over. The month of June was selected for close season because at that time the salmon nets are laid aside. Any other month would allow the chances of striped bass being caught in nets ostensibly set for salmon. The law as it now is cuts off a chance for argument with the salmon men who might accidentally have caught striped bass in their nets during close time.

The suppression of the Chinese net fishermen is a long sought for boon. A close season on shrimp for four months will be the means of saving many thousands of dollars worth of fish annually. The provision in the law for the saving and preserving of young salt water food fishes and the prohibition of their sale, fresh or dried, is in value to the State worth more dollars than the total expenditure to date of the State funds in maintaining the Fish Commission.

The close season on sturgeon has been extended one month. It possibly would have been better had a close season for several years been provided.

Needed protected legislation was obtained when the amendments to Section 635 were incorporated in the law.

The law in full as passed by the legislature is as follows:

An Act to amend Sections 628, 632 and 635 of the Penal Code and add thereto a new section Numbered 636A, all relating to the preservation of fish.

SECTION 1. Section six hundred and twenty-eight of the Penal Code of the State of California is amended to read as follows:

Section 628. Every person, who, between the thirty-first day of May and the first day of July, buys, sells, takes, catches or has in his possession, any striped bass, or who, between the first day of January and the first day of July, buys, sells, takes, catches or has in his possession, any black bass, or who, between the first day of April and the fifteenth day of August, buys, sells, takes, catches or has in his possession, any lobster or crawfish, or who, between the first day of May and the first day of September, buys, sells, takes, catches, kills or has in his possession, any shrimp, or who, at any time, buys, sells, takes, catches, kills or has in his possession, any striped bass of less than one pound in weight, or any lobster or crawfish of less than nine and one-half inches in length, measured from one extremity to the other, exclusive of legs, claws or feelers, or any sturgeon or any egg-bearing female lobster, or any female crab (or any alalone shells, or abalone, the shell of which shall measure less than fifteen inches around the outer edge of the shell), or who, by seine or other means, catches the young fish of any species and does not immediately return the same to the water alive, or, who buys, sells, or offers for sale or has in his possession, any such fish, whether fresh or dried, or who catches, takes, kill or carries away any fish from any pond or reservoir belonging to, or controlled by the Board of Fish Commissioners, or any person, or corporation, without the consent of the owners thereof, which pond or reservoir has been stocked with fish, or who, except with hook and line, takes, catches or kills any black bass whatsoever, or any kind of fish, from any river or stream upon which the State, or United States fish hatchery is maintained, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and is punishable by fine not less than twenty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail, not less than ten nor more than one hundred and fifty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. All fines collected for any violation of any of the provisions of this section must be paid into the "Fish Commission Fund." Nothing in this section prohibits the United States Fish Commission and the Fish Commission of this State from taking at all times such fish as they deem necessary for the purpose of artificial hatching. It is no defense in a prosecution for a violation of any of the provisions of this section that the fish were caught or taken outside, or within, this State.

Sec. 2. Section six hundred and thirty-two of said code is hereby amended to read as follows:

Sectional 632. Every person who, between the first day of November in any year and the first day of April of the year following, buys, sells, takes, catches, kills or has in his possession, any variety of trout, except steelhead trout (Salmo gairdneri), or who, between the first day of November and the first day of April of the year following, takes, kills or catches, any steelhead trout above tide water, or who, at any time, buys, sells, or offers for sale, any trout of less than (one-half) pound weight, or takes or catches any trout except with hook and line is guilty of a misdemeanor; provided, however, that steelhead trout (Salmo gairdneri) may be taken in tide water between the first day of April and the first day of February of the following year, with lawful nets, and a lawful net is a net that when placed in the water is unsecured and free to drift with the current or tide, and the meshes of which are when drawn closely together and measured inside the knot not less than seven and one-half inches in length. Every person found guilty of any violation of any of the provisions of this section must be fined in a sum of not less than twenty dollars or be imprisoned in the county jail of the county, not less than ten days, or be punished by no such fine and imprisonment, and all fines collected for any violation of any of the provisions of this section must be paid into the "Fish Commission fund." Nothing in this section prohibits the United States Fish Commission and the Fish Commission of this State from taking at all times, such trout as they deem necessary for the purposes of propagation.

Sec. 3. Section six hundred and thirty-five of the Penal Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 635. Every person who places or causes to be placed in any of the waters of this State dynamite, gunpowder, or other explosive compound, for the purpose of killing or taking fish, or who takes, procures, kills or destroys any fish of any kind by means of explosives; or who places or allows to pass, or who places where it can pass, into any of the waters of this State, any lime, gas, tar, cocculus indicus, slag, sawdust, shavings, slabs, edgings, mill or factory refuse, or any substance deleterious to fish, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and is punishable by a fine of not less than two hundred and fifty dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail of the county, not less than one hundred and fifty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Sec. 4. A new section is hereby added to said code to be numbered section six hundred and thirty-six A, to read as follows:

Section 636A. Any net, seine, drag-net, paranzella, or set-net used for taking or catching fish, which shall be used or maintained in any of the waters of this State in violation of any existing or hereafter enacted statutes or laws of this State for the protection of fish, is hereby declared to be a public nuisance, and it is the duty of every peace officer to seize and keep the same and report such seizure to the board of fish commissioners of the State. Thereupon said board must commence proceedings in the superior court of the county or city and county in which the same shall be seized, by filing a petition in said court, asking for a judgment forfeiting such net, seine, drag-net, paranzella, or set-net so seized, and ordering the destruction thereof. Upon the filing of such petition, it is the duty of the clerk of said court to fix a time for the hearing thereof and to cause notices to be posted for the space of fourteen days in at least three public places in the town, city, or county and county, where the court is held, setting forth the substance of such petition and the time and place fixed for its hearing, and if at the time fixed for such hearing, no person appears and claims such net, seine, drag-net, paranzella, or set-net, the court must proceed to hear and determine said proceedings according to law, and upon proof that the said net, seine, drag-net, paranzella, or set-net was used in violation of law, must order the same to be forfeited and destroyed.

Sec. 5. All acts, or parts of acts, in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 6. This act takes effect immediately.

Stow Lake is as dry as the proverbial bone at present. The contemplated repairs are well under way, and ere long the pretty lake will again be the resort of the many visitors who daily frequent the park. Fly-casting contests and practice will probably be resumed at the end of this month. The water in the lake has been drawn off and used in filling up another artificial lake near by. Last year Stow Lake was the home of a number of trout and striped bass. Numerous instances of trout striking at the barbless tournament fly are recounted by the sportsmen who have frequented the lake side. One fly-caster, who, by an oversight placed a red fly on his leader one afternoon last summer was surprised by a strike and then by force of habit gave the rod a twist, found that he had hooked what proved to be a ten-inch rainbow trout. The fish was caught good and hard and had to be brought to bank before it could be liberated without tearing the hook from its jaw. Another fly-caster was surprised by a strike at his red barbless fly from a striped bass. He was trying a few practice casts a short distance away from his fellow rod-wielders and in dropping his line in the water on one cast a fish jumped for it. The variety was immediately recognized, it was without doubt a striped bass. Curiosity prompted a cast in the same spot a few minutes later, this brought the same fish, or one that looked exactly like it, to the surface in another jump at the red hackle.

Great excitement and sport is to be found in catching halibut, one of the largest of our Pacific fishes, mostly found in the strait of San Juan do Fuca. The line reel which is used at the stern of the boat resembles an old fashioned well lift. When hooked, the halibut draws the line slowly at first, but on finding that his progress is checked, it gives a vigorous jerk and speeds away at a furious rate. When its efforts are fairly expended, the fish rises to the surface, churning the water all round it into foam. The men lose no time in shooting the monster before it has time to disappear, but not until it is quite dead do they venture to draw it toward the boat. The great halibut of the northwest coast sometimes attains a weight of 1000 pounds, catching it is regarded as a dangerous game.

While trolling Wednesday, last week, at Catalina, D. B. Bonbright took in the first yellowtail of the season, and he was a beauty, weighing 37 pounds, and putting up the usual hard fight offered by every yellowtail. The same gentleman on the day before caught a sting ray that weighed 50 pounds. Two more yellowtail were taken on Wednesday on the cod banks by a party consisting of A. D. Barrows and wife, of Cheboygan, Mich., and Profs. Dewey and Conant. They also took 38 fine rock cod, with a total weight of 266 pounds, which is an average of better than seven pounds to the fish. This is, as every rock cod fisherman knows, a pretty good average weight. The yellowtail weighed 23 and 16 pounds.

Last Saturday Dr. Milbank Johnson and H. Leo Borden were trolling off Catalina island for yellowtail, and instead of the desired game, they hooked the rarer fish—a tuna. The earliness of the season is a great surprise to tuna anglers, as the fish have never been known to bite at this time before. Whether it means the tuna season is on or not, is likely to be proven soon, as there are many anglers who are ready to go over to the island at the first suggestion of tuna.

The first barracuda of the season were taken at Coronado last Wednesday by G. B. Beckmares, who got a dozen of these snaky, but delicious salt water pickorel. W. H. Smith, of Yedo, Pa., went out after them Thursday and was fortunate enough to catch 40 barracuda and six big yellowtail. Spanish mackerel and sea bass were also taken. So popular is this resort for fishing purposes, that no boats are to be had unless previously engaged.

The angling visitors to Point Reyes and also to other Coast waters in search of sport with the steelhead trout will now have to lay by their rods until the 1st of April, the opening of the fishing season.

The Bench Show.

The bench show committee have held weekly meetings for several weeks past and disposed of a vast lot of preliminary details necessary to pave the way to a successful exhibition in May. It is announced that the premium list will be issued very shortly, possibly next week. A splendid list of open trophies and specials is promised. The specialty clubs will come to the front with a fine showing of specials. H. D. Laidlaw will act as manager of the bench show.

The Irish Terrier.

A sterling breed that will test the spirit of the true fancier is the dare-devil Irish Terrier. A popular type of dog with the Eastern fanciers and one which has power to be a true canine friend, a rollicking and ugly customer in a fight, is the variety of Terrier here mentioned. It is only within very recent years that the breed has emerged from semi-obscurity, and very few specimens that, in type and style, differed materially from just yellow dogs were seen on most show benches until the beginning of the nineties. Even then there were still fewer that would compare with the stylish, long-headed "tyke" that made so good a display on the benches in Madison Square Garden, New York, last month.

To breed Irish Terriers with a view to producing a bench champion is a test of the high fancier spirit. It is probably one of the most uncertain breeds one could choose in this respect. It has a habit of reverting back, atavism as this is technically termed, that is heart-breaking to the amateur who has started his little kennel with the best blood. There are several kennels that have expended hundreds, and even thousands, in importing the bluest blood without raising a pup that could be termed high class. On the other hand, more than one dog owner at the first shot has hit a winner.

As an example, Oscar Donner, of New York, who owns the crack bitch Champion Milton Drolcon, went to the expense and trouble of taking her over to Ireland to be bred to the crack sire Ch. Breda Muddler. One of the resulting litter was presented to a friend, and from this bitch, bred to Mr. Taylor's Ch. Gudcliff Muddle, was produced perhaps the best of her sex yet bred in America, and the next litter contained another winning puppy at the recent New York show. Her sisters have not produced anything above mediocrity.

It is the vague and uncertain origin and ceaseless interbreeding of the original stock of Irish Terriers on the old sod, of all shapes, sizes and every color from black to yellow, that brings about this diversity. Of course during the past twenty years, since the Irish Terrier became a show dog, the breed has been brought to a type and character very few of the earlier Terriers possessed.

In former days the Irish Terrier's ears were cropped, which state lent an artificial smartness to the Terrier's expression. Since the English Kennel Club and Irish Terrier Club made rules forbidding cropping, breeders have, with no little success, striven to breed a small button ear. Many otherwise good Terriers, however, come with big "sow" ears which effectually spoil a promising show career.

The Irish Terrier is an ugly customer in a fight; it knows no pains and its activity, strength and hard coat makes it a dangerous foe in any mix-up, for it

New Things In Turf Goods For 1901

Something New Every Week.

No. 160.

Vulcanized leather is a new product and will prove to be in the manufacture of horse boots the greatest thing ever placed on the market. It is suitable for all kinds of boots but for knee boots, quarter boots, knee and arm boots and some others it knocks out anything that has ever been invented beyond any question of a doubt. It affords the greatest protection of any known material. It is white like Spanish felt; it looks like a piece of rubber. It is as light as a feather, is as soft as a glove and will wear like raw hide and protect the hardest hitter absolutely. It will protect a horse when nothing else will. Above is the decision of every practical horseman who has ever seen boots made out of this wonderful material. You can put it in boiling water for hours and after having taken it out and dried it you will find that it is as soft and nice as ever. Our No. 21 catalogue tells you all about boots made out of this new leather. Send for this catalogue at once, and if you want to be convinced further after receiving the catalogue you can send for a pair or two of the boots and if you think that what we claim is not so return them to us and we shall pay charges both ways. Remember, the price for this remarkable goods is in some cases less than what is charged for the ordinary old-fashioned boots that all the makers in the country are furnishing to-day. We claim to have revolutionized the horse boot business this year and are ready to prove it to the satisfaction of any horseman. We are willing to send our goods anywhere on approval or if you desire you can buy them through your dealer in which case tell him to send to us for a catalogue. We would also call your attention to last week's issue of this paper in which you will find illustrated and described our new wear plate quarter boots, made with our new curved out heel. No quarter boots are made in America to day or have ever been made that fit and protect like our new patent boots and remember they cost little or nothing more, and in some cases less than the ordinary kind.

Send for our catalogue No. 21 at once and we shall send with it our 20th Century Handy Book which contains many valuable statistics and other information for all horsemen.

We are going to demonstrate the valuable principles of our new line of horse boots from week to week. Next issue will have something more new and valuable.

FOR SALE.

I Have for Sale on my Ranch near Salinas about Seventy-Five Head of Highly-Bred Horses, Mares, Yearlings and Colts.

I will sell them all together or any number of them. All are finely-bred and most of the mares are stunted to some of the best horses in the country. Below I give a list of some of the mares and the horses by which they are in foal. I would greatly prefer selling them in a body and would give a great bargain to anyone who would buy them or even one-half of them. I am selling these animals on account of my age as I am now eighty-seven years old, and too old to be bothered with race horses. These animals are now running out on my ranch about seven miles from town. It is a very large ranch and I could not get them up without a day or two's notice and would not like to be asked to get them up unless a man wanted to buy at least eight or ten. Anyone wishing to start a good stock farm can do no better than to buy my entire band or a portion of them.

Mr. B—, a prominent horseman from the East, recently remarked in hearing of a crowd of horsemen: "I believe Boodle is destined to be a great sire of speed, but laying speed aside, his colts with their size, style, beautiful mane and tail and toppy appearance in general, with 3-minute speed, will sell East for more money than the little bullet-shaped cyclones such as are frequently produced with 2:15 speed."

Was demonstrated in the Contest for
the William Payne Thompson Cup,

Value $600, emblematic of the Carteret Amateur Championship, at live birds. Seventeen of the best Amateur Trap Shots in the United States competed for this trophy, at Carteret Gun Club grounds, February 21 and 22, 1901. Harold Money, shooting the Parker Gun, won the Cup and First Money, scored 88 out of 100, 30 yards rise, 30 yards boundary. H. B. Kirkover, shooting the Parker Gun, scored 87 out of 100. Col. Thomas Martin also shooting the Parker Gun, scored 87 out of 100. At the close of the above event the Carteret Gun Club gave a cup, valued at $100, for a miss and out contest. Harold Money at 33 yards, again showed the superiority of the Parker Gun by winning this cup and killing 17 straight. Send for catalogue.

JOTTINGS.

BUDD DOBLE AND THE ROMAN remained quiet and looked pleasant last Tuesday morning over at the Alameda track while a representative of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN pointed a little camera at them and snapped the shutter. The early morning light was not strong enough for the best results, but the likeness of both man and horse are easily recognized and the poses are true to life. Having made "an exposure" of the great reinsman (probably the greatest in America) and the four year old gelding whose future is as great in prospect as any horse ever bred in California, we sat in the stand for a while and watched them in their morning exercise. There were two miles of slow jogging, with the veteran swinging the whip back and forth and up and down slowly and quietly, and then tapping the gelding most gently on the back with it. The Roman has plenty of nervous energy and this was to get him accustomed to the "speed accelerator" and learn that it was not an instrument to fear. He took no notice of it seemingly, and his beautiful and prominent eyes were taking in the sights to left and right as he jogged along. After the jogging he was moved through the stretch a few times at perhaps a 2:40 gait, and his gait was perfection. A line trotter is The Roman and he needs no boots or weights, but wears the former for protection as he is too valuable a horse and too great a prospect to take any chances with. After a half hour of this easy work he was breaking out slightly and taken to his stall. When Mr. Doble alighted we asked:

"When do you take him East?"

"I will leave about the first of May and you may say in the BREEDER that, notwithstanding rumors and statements to the contrary, The Roman will be in Dick Benson's string. He is owned by Mr. Christy of Kansas City, was purchased for him by Mr. Benson, and I am simply giving him his work on Tuesday and Friday mornings. Mr. Benson thought best to let him stay in California and thus escape the intense cold of the Mississippi valley during the winter. The Roman has not had a blanket on him in the stall since he was turned out at the close of the racing season last October and you can see for yourself that he is strong and lusty and an improved growing young horse. I shall go East about May 1st, and will take him with me and try to turn him over to Mr. Benson in as good shape as he now is. I think he is a great colt. He is one of the most intelligent horses I ever sat behind. He has a frictionless, easy gait, is a line trotter and has demonstrated that he has great speed. I think Mr. Christy has a great prospect in The Roman."

Mr. Doble took him out again after twenty minutes or so had been spent on him by Tommy Carmady, a young man who is in Mr. Christy's employ and who came out especially to take charge of him. Carmady is in love with The Roman and the condition of the son of McKinney is a tribute to the care he bestows upon him. As Mr. Doble drove toward the track three boys on bicycles came by with a "swish." The Roman jumped and swerved, but Doble is never caught napping and had him in hand. The boys stopped, the colt was turned and driven up toward the wheels. He looked a little frightened but at the same time inquisitive and was driven closer. He stopped with his ears forward and his nostrils distended and was a picture. He stuck out his muzzle and gave an inquiring sniff, saw that the wheels were harmless and wanted to walk right up and touch them with his nose. During all this Mr. Doble never touched him with the whip or uttered in a loud tone, but spoke a few quiet words of assurance that The Roman seemed to understand. The Roman has brains and they are under the tutelage of a most painstaking and intelligent teacher. A few more miles of jogging, with a few brushes, and the colt's work was over for the day.

When the sun was brighter, later in the day, our camera caught The Roman out of harness. It shows his racy conformation and proves the truth of the statement made by Eastern horsemen who have seen him that he is shaped very much like The Abbot 2:03, the world's champion trotter. His neck and shoulders resemble to a marked degree those of Chimes' great son when photographs of the two are laid side by side.

Del Oro is the name of a black son of Oro Wilkes that posed for a picture when led out as though he had been trained for it. He looks like the Director family, and bears a very strong resemblance to Roy Direct. The only Director blood in his veins is the portion he receives from Ellen Mayhew, dam of Oro Wilkes. Del Oro is a pacer with a nice smooth way of going. He has never had any work to speak of and though he shows considerable speed, has never been asked to go a mile better than 2:40. His dam is Net by Magic and is the dam of Leonel 2:17.

That Phoebe Childers 2:10 is looking strong and lusty the camera testifies. Phoebe is a plain, matter of fact lady and could not be induced to toss her head and look coquettish in the least, but turned her ears back and evinced a desire to get back where a bunch of hay had more attractions for her than any camera possibly could. Phoebe Childers is a strong feeder, and carries her appetite with her wherever she goes. She loves to eat and race and can do both to perfection.

Reardon & Newlands of Oakland have three or four very promising horses in training, Mr. J. Shaner having them in charge. The chestnut mare Maud R. by Jim C. that was out last year but got no record, is working well for Mr. Shaner and has shown a quarter in 16 seconds. The stallion Chas. Marvin, a full brother to Don Lowell 2:14, which Messrs. Reardon & Newlands purchased from Frank Lowell a few months ago is one of the handsomest horses in Alameda county. He is doing quite a business in the stud but will be trained as he has lots of natural speed. Mr. Shaner is working for these gentlemen a six year old daughter of McKinney that is a good prospect, and will be raced this year in the green classes in all probability.

Mr. J. Breed, of Phoenix, Arizona, lost last Sunday by death Arizona Boy, a big bay gelding that gave promise of being the best green trotter in California this year. Mr. Breed recently brought the horse to the Alameda track and every man that saw him admired his way of going and his looks. He had shown speed that would warrant the prediction of a record below 2:15 had he lived. The cause of death is said to be colic, but Mr. Breed states that he is not certain what ailed the horse.

If there were three or four enterprising and enthusiastic amateurs in Alameda who could stir up the Driving Club that has charge of the track there, matinee racing could be given on occasional Saturdays that would furnish high class amusement and draw large crowds. Look at the summaries of the races trotted and paced last Saturday at Los Angeles. Few professional meetings can furnish a better program for a day's sport than was pulled off by the gentlemen reinsmen of the southern metropolis that day. These amateurs were not racing for money, no money was charged the spectators for entrance at the gate or for a seat in the grand stand, and the contests were purely for sport, yet the horses were raced as if thousands of dollars depended on the result. This is a condition of affairs that aids and booms the breeding and training of light harness horses. The Alameda Driving Club has a good track—one of the best in the State. It needs a covered stand that will accommodate a few hundred people and other improvements. It needs a few enterprising men with means who love harness racing and road driving for the sport's sake, and who will take hold with enthusiasm and arrange for a Saturday matinee. One successful one will establish the sport on a firm basis and create a demand for more. There should be no money or prizes other than ribbons to be trotted for and all races should be to wagon. There should be no betting on the grounds and no liquor sold, and no catering should be made to the gambling element whatever. A meeting of this sort could be carried to a successful conclusion for a very small expense and the Alameda club, having a good track could jump right into the front rank of amateur clubs on this Coast and furnish sport at short intervals that would be enjoyed by thousands of the best portion of the population in this vicinity.

High Class Matinee Racing.

The Los Angeles Driving Club gave a program of harness racing on Saturday last that furnished as good sport as can be seen at a grand circuit meeting. The events were closely contested and the third race, which was for pacers, resulted in the fastest three heats ever made in an amateur contest on this coast, and in the last heat of the race Mr. M. M. Potter drove his mare Primrose in 2:13, a full second below the coast amateur record. It was a great day for Mr. Potter. He won three straight races, the first with Maud McKinney, fastest heat 2:23, the second with Sweet Marie, another daughter of McKinney, fastest heat 2:17, and the third as stated above with Primrose, daughter of Palrose, and drove her within a quarter of a second of her professional race record.

Although the matinee was not held on St. Patrick's day, it was within two of it, and the program was printed in green in honor of the event, with a horse shoe garlanded with shamrocks as an ornament on the cover. The St. Patrick's Handicap furnished the amusing feature of the program. It was a donkey race with four starters, the steeds being ridden by members of the club. The distance was a half mile and the time announced, 8:05, was considered fast. Dr. Moore, who rode the winner, is now the Tod Sloan of the club, but bears his honors modestly.

The summaries of the club's races last Saturday are as follows:

Woodland Claims Its Date.

WOODLAND, March 19, 1901.
BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Woodland wants you to announce in the proper place in your most valuable journal that they claim their usual date viz. the week preceding the State Fair for their 1901 meeting. Now that Yolo and Sacramento are united in one district (No. 40) we expect to be able to exceed all of our previous efforts.
Yours truly, C. F. THOMAS, Sec'y.

Neernut 2:12 1-4 Doing Well.

No stallion ever bred in California or elsewhere has any greater license by reason of his breeding, his speed or his individuality to become a uniform sire of extreme and early speed than Neernut 2:12, owned by Geo. W. Ford of Santa Ana, Cal., and now making a season at the farm of his owner and (two days of the week) at Los Angeles. P. D. Jonas, who has the horse in charge, roads him from the farm to Los Angeles every Thursday afternoon and back on Sundays. The distance is 35 miles and six hours is taken for the trip. Neernut holds up well and never looked or felt better in his life than now. Mr. Ford says he will be in shape for a ten heat race this fall, and adds that he has had more inquiry for Neernut colts this winter than ever before.

Neernut's tabulated pedigree is a most interesting study for a horse breeder. His sire Albert W. has a trotting record of 2:20, sired such game and fast horses as Little Albert 2:10, Neernut 2:12, Flowing Tide 2:14 and many others and is sire of the dam of Bob Ingersol 2:14, one of the most promising trotters in California to-day. Albert W. was by Electioneer, the greatest of extreme speed progenitors out of Sister by John Nelson 187. Sister is a great broodmare and is grandam of two with records below 2:20, and of Waldstein 2:22, sire of Jack W. 2:12, Humboldt Maid 2:13, Lady Waldstein 2:15 and others.

The dam of Neernut, Clyde 2d, is a daughter of the great Nutwood, whose list of standard performers now numbers 163, whose producing sons outnumber those of any horse except Hambletonian 10, and whose producing daughters outnumber those of any stallion living or dead, and have produced more 2:15 performers than the daughters of any stallion. Clyde, the second dam of Neernut, was by Whipple's Hambletonian, and a daughter of that horse produced Azote 2:04, and another produced Georgina 2:07, the trotting mare that showed such wonderful speed and gameness in her races last year. Thus far in Neernut's pedigree we have the two very best strains of trotting blood, Electioneer being his paternal and Nutwood his maternal grandsire, and in the next remove those two great broodmares, Green Mountain Maid and Miss Russell. The third dam of Neernut was one of the old time long distance trotters of this State and was by Williamson's Belmont, often called the Mambrino Patchen of the Pacific Coast, although he was a thoroughbred while Mambrino Patchen was not. Williamson's Belmont sired the dams of eight in the list, and was grandsire of Stenwinder, the dam of Directum 2:05, whose record stood until beaten by Crescens last year. California breeders know the value of the blood of Williamson's Belmont and prize it above all other thoroughbred strains in a trotter.

Neernut is a handsome horse, standing 15 1/2 hands, is a blood bay with black points, weighs 1100 pounds and trots without boots, weights or hoppers. He has as much speed as any horse, and always trots the fastest at the end of the mile. When he made his record he was in fourth position and five lengths behind on getting the word, and had to trot around the other three horses, going the entire distance well out from the pole on account of the footing. It was equal to 2:08 under good conditions.

Neernut's first foal is the mare Neeretta that took a record of 2:09 last year and won five first, two second and two third moneys out of nine starts while competing with the best trotters on the Eastern circuits. She was then sold for $4000 and went to Austria. Until last year Neernut was bred to but few mares and the majority of them non-producers without records.

It is said of him that he has never sired a colt that could not out trot its dam before it was weaned.

As Neernut's service fee has been placed at $40 he is within reach of all breeders, and as he is a sure foal getter a person takes no chances in sending mares to him. Mares with Wilkes blood can hardly fail to produce speed when mated with Neernut and we do not know of a horse in California better suited to mares sired by any of the stallions of that family.

Dave McClary Wanted Thornway and Zolock.

Dave McClary, the well known trainer and driver, who trained and drove the champion harness horse of the world, Star Pointer 1:59, in all his record breaking attempts, has been in California this week on a flying visit. He was looking for something real good to take over East with him, but after making two offers and having them refused left for home Thursday without buying. He visited Pleasanton Wednesday in company with "Sandy" Smith and while there was very much taken with the looks of Mr. J. C. Kirkpatrick's three year old pacer Thornway that is in James Thompson's string. He saw Thornway move, heard what was said about him and then quietly remarked that he would pay four thousand dollars for the colt. The offer was refused. Thornway, as our readers know, is by Steiny out of Algerdella by Allendorf, the dam of Sable Steinyway 2:23 and Allandora 2:18. It is the intention of Mr. Kirkpatrick to enter Thornway well on the Eastern Grand Circuit and as he believes him to be a grand prospect the price offered did not tempt him.

Mr. McClary had heard a great deal about Zolock 2:10, and after getting the opinion of several horsemen, and looking over the horse's pedigree, he telegraphed an offer of $6000 for the fast son of McKinney 2:11 to Mr. Ben Davies, his owner, at San Bernardino. This offer was also declined, and Mr. Davies replied that the price of the stallion was $10,000. Mr. McClary did not care to go that high however.

These offers show that the harness horse that is fast enough to show racing speed and is considered good enough to win in his class over East can be sold at very profitable prices. Had either Thornway or Zolock changed hands at prices offered, they would have left quite a profitable balance to their credit on the books of their owners. There is money in devolved horses that can show speed, which fact should cause owners to spend a little more money for training this year than they have for the past few seasons.

A Sunday at Green Meadows Farm.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19, 1901.

Believing that the weather god would favor us, we concluded to spend Sunday at the hospitable farm of Colonel J. Murray Moorhead, Green Meadows Farm. We phoned the Colonel from San Francisco that our party would leave on the 7 A. M. train. His answer was "Come, and bring all your friends."

Upon arrival at Santa Clara we were met by the Colonel, who was driving an oddly matched pair of trotters; one a grey and the other a sorrel. The grey was old Monte Christo, and the sorrel a two year old filly by Hambletonian Wilkes out of Anna Belle 2:27 by Dawn.

After a brisk drive down the beautiful Brokaw road, we arrived at the Green Meadows Farm, where R. I. Moorhead greeted us as only a gentleman of the old school can. When the Colonel was satisfied that his team was put away properly, he proceeded to do the honors, and opened the game by offering the ladies Santa Clara lemonade and the gentlemen of the party one of the Green Meadows' famous Nagle punches. After partaking of this seductive beverage (which, by the way, no one can make to perfection except the Colonel) we were handed cigars, and then we started to prospect the farm, commencing with the beautifully comfortable home, where everything bespeaks good taste and refinement. We were shown the game chickens which the Colonel boasts can whip any game birds in the State, and from the looks of those birds we concluded not to press the Colonel for a match. We visited his brood of turkeys; his famous Pekin ducks; his Jersey cows, all of which we admired, as well as the comfortable way which the Colonel has of caring for them.

We were then ushered into the presence of one of the grandest horses in the State, old Hambletonian Wilkes. When the Colonel called "Jimmie" the old horse trotted up to him, and showed his affection for his master by placing his head upon the Colonel's shoulder. We saw in Hambletonian Wilkes all the qualities that it takes to make a grand horse. From his beautiful blood-like head to the tip of his tail he is all horse. His coat is like satin, and his large expressive eyes and clean limbs do not show his 21 years at all. Col. Moorhead says he is either ridden under a saddle or driven every day. Each one of our party had a little caress for the last son of the mighty George Wilkes ever to be seen in the Golden State.

We were then shown Anna Belle, the queen of the farm. She, like Wilkes, showed the greatest affection for her master. She is one of the most elegant matrons I ever saw, showing a lot of thoroughbred qualities, which she no doubt inherits from her sire Dawn, who was a son of the great Nutwood. Her weanling filly, a seal brown, was playing race horse in real trotter style. This young miss is the first brown foal Anna Belle ever had. She is surely a beauty. Next we saw Anna Belle's two year old filly Maggie. She is a beautiful chestnut of great size and finish. She not only inherits all the beauty of her sire and dam, but the best of dispositions; in her conformation no critic could find a flaw.

Florence M., a three year old sister to Maggie, was led out. This filly is said to be the handsomest mare in California, and certainly she looks the part. Her manners are perfect. She is a trotter and a fast one, with good size and beautiful gait.

The two year old, Dexter Wilkes, is a beauty, but like Peck's Bad Boy, he wanted to bluff the entire party. The Colonel made him trot across the meadow and then we saw a trotter. He is surely a fast field trotter. Next we saw a weanling, out of the pacing mare Bella Dona, by Gladiator. This colt is positively the grandest field trotter I ever saw; he is a bay with a star, and he enjoyed performing for his master and then coming up for his share of admiration.

Trinket is the name of a three year old bay pacer out of Urena by Bell Alta. He has a white face which is his only bad mark and is a rapid pacer. He has shown a quarter in 37 seconds as a two year old, is gentle and can pull a buggy fast enough to please most any one. He is a lady's horse, having been loaned by the Colonel to a lady last summer who drove him for three months.

Next we saw a grand looking brown mare named Golovin Maid by the game race horse A. W. Richmond. This matron is blind but she is the proudest of mothers over a young pacing son. Though she can't see, her matronly instinct must tell her he is perfection and he surely is just right in every way.

A full sister to the dam of Our Boy had by her side a late arrival in the shape of a sorrel colt with a snip nose. This baby is a typical Wilkes.

A four year old out of Bella Dona is a big bay gelding which would not get friendly, he was too busy doing stunts at the trot, which he can do in good shape.

A good looking mare by Gaviota that will join the matron ranks in a few days and should produce a fine foal was the last one we looked at in the field.

The Colonel thought he had given us enough walk, so we returned to the spacious barns where everything was in apple pie order. Each horse's stall looked like a room in a first class hotel.

We were shown a picture of Robert I, a four year old son of Anna Belle and Wilkes, that is owned in Alameda. This horse shows size, style and finish to a high degree.

There is a picture of Phoebe Wilkes 2:08, one of the trotting queens of the Grand Circuit. Then Maud Murray's picture, a sister to Robert I. This mare is owned in Germany and was sold at $5000; she trotted in 2:12. R. I. Moorhead purchased old Wilkes from Col. Jas. Murphy, hence his reason for calling the old horse "Jimmie," as Col. Murphy has been a life long friend of the Moorheads.

Our host-informed us that dinner was ready and we adjourned to the comfortable residence, and after refreshing ourselves with one of those celebrated Robt. E. Lee punches, we sat down to a dinner that only an old style gentleman can produce and surely we enjoyed it all. The Colonel entertained us after dinner with stories of early life—his experience as a horse buyer for the government, as a builder of railroads, as a Wall street magnate, and finally said it was all a mere circumstance to the real pleasure he is now taking out of the Green Meadow Stock Farm and driving the young Wilkes—said he would not exchange places with any man. His brother, R. I. Moorhead, proprietor of this ideal farm had the same remark to make.

Train time was announced and we were driven by the Colonel through the classical village of Santa Clara, where shown the famous college and told all the great native sons who graduated from there.

A hearty goodbye and all aboard we left and each of us regretted that our stay was not been of longer duration. We had spent a profitable Sunday; saw one of America's greatest speed producers, and saw what perhaps we will never see again unless we return to the same farm, a son of the great speed progenitor George Wilkes by the father of race horses Hambletonian 10.

We voted that Col. Moorhead and his brother Robt. I. Moorhead were the best of good fellows, and wished them in the language of Rip Van Winkle, "Good health and prosperity," and we could well afford to do so as we had a day long to be remembered.

Yours truly, C. A. HARRISON.

Lincoln's Horse Story.

Abraham Lincoln used to be fond of telling a story of a lawyer in a Western town who desired the nomination for County Judge. On the morning preceding the evening on which the County Convention was to meet, the lawyer applied to the liverystable keeper in his village for a horse and buggy in which to drive to the county town, sixteen miles distant, where the convention was to be held.

"Give me the best and the fastest horse you have, Sam," said he, "so that I will have time to go around and see the boys before the convention begins."

The liveryman, however, was supporting a rival candidate and gave the lawyer a horse that outwardly appeared perfect, but broke down before half the journey was completed, so that when the candidate arrived the convention had adjourned and his rival had been nominated.

On his return to the stable late the following afternoon, knowing that it was useless to resent the trick played on him, he said to the owner:

"Look here, Smith, you must be training this horse for the New York market. You expect to sell him to an undertaker for a hearse horse, don't you? Well, it's time wasted. I know from his gait that you have spent days training him to pull a hearse, but he'll prove a dead failure. He's already too slow; he couldn't get a corpse to the cemetery in time for the resurrection."

The Village Farm Champions.

The wonderfully successful breeding establishment, Village Farm, stands without a rival in the breeding world, and the number of great horses bred at this farm probably exceeds all others. From this farm have come more 2:10 horses and 2:15 horses than from any other establishment. The list is as follows:

Trotters—The Abbot 2:03½, Fantasy (4) 2:06, Lord Derby 2:07, The Monk 2:08½, Dare Devil 2:09, Battleton 2:09½, The Queen 2:10½, King Chimes 2:10½, Emily 2:11, Merriment 2:11½, Equity 2:12½, American Belle 2:12½, Valance 2:12½, Belle Hamlin 2:12½, Tudor Chimes 2:13, Fitz Royal 2:13½, Milan Chimes 2:13½, Wardwell 2:14½, Globe 2:14½.

Pacers—Lady of the Manor 2:04½, Heir-at-Law 2:05½, Bright Regent 2:06½, Passing Belle 2:08½, Mocking Boy 2:08½, Merry Chimes 2:08½, Moonstone 2:09, Ed Easton 2:09½, King Chimes 2:11½, Scapegoat 2:11½, Elsinora 2:12½, Reed Bird 2:14½.

A grand total of thirty-four in 2:15, the average record of the list being 2:10½. The average record of the twenty-two trotters is 2:10 4-5, and that of the twelve pacers is 2:09 1-6.

Hodges' Roan Pacer to Go East.

"Sandy" Smith went to Pleasanton last Wednesday and purchased from P. W. Hodges the roan pacer by Dictatus 2:17, that has been talked of so much in horse circles since January 1st, when at the San Jose track Hodges drove him a mile in 2:14½, a wonderful performance for a green horse. The price paid is not for publication, but was a good figure for any green horse and all the parties to the deal are satisfied. Mr. Theurkauf, of San Jose, is the breeder and was the owner of the horse. The new owner is Mr. A. Kaul, a wealthy gentleman of St. Mary's, Pennsylvania, whose intention is to campaign him. "Sandy" will take the horse East at the time the Palo Alto consignment goes, about the first of May.

Edwin B. Rice, the Boston man who owns Anaconda 2:02½, says he will drive that pacer in an attempt to beat the world's amateur wagon record for pacers, which Coney placed at 2:03½ last fall.

Send for Catalogue.

There is one firm in the country that outdoes all others in catalogue work and that is the firm of Tuttle & Clark, Detroit, Mich. They are issuing at the present time two catalogues, one illustrating all classes of goods used on the race track and this is catalogue No. 21. The other illustrates all kinds of harness for pleasure driving, such as surrey harness, buggy harness, pole harness, carriage, coupe and runabout harness, No. 20. Either of these catalogues or both of them are sent free of charge to those who desire them. Some of the printing plates in these catalogues cost as high as $15 and $20 each and are certainly beautiful works of art. Their No. 20 catalogue is the finest that has ever been published in the United States and probably in the world in the line of harness business. Tuttle & Clark are this year making extraordinary efforts for trade and are offering immense inducements to those who wish to buy. Before placing an order it will be well for the reader to send for either or both of their catalogues and we assure our readers that they will be more than pleased with the treatment they will receive from this popular firm. They have made extraordinary advances in the line of horse boots for 1901 and have practically revolutionized this part of a horseman's outfit, improving the leather and other materials which go into the boots, changing and improving nearly all the styles, making them more adapted to the conformation and action of the horse than any other firm in the country has ever attempted to do. Their wear plate quarter boots have begun to sell already and traileurs are more than pleased with them. Messrs. Tuttle & Clark will also send free of charge to those who mention this paper their 30th Century Handy Book, a valuable book of sixty-four pages with statistics that are exceedingly interesting to all horsemen and others.

Is the Pacer Superceding the Trotter?

[“Trotwood” in Horse Review.]

In a recent article on this subject Gen. Tracy seems unduly alarmed, and after quoting figures to support his assertion of the rapid growth of the pacer, he calls on the breeders to breed out the pacer, predicting that if this is not done we will soon have a trotterless age.

With due respect to the distinguished author of the above remarks, I desire to state that, in the first place, they are not new, and, in the second place, there is no real danger of the pacer superceding the trotter. But if such a remote and unexpected thing should happen, it will be because the people have decided that they want the pacer, and if they want the pacer, and get what they want, we should want them to get him.

The appeal of Gen. Tracy is not new. It has been uttered again and again since the days of Pocahontas. "No gentleman will drive a pacer," said Mr. Bonner. "Breed away from those rackers," said Mr. Hamlin. "If he cannot trot let him walk," said Gov. Stanford. And yet, as Gen. Tracy clearly proves, the pacer keeps marching on, until now the distinguished gentleman fears the trotter himself is in danger.

No, no! The remarks are not at all new; we have heard them before. In fact, they belong to that very primitive period of turf journalism when the science contained, in its crudity, only two formulas for discussion—thoroughbred in the trotter, scrub blood in the pacer.

That was fifty years ago. God be praised, this is the twentieth century, and both of them have long been bred away from that age. To-day the American trotter is as much a thoroughbred as the thoroughbred himself. He is now the product of line upon line, pedigree upon pedigree, generation after generation of trotters. He has been built with care, in beauty and speed. He is first in war, first in pace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen. And there he will stay, General—never fear. And the pacer—God wot!—but that's the funny part of it—even he is a scrub no longer; like the trotter, he, too, is a thoroughbred—a trotter with a changeable gait. It is breeding that counts—that classifies—that establishes—not gait. It is blood that tells, not form or action. Thoroughbred runners have trotted fast, but they were not trotters and would not beget them. It's the perfume that makes the rose, not the name. If two ripe apples grow upon the same tree, and one reflects, in its exposed and ruddy cheeks, the parting glory of the dying day, while the other, concealed beneath the leaves, is pale as the silvery face of the new-born night, should the first be called an apple and the other a quince?

The American trotter is a thoroughbred, and the pacer is simply a trotter with a slightly different gait.

We have smiled at the English, but, as usual, they are right. There are no pacers—they are all trotters. The English thoroughbred has three gaits, two of them the walk and the trot, being merely preliminary, or incidental; the other, the gallop, the object, the instinct of his life. The thoroughbred trotter is reaching the same point. He is acquiring only three gaits—the walk, the pace the trot. Two of these—the walk and the pace, or trot (whichever of these two gaits he is less expert at)—will be his instinct and object. But whichever he adopts, he will still be a trotter.

The trotter is reaching this point, and when he does—when his years of breeding will carry with it so strong an instinct that he cannot break, even into a gallop—then, indeed, will be the great American trotter, though when at full speed, to attain his ends, he adopt either the movement of Star Pointer or Creseus. The American saddle horse has five gaits, but is he not the saddle horse still? Cannot the American trotter have three without it being said that he is about to be lost to the world. In riding, some riders prefer one, some another of the saddle-horse gaits. In driving, does it detract from the trotter that he has two gaits at your choice.

But at last the argument of the distinguished gentleman is sifted to this: The American people do not want the third gait—or they should not want it—but either through carelessness or design it has cropt in and threatens to give us a trotterless race of horses.

Whether the people want this gait or not, I am not prepared to say. I have always thought they did, because the gait is so popular with them. But whether they want it or not, they have now got to take it, because the laws of nature are stronger than the wishes of man. That law of nature exemplified and demonstrated in the animal is this: Like begets like or the likeness of an ancestor. Breed for generations to stick to a harness gait, when put between shafts and forced to extreme speed, I shall adopt the one of two instincts most natural to me.

"But I am a trotter."

This is the writing on the wall, and this has it come to. The distinguished gentleman, Gen. Tracy, deep in the study of grave problems and seeing only one side of the trotting problem, has not given it the deep thought it requires, and which the close student of many years has given. But it has come to this as the records are proving. Even the Hals are trotters in the true extreme speed sense. Else could Hal Dillard, if the instincts were not one and interchangeable, ever have sired a 2:11 trotter?

Kohlan King 28295.

PACHECO, March 18, 1901.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Will you kindly inform me if the horse Kohlan King 28295, by Simmocolon, dam Sybil by Sidney, has ever been on the race track and what he accomplished. JOHN OTT.

We can find no mention of him in the Year Books and are inclined to the opinion that he never raced.

Breeding of Comet Wilkes.

A subscriber asks for the breeding of the stallion Comet Wilkes 2:21. He is by Guy Wilkes 2:15½, dam Mamie Comet by Nutwood 2:18½, second dam Black Betty by Sportsman, a son of David Hill 857, third dam by St. Clair 16,675. Comet Wilkes made his record at Concord, Contra Costa county, last year.

THE QUESTION of having annual spring horse shows in country towns has been receiving a good of attention lately from the horse owners at Haywards. Alameda county, owing to the success of the annual show held at Livermore in the same county. These horse shows are really stallion shows and gotten up for the purpose of giving owners of stallions the opportunity of exhibiting their horses to the breeders of the section in which the show is held. The Haywards Journal in a recent issue, contained the following on the proposed idea of holding an annual show in that thriving and enterprising town:

The success of the Livermore Horse Show every year has caused a number of our horsemen to bring up the proposition of holding a horse show here next spring.

Mr. M. Henry, while at the Livermore horse show last Saturday suggested the idea to one of the committeemen, and he was very favorably impressed with the idea, and stated that he would help it along by bringing all his stock; others also spoke encouragingly of the proposition.

In speaking to a number of horsemen here they stated it would be a great success.

Said Geo. Grindell: "I am heartily in favor of a horse show in Haywards next spring. Our central location would bring a large number of horsemen from Oakland, San Francisco and all over the country. Buyers would come here from the large cities to purchase horses, and our neighboring horsemen of Washington and Murray would find it would well repay them for bringing their animals here. To make the show of special interest I am in favor of giving liberal premiums for all horses and it would prove a great drawing card. With a band of music to enliven the day I am satisfied that Haywards would have the most successful horse show ever held in the country."

Says Geo. Gray: "I am in favor of holding a horse show in Haywards and believe it could be made a great success. To induce horsemen to come here we must offer liberal premiums."

Says Mr. Henry: "The central location of Haywards and the fine traveling facilities makes Haywards just the place to have a successful horse show. Many buyers would come here from Oakland and San Francisco that would probably not go to Livermore and this would naturally induce Livermore horsemen to have horses for sale to bring them here, and the same could be said for horsemen in Washington and Murray townships. It could be made a great affair and bring hundreds of visitors to Haywards. The citizens could well afford to raise $200 or $300 for premiums and having a brass band. I would not hesitate to say that the display of fine horses on that day would attract the horsemen of the State."

Other horsemen spoken to here and in this neighborhood are equally enthusiastic over the matter.

We would suggest to all those who favor these stallion and horse shows that nothing will do more to help the business, bring about sales at good prices, or induce farmers and others to patronize good stallions. At the same time we think the offering of premiums would be unwise and lead to much trouble and eventually result in a discontinuance of the exhibits. Premiums for stock should only be given by regular organizations, such as agricultural societies or horse show associations that are regularly incorporated, and that employ recognized authorities as judges. The spring stallion parades or exhibits, such as are annually held in Kentucky on Court Day, were originated especially to induce all owners to show their stallions without having to compete with others. The originators of the scheme recognized the fact that there were hundreds of young stallions that would not be entered against champions if prizes were given, but whose owners would show them under other conditions. The idea is to show the public what sort of horses there are in the district, what are for sale, the prices asked, etc., etc. No ill feelings are aroused, as there is nothing to compete for but the admiration of the public, and the man who makes a sale or the owner who books a few mares to his horse as a result of the show is satisfied. These stallion and horse exhibits attract hundreds of people to see them and they are certain to leave money in the town. We hope the citizens of Haywards will hold a show next year and that many other towns will do likewise. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has advocated these shows for the past three years, and will say again that they will pay big returns on the money spent.

THE GOVERNOR has the appropriation bill passed by the recent Legislature under consideration and according to law has until the 27th instant to give or refuse his approval to the different sections of the same. The appropriations for district fairs are a part of the measure. We believe Governor Gage favors these appropriations and that he will approve them. If he does there will be a movement immediately by many of the district boards toward preparations for the fairs of 1901. Never in the history of the State have there been better prospects for a successful season on farm, orchard, stock farm or in the mines and factories, while a new industry of great proportions has been added to the States resources by the discoveries of wonderful wealth in the oil fields. The prices of all breeds of horses and cattle have greatly increased during the past year, and there is every reason to believe that the people will take a greater interest in fairs this year than ever. As soon as the Governor has affixed his signature to the bill and the appropriations for fairs are thus assured, no time should be lost by any association in fixing dates and announcing the same. District No. 40, which now comprises the counties of Yolo and Sacramento has already selected its date. Let others do likewise and when the date is fixed begin a systematic booming and advertising of the exhibition and make it worthy of the district. It will pay this year.

GLENS FALLS great trotting meeting, one of the most important of the Grand Circuit, will be held in August, and seven of the purses, which are $1500 each, are advertised in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN this week. In addition there is a stake of $1000 for three-year old trotters of the 2:25 class. The purses are for the 2:14, 2:18, 2:24 and 2:28 trotting classes, and for pacers of the 2:12, 2:18 and 2:24 classes. Later on a number of large purses will be offered for 2:07, 2:09 and free-for-all pacers, and 2:10 and 2:07 class trotters, and every effort is to be put forth by the officials of the Northern New York Trotting Horse Breeders Association to make the Glens Falls meeting better than ever, and it has always been one of the best meetings of the circuit. Entries to the purses advertised will close Monday, April 1st, and should be addressed to W. F. Bentley, Secretary, Glens Falls, Ohio.

MR. M. M. POTTER, of Los Angeles, is the leading amateur driver of the Pacific Coast as he now holds the record for the fastest heats ever driven in this State, as well as the fastest mile. The Los Angeles Times thus speaks of his triumphs at the matinee of the Driving Club of that city last Saturday:

The colors of the Potter stable floated triumphantly at Agricultural Park yesterday at the matinee of the Los Angeles Driving Club. There was nothing in sight but Potter from start to finish, for his three speedy racers, Primrose, Sweet Marie and Maud McKinney not only carried off the honors, but made time which smashed records right and left. Primrose paced the three fastest mile heats ever done with an amateur driver in California. The time was 2:15 1/4, 2:14 1/4, 2:13 1/4. Primrose without doubt is the daintiest, speediest and most knowing pacer in her class in the State. She took the heats in one, two, three order, after fairly beating Electra and Floretta Bell, each of whom challenged her and made races which could not but evoke the greatest enthusiasm. The grand stand went wild and some there were who would probably have crowned the clever animal and its steady driver with laurel had any wreaths of that variety been handy. But while Primrose broke the California record, Sweet Marie was doing things to the track trotting record, in two good heats which the watches showed were stepped out in 2:18 and 2:17 1/4. This lowers the track record a half second. Maud McKinney showed her heels and romped home in two straight, in 2:27 and 2:25 1/4, and so it is small wonder that the Potter colors went up at the masthead, and that the owner-driver was overwhelmed with congratulations—which, by the way, were received with the quiet dignity characteristic of the man.

The amateur drivers are demonstrating every day that they can take horses which the profession have considered "quitters" and make race horses out of them. It is very likely that the slow road work and refraining from giving the horses so many fast miles is what accomplishes the result. A year ago Primrose was called a quitter by nearly all the horsemen in California. They said she was good for one mile but would not do for three in five races, and yet an amateur reinsman takes her in hand and in the month of March drives her three heats in 2:15 1/4, 2:14 1/4 and 2:13 1/4. Mr. Potter is to be congratulated. He has proven his little mare to be as fast as ever and possessed of as much gameness as any horse. More power to the amateurs and to the amateur organizations. They are helping the horse and the horse business as well.

THE ONLY COLT STAKE for foals of 1901 of a large value that is still open is the Terre Haute Matron, which is guaranteed to be worth $10,000, and it closes Monday next, March 25th. It will cost but $5 to nominate and we earnestly advise every Californian who owns a trotting bred foal, or a mare that is due to foal this year, to invest that much money and send it on or before Monday to Chas. R. Duffin, Secretary of the Trotting and Fair Association: This is one of the most reliable associations in America and this stake is one of the best, as the payments are so small and so few. Besides the nominating fee there is but one other to be made prior to the year in which the race takes place. When the colt is weaned next December, a payment of $10 is required, at which time color and sex of the foal must be given. No further payments need be kept in mind, as there are none due until June of the year of the race. If the colt starts as a two year old there is a small payment to make, if not, nothing is to pay until the following year. The amount to be given to the two year olds is divided into two purses—$2000 for the trotters and $1000 for the pacers. The balance of the purse, $7000, goes to the three year old trotters, and the winner will get $4500. There have been many entries made by California owners in the Eastern stakes for foals of this year that have already closed, but there are many foals that are as yet without stake engagements. The very best investment that can be made by owners of these foals is an entry in the Terre Haute Matron. Do this and then give the colt extra feed and care and see if it does not pay. Remember the stake closes Monday.

CHARTER OAK PARK, historical Charter Oak as it is usually called, will give one of the greatest meetings ever held in America this year. "The Charter Oak," for the 2:13 class, is worth $10,000 and five other purses are for $3000 each. This makes a total of $25,000 to be given for six events. The Hartford Association has by this liberal program of events given the harness horse an opportunity to be a great money earner and horsemen should appreciate the fact and enter as liberally as possible. A number of California horsemen will go East to race this year. They should enter at Charter Oak Park. A number of additional purses will be offered later on. The conditions are most liberal, National rules to govern except that hoppers are not barred. The money in the Charter Oak stake is to be divided on a different plan than has heretofore ruled. $1000 is to be given to the winner of each heat and the remainder of the purse will be divided into the usual four moneys to be awarded to the horses placed first, second, third and fourth in the summary at the close of the race. Entries close April 1st. Read the advertisement.

The Match Not Made.

NEW YORK, March 20.—William L. Marks, representative of J. J. Scannell, and Jack Roach, representing Thomas W. Lawson of Boston, met in this city today for the purpose of arranging a match between the trotters, The Abbot and Boralma, but failed to come to terms and the match was declared off. Mr. Scannell insisted on having three out of five heats, to which Mr. Lawson's representative objected, preferring that four out of seven heats should be the conditions. Mr. Scannell said he was now ready to race his horse, The Abbot, against any horse in the world for $50,000, best three in five heats, the gate receipts to go to charity.

BOSTON, March 20.—Mr. Lawson to-night sent to two Boston charities, the West End Nursery and the Crippled Children's Home, one half each of the deposit of $10,000 which he put up through his New York representative to bind a race with The Abbot. These are the institutions which Mr. Lawson had selected to receive the $25,000 guaranteed gate receipts if Boralma defeated The Abbot. Mr. Scannell having agreed to accept charities in New York as the recipients in case his horse won. But the race having fallen through, Mr. Lawson decided that his first deposit of $10,000 should go for a worthy cause.

In a statement issued to-night Mr. Lawson said he regretted that the race had fallen through, but he had no desire to criticize the action of others in connection with the matter. He reviewed the negotiations and the reasons for their failure, announcing his gift of $10,000 to the institutions, and concluded with these words: "With this I trust all interested friends of the horse will call the incident closed."

NEW YORK, March 21.—"I will race The Abbot against Mr. Lawson's trotter, Boralma, under any terms acceptable to him and the National Association," said Fire Commissioner John J. Scannell this afternoon.

"I have made a thorough survey of the facts and find that my manager, Mr. Marks, did make a statement in Buffalo to the effect that The Abbot would race any trotter in the world from seven to twenty heats if necessary.

"I consider Mr. Lawson to be a fair sportsman and am sure we can yet arrange a contest on his terms."

Mr. Scannell sent his certified check for $10,000 to the order of the New York Journal and authorized the paper to reopen negotiations with Mr. Lawson. In accordance with this request Mr. Lawson was called up on the long distance telephone. Mr. Lawson said:

"I had considered the incident closed. I have every regard for Mr. Scannell, but in the interests of the sport I do not deem it advisable now to reopen negotiations for a match."

An Important Ruling.

A suit of importance to matinee clubs and trotting associations has just been decided in the court of common pleas of Allegheny county, Pa., growing out of a trainer's ticket or license, issued by the Pittsburg & Allegheny Driving Park to one W. A. Dawson for the season of 1899. The trainer's ticket or license so issued by the driving association, among other rules and regulations, specified that it was subject to revocation for improper conduct on the grounds of the association.

Subsequently the trainer's ticket so issued to Dawson was revoked and he was denied the privilege of the track, for the reason as alleged by the association, that he was guilty of misconduct on its grounds; whereupon Dawson brought the above mentioned suit against the association that he had been damaged in the sum of $10,000 by reason of his unlawful expulsion from the track. In the trial of the case before Judge Shaffer it appeared from the plaintiff's own testimony, that the time the privilege was extended to him as a trainer upon the defendant's track, that he received a trainer's ticket; upon which it was expressed that same was revocable for improper conduct in or on the grounds of the association, and it further appeared from the evidence, that Dawson at one of the matinees of the defendant association, got into an altercation with an official of the defendant and struck him; whereupon his ticket was revoked and he was excluded from the privilege of the track, and the court held that Dawson was bound by conditions expressed upon his ticket, and that if he was guilty of misconduct, that he had broken the contract and could not recover, and that the striking of the defendant's secretary in the manner explained by plaintiff's witnesses, was a violation of the agreement and that the association had the legal right to revoke the license in the manner that it had been done and deny the plaintiff the privilege of the track, and thereupon granted the defendant's motion for a compulsory non-suit.

Notes from Tulare.

TULARE CITY (Cal.), March 19, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—The Tulare track is being kept up in good shape. It is kite-shaped, splendidly graded and very safe. I believe it is the fastest track in the State. I have Osito 2:13, Edna R. 2:13, a green trotter by Osito and a green trotter by Albenton 4023. Edna R. will be bred to Osito and worked for a record. She showed at Woodland last year that she could step a mile in 2:10 or better and has as much speed as anybody's pacer. The McKinnys surely are "in it" this year and Osito is meeting with good success here. I believe he will lower his record this season, for the leg he injured at Woodland seems to be quite sound. He worked a mile at Chico last year in 2:11, timed by R. Havey, President Merrill and several others, and did it well within himself. I hope and believe the coming season will be a good one in California for the harness horse brigade.

Yours truly, I. H. MULHOLLAND.

The thoroughbred stallion St. Carlo, a great winner himself and the sire of a sensational lot of race horses will be in the stud for outside mares at $100 the season. He is at Monlo Stock Farm and communications should be addressed to James McDonnell, Portola, San Mateo county.

The New York Sale.

The spring sale conducted by the Fasig-Tipton Company began at Madison Square Garden last Tuesday. Chehalis, the noted black pacer, was sold to W. L. Davis, of Chelsea, Mass. He paid $2200 for the animal. During the day and night eighty-five animals were disposed of at a total of $23,786, or an average of $278.63 each.

On Wednesday the prices were better than on the opening day. Eureka 2:15, the California horse by Ira, was purchased by Geo. Ketcham, owner of Cresceus 2:04, for $1200. The best prices were: Brandywine, trotter, to Joseph Wilson, New York, $900; Eureka, trotter, to George J. Ketcham, Toledo, O., $1200; Dan Westland, pacer, to Charles Tanner, Glonville, O., $1300.

The attendance at the night sale was very large. The features were the purchase of Emma Winter and Baystar for $8000 and $6100 respectively. Following are the principal sales:

Emma Winter 2:14, br m, 1897, trotter, William Simpson, Cuba, N. Y., $8000; Baystar 2:08, b m, trotter, William Simpson, $6100; Ed Winter 2:13, trotter, blk s, R. Conover, Trenton, N. J., $2100; Clinton B. 2:08, pacer, John McGuire, New York, $2000; Miss Birchwood, pacer, br m, A. H. Gibson, Mount Holly, N. J., $1700; Walter Kelm 2:15, trotter, b g, 1896, Dan Maynard, New York, $1500; Oakland Pilot 2:20, br g; 1897, A. Brown, New York, $1150; Trustwood, trotter, br g, 1894, Dan Maynard, $1050. Ninety-two head were sold for an average price of $575; grand total, $52,065.

Claims a Name.

I. M. Lipson, of Los Angeles, owns a handsome colt a few weeks old by Zolock 2:10, out of Miss Goldnut. He wanted the name Warlock for him but found the name already taken by a registered stallion. He has sent to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN three additional names from which he desires to select one and asks if they are taken. The names are "Souvenir," "Tamarac" and "Bertholdi." The first two are the names of registered stallions, but we do not find the name Bertholdi in the books, although there is a "Bertoldi." By putting the "h" in the name Mr. Lipson has probably selected a cognomen for his colt that is not already claimed.

The Abbot's Record.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Will you kindly publish in your next issue, the best time made by The Abbot, when and where, and oblige

SEATTLE.

The Abbot, bay gelding by Chimes, Seattle Nettle King, trotted against time at Terre Haute, Indiana, September 25, 1900. The effort was to beat 2:04 and he trotted the mile in 2:03, thereby winning the race and establishing a new world's record.

Over forty mares have been booked to Adbell, in the stud at Elmwood Farm, and among them are such as Mantumaker by Red Wilkes; Gracie V., dam of Gracie Onward 2:14; Capote, dam of Noline 2:23; Lady of Quality, dam of Florida 2:14; Flora McGregor, Lady Alecy 2:13, Leone (1) 2:28; Victorino by Alcantara, Etiquette 2:18, Nellie A. 2:13, Tentonette by Dictator, Jean Wilkes 2:28; Otway, Mina De 2:24; Eliza Jane 2:22, and Marcola, dam of Mazette 2:07. This is a grand lot and their produce should be good ones. There are but six of the get of Adbell at Palo Alto Farm and Superintendent Covey wishes there were more every time he looks at them.

One of the neatest appliances in the way of toe weights will soon be placed upon the market by the well known Kentucky trainer, Gus Macey, of Versailles. Unlike any other toe weight now in use Macey's invention has not only a detachable spur, but the weight itself can be removed in an instant. Those features will be gladly welcomed by the horsemen of the whole country. The weight will be advertised extensively and the driver of the Futurity winners, Beuzetta and Boralma, should richly reap from his invention.

A. B. Rodman of Woodland has been in the city this week. He reports the horse business as lively in his section and says a number of young horses in training at the Woodland track are showing speed. His pacer, Yellow Jacket 2:20, is an improved horse over last year and has not made a break this year. His stallion Tuboroso is being well patronized.

Those McMurray sulkies and speed carts that Kenney, the Bikeman, has for sale are the very latest and best in up to date vehicles. See Kenney about them and learn how much you can save on the price of a first class guaranteed sulky or cart.

Phil Collins of Gonzales, Montoroy county, has a very handsome four year old brown gelding by Ben Ali for sale. He has shown very fast quarters in his work, which was very limited. He will run very fast. See the advertisement.

The got of Dexter Prince are likely to be quite prominent this season, as a large number of animals by him are being entered in the green trotting classes.

Send a good mare to Nutwood Wilkes 2:16 this year and you will get a colt that will sell at a profit as a two or three year old.

If one-third of the 2:10 prospects come out right, the year of 1901 will produce more horses of extreme speed than any three years in the past.

The Village Farm entries to the early closing purses are made in the name of Ed Geers.

As the Rules Are.

[Spirit of the Times.]

In discussing the amateur question The Spirit has freely quoted the opinions of its contemporaries and has opened wide its columns to correspondents. It has kept its gates wide open and all have been welcome. As a general result of the argument we think it must be conceded that as the rules now are, they cover all amateur records where any object of value is competed for, and therefore the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association cannot reverse its original decision in the McKerron case. In writing of the case the Inter Ocean, while leaning strongly to the amateur side, agrees with The Spirit in this interpretation of the rules.

It says: "The resolutions passed by some of the Eastern Clubs, petitioning the National Trotting Association for a rehearing of the case wherein John A. McKerron was given a record of 2:10 for winning the inter-city cup at Boston last fall, can be of little avail. All the re-trials and re-hearings can bring only one result as long as the rule stands that a horse gets a record when he wins a premium of any kind. The question is an old one, and each recurring season and the growth of amateur racing by gentlemen drivers who do not care to race for money only emphasizes the fact that the matter must be taken in hand and settled in some way. Years ago, Morris J. Jones, when a member of the Board of Appeals of the American Trotting Association, advocated the giving of records to horses only when the contest was for a money purse. This, it seems to me, would be the easiest and quickest way to dispose of the matter. Put the sport on the same basis as amateur athletics, the winning of a heat in a money contest, giving the horses a professional record, and making the driver a professional driver. On the other hand, amateurs could trot for premiums having a value intrinsic or otherwise. For the benefit of the breeding interests the authenticated amateur records could be kept as well, thus giving stallions proper credit for the performance of their get and serving also the double purpose of handicapping the amateur contests as well. There are some minor details that would have to be provided for, but on the whole the giving of gentlemen drivers public marks without making the time a bar to public races, cannot help but redound to the benefit of the sport, and would work a hardship on no person or interest involved. I would go further and advocate the giving of amateur contests at a public meeting—that is, a class for premiums where the cracks of the local road brigade could enter without the chance of being penalized with a public record. This plan would, in many instances, be the feature of the meeting, attracting the biggest crowds, bringing the revenue that managers of trotting associations are much in need of."

Our esteemed contemporary would do well to remember that in athletic and bicycle races many grave abuses arise in connection with the prize question, and we shall be pleased to know the moral difference between competing for a $100 purse and a $1000 cup, but we are just as anxious as he to have the rules so amended, that the amateurs can have their competitions without obtaining a record, provided it can be arranged without inflicting an injustice on the professionals.

The death of Judge Walter I. Hayes, Clinton, Iowa, removes from the ranks of trotting horse breeders one of the Western pioneers of the business. Back twenty years ago he owned the stallion Almont Rattler, and while no stallion in the West was better advertised and boomed he proved a practical failure. He, however, raised some good ones, having bred the trotting queen Alix 2:03, and others. Judge Hayes was an able lawyer, having served several terms on the bench in the Circuit court at Clinton, and was two terms at Washington as Congressman from the second Iowa district. His death took place very suddenly from angina pectoris, at his place of birth, Marshall, Mich., where he was attending the funeral of his old friend, General C. T. Gorham.

M. S. Holt, writing to the American Horse Breeder, speaks of "the fanatic who will squeeze into the amen corner of a crowded, ill-ventilated country church, breathe death germs at every inspiration, singing 'Praise God from Whom all Blessings Flow,' while his poor, unprotected horse stands hunched out in a blinding storm with the mercury 10 degrees below zero. And after service, while the faithful animal that carried him to and from the place of worship stands shivering on a month's deposit in a narrow stall, with snow drifting in on every side, he sits by his hearthstone and glibly denounces the cruelty of horse racing, during which time the track horse is quartered in a 10x12 box stall provided with a good warm blanket and clean straw bed."

Undoubtedly the best filly, and probably the best two year old at New Orleans, is The Hoyden, owned by A. H. & D. H. Morris. She is by Esher-Tho Maid, and so comes of sturdy, enduring stock, too good to be frittered away at a winter track. When the filly was sold for J. N. Camdon she only brought $500, and was the cheapest bargain Mr. Walden can be credited with. In three starts she won $2000 in stakes, running a three-furlong dash in 0:38, and five furlongs in 1:02, carrying 115 pounds, as good as she reached the judges. For the early season this is a really good performance, and if she keeps well there will be some lively hustling at Morris Park among the high priced youngsters.

Directum Kelly 2:08 is to be campaigned this year, and great things are expected of him. In his last campaign, as a four year old, he made a clean sweep through the Grand Circuit until he was taken sick at Boston. He was not once beaten during the season. Scott McCoy is now jogging him at Mr. Butler's farm, near Tarrytown. If Directum Kelly comes to the wire all right, he should be a factor in races even against such horses as Boralma, Charley Herr and Lord Derby.

FOR SALE—Two young stallions. Address R. C. Austin, Monterey, Cal.

SULKY NOTES.

The new Year Book is out.

Woodland's dates—August 26 to 31, 1901.

A 25-pound sulky is being built for Coney 2:02½.

Cresceus 2:04 has but sixteen living foals, it is stated.

Directly 2:03½, will make the stud season of 1901 in Tennessee.

Enter in the Terre Haute Matron. Entries close Monday next.

Ferndale, Humboldt county, has announced a fair and race meeting to be held September 10th to 14th this year.

Little Boy 2:06½ on a half mile track, is considered to be one of the pacers fast enough to start in the two minute class this year.

$10,000 for foals of 1901. Get some of it by entering in the Terre Haute Matron stakes. Entries close March 25th, next Monday.

One of the best prospects for 1901 is the mare Twilight. She is eligible to the 2:19 class, and can win money in it. Sho is for sale. See advertisement.

Grover Clay, a handsome son of Electioneer is in the stud at a fee of $25 for the season. Don't miss getting Electioneer blood when you can breed a mare at that figure.

Prince Warwick, a son of Aleona, bred by A. C. Goodrich of Jordan Valley, Oregon, headed the list of winning sires in Austria last year, his get having won $21,500.

President Williams states that racing by the California Jockey Club, which now owns the three tracks in this vicinity, will not be held so as to conflict with any of the district or State fairs.

Jean de Reszke, the great singer, will add a trotting department to his thoroughbred breeding farm in Poland, and he already has commissioners on the look-out for American trotting-bred stock.

Secretary Murray Howe of the Memphis Trotting Association announces that stakes will be opened by his association for two and three year old trotters, 2:14 and 2:20 class trotters, 2:08 and 2:30 class pacers.

Georgena 2:07½, winner of the Charter Oak Stake at Hartford last year, is going sound and true, and her trainer, "Andy" McDowell, says he is confident that no trotter in the 2:08 class can take her measure.

Geo. M. Walker, of Denver, Colorado, whose place of business in that city is headquarters for horsemen, is visiting San Francisco and staying at the Palace. He predicts a very successful meeting at Denver in June.

Cavalry horses are not being given away nowadays. Bids were opened at Omaha the other day for 400 horses, for the newly organized Fourteenth Cavalry at Fort Leavenworth. The bids ranged from $139 to $150 a horse.

Among the visitors to California from the East this month is Mr. Joseph Hubinger, a millionaire who owns several fast trotters and pacers and whose plunges in the betting ring during the grand circuit have made him well known to all trotting horse men.

The colt that wins first money in the three year old division of the Terre Haute Matron Stake, which is for foals of 1901, will get $4500. Your colt cannot win that money for you unless he is entered, no matter how good or fast he is. Read the advertisement. Entries close next Monday.

Mr. A. Innes, of 2700 Central Avenue, Alameda, is the owner of a good looking bay horse by Direct out of a mare by Philosopher that Elias Williams is working at the Alameda track. This horse is a trotter, of the Morgan type and can trot a pretty fair gait. He is five years old and quite promising.

E. D. Dudley of Dixon says he has the sure winner of the first money in the Pacific Breeders Futurity. It is a bay filly, with star and both hind feet and ankles white. The little miss arrived on March 3d. Her sire is Bayswater Wilkes, sire of Kelly Briggs 2:10½, and her dam Bee by Sterling, second dam Flash by Egmont.

Reforming kicking horses and mules by electricity is the latest use to be made of the subtle fluid. The negative pole is attached to a sheet of iron in the rear end of the stall. When the horse's hoofs strike the iron wall the circuit is completed and the animal receives a shock in the head and legs that may be made strong enough to cause him to think twice before making the second kick.

Those who attended the closing out sale at the Corbitt farm in June 1898 and secured mares with foals at foot by Oro Wilkes 2:11 for very small sums were lucky. The youngsters sired by Oro Wilkes since he was located at Mount Kisco Farm, are very highly thought of by Eastern horsemen and are held at high figures. $1000 was recently refused for a yearling by him out of Belle Archer 2:12½.

Fifteen mares are booked to John A. McKerron 2:10. All but one has a record and that one has produced a 2:10 performer. They are Peko 2:11½, Rose Turner 2:13½, Marguerite 2:14, Carrie Onward 2:14½, Elcise 2:15, Rosa L. 2:17½, Eddrea 2:20½ and 2:17½ to wagon, Irene Wilton 2:18½, Mayflower 2:18, Henrietta G. 2:19½, Bifty Duck 2:25, Czarina Wilkes 2:19½ and Zimena, dam of Sunland Belle 2:08½.

Says McHenry: "I remember after the Cleveland race between Gayton and Dare Devil, when I had won the necessary two heats by an eyelash, Tom Keating said to me: 'Well, you ought to beat Dare Devil right along now.' I asked why, and he replied: 'Why, you beat him to-day.' 'We did,' I answered, 'but don't you ever believe that Gayton can trot that sort of a race, or that I can drive it, even if he can trot it, more than once or twice in a season.'"

Captain George E. Stone, who had a national reputation with horsemen as the former owner of Maud S. 2:08½, the one-time world's champion trotter, died March 8th in Cincinnati, from pneumonia following an operation for appendicitis. Captain Stone was a native of New Hampshire. He served with the Seventh Rhode Island Infantry through the Civil War. At the time of his death he was the head of Cincinnati's telephone system. He left a large estate.

Robert Brown, of Petaluma, has been in the city this week. With the many enterprises in which he is engaged occupying his time, Mr. Brown nevertheless finds occasion whenever in the city to visit the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN office and talk a little about harness horses. His fast stallion Meridian 2:12½ by Simmocolon is making a heavy season, having 60 mares already booked. The foals by this horse are attracting much attention and great admiration from the breeders of Sonoma county and are uniformly a fine looking lot. Mr. Brown reports his creamery is turning out about 25 boxes of butter daily. Over 400 cows are being milked and are giving more milk now than they were in April last year, which is generally the best month.

Secretary Horace Wilson, of the Kentucky Horse Breeders' Association, says the great Transylvania stake, to be trotted at Lexington this fall, promises to be a battle between millionaires. He predicts that J. Malcolm Forbes, Thomas W. Lawson, Albert C. Bostwick, W. C. Lloyd Jones and Nathan Strauss will make entries in the race, and that, should the National Trotting Association reverse the ruling in the case of John A. McKerron, Harry Devereaux will also make an entry. Strauss has instructed his trainer to especially prepare the colt trotter Cuprum for the event. Mr. Lawson will enter Dreamer. Mr. Forbes has a four year old on his farm which he thinks will be up to the race, Mr. Bostwick is on the outlook for a superior horse, and Mr. Jones is negotiating for Oriano 2:12½. Dick Benson will have an entry and intends to start The Roman 2:18½ if he is right.

Col. Park Henshaw of Chico, Butte county, who has bred and raced several fast trotters and pacers and who still owns a few, is compelled to go entirely out of the racing business owing to the fact that his time is entirely occupied with business affairs, consequently offers his horses for sale. Among them are Monte Carlo 2:14½ by Mendocino, sire of Idolita 2:12 and others. Monte Carlo is six years old, and as he is sound and made his record last year should be a good horse in his class as his record is not the measure of his speed by a good deal. Mand P. 2:27½, a daughter of Grand Moor is worth a good deal more than the Colonel asks for her, and Fitz Lee 2:13½, would make some speedway driver happy as he can beat more speedway horses than can beat him and can win money racing in his class. Besides these the Colonel has two four year old McKinneys that have never been raced but have shown racing speed. One is a filly, the other a colt and both are out of mares by Blackbird. See the advertisement in this issue and correspond with Col. Henshaw in regard to prices.

A sale of draft stallions was held a fortnight ago at Newark, O., by Geo. W. Crawford. The weather was intensely cold, but the crowd in attendance was very large and some fancy prices were returned by the auctioneer. Most of the horses offered were Belgians. Col. Blair, of Blair, Baker & Walker, horse commission salesman, Indianapolis, was the auctioneer. Some Boulonnais horses were also included in the sale list and none of those put up had been registered in the United States. The top figure was reached by the Boulonnais horse Urban d'Estruval, a stallion said to have been approved by the French Government. He went at $2125 to the bid of S. Clark, North Lawrenceburg, O. Liberton, Boulonnais, went at $1300 to J. Adams, Coshecton, O. The Belgian stallion Orange fell to the bid of J. H. Covert, Cumberland, O., at $1500. John Clark, Westfield, Ind., is reported to have purchased eight Belgians and one Boulonnais at from $1000 to $1500. Mr. Crawford is stated to own a horse called Martel, a Belgian, which is full brother to the stallion that won the grand sweepstakes over all draft breeds at the Paris Exposition last summer. It should be understood that this horse Martel is not a Percheron.

The following from Coleman's Rural World, published at St. Louis, Mo., applies to many California fair grounds and conveys an idea that should be acted upon: "One of the greatest needs on most fair grounds is more shade. A naked field is not a very inviting place when Sol is pouring down upon us its hottest rays. This is the season to think of this. This is tree-planting time, right now. Will not those who are interested in fairs have trees carefully planted this spring? Save one year's growth by planting now. Get shade for yourself, and if not for yourself then for your children. Beautify your grounds by the planting of trees. Fair grounds must be made attractive to draw people to them. In some places a public tree planting day is selected and farmers are invited to bring in maples, olms, ash and other native trees from their farms or woods, and plant them under the directions of some competent person. This is a most excellent idea. Can it not be utilized this very spring? Who will take hold of the idea? And this is a hint likewise to farmers. Many have front yards and lawns with few or no trees. How desolate a farm house looks without trees and how cosy and comfortable it looks when surrounded by trees and shrubs and flower beds. Lose no time in adorning home as well as fair grounds. Now is the time to plant trees."

Arrangements are being made in Denver to enable Colorado horse breeders to feed their bands fat in the stock yards before shipping them East. The railway companies have combined to provide these accommodations and many range owners who have big bands of horses fit to market this year will after the round up yard them in the new pens and later, when they are fat, send them out to the river and other markets in the East. Practically similar arrangements have been made in Cheyenne.

Thousands of horses are brought into existence without any definite idea on the part of the breeder as to market requirements they are to meet. This conviction is based upon three considerations: First the very evident fact that an inordinate proportion are fitted for no special market class, indicating that a large number of farmers are not acquainted with the market classes that have been established by the trade. Second, the glaring defects that are passed unnoticed by owners. Third, the fact that the average horseman is vastly better acquainted with the blemishes of horses than he is with the proper type and characteristics that go with the different use to which the horse is put. These three reasons are sufficient to account for the production of a mass of inferior animals which do not meet the eye of the critic until they are offered for sale.—Kentucky Stock Farm.

Among the horses that will go East this year from California Rey Direct 2:10 has probably more engagements than any other. He is entered all through the Grand Circuit and payments have been already made. None of the purses for which he will start are less than $2000, and at Providence he is named in the $10,000 purse for the 2:10 class pacers. He is looking and acting so well that his owner, Geo. A. Davis of Pleasanton, believes that heats in 2:05 are within his reach. Last Saturday at the Rancho del Valle, while Gus Hagan (who has had charge of Rey Direct all winter, and who was to take him East) was showing one of Rey Direct's yearlings to Consul General Ho Yow, who was visiting the farm, the colt tried to pull away and in his efforts to hold him, Mr. Hagan was thrown and in the fall fractured three ribs on his left side. While a physician was immediately called and the injuries attended to, they are so serious that Mr. Hagan will not be able to leave his bed for some time, and will probably not be able to go East with Rey Direct. Mr. Platt of the Rancho del Valle came to San Francisco on last Monday to arrange with some one to take charge of the horse. Mr. Davis has not yet made arrangements for a driver, but will probably secure the services of some of the well known Eastern drivers who are on the circuit and do not have a horse in the same class.

Al McDonald, who trained and drove Who Is It to his three year old record of 2:12, will go to Pleasanton in a short time with a string of four more promising young horses bred and raised by Mr. A. G. Gurnett, owner of the Sulphur Spring Stock Farm. The horse Direct Fils, is as his name implies, a son of Direct 2:05½. He is a handsome big horse about 16 hands high and weighs close to 1200 pounds. His dam is Lady W. by Ophir. Mr. McDonald thinks Direct Fils will set a low record. The gray gelding by Direct out of Lasse Jean, dam of Who Is It 2:10½ and Dolly Marchutz 2:19½, is working nicely. No fast work has been required of him yet this year, but he has received plenty of road work and is hard and ready to begin showing speed, which he always carries with him. He trotted a half in 1:06 last season at Pleasanton, but contracted the disease that sent so many horses home and did not start. The four year old Zombra by McKinney that took a three year record of 2:23 and drove Eula Mae out in 2:19, is an improved colt and 2:15 ought not to stop him this year. The chestnut three year old gelding by St. Nicholas out of Lasse Jean shows speed that is of the encouraging sort and leads his owner to think that perhaps he will capture a good share of the money in the Occident and Stanford stakes this year as he is entered in both. Mr. Gurnett will send these horses to Pleasanton in Mr. McDonald's care as soon as the weather is thoroughly settled and the winter rains are over. Al will probably move over by the middle of April, if not before.

One of our most intelligent and alert students of horse heredity wonders, and wonders well, why the Orloff trotters of Russia have not made the speed development of the American trotter when the breed is older, and has been bred practically on the same theory and lines. This is an interesting question, and the answer may be difficult. The Orloff family of European trotters ante-date our Hambletonian family about fifty years, and fifty years of scientific breeding should produce marked results. The Orloff horse took his name from a Russian count, Alexis Orloff, who first crossed a half-breed Arabian on Dutch mares, imported from Holland. One main reason why the Russian Orloff has not developed extreme speed, as compared with the American trotter, is the fact that in Russia and Austria and on the continent the effort has been to develop capacity to carry speed a long distance. The minimum distance in Russia in racing is two miles, and it has been the custom not to race the Orloff trotters until they are three years old or older. And there is still another reason that has some force. About fifty years ago the Russian Government bought from the descendants of Count Orloff the entire Russian stud—21 stallions and 194 broodmares—and since that time the Orloff trotters have been under the exclusive control of the official family of his austere majesty, the imperial Czar. It is safe to say that what these unschooled dependants don't know about evolution and scientific breeding would make several volumes as large as the Year Book for 1901, and probably about as slow in coming out. Over here on our side the development of the American trotter has had the genius, alertness, scientific knowledge and intuition of the Yankee nation, the best developed evolution of the primeval man since Christopher Columbus of 1492. These are the principal reasons that we can now think over why the American trotter surpasses the Russian Orloff and leads the world in speed, stamina and strength.—Western Horsemen.

THE SADDLE.

The War is Over.

Last Monday President Thomas H. Williams, of the California Jockey Club, ended the racing war by purchasing both Ingleside and Tanforan tracks for $600,000. His offer had been standing for some time and when the principal stockholders of the two tracks named found that Mayor Phelan had vetoed the ordinance permitting racing in this city for thirty-six days in each year, they accepted. As the greater portion of the stock was held by gentlemen who are not actively engaged in racing, and who did not care to be identified with a war or controversy they availed themselves of the opportunity which Mr. Williams' offer presented and got out. There is no question but the transaction will better the condition of things here as in an interview Mr. Williams has made the following statement: "I firmly believe that racing should be limited as to the number of days. I can promise that next winter there will be a shorter season than was scheduled for the winter and spring of 1900-1901. The time set apart for local fairs will receive our attention and no interference with their operation in point of time will be a part of our program."

This has the right ring and no one who knows Thos. H. Williams will for a moment entertain the idea that he did not mean just what he said. By agreement the California Jockey Club closed its Emeryville track last Tuesday and for thirty days there will be racing only at Tanforan, when Mr. Williams and his associates will assume control, and racing for the balance of the season will be held at Emeryville. It is very probable that there will be no further opposition to the California Jockey Club for some time. There are rumors of a new track being built, but modern race tracks cost money and it is not likely that capitalists can be induced to put any more money in opposition tracks in this vicinity for some time. However, the profits of successful running meetings are so large that there is always a great desire on the part of speculators to get a share of it. The principals in this big deal by which one corporation will become the owner of the three magnificent racing properties are Col. D. M. Burns and Thos. H. Williams, Jr., though there are others who will have an interest. In this connection it can be stated that Col. Burns, who is now at his Mexican mining property, has had the good fortune to uncover a new body of ore that is said to be the richest and most extensive yet discovered in the celebrated Candelaria mine. It runs from $200 to $2000 per ton and there are thousands of tons of ore in sight.

Tennessee Breeders Would Limit Racing.

The "Breeders' Bill" which has been introduced in the Tennessee Legislature is attracting great attention, especially as it is accompanied by a petition signed by the leading thoroughbred breeders of that State asking that it be passed in the interest of the industry in which they have large sums invested. The bill asks that racing be limited to two meetings of ten days each in any one county and that a period of ninety days shall separate the two meetings. The bill is ably drawn and has evidently been framed so carefully that it can be enforced if it passes and is not declared unconstitutional. The petition which accompanies it is signed by thirty of the most prominent breeders in Tennessee; among them Geo. W. H. Jackson, proprietor of the celebrated Belle Meade Farm, Charles Reed of the Fairview Farm (the man who paid $100,000 for St. Blaise); Wm. Gerst of the Hermitage Stud, C. H. Gellock of Maplewood Farm, E. S. Gardner of Avondale Farm, D. C. Shafer, Peytonia Stud and many others whose names are known as breeders of the very highest class of thoroughbreds. The petition reads as follows:

To the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee:

We, the undersigned breeders of blooded stock in the State of Tennessee, memorialize your honorable body to enact into a law a bill which will be introduced, seeking to limit racing upon any one track in the State of Tennessee for a period of ten days at a time, and not oftener upon one track than twice a year; but such meetings not to be held within ninety days of each other.

We take this step because we believe it is to the interest of the better element, and that it will tend to elevate racing in this State. We have invested large sums of money in this business, and we feel that it is very much to our interest, as well as to the interest of the general public in the State, that racing be conducted as a sport, and not as a gambling venture, and we believe that the passage of this law will materially aid in the uplifting of racing in this State and for the development of live stock interests.

Other States have enacted similar legislation as to time limit, especially New York, Indiana and Missouri, and, so far as we know, it has operated most successfully, and has fostered and built up the live stock interests of all of those States in a marked degree.

The English people have, by pursuing a like policy, i. e., short race meetings, placed the turf upon a high plane, which has had the effect of greatly improving the breed of horses. We regard the development and protection of the horse on the race course as absolutely essential to the improvement of such live stock interests, for by this development alone can breeders know where to get the best strains of blood to propagate; but long, continuous race meetings we regard as detrimental not only to turf interests, but to the best interests of the breeders of blooded stock.

While the end which the Tennessee breeders are striving to reach is one that every thinking person knows is necessary to the salvation of the breeding interests, we cannot but believe that they have failed to direct their attack against the real cause of the trouble. Long meetings are the result of making gambling the principal feature of racing, instead of gambling being the result of long meetings. Suppress the bookmakers and long meetings will cease. While racing in England is undoubtedly on a higher plane than it is here, the bookmaking even as there conducted is a bad feature. Australia is far ahead of England in its manner of conducting racing and the totalizator is the only system of betting allowed. France has short meetings attended by the President of the Republic and the best people in France, and all the money wagered goes through the mutual boxes, which pay tribute to the government. The trouble with all laws like the one proposed for Tennessee is that it limits racing, a harmless sport, but takes no cognizance of gambling, the evil attendant thereof. Under it an association that should give two ten day running meetings in a county would have a monopoly of the dates, and an association that should desire to give a harness meeting would be debarred. A matinee club that wished to hold Saturday afternoon meetings could not do so within the law after any association had run for twenty days. And yet matinee racing is conducted without betting or gate receipts and as a sport pure and simple. Suppress bookmaking and the short race meeting will take on its old shape of a sport instead of a gambling game and the long meetings will not be able to continue.

Royally Bred.

Chas. Long of San Bernardino is the owner of a young thoroughbred stallion that is not only handsome as a picture, but a royally bred one as well. He is called Benroe and is by Hindoo, out of Francesca, a full sister to Iroquois. Benroe stands 16 hands, weighs 1150 pounds and is a fine model of the thoroughbred. Mr. Long will make a season with him at San Bernardino and should be well patronized, as no better bred horse can be found in California to-day. He has won several races and is both fast and game.

SADDLE NOTES.

The feature of the re-opening day at Ingleside was the third renewal of the California Derby, which was worth more this year than formerly, $5000 being added by the association to the subscription money. A select field of six three year olds was sent to the post to contest for the rich stake. Joe Frey with Sloan in the saddle ruled favorite and was held at evens at post time. Canmore was second choice at threes, while the Hildreth pair were held at fours. After a slight delay at the post starter Dwyer dispatched the field on even terms. Articulate at once went to the front and in so doing bumped and jostled every horse in the race. Passing the stand Articulate had a lead of two lengths with Canmore in second place, a length before Telamou and the favorite in last position. Round the turn and up the backstretch the order was the same but when straightened away for home, both Sloan and O'Connor moved up with their mounts and in a fierce drive for an eighth of a mile Joe Frey finally forged ahead and won by three parts of a length from Brutal. Canmore was third, three lengths away. The mile and a quarter was run in 2:07, a good performance for three year olds with their weight up.

Saratoga stakes have filled exceptionally well. A better class of horses than has been seen at the springs in years will battle for the rich purses and stakes at the Spa. Among the nominators is J. B. Haggin with Kinley Mack, High Order and his recent purchases from Eastin & Larabee.

Jockey O'Connor has shown most remarkable improvement in his work in the saddle since last fall. When he first came out here at the beginning of the season his work was slovenly and his finishes remarkably weak efforts. Now he seems to have acquired the knack of making a horse run for him and can hold his own in a nose finish with the best of them. The experience gained by him this winter will prove invaluable, and before the summer season is over at New York, O'Connor will doubtless be considered one of the stars of his profession.

Capt. S. S. Brown, of Pittsburg, has increased his offer for Garry Herrman to $25,000, but it has been refused. Charles Head Smith, Garry Herrman's owner, has offered $6000 to J. J. McCafferty for the Puritan, but McCafferty wants $10,000. Garry Herrman will be shipped to Memphis shortly.

Morocco bound volumes of Goodwin's Guide have been received. They are for sale at $7 per set and contain summaries of all the races run in the United States during last year.

The English Jockey Club has taken action to prevent the excessive running of two year olds by passing a law reducing the value of the stakes in which the youngsters take part. This should tend to minimize the evil, as owners will reserve their promising two year olds for the richer stakes, which they will be eligible for when more matured. Conservative owners have tried to have similar legislation enacted in this country, and about a year ago, F. R. Hitchcock introduced a resolution at a meeting of the Jockey Club to the effect that before June 1st, no two year old shall run in any race with more than $1000 added. The resolution failed to go through at that time, but the seed was planted, and good judges think a very probable that before long the subject will be again brought forward and accorded a more cordial reception.

The Hamlins will sell a consignment from their celebrated farm at Chicago next week. The mares consigned are all in foal, and nearly all through dam or prospective foal combine the famous Mambrino King-Chimes blood that has proven so prolific in the production of extreme speed. While Mambrino King shares with Altamont and Baron Wilkes the honor of having sired seven 2:10 performers, he surpasses them in point of average speed, his seven 2:10 performers averaging 2:07 5-14, and three of his seven are trotters, they having but two each. Chimes is indisputably the greatest sire of extreme trotting speed that ever lived. He has three trotters, The Abbot 2:03, Fantasy 2:06 and The Monk 2:08, the three fastest trotters ever credited to one sire, their records averaging 2:05 5-6. In this respect Mambrino King stands second only to Chimes, his three 2:10 trotters, Lord Derby 2:07, Nightingale 2:08 and Dare Devil 2:09, averaging 2:08. Statistics may be used in so subtle a manner as to produce almost any desired result, even though figures may not lie, but it cannot be disputed that Chimes has three faster trotters than any other sire and Mambrino King the second fastest trio. The combination of the blood lines of Mambrino King and Chimes, unlike so many "nicks," works well either way. Bred to Chimes, the daughters of Mambrino King have produced The Abbot 2:03, the world's champion trotter; The Monk (4) 2:08, Ed Easton 2:09, The Queen 2:10, King Chimes 2:10 and many others. Daughters of Chimes, bred to Mambrino King, have produced the world's champion pacing mare, Lady of the Manor 2:04, the incomparable Dare Devil 2:09, that good filly Merriem 2:11 and others. The competition to secure this great blood thus offered for the first time in the Chicago market will be watched with interest.

A dispatch from St. Louis states that the new Delmar Jockey Club proposes to offer the richest stake in the West, valued at $50,000, and will be run during the World's Fair year. It will receive some name descriptive of the anniversary it celebrates, and will be a futurity handicap, with the weights arbitrarily instead of conditionally assigned. It will be a mile and a quarter, and entries will close next fall. The fees will be so arranged that failure to remit will constitute a declaration, hence the full value of the stake will be in cash, their being no forfeits. The weights will be announced about forty-five days before the race is run, and the date selected will be in the early fall, so that the respective champions of the year will develop their best form before the handicappers will assign the weights. The conditions of the stake promise to be so liberal as to attract entries from all over the United States. The conditions cannot be definitely announced until the exact date of the world's fair has been determined. As soon as this is announced the conditions will make their appearance, and entries will be immediately solicited.

Mars Cassidy, the well known starter, who has been dropping the flag at the Bennings track, Washington, and on the Canadian circuit for three or four years, will do the same thing at Aqueduct's spring meeting. Cassidy never has officiated on the metropolitan tracks, but those who have seen him wield the flag say that he will be a worthy successor to C. H. Pettingill, the former starter of the Queens County Jockey Club.

The $20,000 colt by Honover-Correction has been named Yankee. All kinds of rumors have been around concerning this colt, but he is generally judged to be one of the finest looking two year olds at Churchill Downs. The statement detrimental to this colt, credited to President W. F. Schulte, of the new Louisville Jockey Club, and Mr. Hiram J. Scoggau, the well known local turfman, have been emphatically denied by these gentlemen. As a matter of fact no one knowing these horsemen for a minute believe that they had uttered such ill-judged remarks. Both agree the colt is a beauty. He belongs to John E. Madden.

Section 343 of the Political Code was amended by the addition of a Game Commissioner to the list of the number and designation of the civil executive officers of the State of California.

A new section was added to the Political Code as follows:

Sec. 644—It is the duty of the Game Commissioner: 1—To see that the laws for the preservation of game are strictly enforced; and for that purpose he may from time to time appoint such assistants as he may deem necessary, which persons so appointed as assistants shall have the powers and authorities of sheriffs to make arrests for violation of such laws throughout the State. 2—To provide for the distribution and protection of game birds imported into this State for the purposes of propagation. 3—To report biennially to the Governor a statement of all his transactions. The Game Commissioner shall hold his office at the pleasure of the Governor, and shall serve without compensation.

An act to regulate the killing of game birds and animals and to provide therefrom revenue for their restoration and preservation.

Sec. 1—Every person who shall hunt, pursue, take, catch, kill, or destroy, any quail, partridge, grouse, sage hen, or any kind of wild duck, or any rail, or any English or Wilson snipe, or any curlew, ibis, or plover, or any dove, or any gray squirrel, or any deer, shall pay an annual license of one dollar. The Controller of the State shall prepare suitable licenses designated by the Game Commissioner of the State, which shall purport to license the holder of such license, to hunt, pursue, take, catch, or destroy any of the birds or animals mentioned in this act, in accordance with the laws of the State, for the term of one year, from July 1st of one year to June 30th of the year following. The license shall be numbered consecutively, beginning with the number one and containing blanks for the insertion of the name of the holder and the name of the county in which he resides. The Controller shall sign all licenses and deliver the same to the Game Commissioner, on demand, who shall be charged for the same by the Controller. Each license before delivery to the applicant for a license must be countersigned by the Game Commissioner, and the Game Commissioner shall execute a bond to the people of the State of California in the sum of $5000 for the faithful performance of the duties imposed upon him by this section. The holder of a license shall, upon demand, display the same to the Game Commissioner, or any of his assistants, or any peace officer of the State, while in the act of hunting, pursuing, taking, catching, killing or destroying any of the birds or animals mentioned in this act, and a failure to so display said license shall work a forfeiture of the license. The said license fees may be collected by the said Game Commissioner, or some one designated by him for that purpose; and said Game Commissioner and such persons designated by him for the purpose of collecting said license fees is, and are, hereby empowered to arrest any person who shall hunt, pursue, take, catch, kill, or destroy, without such license, any of the birds or animals mentioned in this act. The moneys collected from the sale of said licenses shall be paid by the Game Commissioner into the State treasury and shall constitute a fund to be called the "Game Commission Fund." All moneys in said fund shall be applicable to the payment of the expenses of protecting, restoring and introducing game birds into the State, and to the payment of all expenses incurred in the prosecution of offenders against the provisions of this act, and all other necessary expenses incurred by the Game Commissioner. The provisions of this act shall not apply to minors or Indians not taxed.

Sec. 2—All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 3—This act shall take effect immediately.

Game Legislation Favorable to Sportsmen.

In another column will be found substantially the context of the bills pertaining to game protection which were passed by the recent Legislature and are now before Governor Gage for approval or rejection. If the bills are not signed on or before March 28th they will be dead. The prevailing sentiment among those best posted is that they will be signed and there will thence be in force and effect laws that up to date are regarded by sportsmen as the best game legislation which has ever been enacted in this State.

That such is fortunately the case is due to the efforts principally of such friends of the game and sportsmen as Fish Commissioner Henry W. Keller, Chas. N. Post of Sacramento, Hon. Wm. Higby, Chairman of the Assembly Fish and Game Committee Hon. George Anderson of San Jose, Hon. Oscar Sutro of San Francisco Hon. Dr. W. D. Hasson of Buena Park, Hon. W. C. Ralston of Tuolumne, Hon. W. F. Cowen of Sonoma and Hon. H. E. Carter of Los Angeles of the Assembly. In the Senate A. K. Taylor of Alameda was ably seconded by Hon. Chas. M. Shortridge of San Jose, Hon. A. A. Currier of Los Angeles, Hon. Thos. Flint of San Benito, Hon. J. T. Laird of Alpine and others.

Early during the recent session, the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN repeatedly called attention to the efforts of the "apostles of game protection" to ignore the expressed wishes and instructions of the Game Convention of last May, whose proposed game bill was endorsed by the California State Fish and Game Association and sportsmen generally. The game bill originally introduced was something entirely foreign to what the sportsmen of the State desired or expected, the principal provisions of the Game Convention's proposed bill were eliminated and matter which the Convention had rejected was introduced. The bill stirred up a fund of opposition which was only partially allayed when the original of the bill passed was introduced, this bill was amended and changed from time to time until all of the important features of the Game Convention bill were embodied in the measure. The efforts of the "apostles of game protection" gained more opposition than friends and such was the critical position of needed game legislation that had it not been for the timely and intelligent efforts of the gentlemen mentioned, it is more than probable, the whole matter of game legislation would have been denied.

The present bill cuts short the open season on feathered wild game one month and includes several birds hitherto unprotected. The open season on doves is lessened two weeks. A most important clause in the new law is that protecting the eggs of all birds mentioned in the act. This is a move in game protection that strikes at the root of a growing evil. At many breeding grounds in this State duck eggs have been gathered and shipped to market. This reprehensible practice also prevails further north than the boundaries of this State.

The clause in the law prescribing a limit on the bag is regarded as the most drastic measure in the bill. The possession during any one day of more than the limit number of birds mentioned in this act applies to hotels, clubs, restaurants and dealers as well as to the sportsmen. It is plain to be seen what the effect of this restriction will be next fall. Many of our hotels, clubs, etc., have been in the habit of having at least 100 pair of ducks in the larder daily during the season. This complication may be the subject of a test case. What construction the courts may put upon a case wherein the possession by one individual for instance of more than 50 ducks in one day which ducks have been legally shot is a question open to much argument.

The open season on male deer has been shortened one month and a limit placed on the season's bag. The former prohibition of the sale of deer meat has been augmented by wise legislation which forbids the selling of valley quail and other game.

The usual favorable reservations for scientific and propagation purposes have been embodied in the bill and the possible evasion of the law by the shipping of wild game in or out of the State is made difficult.

The provisions of the law respecting night shooting, trespassing, netting or trapping ducks or other wild fowl are good and essential. A clause respecting the running of deer in close season by loose dogs is a needed move. Marin county took the initiative in this respect last year.

The establishment of a State Game Commissioner will practically relieve the Board of Fish Commissioners of a portion of the functions of the Board. This severance of two interests will undoubtedly redound to the benefit of each department. The bill creating a Game Commissioner was so radically amended that it was practically a new bill when it passed and its particular structure temporarily lost sight of. The Game Commissioner will serve without compensation; the machinery of the office will be devoted entirely to the interests of the wild game of the State, its protection and propagation. The Commissioner will appoint his assistant or assistants and fix the amount of compensation for his deputies. A portion of the revenue necessary for the maintenance of this office will be derived from an annual tax levied upon sportsmen.

The sportsmen's license bill as passed is not the bill that common rumor made it. It is not a direct tax upon a gun, the act simply provides that any person who shall take or kill the wild birds or animals mentioned shall pay an annual tax upon the demand of an authorized official. Sportsmen are not liable for the tax until demand is made. An amendment to this effect was inserted in the bill in order to meet the very objections which some critics have already pointed out. A favorable feature claimed for the bill is a revenue of, at least, $10,000 annually, which will be devoted exclusively to game protective interests. Several Eastern States have adopted similar, and in some cases more stringent measures respecting sportsmen's licenses. In one State there is an annual tax of $10 on visiting or non-resident sportsmen. The collection of this fund and its distribution is an important interest that sportsmen will fully appreciate. It is needless to say that the majority of our sportsmen when they understand the exact provisions and workings of the law will be heartily in accord with it. One prominent advocate of the bill stated that a revenue of at least $2000 would accrue from visiting sportsmen each year at Coronado.

The bills as passed do not restrict the county governments from adopting game or fish laws, provided that the limitations and clauses defined in the act are not enlarged upon or lengthened. The county officials have comparatively the same restrictive powers in regard to game and fish as prevailed prior to the passage of the bills mentioned.

The bills as passed can be regarded as a signal victory of the sportsmen of the State over the selfish designs of the "apostles of game protection" who usurped an authority established by, and broke faith with, the Game Convention of last May, which representative body championed the sentiment of the sportsmen of the State in regard to game and fish legislation necessary and desired.

We have been in daily receipt of communications from many sportsmen respecting an article on the game law which appeared in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN last week. We believe the matter on that subject appearing to day sufficiently covers the case and gives practically an answer, to each correspondent, in all important details. The numerous requests for publication of communicated matter in reference to the above cannot be complied with, limited space and the statement already given will readily show to some of our readers why their communications do not appear this week.

At the Traps.

The trap shooting program for to-morrow includes the first regular live bird shoot this year of the San Francisco Gun Club at Ingleside and the Empire Gun Club blue rock shoot at Alameda Point. The latter club will hold on the fourth Sunday of each month until August 25th two prize shoot events, the Allen handicap gun race, at twenty targets for members only, and the Sweeney record medal, open to all. The conditions of the medal competition are a handicap continuous break race. All shooters starting from the sixteen yard mark, going back two yards for each five successive breaks, until the twenty yard mark, when doubles must be shot, the shooter will be set two yards back for each five pair of targets smashed until a bird is missed. Four re-entries are permissible at each shoot. The second and third high guns in this event will receive 60% and 40% of the pool.

The live bird program of the Union Gun Club announced for the 31st inst. is the following: At 9 A. M. the starting match will be a six bird shoot, $1.50 entrance, high guns, birds extra. The club race at twelve pigeons will follow. The handicaps will be from 26 to 33 yards. The high gun over 75% will receive, as a prize, a pair of handsome gold cuff buttons. The second prize, an elegant pair of silver cuff buttons will be won by the shooter having 75% or nearest to it. The prize competition is for members only, entrance will be $3, including price of birds. The entrance for the side pool is $2, to be divided into three moneys, class shooting. The final event of the day will be a six bird race, class shooting, entrance $1.50, birds extra.

Clarence Nauman left for Chicago on Tuesday morning. He will lay over for a day or two at the lake city and shoot a few pigeons at Watson's Park and then proceed to New York. Mr. Nauman will be one of the shooters at the Grand American Handicap, commencing on April 1st. He will attend the Baltimore Inanimate Target Tournament, April 9-12. It is very probable that the local crack will visit England before he returns to this city.

It would not be a great surprise to Nauman's many friends if he were chosen as one of the American team of shooters which will join issue at the traps this year with a team composed of the crack shots across the water. "Freak" shoots well enough to go at the game in any company. He has attended the Groat American Handicap twice, scoring 23 and 24 birds in the main race, besides doing some good shooting in other events. He has improved since last year and should make a good showing in the East. His standing with the Eastern shooters is one to be proud of.

At the coming tournament of the Northwestern Association it is estimated that there will be about $4000 in added money. Shooters from British Columbia, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon will attend. Two days will be devoted to live pigeons and three days to blue rocks. This meeting will be the greatest ever held by the association.

The opening shoot of the Lincoln Gun Club last Sunday at Alameda Point was successful as a trap shoot and also a pleasant rendezvous for a large number of sportsmen. In the club race, at 25 targets, A. J. Webb was high score. This event is divided into five classes for the club shooters; at the end of the season a purse of $150 will be divided among the winners. The second event, the Neustadter Trophy shoot, at 25 targets, is for members only, the shooters being handicapped in distance. In this race, the high score was made by Fred Feudner, a visiting shooter. In the continuous break prize shoot with a total of forty-five entries the best runs were made by Jones 12, La Motte 10, Edg. Forster 9, Bruns 9, Haight 7, Webb 7, F. Feudner 8. In this race the shooter can re-enter four times at each monthly shoot. In two ten bird events following, the shooters shot under the "jack rabbit" system, in which each shooter is credited with a certain amount for each bird broken and penalized in the same amount for each bird lost. The aggregate amount accruing from the lost bird fund is then divided on a basis of 50%, 30% and 20%. In the first ten bird race four shooters, Bruns, Jones, Edg. Forster and E. Feudner with nine breaks each divided the purse. In the second ten bird race C. A. Haight, A. J. Webb and "Slade" each made straight scores. The high men in the extra event, a 20 bird race, were Fred Feudner, C. A. Haight and A. J. Webb. The principal extra event next month at the regular shoot, will be a prize shoot. The scores made during the day were as follows:

The Reliance Gun Club grounds were open last Sunday and apparently considerable trap shooting took place. The account of the shoot which appeared in a morning daily was unreliable. The published scores made by some of the shooters were phenomenal, particularly so as most of the shooters were novices—old timers could not do as well under the most favorable circumstances. "Boosting" of this character can not accomplish any good for the sport.

The Wardner Gun Club of Wardner, Idaho, announce a trap shoot for Monday and Tuesday. Sixteen events are scheduled; 10, 15, 20, 25 and 50 target races, 10 singles and 5 doubles. Two team shoots at 10 and 15 targets. There will be $250.00 added money. The Maugatrapp will be used for all events.

The initial shoot of the newly organized Riverside Sportsmen's Club was held on the 8th inst. at the club's new grounds. Arrangements have not been entirely perfected yet, but it is believed a very pleasant summer will be passed by devotees of the gun. Grounds will be fitted up nicely, and the club is assured of financial backing by the number of new members who are coming in at every meeting.

H. G. Lougee, a prominent business man and well known sportsman of Spokane who has been on a visit to this city for several weeks past, will return to Spokane next week. Mr. Lougee has frequently held his own at the traps with our local cracks.

Geese are plentiful in Colusa and Solano counties. Black brant shooting on Tomales bay is still productive of sport and good bags. English snipe are in evidence in many localities. The continuous dry weather has caused the dainty long bills to frequent their old haunts in the pastures and boggy spots in the hills.

Striped bass anglers are on the qui vive; reports from Petaluma creek near the railroad bridge, San Leandro bay, Oakland estuary, San Quentin point, etc., are to the effect that the fish are beginning to take the hook. Salmon creek, or rather the lagoon at its mouth, is said to be full of large striped bass; Horace Smyth, John Butler and John Lemmer left for Mrs. Colby's on Wednesday to have a try at the bass.

Horace Smyth, the secretary of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club, is authority for the pleasing news that Stow lake will soon be filled with water again and the regular fly-casting meetings will be resumed commencing on Saturday and Sunday, March 30th and 31st.

If the pleasant weather continues until the first of April, just nine days more, many streams will be in splendid condition for fly-fishing. The indications for a pleasant trout season are most auspicious.

Doings in Dogdom.

An executive meeting of the Pacific Advisory Board was held on Tuesday evening.

H. L. Betten recently sold to H. R. Edwards, of Cleveland, Ohio, the owner of Uncle B., a black, white and tan English bitch, about a year old, by Uncle B. out of W. E. Chute's Dolly Y.

Dr. Chas. Turner, of Vallejo, recently presented to Dr. W. D. Anderson a Fox Terrier puppy that has now become a most pugnacious canine and has the reputation, in his particular neighborhood, of having several traits peculiar to his master. This fact coupled with the dog's daily increase in weight is taken by Vallejoans as a startling example of the force of association.

N. H. Hickman recently purchased a Fox Terrier bitch and has shipped her East for exhibition at the Boston bench show. The bitch was owned by Dominick Shannon and bred by W. J. Foster. She is by Scorchier out of Lillian Sage, and is regarded by the local Fox Terrier talent as the best home bred bitch here. In this move Mr. Hickman has shown the spirit and energy of a true fancier. He is desirous of finding out just exactly what the standard of our dogs is as compared with the Eastern product. The price paid for the bitch was a good one and he had the courage to devote the money and time to solving a question that is of much interest to every fancier on the Coast. We wish Mr. Hickman the success in his venture that its enterprise deserves.

Bench Show Notes.

The issuance of the premium list for the San Francisco Kennel Club show is announced for April 1st.

The Pacific Field Trials Club has donated a handsome silver cup as a special for the best Setter or Pointer in the field trial class at the May show.

The premium list of the Portland bench show is similar in classification to the A. K. C. arrangement of classes. The awards are medals and diplomas. Some excellent trophies for specials are listed. Norman J. Stewart will judge Collies. James Cole of Kansas City will also judge.

A Good Dog is the Scotch Terrier.

The general name of the Scottish Terrier, before dog shows and standards were thought of, was "Scotch." Under this cognomen were grouped a variety of rough little tykes. Up to about 1890 the average American spoke of every little sandy or brindle Terrier of nondescript appearance and sharp expression as a Scotch Terrier, or else it was a Yorkshire Terrier, and ten to one neither name fitted by the standard of to-day.

The real simou pure Scottish Terrier, however, when it began to appear at dog shows, soon asserted itself as a very smart individual. He was not quite like any other Terrier, although in a vague way he most resembles the Skye Terrier, under which name he was, some years ago, quite generally known in some parts of Scotland. But there is a wide difference between the two Terriers, the Skye being very long in the body

Defects which are scored hard in the ring are large and light-colored eyes; large ears with round tips, and when they are heavily covered with hair. Any silkiness of the hair, wave or tendency to curl is a serious blemish, as is also an open coat. A movement is afoot among breeders to keep the weight down to eighteen pounds, as this is supposed to be the limit in a dog that is expected to go to earth. An under-shot or over-shot mouth should disqualify, for such a mouth is useless in quick work with fox or other vermin.

New Things In Turf Goods For 1901

We call the special attention of trainers and owners of horses to the illustration of the scalper in this advertisement. Everyone knows of the trouble that horsemen have had in years past with scalpers getting heavy on account of wet, losing their shape and thereby being rendered very liable to chafe. To obviate this we have placed on the market a line of scalpers made of waterproof leather. It is really remarkable how this new leather will withstand wet and how beautifully it keeps its shape. It is without any question of a doubt the greatest leather that has ever been produced in the world for making scalpers, and there is no factory in America to-day that uses such leather, for the reason that it is tanned by a peculiar process and filled with a secret compound by ourselves so that you may know if anyone offers to sell water-proof scalpers unless our stamp is on the boot they are not genuine goods but spurious imitations. The leather is filled with a peculiar material which keeps off the effect of water. Notice also the beautiful shape of our scalpers. They are greatly improved over anything that has been placed upon the market in the past. We further desire to say that we are offering these new improved scalpers at the same price as the ordinary ones. A bad fitting quarter boot, a bad fitting shin boot and especially a bad fitting extension scalper or even a low scalper has often been the means of losing a heat and probably losing a race.

Do not be deceived by the old-fashioned knee boots that are being made to-day by all other manufacturers. You can buy our new improved line at the same price and in some cases less than what is made by any other factory in the country.

If you do not care to send your order direct to us order through your dealer. Any dealer can get these goods. Send at once for our new catalogue No. 21, if you desire full information on our new boots and track harness. If you desire a catalogue illustrating buggy, surrey, pole, carriage and coupe harness order No. 20 catalogue also. We published two this year, No. 21 illustrating track goods, and No. 20 illustrating harness for pleasure driving. We also send with either our 20th Century Handy Book, a very valuable little book of statistics for every horseman. Do not delay. Send for our catalogue at once. It is free for the asking.

Mr. B—, a prominent horseman from the East, recently remarked in hearing of a crowd of horsemen: "I believe Boodle is destined to be a great sire of speed, but laying speed aside, his colts with their size, style, beautiful mane and tail and toppy appearance in general, with 3-minute speed, will sell East for more money than the little bullet-shaped cyclones such as are frequently produced with 2:15 speed."

JOTTINGS.

IT IS TOO BAD the Abbott-Boralma race fell through. Judging from the reports published in the eastern press, millionaire Lawson retired from the controversy with honor and dignity and his acts in the matter have left no stain upon his escutcheon. It seems that W. L. Marks, manager for Mr. Scannel, owner of The Abbot, while in Buffalo a few weeks ago, made the defi that Mr. Scannel would race the champion trotter of the world against any other trotter, for any amount of money, best two in three, three in five, seven in eleven or even eleven best heats in twenty and that Boralma or some other of the Lawson horses were preferred. Of course this created a sensation among horsemen all over the country, as while there have been pages of matter written and tons of hot air energy expended in the endeavor to lessen the number of heats in harness racing, this was the first suggestion to race beyond the old fashioned three-in-five system. Mr. Lawson is one of the most genuine sportsmen in America, however, and thought a defi like that issued by Mr. Marks need not die from lack of attention so long as he owned a horse, so he offered to accept the challenge and said four heats in seven would about suit him and Boralma would try conclusions with the champion on that basis. It should not be charged against Mr. Lawson that he was making a condition that was unreasonable. The Abbot is the champion trotter of the world. His record is 2:03½, or four and three-quarter seconds below the greatest speed ever shown by Boralma. Mr. Marks had made the challenge and Lawson simply accepted and kept within the limits of the defi. Of course the race fell through, as Mr. Marks insisted on the stakes being $50,000 a side and the contest three in five. Mr. Lawson, although many times a millionaire, held that $25,000 was enough money to put up on a horse race, and stipulated that all the gate receipts which he guaranteed to be $25,000, should go to charity. After the negotiations had fallen through, a race was arranged between Boralma, Charley Herr and Cresceus. This race is to be for $50,000, of which $10,000 is to be put up by the owner of each horse and $20,000 is to be added by Mr. Lawson. The race will be held at Readville, Mass., in the week beginning September 16th, all the gate receipts to go to charity. The race will be handled by the New England Trotting Horse Breeders' Association. The race is to be the best three in five heats, the first horse to take $30,000, the second $20,000, each owner to deposit $2500, and the remainder before the night of the race; all gate receipts to be divided equally between the West End Nursery and Infants' Hospital and the Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children, both of Boston. It is a foregone conclusion that this race will excite more general interest than any contest that will be held between horses in America this year, and Readville will see a larger crowd even than was present at the great stallion race last year. Charley Herr and Cresceus were so closely matched in that race that the contest was really between them, although there were eight starters in the race. Charley Herr won the first two heats in 2:07½ and was only beaten a nose by Cresceus in the third heat in the same time. Boralma was not entered.

It is strange that with the amount of money wealthy men have invested in harness horses in California, there is not interest enough manifested among them, or by the organizations that give racing, to establish an annual trotting stake here that will enable horses with slow or no records to meet for a large sum of money. There should be one or two events of this sort where at least $2500 would be trotted for, and if the prize were $5000, and was properly advertised, "boosted" and managed it would fill every year and cost the association giving it very little money. The honor of winning an event of that description would put many men in the field looking for good green trotters and would cause many to be trained that are now sold for common roadsters. It would attract more attention to the horse and owner winning it, to the trainer and driver, and to the sire and dam of the winner than all the cheap races that could be given on a six months' circuit. Every association cannot give such a stake, as there are chances to take that it will not fill with enough entries to make it profitable, but those chances are small. There are not enough harness horses bred or trained in California to fill more than one big annual event, as the expense of entrance would be too great on individuals, but if the State Agricultural Society or the P. C. T. H. B. A. were to inaugurate a stake of this kind and announce it early in the year it could be carried to a successful conclusion with the assurance that the entrance fees would very nearly pay the full amount guaranteed.

Perhaps a few figures would explain the matter better and although there is the fear of "counting chickens before they are hatched" about any preliminary figuring on a racing proposition, I shall try to be modest in the use of the Arabic characters. Let us suppose that a purse of $2500 is guaranteed for trotters of the 2:25 class to be held in September. This stake should be advertised as early as March each year and nominations close about April 1st, with a payment of one per cent. or $25 due at that time. Another payment of $25 would be due June 1st, and horses should be named and eligible about August 1st, or at the opening of the regular circuit. No money should be required at this time, but a starting fee of $75 due the night before the race. I believe that there would be at least thirty nominators that would make first and second payments to such a race, which would amount to $1500. If ten horses started, and that is not an unreasonable number for a race of this character, the event would only cost the association giving it about $250, and if an additional five per cent. were deducted from money winners there would be a balance of profit for the association. A stake of this kind would do much for the harness horse business in California, and I cannot but believe that if the stake were $5000 it would draw enough money at the gate to pay a profit to the association giving it.

Two very important offices have just been filled by President McKinley and Governor Gage with gentlemen who are known in their respective communities as accomplished amateur horsemen in addition to their high business and legal attainments. The appointment made by the President is the tendering of the Attorney Generalship of the nation to Mr. P. C. Knox of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, to succeed Mr. Griggs who has resigned. Mr. Knox as our readers are doubtless aware is one of the leading lawyers in the Keystone State and finds the best recreation and tonic after business hours in driving a fast trotter or a pair of them on the road. He owns that good California bred trotter Dr. Leek 2:09½, and drives him with Wert 2:15½. They are the fastest pole team in the world, and Mr. Knox drove them a mile in 2:10½, which while it is not a record accepted by the Year Book as it was not for any prize or valuable consideration, stands as the champion amateur team record and is so recognized by all the amateur driving clubs. The appointment made by Governor Gage is that of Col. J. C. Kirkpatrick of this city to the responsible position of Harbor Commissioner for the port of San Francisco. Col. Kirkpatrick is known to all California and to globe trotters as the manager of the Palace Hotel and other interests of the Sharon estate. The Colonel loves a horse, owns several high class ones and is a regular road driver. He is the owner of the fast pacer Clipper 2:06, and a recent purchase is Thornway a three year old by Steinway, that worked a mile at Pleasanton last Tuesday in 2:20 and will be raced in the East this year. His favorite roadsters are the black trotting mare Azalia 2:22½ and the black gelding Harvey Mac 2:14½. Col. Kirkpatrick is a director of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association and a member of the Pacific District Board of Appeals of the National Trotting Association, and is a valuable member of each. His appointment as Harbor Commissioner has received the general endorsement of the business men of San Francisco.

Charter Oak Purses.

That the Hartford Grand Circuit meeting at Charter Oak Park, will this year retain the prestige it has for many years held among race meetings, is conclusively shown by the list of early closing purses announced this week by this association. This list, which aggregates $25,000 for six events, is as follows: The Charter Oak, for 2:13 class trotters, $10,000; 2:19 class trotters, $3000; 2:30 class trotters, $3000; 2:09 class pacers, $3000; 2:14 class pacers, $3000; 2:30 class pacers, $3000. In the big Charter Oak purse, about the most sensational event of the year, the entrance fee will be five per cent. of the purse, and nothing additional from the winners. This event will this year be trotted under somewhat novel conditions. It will be mile heats, best three in five, the purse to be divided as follows: $1000 to the winner of each heat, the remainder to be divided 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent, to the first, second, third and fourth horses placed at the finish of the race. Horses must be eligible April 1st, when entries close and must be named August 19th. The innovation introduced in the dividing of the money in this event will tend to make the race earnestly contested each heat, and it is hardly likely that the spectators will find any reason to complain over any laying up tactics.

The other purses also close April 1st and the entrance fee will be the regular five per cent. with five per cent. additional from the winners. These events will be supplemented later on, with a good list of regular purse events, providing for all classes of trotters and pacers, making up a program that will result in a meeting that will gratify both horse owners and race goers. For entry blanks, apply to E. M. Stalker, Secretary, care of Fasig-Tipton Company, Madison Square Garden, New York City.

Seymour Wilkes 2:08 1-2 as a Sire.

When at Sacramento at the Breeders meeting in July 1895 Seymour Wilkes, driven by Ed Lafferty defeated a field of nine of the best pacers out that year there was considerable excitement and a great deal of money changed hands, but when in Los Angeles in October of the same year the son of Guy Wilkes downed the pride of Santa Ana, Silkwood 2:07, and the Oakwood Park champion W. Wood 2:07, in three straight heats, Lafferty was lifted from the sulky and carried about on the shoulders of the horse's backers while Seymour Wilkes was decorated with flowers and hailed as a champion pacer, which he was. It was in this last race that Seymour Wilkes made his record of 2:08½, his present mark. A large horse, sixteen hands high, and weighing 1200 pounds, a grand individual and a handsome stallion in every way, Seymour Wilkes is demonstrating that he will be as great in the stud as he was on the track.

His owner, Mr. J. W. Gregory of this city said one day last year, when ordering a lot of cards announcing that Seymour Wilkes would make a season at Lakeville, Sonoma county, "I will not advertise my horse through the columns of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN until I have some of his get to show; next year I will want you to tell your readers something about them."

Last Monday Mr. Gregory came in and informed the editor that there were five three year olds by Seymour Wilkes in the city and if we would accompany him he would be pleased to show us what sort of colts his horse was siring. We took our camera along and were first driven out to Jo Cuicillo's stables, Page street, where three of them were led out. Two were the property of Mr. Allen, the hay and grain merchant, of this city.

One, a big, bay gelding out of a mare thought to be well bred, but really of unknown breeding, stood sixteen hands high nearly and was a powerfully made three year old. Cuicello has had him just twenty-one days and the gelding has shown him a quarter in 40 seconds. He is a square line trotter, and will be very fast. The other was a three year old filly out of a mare by California Nutwood. She had more finish than the gelding, but was about the same size and they looked alike. She had shown that she would trot fast, but Joe did not consider her as great a prospect as the gelding, though he said she would do to take to the races. The third one led out was the property of Mr. Gregory. He was just in off pasture, looked rough and unkempt and was in poor flesh. While he was not in shape to have his picture taken, he was a good looking horse nevertheless. He also stood very close to sixteen hands and weighed at least eleven hundred pounds. He was a trotter also and showed plenty of style and action. Mr. Gregory then drove us to Dr. McNutt's stable, where he said the Doctor had a three year old by Seymour Wilkes worth looking at. We found a grand looking fellow, like the others a solid bay, about sixteen hands high, weighing from 1100 to 1200 pounds, and a perfect model of a horse. He was suffering from the distemper, however, and in no shape for a picture. Driving down to Dr. Dalziel's stables on Golden Gate avenue we were shown another gelding of the same age as the others and just about the same color and size. He was led out on the sidewalk and a snap was made.

Never have we seen five colts by one horse, all the same age, that looked as like one another in color, size and general make-up. They showed that Seymour Wilkes is producing size, style, solid color, good bone and good looks with uniformity, and although he took his record as a pacer, there is but one of his twenty colts that are grown, that has the pacing gait. All the others are trotters.

That a three year old with twenty-one days' handling from the time of breaking should show a quarter in 40 seconds is out of the ordinary. Few of the very fastest of record horses ever showed as much early speed as that. Of the five colts which are owned here in the city there is not one but can show better than a three minute gait.

If Mr. Gregory will collect a dozen of Seymour Wilkes' three year olds and exhibit them with him at the State and district fairs this year he would have no trouble filling the stallion's book next spring at double the price he now asks for his services—$25.

Seymour Wilkes is by Guy Wilkes 2:15½, and is dam is Early Bird by Playmail, a horse that was an inbred Morgan. Playmail's dam, Kate McDonough, was the dam of that old time race mare Ella Lewis 2:27 and the grandam of the great pacer Saladin 2:05½. Early Bird's dam was by Odd Fellow, a son of Chloroform, and her grandam by a son of Williamson's Belmont. Here are three great crosses—Guy Wilkes, Morgan and the thoroughbred. It accounts for the prepotency of Seymour Wilkes as they are all prepotent strains. We would suggest to those who are breeding mares this year and want size, style, speed and other good qualities to call on Mr. Gregory at the St. George Stables, 408 Bush street, or write to Thos. Roche at Lakeville where the horse is in the stud. Seymour Wilkes certainly has the colts to show that he is a horse worthy the patronage of those who desire to breed to the best.

Notes From the Woodland Track.

WOODLAND, March 28, 1901.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—About fifty horses are now stabled at the track here and it reminds one of last August when Woodland gave such a successful fair. The track is in good shape and all the horses are doing well.

Walter Masten is working eight. Mamie H. by Falrose worked a mile in 2:34 this morning to a cart and seemed to be capable of going a very fast mile. A three year old pacer by Falrose worked a quarter in 34 seconds. It is a good looker and promising. Geo. H. is a very likely green horse that worked a mile in 2:20 last year and is faster than that now. Masten has a green pacer by Nevada that is well thought of and a three year old by Falrose that belongs to Geo. Leut that he thinks will be a standard performer for this horse by August. Falrose and Den Marvin are both making a good season.

Lou Mativa is now stationed at the track with eight head of trotters and pacers. He has Reehab by Prince Red, a good green mare, and Italca a full sister to Iris, owned by A. B. Rodman. Trilby is the name given a filly by Truman 2:12 that belongs to H. E. Coil. She is a good prospect. Leroy Ceil has a three year old by Alex Button, dam by Election that Mativa is working. She is a trotter and a good one. Leroy calls her Sauer Kraut. William Proctor's Button mare Mary P. is one of the best lookers and fastest roadsters in this vicinity. She worked a mile in 2:16 last year and Mativa is again training her. He has also a four year old Waldstein and another by Button out of Lynmont's dam that are owned by Geo. Hoppin and a four year old trotter by Button owned by Tom Lowe. All these horses are doing well.

Sam Hooper has seven head in his string. Alta Vela 2:15½ by Electioneer is doing well in the stud and will be trained again this year. Prince Howard, a fast son of Dexter Prince, Lady Rose, a four year old daughter of Falrose, Helena S. by Falrose and two McKinnys that are showing racing speed are all in Mr. Hooper's charge. Out of them he will have several money winners this year.

Tom Donahue, who is known on every race track in California, is chief cook for John Norton and unless he puts too much flesh on the latter he will drive some fast miles this year. Mr. Norton is stationed outside the track. His horses are all doing well. Gossiper Jr., a fine looking stallion, is doing well in the stud, as is Tuberosa, the fast trotting stallion belonging to A. B. Rodman and Sam Montgomery. One of the best looking yearlings here is a son of Gossiper Jr. Yellow Jacket 2:20½ is getting regular work and shows much improvement. They will have to go some to beat him this year.

Wm. Murray is going a good season with Diablo 2:09½, the fastest stallion and the greatest producer that is standing for service here. He has received many high class mares from all parts of the State to mate with Diablo. It is said that there are at least three of the get of this horse that will get records of 2:10 or better this year. JACK O'KEEFE.

Well Represented in the East.

PALO ALTO, March 26, 1901.

DETROIT.

Merchants and Manufacturers' Stake—Elata, blk m by Dexter Prince, dam Elden 2:19½ by Nephew. 2:14 class—Marston, b g by Dexter Prince, dam Maiden 2:23 by Electioneer; Willard, br g by Dexter Prince, dam Wildmay by Electioneer. 2:17 class—First Love 2:17½ by Wildnut, dam Mamie by Hambletonian Jr. Yours truly, COVEY.

Senator 2:26 1-4.

A good looking stallion and one that would have secured a very low mark is the black horse Senator 2:26½, owned by the well known ticket broker of this city, Mr. A. Ottinger. Senator is a son of Secretary, he by Director, and his dam is Emma Taylor by Alexander. Secretary, with the most limited opportunities in the stud, is the sire of Sweitzer 2:13½, Hazel Y. 2:17, Butcher Boy 2:17½, Auditor 2:19½ and seven others with records from 2:22 to 2:27½, and every one of them is a handsome individual. No horse in California has sired good looks with more uniformity than Secretary. As he was by the mighty Director and his dam a daughter of Goldsmith's Volunteer, his style, size, quality and finish are accounted for, and he has certainly transmitted them to Senator. Emma Taylor, the dam of Senator, was sired by Alexander 2:31½ that sired Buttou 2:26½, sire of Yole Maid 2:12, Tom Rydor 2:13½, Margaret Worth 2:15 and many other fast and game race horses. Emma Taylor is the dam of Alto, a stallion owned by M. O'Reilly, of Healdsburg, that is very highly thought of as a sire of handsome, speedy and stout roadsters. She is also the dam of Annetto that took a two year old record of 2:46, a three year old record of 2:39, and won a colt stake in Sonoma county in 1888. Emma Taylor was sold to the late Gov. Stanford for $500 when she was twenty years old, and Annetto was sold to Pierce Bros. at a long price for a broodmare. The dam of Emma Taylor was Belle by Gen. Taylor, the gray stallion that still holds the world's thirty-mile trotting record, and Belle's dam was by Boston Boy, a son of Dave Hill 858, son of Black Hawk 5. It will be seen that the progenitors of Senator were of the speediest, stoutest and gamest of their day. His grandsire Director 2:17 was King of the Grand Circuit in his day and sired Directum 2:05½ that held the champion stallion record from 1893 until Croscus lowered it last year. He also sired Direct 2:05½, one of the greatest race horses that ever lived and sire of such fast and game ones as Directly 2:03½, Bonnie Direct 2:05½, Directum Kelly 2:08½, Rey Direct 2:10 and many others. Dictator, the sire of Director, founded a family to which belong Jay Eye See 2:06½, a world's champion; Phallas 2:13½, a stallion king; Nancy Hanks 2:04, Dexter, the champion of his day, and many others too numerous to mention.

Senator's mark of 2:26½ is no measure of his speed. He has worked miles below 2:15 on more than one occasion, at Sacramento last year pacing in 2:14½ one morning with half a hundred watches on him. Had he not had harsh treatment he would have made a very low record, but a tendon of one of his front legs is now under suspicion and he will not do to race, although with a year's rest he might be as good as ever. As he stands 16 hands high and is a well formed horse all over, with his natural speed and breeding he should make a great sire and he will probably be placed in the stud. Mr. Ottinger has been using him as a road horse and found that there were but few of the fast ones driven in the park but Senator could beat easily.

Horse Shows in the South.

The Horse Show fever has struck the Southern country in the last two or three years, and there is now a circuit comprising New Orleans, Memphis, Birmingham and Mobile. Shows will be held at all these points this spring, beginning at New Orleans some time early in May. A new horse show association has been organized and details are now being perfected for the spring exhibition. The show will have a novel feature. It will be held at the New Orleans race track under canvas and at night. It will continue one week. While fine horses are hardly as plentiful as in the North, yet the officials say that an abundance of material can be found to fill the various classes.

Oregon State Fair Grounds.

[Rural Spirit.]

The track at the State Fair grounds at Salem is being put in splendid condition and will be ready to work on by the first of April, in fact it has been in pretty good condition all winter and with a little more tiling will make a good winter track. The board will spend about $8000 in improvements on the fair grounds this year, which with the training going on will make things pretty lively there.

Only a few horses are in training on the grounds now but a number of horsemen have engaged stalls, and intend moving there soon. I. C. Mosher is breaking and training quite a number of youngsters by Cœur d'Alene, mostly three and four year olds, and they look racey enough to win their share of the stakes this year. Mr. Mosher says he is considerably handicapped in the big two year old stake as he has only one colt to choose from and it is hardly broken yet. These he is working are Ath Alene, four year old by Cœur d'Alene, dam Allie Wagner by Billy Wagner, son of Potosky; Kath Alene (3), full sister to Ath Alene; Carrie Nation (4) by Cœur d'Alene, dam by Altamont; Queen Alene (3) by Cœur d'Alene, dam by King Patchen; An Del (3) by Del Norte, dam An Alene 2:22½ by Cœur d'Alene; Dix Alene (2) by Cœur d'Alene, dam by Laddy; William N. (4) by Altage, dam An Alene by Cœur d'Alene. He is also driving J. M. Church's team of Lemont mares to pole and they make a handsome pair. This team is being fitted up for sale and the man that gets them will secure a prize in beauty, speed and attraction.

J. W. Shannon is working a big Cœur d'Alene gelding out of Mary A. 2:30 that is said to be good enough for the races. He also has a two year old by McKinney out of this same mare that we know is good and the colt that goes up against her this year will know that he has been to the races.

G. W. Isbell is getting a stable of runners together. He has a good-looking two year old by Jack Richelieu out of Lila Ferguson, and expects to get a few more in a short time.

W. H. Bradford, who had Estella 2:17½ last year, will open a stable in a few days. He has made arrangements to train Bell Air 2:14½ and is looking for her down any day.

Docking Now a Misdemeanor.

A new section was added by the California legislature at its recent session to the law for the prevention of cruelty to animals, which will make it a misdemeanor to cut the tail of a horse. The section reads as follows:

"Whosoever shall cut the solid part of the tail of any horse in the operation known as 'docking' or by any other operation performed for the purpose of shortening the tail, and whoever shall cause the same to be done, or assist in doing such cutting, shall, upon conviction, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor."

The new law has two other new sections, and six of the old ones are amended. By the terms of the provisions now in effect, the officers can take a sick horse away from its work and turn it over to a veterinary until it is well. The charge of the veterinary becomes a lien upon the animal. Another section empowers the officers of the law or citizens to kill any incurable animal after twelve hours' notice to the owner, if he refuses to do so himself or to take action for the relief of such animal.

A Preacher as a Horse Trader.

A good joke is told on a certain minister of the gospel, who likes to trade horses by way of recreation. By some means the preacher came into possession of a horse that wouldn't pull at all when he came to a hill. The parson found a purchaser, who inquired particularly as to age, condition and qualities of the parson's steed. At last he asked if he was a triod puller. "It would do your soul good to see him pull," was the enthusiastic response. The trade was made, and in a few days the new owner came back and claimed the parson had misrepresented the qualities of the animal. The parson listened and then replied: "I told you it would do your soul good to see him pull." The purchaser saw the point and dropped the subject.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

The Outcasts: A Tale of the Northwest.

Mr. W. A. Fraser, author of Moeswa and Others, has just written for early publication in The Saturday Evening Post a short, stirring serial, entitled The Outcasts.

The Outcasts are an old buffalo and a wolf-dog, and the greater part of the story is about the strange comradeship and striking adventures of these companions, and their pilgrimage, in company, to the distant plains of deep grass, of which the wolf-dog knew.

There are action, and strength of word and phrase in the story, and the touch of the soil and the music and charm and sombreness of the forest. The rush of the frenzied buffalo herd to death is told with splendid dramatic power. The plan of the book is a unique conception, and it is worked out on novel and entertaining lines.

The Tale of Wyokee.

The following story is from the pen of William B. Fasig, and was published in the catalogue of the recent March sale, along with the pedigree and description of his horse Wyokee that was disposed of at the sale:

At different ones of my auction sales I have sold horses that turned out profitable investments. For instance, Marie C. for $70. She was highly bred and could trot fast, taking a record the same season of 2:16½. I sold Stambold for $205, also fast and without record, but he took one of 2:16½ the same season and sold for $2500, just ten times what I got for him. I sold Wyreka, green but very fast at both gaits, for $185 and he, too, took a record the same season, pacing, of 2:18½, and showed a mile in 2:12. These are only instances on one side of the ledger.

On the other side I've sold some no account ones: For instance, Musket, that I catalogued as the "unluckiest horse in America," for he'd had every disease in the calendar, from worms up. I told the bidders when he was in the ring they were giving more than he was worth, and he "made good," for he died soon after he arrived in Boston, whether because of the location to which they had taken him or that he wanted to make my word good, I do not and never shall know.

Now, whether Wyokee is fated to go on the right side of the ledger, or over there with Musket remains to be seen. I think he's a real trotter, and will be the real thing as a race horse; but as I may not be present when he's sold, I want to say here that I guarantee nothing about him, his merits, soundness, or anything else, except that the high bid gets him, and when he's knocked down he's your horse, whether he's an escape from Hagenback's trained animal show or the fastest and best trotter on earth. I bred him and he's been the apple of my eye; he looks like a race horse and goes like a race horse. He has never been trained a minute (I thought him "too good" (?) to work early so he was not broken until last summer). He is by a game, fast horse, out of a game, fast mare, knows nothing but trot and I've seen him go fast for a green horse. Kind in the stable as a kitten.

I have driven him daytime and night, and he never made a wrong move with me, but a drunken stableman fell out of the cart in one of his nightly sprees and the colt ran home and stood all night in the shafts—we found him the next morning—the "bum" who drove him we didn't look for. Afterwards I drove him repeatedly. Then when I took sick the new stableman drove him, and he (the stableman) was sober. The colt jumped, in play I suppose, in turning a corner, and the sober stableman fell out, so Mr. Colt, my pet Wyokee, ran away again to the stable and waited to be unhitched. He never raised a foot to kick nor lost a hair. I had Tom Gallagher drive him since and he says he couldn't make him do a wrong thing; but there's trouble in the "old man's" house; the stableman is afraid, the household are afraid and "Benny" is sick, so the colt has got to be sold, I suppose, on the theory that he is surely bound to kill somebody and my folks want that somebody to be somebody else—Christian spirit, isn't it? But it's the truth, and I sell him with the chances, after telling the facts.

I wouldn't catalogue all this gush for anyone else because printing costs—possibly more than Wyokee is worth—but I'm playing myself a favorite now, and it will be printed—unless Tipton kills it, which I wouldn't blame him for doing. I'll agree to say no more about Wyokee even if I'm at the sale when he is hammered. As George Bain says: "You take him like you take your girl—for better or for worse."

The New African Horse.

The Geographical Journal tells us of a new horse or zebra cross in Africa that may be an important foundation for developing a new breed with fancy markings and something of Oriental beauty, novelty and utility. Trios for breeding and experimenting may be ordered through the English army in Africa or some enterprising war correspondent. Sir H. Johnston ascertained that there exists in these Congo forests a most remarkable species of horse or zebra. This animal is a uniform iron gray over upper part of the body. The belly and legs are striped on white with black or chestnut colored stripes. The head of this animal is said to be rather long and slender. Sir H. Johnston was only able to secure portions of imperfect skins, but such as they are they point conclusively to an animal of the horse tribe not hitherto known or described. The dwarfs call this creature O'api, with a click in the middle of the word, but the Bambuha style it Okapi. Rumors of this creature reached Stanley and are recorded by him in one of the appendices of his book, "In Darkest Africa." The Belgian authorities who gave Sir Henry Stanley the skin above alluded to, promised to try and secure a complete specimen of the animal for transmission to Europe.

Does Trotting Need Changes?

John Splan believes that the present system by which trotting races are conducted does not need many changes. In an interview recently he said:

"I don't think racing is any better now than it was in the old days, and if I were to start out with a good horse I'd train and manage him exactly as I did my old horses of other days. We always gave the people good contests and, let me tell you, the people do not appreciate what 'laying up' means or how essential at times it is if a man believes he has a chance to win. Not half the judges at the race meetings are capable, and are too apt to be 'book read' and not practical in their reasonings.

"Horses vary so much in all departments it is impossible to start them all in these limited heat races and get any of the money. Theoretically, it is all right; but it is very hard to win any money nowadays with our horses. Drivers appreciate the fact that they must win to have their stables pay the owners and keep in the swim, and many times a horse can win part of the money judiciously driven and improve later so that he becomes quite a performer. Some 'know it all' rushes into the stand with a complaint and it makes people suspicious needlessly, for that day beyond a doubt the best horse is winning.

"You know as well as I that all too much is said about fixed races and the like, and it is difficult to convince many men that trotting can be a reputable sport. Now, of what use is it to cater to that class? The sooner they divorce themselves from the sport

California Entries at Detroit.

The Detroit meeting which will open the Grand Circuit promises some great racing this year. The Merchants and Manufacturers stake of $10,000 for trotters of the 2:24 class has thirty-one entries. A. W. Bruner of Los Angeles has named Harry Madison by James Madison, A. L. Mulcahy of San Francisco, names Algonetta by Eros. Harry Madison has a record of 2:27½, made at Colorado Springs in 1899, and is reported to have shown a mile in 2:15. Algonetta was campaigned in California last year and though she did not win a heat, got third money in six of her races and bad to meet the fastest trotters on the circuit. She was timed separately in 2:14½ on two occasions. She is in James Thompson's string at Pleasanton and has shown more speed than at any time last year.

The Chamber of Commerce Stake of $5000 for pacers of the 2:24 class, has three entries from this State. Dr. Boucher has named his chestnut gelding Harry Logan by Harry Gear out of Miss Logan 2:07½ and if he keeps right it will take a very fast horse to beat him. Harry Goodall of San Francisco has entered Rajah, the bay gelding by Chas. Derby that Keating worked a mile last year in 2:13 and that is now being trained by James Thompson. A. W. Bruner of Los Angeles names Stanton Wilkes a chestnut horse by Nutwood Wilkes. Stanton Wilkes showed great speed last year, but in both his starts met Queen R. 2:12½. He was a good second to that fast mare when she made her record. There are 26 entries in the Chamber of Commerce.

The Hotel Cadillac Purse of $2500 for 2:14 trotters, has 21 entries, of which three are from California. W. G. Durfee has named Dr. Book 2:13½, a horse that is a good deal faster than his record, and will be a new 2:10 performer for McKinney if no accident happens him. Wm. Cecil has entered Bob Ingersoll 2:14½, son of Nutwood Wilkes and one of the most promising horses ever seen in California. Millard Sanders, who drove the handsome mare Janice by Wm. Harold to a record of 2:13½ last year, has named her in this stake. These would themselves make a great race, and unless this race develops a champion trotter like The Abbot, some of the money ought to come to California.

Two whirlwinds from California have been entered in the Hotel Normandie purse for pacers of the 2:09 class, which has sixteen entries. These are Rey Direct 2:10, and Gosben Jim 2:10½. Those who saw these pacers on the circuit last year know that if they reach Detroit in condition the heats will have to be faster than 2:10 to beat them. Both are in fine shape now and giving every promise of reducing their records materially.

The Russell House purse, $2500 for 2:17 class trotters and the Wagner Hotel purse for 2:14 class pacers, have no entries from California, but in the former the Lawson stable of Boston has entered the Palo Alto bred filly First Love (formerly Mamie W. 2:17½) by Wildnut. There are other eastern-owned, but California-bred horses in the Detroit events, and this State will be represented at the meeting and we hope among the winners of first money.

A Mustang Thirty-Four Years Old.

The half-tone engraving on this page was made from a recent photograph of the mare "Baby," owned by Mr. A. C. Cleveland of Stanislaus valley, Nevada. The engraving was kindly loaned us by that excellent journal, the Denver Field and Farm, which publishes the following interesting facts in regard to this aged mare:

"The thirty-four year old mare Baby owned by A. C. Cleveland of Nevada is probably the oldest horse living to-day and Mr. Cleveland would not sell her for any money. She is a common California mare and Mr. Cleveland rode her into Nevada from Visalia thirty years ago when he pioneered into the Stanislaus valley to establish the cattle ranch on which he has since lived. Baby weighs 900 pounds and is pensioned in the most careful way. Her feed is ground and alfalfa leaves are gathered daily so that she may not have to eat the indigestible stems of the plant. As she appears in the picture with Mr. Cleveland in the saddle she is sustaining 250 pounds and the manner in which the weight is borne would indicate her stout condition in her old age.

A THIRTY-FOUR YEAR OLD MARE.

the better it will be for all interests contingent, I believe. Maybe I am wrong. Give us better judges and leave the modus operandi right where it now is, and we will be all right and trotting will continue to be the leading sport with our American gentlemen.

"I would like to have my old horses Rarus or Johnston here as good as they were the day I worked them and give them one season in the bike sulkies of the times just to show how good they really were. Few better race horses ever wore iron than were Rarus and Wedgewood, and since their day I don't believe the people have ever been treated to better contests than were participated in when we got real good. They were always ready when I turned into the stretch to fight every stride to the wire, and it is no easy matter to keep good horses at an edge once you have them fit to bet on and go out and race with the boys.

"I hear it rumored that Budd Doble is to be out again with a string. I often think back to the races he and I had with Goldsmith Maid and Rarus all over this country back in the seventies. There were no steel grand stands and fancy fixtures, however, yet the people came by the thousands and were, I believe, far more enthusiastic than they are to-day. Give us the three in five races, better judges and a few more people ready to pay their dollars, and less of badge hunting, and we will keep racing on a high plane in popular favor, I think."

An owner whose racing experience has not been altogether to his liking, says owning race horses has its drawbacks when someone else owns the jockey who is riding for you, and he is therefore of opinion that it would pay best to sell his horses and buy a jockey.

THE MONEY IS APPROPRIATED for the district fairs of 1901 and 1902, and Governor Gago has affixed his signature to the measure. The amount appropriated is 25 per cent. larger than the sum set aside two years ago, and there is no reason now why California should not have this season the best circuit of district fairs held in years. The live stock breeders of the State are more prosperous than ever and in stock exhibits alone there should be shows in every district worth spending time and money to see. The increased interest in harness horses, a big demand for the best and a tremendous activity in breeding, will all unite to make the exhibits in this class very successful if premium lists are gotten up with good judgment and liberality this year. Every district board should put some thought and study into the preparation of these premium lists. If the district has demonstrated its fitness for the production of high class draft horses and there are breeders of them engaged in the business there, encourage them to strive for still better results by offering premiums that are worth showing for. It is rather discouraging to farmers who have expended thousands of dollars in purchasing fine specimens of the draft breeds to see a prize of $10 offered for the best draft stallion, while the same prize is offered for a Belgian hare buck or a coop of fancy pigeons. The dairyman who has devoted money and years of time to securing the choicest bulls and heifers from the world's best herds and establishing here in California farms that are noted for the production of prize milch cows and premium calves, are apt to feel and express disgust if they pick up a premium list and see that the best herd of any breed of cattle will be given the munificent sum of $10, while the same amount is tendered for the handsest embroidered or hand painted sava pillow. The men who breed the best horses, cattle, sheep and hogs, and are striving to improve them all the time, are doing mere to make California permanently prosperous than all the men who are developing the oil fields. This may seem a little extravagant but if our farmers and stock breeders can be induced to strive for the very best of every breed, and study their adaptability to the different sections of the State, California will be the breeding farm and supply depot for the Orient and the Pacific isles long after the oil wells have ceased to flow, and the sale of California animals for food, for army use, for pleasure and for breeding purposes will bring two millions to our State for every one million produced by oil bearing sand or mineral ore. We would suggest to the directors of the District Boards that a special effort be made this year to have the district fair exhibits specially designed to show the resources and the possibilities of the district. There are thousands of intending settlers coming here from the East every month attracted by the low railroad rates, and at least one hundred thousand are expected during the summer. Each county will get its portion of these visitors and induce them to invest and become permanent residents if it can show them the advantages of the soil, climate and the opportunities to earn money and make homes. The breeding of all kinds of live stock, and the cultivation of the various fruits, cereals and other productions of the soil are undoubtedly the principal sources of our future wealth. Make the exhibits of all these meritorious, and to do so offer premiums that will be worth devoting time and labor to win.

FORTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS has been set aside by the State to pay the indebtedness of the California State Agricultural Society, which will thus be placed in a better position than it has been for years. The proviso that accompanies the use of the money is that the Directors shall transfer to the State the property of the association, consisting of Agricultural Park in Sacramento. The title has heretofore been vested in the Directors, who were appointed by the Governor, and to all intents and purposes it was State property, although the Directors were personally responsible and had their names signed to notes for a very large portion of this indebtedness. Now that the State will pay the debts and no further question will be raised as to its ownership of the property, the annual fair should be a greater success than ever. A new Secretary is soon to be selected to succeed Peter J. Shields, who resigned when elected Superior Judge of Sacramento county at the last election. If the proper person is chosen to fill the responsible position, there is no reason why the State Agricultural Society with its present appropriation should not give one of the best and most profitable fairs held in the United States.

PROVISION SHOULD BE MADE by every district agricultural association that gives a race meeting this year in conjunction with its fair, for local colt races. Nothing will excite more local interest (and this is an absolute necessity in giving a successful fair) and nothing will do more to encourage the patronage of the best stallions in the country and thereby increase the value of the district horses. In arranging these local races, generous purses should be hung up and the conditions so arranged that good fields of starters will be secured. The purse or stake if offered for three year olds should provide for both trotters and pacers, as both are recognized road horses, but they should not be compelled to compete in the same race. Every district that will give a fair this year can afford to hang up from $250 to $500 for a local colt race and the entrance fee should be as small as possible. If entrance were free it would be all the better.

MEMORIAL DAY has been chosen by the Golden Gate Driving Park Association for its regular annual race meeting and at a meeting of the Association to be held in its room in the Palace Hotel next Tuesday, entries for the races will be received. There is every prospect for one of the best programs ever arranged by this popular organization.

THE CALIFORNIA CIRCUIT should be arranged within the next two weeks. The appropriations for fairs have been made, and the amounts increased over those of last year. Good race programs will attract a large number of entries. The associations that propose giving meetings should make announcements without further delay.

MANY PROMINENT HORSEMEN from the East have visited California during the present month. Mr. J. Malcolm Forbes left for his home in Boston after a short trip to this Coast, during which he visited Palo Alto Stock Farm and looked over the colts. Mr. R. A. Lord of Chicago, owner of Tommy Britten 2:06½, and other fast ones has been here. Mr. F. McKean a well known breeder and one of the owners of the celebrated Terre Haute track was in this city for a few days, Mr. J. C. McKinney, of Titusville, Pa., owner of the great four year old Beauseant, is now here, and there are more coming. When D. J. McClary was here two weeks ago he offered $4000 for one horse and $6000 for another and nearly all the gentlemen mentioned in this article have had their eyes open for good ones while here and have asked for prices on many. The demand for fast trotters and pacers is on the increase and cannot possibly be supplied in the next five years. Breed your mares to the best horses you can reach this year and develop the colts.

TERRE HAUTE'S MEETING, which will be from September 30th to October 5th this year, promises to be greater than ever. Six rich events are advertised in our issue this week. "The Wabash" is for 2:20 trotters and $5000 is the amount hung up. "The Sidewheeler" is for the same amount and for pacers of the 2:18 class. There are besides two trotting and two pacing events for $1500 each. All these will close May 6th and the full conditions are given in the advertisement. If you are going East your trip will not be complete unless you go to "Terry Hut." The fastest and best track in the world is there, and the association has the reputation of always sending the horse men away in good humor and vowing they will be back next year.

"SANDY SMITH" was down at Palo Alto this week and says that the two and three year olds that are being prepared for the Cleveland sale are beyond any doubt the finest looking and fastest lot of youngsters he ever saw at the farm. "Sandy" looks at horses with an experienced eye and we would about as soon take his judgment on a prospective trotter or pacer as the next man.

KENNEY THE BIKEMAN has a new consignment of McMurray sulkies and speed carts. He has sold a number of these vehicles to prominent California horsemen, and every one sold sells several more. They are the best thing made for the price.

WHEN YOU RIDE in a sulky or cart and its a Toomey, you can rest assured that it is about the best that's made. They make them that way. O'Brien & Sons are the San Francisco agents.

New York Trotting Association.

In our advertising columns to-day will be found a list of the big purses offered by the new trotting organization that is to give a meeting at the celebrated Brighton Beach track this year. The association has in its list of members many of the leading wealthy merchants and capitalists of the great metropolis of America.

The Board of Directors is a strong one and includes ex-Senator John McCarty, James Shevelin, Frank D. Creamer, James Butler, W. F. Redmon, J. C. McClenahan, Ed. T. Bedford, E. E. Smathers, John Schlieman and J. F. Cornell, and Charles Arnold McCully, the well known writer on trotting topics has been appointed secretary. His long experience as reporter on the Grand Circuit and the other big meetings of the season, his intimate acquaintance with horsemen in all sections of the continent, and his thorough knowledge of trotting rules are admirable qualities for the office, and should be guarantees for his executive success.

Six early closing events are now open, for which entries are asked, and the list will close on April 10th. The Bonner Memorial of $5000 is for the 2:12 trotting class. This is a subscription event, and the payments are graded as follows: $20 on April 10th, $30 May 10th, $50 June 10th, and $75 each July 10th and July 30th, when the horses must be named. It will be noted that the initial payments are very light, and the two last payments are due after owners have had full opportunity to test the speed of their nominations. There are five purses of $2000 each, the Hiram Woodruff for 2:20 trotters, the John H. Shults for three year old trotters, the Metropolitan, the Breakers and the Brighton for the 2:20, 2:12 and 2:10 pacing classes. In these purses the payments are $10, $15, $15, $20 and $40, the initial payments again being light.

But the grand and cardinal condition of these events is that five per cent. is a full and total payment, and there is nothing additional from the winners. Nominators are only liable for the amount paid in on notice of withdrawal before payments fall due. In the $2000 purses horses must be named on April 10th. The races will be all three in five, but a horse not winning a heat in three goes to the stable. This condition is designed to stop laying up heats and should accomplish the object. Hopples are not barred. Horses distaneing the field or any part thereof will be benefitted. At a later date a strong class list with liberal purses will be offered. Here we have a strong and liberal program at a track which is easily reached by both horses and horsemen, and which is certainly entitled to the most favorable consideration.

The Electioneer-Wilkes Combination.

[American Horse Breeder.]

Many horsemen who had made a careful study of the blood lines that had produced fast trotters with the greatest uniformity came to the conclusion several years ago that it was only a question of time when the Electioneer-Wilkes cross would be the most popular of all. The cream of the Hambletonian tribe is found oftener in these two families than in any others.

Each of these strains has produced extreme trotting speed when doubled upon itself without the aid of the other. Tommy Britton 2:06½ is inbred to the Electioneer strain but there is no Wilkes cross in his pedigree. Gayton 2:08½ is an excellent specimen of what may be produced by inbreeding to the Wilkes strain without the Electioneer cross, and his sire, Allerton 2:09½, is another. Anaconda 2:02½ is inbred to the Wilkes strain and so is Coney 2:02½, and the pedigrees of neither of them show an Electioneer cross. There are other excellent strains in their pedigrees, however, so the Wilkes is not entitled to all the credit.

Boreal (3) 2:15½, sire of Boralma (4) 2:08, has shown what the Electioneer-Wilkes combination can do in the way of producing early and extreme trotting speed of race-winning quality. One of the best exponents, and perhaps the very best of the Electioneer-Wilkes combination, is Bingen 2:06½. He was bought in Kentucky when a yearling by George W. Leavitt, who sold a half interest in him to E. H. Greely, Esq., of Ellsworth, Me. The colt was brought to New England in the winter of his two year old form. We looked him over a few hours after he reached Boston and thought him the best-proportioned and best-developed colt of his age that we have ever seen. His limbs and feet were apparently perfect. We have never seen a colt that was superior to him in those points, and they were just as sound and smooth the last time we saw him as they were the day he landed in Boston. Bingen took a race record of 2:19½ as a two year old, and trotted a trial mile in 2:12½, timed by the race judges. His record, 2:06½, was made in a race. His conformation suggests that he is a horse of almost unlimited endurance, and his performances prove that he has but few equals in this respect.

The pedigree of Bingen shows one cross of Electioneer and two crosses of George Wilkes, besides other valuable trotting and speed crosses. His sire, May King 2:20, was got by Electioneer, and was out of that game trotting mare May Queen 2:20 by Alexander's Nerman. His dam, Young Miss, was by Young Jim, one of the most blood-like sons of George Wilkes. His second dam was Miss Mambrino by Red Wilkes, one of the most successful sons of George Wilkes as a sire of standard speed, and his most successful one as a sire of producing mares. Bingen's third dam was Miss Clark by Alarie, whose sire was Almont 33 and whose dam, Queen Lizzie, was by Mambrino Chief, out of a daughter of Crusador, a thoroughbred. The fourth dam of Bingen was Kate by Clark Chief, son of Mambrino Chief, and his fifth dam was Lida, a thoroughbred daughter of Vandal. The latter was by imp. Glencoe. The pedigree of Bingen shows four crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, one through Electioneer, two through George Wilkes and one through Alexander's Abdallah's most successful speed-perpetuating son Almont 33. It also shows four crosses of Mambrino Chief, viz., one through Queen Dido, the dam of Red Wilkes, one through Sally Anderson, the dam of Almont, one through Queen Lizzie, the dam of Alarie, and one through Clark Chief.

The thoroughbred element is found in nearly every line of Bingen's pedigree. The second dam of May King was by Crockett's Arabian, a son of imp. Mokhladi. His third dam, Kate Crockett, was by imp. Hooten, and produced Lulu 2:15. His fourth dam was Mary Blaine by Texas. The dam of Young Jim (sire of Bingen's dam) was by Lear's Sir William, and she produced Jim Irving 2:23. Lear's Sir William was by Howard's Sir Charles, a son of Clinton, and Clinton was by Sir Charles, a son of Sir Archy. The third dams of both Red Wilkes and Almont were stated upon so good authority as the late General Withers to have been thoroughbred. Bingen is very strongly bred both in trotting lines and in thoroughbred racing lines. The remarkable speed shown by many of his get indicate that he is one of the coming trotting sires. He is an excellent roadster. This is a very valuable quality and one that many fast trotting sires do not possess.

Other examples might be mentioned showing the success of the Electioneer-Wilkes cross. Advertiser 2:15½ is one of them. He is the sire of Adbell, that holds the world's yearling trotting record (2:23). The game race mare Bouncer 2:09 was by Hummer, and Hummer was by Electioneer out of Edith Wilkes by George Wilkes.

It looks now as though the most fashionable combination of blood lines for producing trotters, during the next few years at least, will be Electioneer, George Wilkes and Nutwood, with the Wilkes backed up by Mambrino Patchon and Electioneer, with a good thoroughbred cross not more than three removes away, such as is found in the pedigrees of Anteco 2:16½, Norval 2:14½, May King 2:20 and others of that class. Mambrino Patchon, Nutwood, American Star, American Clay and sires of that kind are so well fortified with the race-winning thoroughbred element as to be almost as good, perhaps in many cases even better, than most thoroughbred crosses.

Horse News from Sonoma County.

There is a big improvement in the horse business along all lines in this county. For several years past stallions were an unusual sight but many horse owners daily parade their stock in all towns in the county. A drive into the country shows many young foals. Stallion prices have doubled and even trebled in price in the past six months.

C. E. Humbert, the Cloverdale livery man and owner of the Geyser stage line, has sent to Illinois for two thoroughbred black Percheron stallions for use in the northern part of Sonoma county and in Mendocino county.

The William Hinshaw estate stallion, a splendid Clydesdale, recently sold in court for nine hundred dollars after it had been sold previously at private sale for six hundred dollars.

Dr. M. J. Fottrell of San Francisco purchased a splendidly matched and gaited span of drivers from William Loftus this week. One of the horses is an Aleona and the other is by Alexander Button. The horses are bays and stand sixteen hands high. They have plenty of speed and line up as about the best span of driving horses sold here in many months. The purchase price was near the half thousand mark.

The finely bred Egan mare, Deana, a full sister to Lenna N. 2:05½, is due to foal to McKinney about the middle of April. Last March this mare foaled a colt by Seymour Wilkes which is now as promising a yearling as can be found in any country.

Professor Harford of the Petaluma schools has a handsome Daly filly which without special training shows a lot of speed.

W. H. Lumsden is working his Roblet 2:12½ at Santa Rosa. Mr. Lumsden expects his horse to get into the 2:10 class this season.

Miss Zoo Fairbanks, daughter of a Petaluma banker and a finished horse woman, is breaking to harness a two year old colt with a good pedigree back of him and a bright future. The lady also owns and drives a speedy chestnut sidewheeler.

Millard Saunders is at Pleasanton with a string of horses which he expects to take East this spring for work on the Eastern circuit. Among these horses are Julia S. of the Rosedale Stock Farm and Dolly Dillon and Janice of the Santa Rosa Stock Farm.

John Quinn is training a number of horses at Pierce Bros.' track at Santa Rosa. He has a couple of Silas Skinners belonging to Sheriff Frank P. Grace and his brother, Joseph Grace, Black Bart by Robin, a Ukiah horse owned by Mr. Charlton, and another promising young horse by Robin out of Myrtle 2:13½.

OCCASIONAL.

Says the Western Horseman: "A Chicago automobile company has gone out of business, thereby throwing 2500 men out of employment. We hate to see such a turn in affairs of this kind on account of the workmen, whose families are dependent on their daily labor, as well as the men of means who in all confidence placed their money in these crazy machines, not waiting to see whether they were practicable or not. On second sober thought anyone would come to the conclusion that there are not enough moneyed men in the country to buy a $2000 or $3000 vehicle and to pay out $100 each week to keep it up, to make the sales profitable. Better stay with your best friend, the horse. We have been told by hundreds the past year or so that the automobile would ruin the horse business, and it was never better. The same cry went up when the bicycle first appeared, and we think it has been the greatest blessing and help ever known to the clerk, the mechanic, the invalid, etc., and has not hurt the horse business to any alarming extent, as the majority of the wheelers could not own a horse."

An Oregon man has named his filly Carrio Nation. He had better be careful. If he ties her up in front of a saloon some day while he goes in to see a friend she will probably smash things.

Stable Conversation.

[Chicago Horse Review.]

The owner, who had been down to the Lackey sale and escaped without the filly he had gone to buy, had one of the turf papers open in his hand when he accosted Jimmy, who was busy getting the first coat of mud off the legs of the stable trotter that Bud had just turned over to him after a ten-mile jog.

"I see there's to be a big meeting at Memphis this fall. The association there is a new one and it looks as if they were going to do things in the right way. I was introduced to the secretary, Mr. Murray Howe, at the sale last week and he impressed me very favorably."

"Yes," said Jimmy, "times is changed since him an' me used to go down the line together. It's Mr. Murray Howe nowadays, but—"

"What! Do you know Mr. Howe?" asked the owner.

"Do I? Well, I guess yes. An' maybe he ain't a warm member just now, since he's got up against that Billings push."

Jimmy drew a deep breath as he began to roll the bandage on the near foreleg and resumed:

"I seen him a few days ago an' I had to clean my lamps before I recognized him. He had on a swell tile an' one of them Mansfield coats—"

"Chesterfield, you mean," interrupted the Owner.

"Well, I ain't looked up the books on that name. But the coat was a hot one, an' his pants was just sharpened, an' I reckon his spats stood him ten bones; an' he was steppin' fast an' smooth in the good footin', an' I says to myself, 'Jimmy, times is changed since Mr. Mosely Mike used to pump hot air into the hoss papers an' was made first 'onorary member of the Swipes' Protective Association.'"

"Mr. Mosely Mike?" said the Owner. "I thought Mr. Howe used to write over the name of 'Yarrum?'"

"Sure thing," said Jimmy, "when he used to score up at Davenport an' De Moine the score-card give it Yarrum, but Mike—Mosely Mike—was his stable name. You don't s'pose Sure Thing Jimmy or Windy Al gets on to the program that way, do you? Well, Mr. Mike, he used to toddle round with his little camera an' his little spellin' book in his inside pocket an' write stories for the papers. They was the real thing, too, but he was daffy on one proposition. Just before every heat he used to line up all the horses on the stretch an' he says, 'Mr. McHenry, how much weight did you say Gentry had on that nigh hind foot?' an' 'Mr. Geers, did you have Heir-at-Law's check in the same hole at Terry Hut?' an' 'Mr. Hussey, ain't Bert Oliver's hobbles hung a little lower'n they was at Independence?' an' they never got away until he'd got it all down in his little book. An' then right after a heat he was paradin' up an' down the stretch with his nose on the track an' his eyes lookin' both ways for hosses, an' he comes in an' says, 'Did you see Aleidalia hittin' a pace at the finish of that heat? Just step out here and see her feet-prints.' An' then Dave McClary comes along an' he says, 'Dave, I guess Pointer's good to-day since you put on the hobbles, 'cause he slides three-eighths of an inch farther every time his foot hits the track. I measured it in the soft footin' up there.'"

"Say, you'd never known him then. He wore one of them Jack Curry hats an' a hand-me-down outfit an' had his little old picture-box under his arm, an' I guess you didn't have to ask whether he come from Iowa or not. Papa McKinney, up to Janesville, once was goin' to have him hauled off the greun's for a tout an' a lobster. Why, the first time he went down to New York everybody at the big sale 'sposed it was Jack Curry at first. Then he begun to get next the swell guys an' passed up his old boots an' blankets for a new outfit. An' since he got the hobbles off he's made a lot of speed, an' now it's Mr. Murray Howe, the Memphis secretary!"

"Don't you think he won't make a hot sec, neither. Now Papa Utterback's turned down his job at Hedrick there won't be nothin' else in it. Since he's quit writin' for the papers it's gone to his head, an' he's figured out a new scheme to race hosses on."

"Yes," said the Owner, "I've been looking it over in this week's paper, and I am inclined to believe that it will prove popular."

"Well, I should chaso a switch-engine. Why, he's signed The Abbot, an' Cresceus, an' Charley Horr, an' Boralma for a special already. Mr. Abbot and Boralma goes a heat of a mile first an' then Mr. Cresceus steps in an' takes Mr. Abbot a mile an' an eighth, an' then Uncle Davy he has Charley Horr a boilin' an' says 'Now, Mr. Kelly, you try him a half, and if Charley don't get away good jest tap him with the whip once or twice.' They don't no hoss get nothin' unless he beats all the other hosses. An' everybody gets a little brass clock with their ticket that tells who wins an' how the money's paid out. An' programs and Year Books is free an' every swipe has a hammock durin' each heat an' a nigger to fan him. I guess that's a poor system, ain't it?"

"It is certainly all right," said the Owner, "and I think I'll enter that chestnut filly in the Memphis stake for green pacers."

SULKY NOTES.

Can a California horse win the M. & M?

The California State Fair program is being prepared.

McKinney 2:11½ has been bred to forty mares already.

The talk of a training track for San Francisco is being revived.

California will be well represented on the Grand Circuit this year.

J. Malcolm Forbes of Boston, who paid $125,000 for Arion, is on a trip to California.

The price of export chunks on the Chicago market has reached $150 for good individuals.

"Sandy" Smith says that to breed a mare to I Direct 2:12½ at $25 is just like stealing a colt.

The fastest pacer bred in California is Anaconda 2:02½ and the fastest trotter, Azote 2:04½.

Andy McDowell has signed a contract to train and drive for Capt. B. H. Tuthill, Goshen, N. Y.

The $5000 stake for 2:30 trotters offered for the Readville Grand Circuit meeting has fifty-one entries.

More horses are being put in training every day. There will be enough for a good circuit in California.

The big entry lists received by the Eastern associations should move the California associations to action.

Norval 2:14½, one of the greatest of the sons of Electioneer, has sixty-five standard performers and every one is a money winner.

It was an easy thing a few years ago to remember the names and records of all the 2:10 trotters. There are 123 in the list now however.

Another supply of stallion service books have been received. Send a dollar to this office and get one. They can be carried in the pocket.

Geers has twenty horses in training at Louisville, the only three with records being The Abbot 2:03½, Lord Derby 2:07 and The Queen 2:10½.

To the close of 1900 there were 7860 standard pacers and 16,707 standard trotters. During the last year 880 trotters and 919 pacers entered the list.

There will be stable room for over one thousand horses at the Pan-American Exposition. The horse show will be a strong feature of the exposition.

Bessie Huntington, dam of Charley Herr 2:07, has been bred to Larabie (3) 2:12½. Some of the best mares in Kentucky will be bred to Larabie this season.

One of the conditions of the races to be held at Brighton Beach this year is that a horse must win a heat in three or go to the stable. The races are three heats in five.

Ed Tipton says that it will not be decided till June whether the late Marcus Daly's trotters will be dispersed or otherwise, but that such sale, in all events, will not be held till fall.

Breed a mare to I Direct 2:12½ this year. He is one of the best bred stallions in California, and is fast and handsome. His service fee is only $25. Ed Lafferty has him at Alameda.

A. B. Rodman, of Woodland, has re-purchased the brown mare Lady Arrington by Anteco and will breed her to McKinney 2:11½. She is a very handsome mare and a fast trotter besides.

J. H. Bronson recently stated that he had not fully decided regarding a driver for Coney 2:02½. He mentioned the names of several expert trainers, and said he intended to close a contract very soon with one of them.

Domino, the black gelding by Rect 2:16½ that is being worked by Bert Webster at Pleasanton, has been entered in the green classes all through the big circuit over East. He is a fast pacer and a nice going one beside.

Three thousand dollars was the price received by Chas. Marvin recently when he sold the Electioneer stallion Cecilian (2:22 as a two year old) and the sire of Battlesign 2:13½, Endow 2:14½ and six other standard performers.

Gus Hagan, who was injured last week at Rancho del Valle, by having a horse fall on him, is improving rapidly and will soon be out again. Although two of his ribs were broken his injuries were not as serious as at first supposed.

Pat Farrell has gone to Pleasanton with a couple of Diablo's that he will train there. It will be like old times to see this veteran scoring a horse up for the word this year on the circuit.

The big purses offered by the enterprising Eastern associations this year will not cost them very much, as in the lists so far published the entrance money will more than pay the purses in the most of them.

The State Board of Agriculture of Indiana, has decided to appropriate $15,000 for the use of the speed department of the State Fair this year. Of this amount $7000 will be for the stake races and the remainder for purse races.

Herbert Gray, acting for T. W. Lawson, recently bought a yearling by Red Chute 2:24½, dam of Castella by Blue Dawn, from Dr. W. F. Dickerson, Lexington, Ky. The colt is called Royal Box, and is said to be a very promising youngster.

The New York Trotting Association which will hold its first meeting at Brighton Beach this year, advertises a grand lot of purses in our issue this week. California owners should enter at this meeting as it will be one of the best held over East this year.

Among the entries in the three year old events over East the Palo Alto Stock Farm is represented by Rowellan, a brown gelding by Adbell. He is a very fast one, having shown a 2:12 gait to cart, and is entered in stakes amounting to $39,500, besides several purses.

Northern Belle, a green four year old trotting mare by Steinway out of Slight by Electioneer went through the Fasig-Tipton sale at New York last week and brought $625. She was one of the lot millard Sanders took to Cleveland last May where she brought but $450.

A subscriber asks how fast Senator L., the son of Dexter Prince and Fannie Bayswater, trotted the last mile when he took the champion four mile record. It was in 2:28 flat. The milos were 2:41, 2:32½, 2:30½ and 2:28. Total 10:12½. The record was made at the P. C. T. H. B. A. meeting at San Jose, November 1, 1894.

An adjourned meeting of the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association will be held at the Murray Hill Hotel, New York, N. Y., at 10 o'clock A. M., on Tuesday, May 7, 1901. All communications intended for the consideration of the Board at the May meeting must be forwarded to the Secretary not later than April 20th.

Those who breed to Nutwood Wilkes this year will be wise in their generation. This young sire is one of the greatest speed producers in California. Several of his get will race on the Eastern circuit this year and we predict that at the close of the season Mr. Carter will be compelled to refuse a big price for the stallion if he keeps him.

Diablo 2:09½ is getting a good patronage this year and deserves it. He is such a royally bred horse and gets so much speed and good looks that every breeding farm should get some of his fillies or colts to breed from in the future. He has the blood of Electioneer, Geo. Wilkes and Strathmore in his veins, the three greatest sons of Hambletonian 10.

The Nevada State Fair will be held at Reno, September 16th to 21st. This is the week immediately following the California State Fair. The Reno track was badly washed by the severe storms this winter, but will be put in good shape for training and racing purposes this spring. P. L. Flanagan has been elected President and Louis Bevier, Secretary of the association.

The American Shetland Pony Club has just issued its revised rules, constitution, scale of points and list of members, which may be had on application to Mortimer Levinger, Secretary, Lafayette, Ind. It should be in the hands of all interested in the breed and also will be valuable to fair managers, as it contains the classification for Shetlands recommended by the club.

Among the visitors to the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN this week was Mr. J. C. McKinney, of Titusville, Pennsylvania, who, with his family, is spending a couple of weeks in California. Mr. McKinney is much interested in harness horses and believes he owns the greatest pacer in the world in Beausant, the full brother to Boreal 2:15½. He confidently believes Beausant will beat two minutes this year and has him entered on the Grand Circuit in a number of events.

Herbert W. Gray, manager of the T. W. Lawson stable, hearing that the veteran owner-driver, David N. Snell, believes that Jupe 2:07½ can beat Boralma 2:08, when they meet, authorized the statement that he would wager Mr. Snell $5000 to $10,000 that in a three in five contest, over any good track, Boralma will not only defeat Jupe, but will distance him ere the race is over. All necessary for Jupe to do is to be inside the humping all five heats and the $5000 is apparently very easily won.

Emma Winter 2:17½, the four year old mare by Directum 2:05½ that was sold in New York last week for $8000, was not bred in California as a contemporary has stated. Her dam is a daughter of Red Wilkes that was bred to Directum in 1896 by John D. Creighton, of Donerail, Kentucky, when Directum made a season in that State. The second dam of Emma Winter is a full sister to Sweetness (the dam of Sydney 2:19½) by Volunteer. Emma Winter is considered one of the great prospects of 1901.

Don Dorby, the full brother to Diablo, which Tom Keating purchased last spring for James Butler, has been entered by the latter in the slow pacing classes on the Grand Circuit. Don Dorby was said to have shown great speed before Keating purchased him, but was taken sick soon after and it was the opinion of the "wise brigade" at Pleasanton that Mr. Butler had purchased a gold brick. It is now reported that Don Dorby is all right again and that he will make the green classes stop to beat him.

Tom Bonner, of Santa Rosa, has been in the city this week. He states that the merchants of his town are all in favor of a harness meeting being held there this year, and that the interest in horses has increased so that every stallion in Sonoma county is well patronized. The young horse Washington McKinney, recently purchased by Rose Dale Stock Farm, Mr. Bonner says is a very handsome, large horse and the new owners are very much pleased with him. He will be bred to a number of well bred mares this year.

R. B. Ludwig, of Portland, Oregon, who will race over East this year, has fifteen horses in training at the Wichita, Kansas, track. Among them is Roy Day by Altamont that is said to be able to pace a half mile in a minute, Lillie Kinney by McKinney, a very promising filly, and McMinville Maid 2:22 by Altamont that is faster than her record by a good deal. Mr. Ludwig thinks he will locate permanently in Kansas.

Col. Carter, the chestnut colt by Nutwood Wilkes that was purchased a little over a year ago by Dan Mahaney, manager of Senator Jones' Maplewood Farm in New Hampshire, will be among the starters in the East this season. Mr. Mahaney came out here and paid $1000 for Col. Carter before he was two years old, paying that price for him on his breeding and looks and saying that his attention was attracted to the colt by seeing his name among the list of entries in some of the big stakes. The colt is now a three year old and we notice that he has been entered liberally on the Grand Circuit. He is out of a mare by Boodle and was a grand looking two year old, and a fast trotter.

A statement is going the rounds of the Northwestern daily press that S. F. Cook, St. Paul, Minn., has taken a contract to supply the British Government with $500,000 worth of horses and that Mr. Cook has already started out to get the goods. He is at present in Nevada and states that he will bunch the horses at St. Louis, boat them down the Mississippi and in New Orleans transfer them to the transports that will be waiting to take them to South Africa. The horses are all to be picked up in the range country, need not be broken to ride or drive, must be sound and a farther condition is that one-half must be mares. The ponies are required for use in the rougher and rockier parts of the Transvaal.

Mr. A. L. Muleahy of this city went up to Pleasanton last Tuesday to see his mare Algonetta by Eros take her work. Driven by trainer James Thompson she was given a mile in 2:21½, the last quarter being much faster than at that speed, however. Algonetta was steady and full of trot and Mr. Muleahy was much pleased with her. While there Mr. M. saw Mr. Goodall's pacer Rajah by Chas. Derby pace a mile in 2:15½. This colt is now four years old and as he is well entered in the East this year should make a good showing if nothing goes wrong with him as he is wonderfully fast. John Blue said the Pleasanton track is fully four seconds slow at present as it is kept soft for training so as not to injure the horses.

In answer to the inquiry "How often does a horse lift and lower his feet in trotting a mile in 2:25?" an exchange makes the following reply: This would depend altogether on the length of stride taken by the horse making the performance. A little horse with a stride of say 15 feet, would lift and lower his feet many more times in trotting a mile in 2:25 than would a horse that covered 20 feet in a stride. A horse with a 20-foot stride would lift and lower his feet 264 times in two minutes and 25 seconds. In trotting in 2:10, a horse with the same length of stride would have to lift and lower his feet the same number of times in 15 seconds less time. Given the length of a horse's stride and it is only necessary to divide the number of feet in a mile—5280—by it to find the number of times the stride will have to be repeated to carry him a mile.

David Cahill, the Kentuckian, who owns Charley Herr 2:07, in a recent interview regarding the future of his great stallion, said: "While I have had no negotiations with any trotting associations or the owners of Crescens and The Abbott for a proposed race between these great horses, I am ready to race one or both of them for a purse such as would be given for a race of this kind, for one heat, two heats, three heats or any number of heats." I am inclined to think that Charley Herr will show more improvement so far as speed is concerned than either The Abbott or Crescens this year, and if he does show material improvement in this respect he will not be outclassed by either of the other horses in a race. He is much such a trotter as Joo Patchen is a pacer, for he saves himself much as possible, is always going the gait he ought to, and can take the severest kind of punishment in a losing heat and come up sweet-tempered for another tilt. Such horses are few and they usually continue to improve for a longer period of time than those which have to be handled more carefully.

Jos. Costello has a dozen horses in his Page street stable that he is giving speed lessons to and among them are several good prospects for this year. As the stables are close to the Golden Gate Park entrance Costello has the best of roads to jog on in all kinds of weather and the speedway for fast work on sunny days. Among the most promising trotters in his string are Puerto Rico 2:21½ by Sable Wilkes and Cuba a diminutive bay mare without a record by Oro Wilkes. Both are the property of Mr. James Coffin of this city. Mr. Coffin has been using Puerto Rico as a road horse for the past few months and finds him well suited to that use and fast enough to beat the majority of horses on the speedway. Cuba is scant 15 hands high and does not look to weigh much over seven hundred pounds, but she is a trotter and has speed enough to win money if raced. Costello has four head belonging to Mr. T. Allen of this city. Two are three year olds by Soymour Wilkes 2:08½, and are very promising. Police officer Van Keuren's pacing mare Mattie B. 2:15½ by Alexander Button is also in Costello's string. She is one of the fastest brushers driven in Golden Gate Park and could be raced to a lower record than her present mark which she made last year at Santa Rosa. A strongly built bay pacer by Liberty Sontag that Costello has just begun driving is very speedy, but is so fat that the greatest care must be taken with him. When in condition it is believed that this horse will pace very fast. Mr. Costello has recently built several new stalls to accommodate his string of horses and will have to put up a few more. The property is in a sheltered spot and there is a large sunny lot for cooling out where the wind is not felt even on blustery days.

THE SADDLE

Breeding of Joe Frey.

"I have been looking over a rough draft of the pedigree of Joe Frey, winner of the Farralene Stakes at San Francisco and, I believe, the winner of the California Derby, which is to be run next Saturday," wrote "Hidalgo" in the Thoroughbred Record a week before the last named race was run. "I have, in my library, about 3000 tabulations of various horses and compile about one hundred every year for breeders in various parts of the United States; and I must say that I have never yet run across any horse, mare or gelding that comes anywhere near him for fashionable breeding. I have seen dozens that had as many good stallions in plain sight, but nothing that approaches him in the way of historically great mares. He has crosses of Pocahontas (3), Banter (5), the great Alexander mare (18) and Web (5), in addition to Beeswing, Queen Mary, Decoy, Alice Hawthorn, Martha Lynn, Seclusion, Tomyris, Mowerina, Guiccioli and Ellen Horne. Did you ever stop to consider what a wonderful factor Ellen Horne is in modern pedigree? She is barely forty years dead, yet from her daughters are descended the following great and historical performers:

1. Lord Lyon, winner of the Derby, St. Leger and Two Thousand Guineas in 1866 and sire of Minting, who won the Grand Prix de Paris in 1886. It was Lord Lyon's three year old victories and the two year old conquests of his sister, Achievement, that brought Stockwell's winnings up to £61,391 in that year, being £6831 greater than the winnings of St. Simon's get in 1900, although they won every one of the classic events of last year, while Tormentor (by King Tom) won the Oaks in Lord Lyon's year. And this, too, in face of the stubborn fact that the public moneys run for in 1866 were less than one-half of what they are now. There were no $10,000 events for all aged horses at Sandown, Hurst Park and Kempton in Stockwell's days, and, although St. Simon goes on record as the only horse to head the list for eight seasons, I shall still have to consider old Stockwell the Emperor of Stallions, as of yore.

2. Achievement, winner of the Champagne Stakes at two years, the One Thousand Guineas and St. Leger at three years, and the Doncaster Cup and Great Yorkshire Stakes in that same season as well.

3. Bend 'Or, winner of the Derby at three, the City and Suburban at four, and sire of Ormonde, so justly styled "The Horse of the Century."

4. Jamette, winner of the Oaks and St. Leger at three years and the Jockey Club Cup and Champion Stakes at four. She is the dam of Janissary, who got Jeddah, the Derby winner in 1898.

5. Ladas, winner of the Two Thousand Guineas and Derby of 1894 and second to Throstle in the St. Leger.
6. Chelandry, winner of the One Thousand Guineas and second in the Oaks in 1897 won by Limasol.

I don't know of any other mare foaled as late as Ellen Horne that can make a like showing. If to these you add Blue Mantle, Man at Arms, Pageant (winner of two Chester Cups), Gardevisure and Hatchment in England, and those good stallions Musk Rose and Escutcheon in New Zealand, you will see that Ellen Horne makes a great showing—far ahead of anything of her day and generation.

Mowerina was out of Emma, dam of two Derby winners, Cotherstone and Mundig, the latter being full brother to our good little imported horse Trustee. Mowerina not only produced West Australian, the first horse to win the triple crown, but she was also the fourth dam of Donovan, winner of the July and New Stakes in 1888 as well as the Dewhurst and Middle Park Plate, and of the Derby and St. Leger of 1889. Exminster, a fairly good stallion, also came from this line, as did also Moorthorpe, an excellent sire imported to Australia.

Martha Lynn has always been one of England's greatest mares to my contention. She not only produced that great little black horse Voltigeur, but she also produced a full brother to him called Barnton, the sire of Ben Webster and Fandango. Ben Webster won a Chester Cup, but Fandango won both the Ascot and Doncaster Cups in one season. The next year he was beaten a head for the Chester Cup by One Act, at a difference of 52 lbs. From this family also come Friar's Balsam, whom I prefer to all other sons of Hermit; Imperieuse, winner of the One Thousand Guineas and St. Leger in 1857; Camballo, winner of the Two Thousand; Enquerrando, winner of the Oaks; Lord Clifden, the most beautiful of all Newminster's sons and St. Leger winner in 1863; Vaucresson, a good performer in France; Sandiway, a worthy daughter of Doncaster; and last, but far from least, the great conqueror, Carbine, whose two miles in 3:28½ with 145 lbs. is a record not likely to be beaten. I might have added Dutch Oven and Bal Gal to the list of cracker-jacks, as well as Major Domo and Helter Skelter in America, and a very beautiful daughter of The Ill Used, named Applause, owned at one time by George E. Smith, profanely called "Pittsburgh Phil."

I sincerely hope that Joe Frey will not be raced to death, as so many good colts are in this fair land of ours. I would like to see him managed as well as Salvator was, raced liberally at three and four years, and then retired to the stud at five, a thoroughly sound horse. I have seen no horse bred anywhere near so well, although I regret he was not by Sir Dixon instead of Belvidere, his full brother, but there is no son of Sir Dixon that is out of any such mares as Lady Hawkstone.

The Queen's Plate.

It may not be generally known that the race which has had the longest uninterrupted existence in North America is one for a prize called "The Queen's Plate." It is considered as the greatest sporting event of the Canadian racing season, and as a social gathering the meeting is unequalled in the Dominion. The prize was first competed for in 1860, and the origin of the race is thus explained in a recent issue of The Spirit of the Times: "A petition to the Queen from the Toronto Turf Club was sent to the Colonial office by Sir Edmund Head, the Governor-General, on April 1, 1859; Col. R. L. Denison being the Secretary, Treasurer and moving spirit of the club, as it then existed, with headquarters at Mr. W. C. Keele's farm at Carlton. The petitioners asked for a Queen's Plate of £50—and on the 18th of July of the same year a dispatch was sent from London granting the plate 'to be run for at Toronto, or such other place in Upper Canada as her Majesty might appoint.' For four years, 1860-1863, the race was run at Carlton race course, near Toronto, Ontario, when under pressure from members of Parliament Guelph, London, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Whitby, Kingston, Ottawa, Barrie, Woodstock, Prescott and Picton in turn became the scene of an annual struggle for her Majesty's guineas. In 1883, Lord Lorne, acting on the belief that the race would be run more in accordance with her Majesty's wishes if permanently established and controlled at the headquarters of the Ontario Jockey Club, just then founded at Toronto, and from which city it had first been moved, no doubt owing to a gradual decadence of interest taken by the more respectable inhabitants, gained her Majesty's sanction to an understanding with the promoters of the new club."

"It was agreed that it should revert to and not again leave Toronto, where, on the principle that when things get to their worst they mend, the new institution had taken vigorous root, and was thriving apace. Under central authority chaos had given place to law and order, and irregularities of the turf, if not wholly eradicated, were at all events under a restraint for many years unknown to the turf clubs of Upper Canada. Moreover, the situation of Toronto was central, and the course therefore accessible to a greater number of people than any other in the province. But a lapse of nearly a quarter of a century had removed almost all those Torontoians from the scene who had originally petitioned for and obtained the plate, and the Carlton race course had given way to the more convenient and delightful attractions of Woodbine Park." Queen's Plates, and Vases, Her Majesty's Plates Vases and Purses, were all the vogue in England for many years before the establishment of the race referred to in Canada, and King's Plates and other races bearing the titles of monarchs were numerous before the accession of Queen Victoria to the throne of England. They were invariably of the same value. Of late years the number of Queen's prizes at race meetings has decreased, but Queen's premiums at many agricultural shows in England have been given, and with them subsidies from the royal purse. From now forward we may expect to find races bearing the title of the King much in evidence.

SADDLE NOTES.

As a rule, the length of a horse is equal to three times the length of his head—that is, taking the length as the distance between the ears and the tail. The "Druid" asserts that this holds good nine hundred and ninety-nine times out of a thousand, and states that in Bay Middleton the measure answered exactly. When Mr. Herring was painting the famous bay after the Derby, Lord Jersey remarked on the length of his head, to which the celebrated painter replied, "Yes, my lord; if he hadn't so long a head you would not have had so long a horse."

William C. Whitney and Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., have announced that they would transfer the polo grounds and golf links at Aiken, South Carolina, to a board of trustees, to be used in the interest of sports. This land also includes two race tracks, and it is positively announced that racing will be made a feature next spring. The property transferred is worth $100,000. The trustees will be selected from the owners of winter cottages at Aiken.

By far the best work seen at Louisville thus far is that by Garry Herrmann, when, with his head pulled double, he breezed seven furlongs in 1:34. He looks to be in superb form, and horsemen all pronounce him the finest animal seen in years. "Garry Herrmann is the grandest looking race horse I ever saw in my life," said Henry Wehmhoff, one of the most prominent book-makers in the West, after the trial. "I have seen all the good ones from Longfellow down, and there is no question that Garry has got them all beaten a block as far as looks go," he further remarked. "He looks a pipe for all the dorbies he is entered in," chimed in Bob Tucker, the noted trainer. "He is not only a grand looker but he is every inch a race horse."

Capt. Rees has accepted the position of presiding judge at the Hawthorne track, Chicago.

Box, one of the best known horses entered in the big handicaps, pulled up lame after his morning gallop at Gravesend March 18th, and his owner, W. Showalter, will not now attempt to finish his preparation for the handicaps. Box was being hurried along in his work, with the idea of running in the Carter Handicap at Aqueduct April 15th, and failing that he was expected to start in the Metropolitan on May 4th. Box is seven years old, and his owner prefers sending him to the stud instead of having the leg fired, as the son of imp. Order-Pandora has well earned retirement. He won the Carter Handicap last year with 125 pounds up in a field of thirteen and finished second to Ethelbert in the Metropolitan, carrying 121 pounds.

N. Lamberson, secretary of the Havana Jockey Club, and who will soon become the secretary of the new Moralis Park Association of that city, which is now rapidly completing a new $40,000 track fashioned after that at Sheephead Bay, is in New Orleans. Mr. Lamberson is the only American now connected with the Havana Jockey Club. The new racing association, Moralis Park, however, is an American institution, dominated all through by enterprising racing men. So far racing has been conducted in Havana only on two days in the week, Wednesdays and Sundays. The Moralis Park Association, which will open on November 15th, will furnish racing every day in the week, including Sundays as well. "The racing season," said Mr. Lamberson, "in Havana is from November to April. The new track at Moralis Park is one mile long. All the conditions for racing there are the very best, in so far as the money making end of it is concerned. I am anxious to get admission to the American Turf Congress, and it is my intention to do all in my power to get our new Moralis Park Association a full membership."

An American writer who has lived much abroad says: "Without accusing the Christian English of fetishism, I boldly assert they have an idol, and it is the horse. From high to low they love him to adoration, and if they had lived in the old Roman days they would have deified him. If you ever catch an Englishman standing in the street, oblivious of all else, with his eyes in a fixed gaze, it is at some splendid specimen of the equine breed he is staring at and longing to possess. Time and lore are devoted to the breeding of horses; immense sums are spent upon their training for all kinds of uses; but the highest is that of the turf." On Derby day parliament adjourns and most of the members, both lords and commoners, go to the races. Fashionable London turns out in coaches and tallyhoes, drawn by four and six horses and country and village folks in carts, wagons or on foot. The rank and beauty of Albion is in the Royal stand, and the surrounding stands of the millionaires the wide world over, while about the course are carriages, with gaily decked femininity, four and six foot deep. Innumerable booths, surmounted by flags and streamers, are the betting men, intent on the game and the stakes that change hands on the Derby are startling. From thousands of pounds down to shillings, all classes join in the betting. Go where you will in London on the eve of the Derby, you are gaily invited by the ladies to join in their sweepstakes on the favorites. Remembering what Derby day is to the English and how long King Edward VII. has been the central figure at the annual carnival, it is small wonder that all London is in more of an uproar over the snubbing of Lord Beresford by the King than over the disasters attending Lord Kitchener in his chase after the Boers in South Africa.

There is a horse owner in one of the Australian States whose education, says a Melbourne scribe, might have been more carefully attended to than it was. He has always experienced difficulty in spelling the names of his horses when making entries, and to make the job easier he decided to name all his horses in future after the letters in the alphabet. In the next entries for the local Cup there appeared Mr. ———'s b g Hay, the same owner's br m Bee and his ch h Sea! I am wondering how he will shape if he ever gets up to H!

A meeting of the Jockey Club was held in New York March 20th, to act on the report of the license committee and appoint officials for some of the early spring meetings. The principal interest centered in the outcome of the application of Henry Spencer for a license to ride this season. He was set down last fall for his ride on J. R. Keene's Comandante in the Matron Stakes at Morris Park. Spencer had been advised by those who professed to know that his offense would be pardoned. The stewards were evidently of the opinion that he has not yet had sufficient time to mend his manners, and his application was passed over. It is the opinion of men in close touch with the members of the Jockey Club that whether Spencer is ever reinstated will depend entirely on his future conduct. Should the stewards decide that his actions merit his being allowed to return to the saddle it will not be necessary for Keene's old jockey to make another application, as the one made a few weeks ago will be still on file.

Hot or Cold Fitting of Shoes.

The columns that have been printed in the turf journals within the past ten years, denouncing the fitting of shoes while hot to the horse's feet, would cover a mile track with paper. A few days since Dr. J. C. McKenzie, a prominent veterinary surgeon, delivered an address before the Flower City Driving Club of Rochester, New York, in which he defended the hot fitting of shoes and gave his reasons therefor. The address is as follows and is taken from the columns of the Buffalo Horse World:

Hot and cold fitting have given rise to a great deal of difference and diversity of opinions among horse owners and others interested in shoeing; and a great many absurd ideas have arisen from an improper knowledge of the different methods of fitting a shoe to the foot. A few years ago so great was the feeling in England against hot fitting, that many of the gentlemen owners of valuable horses chose rather to have their horses shod in their own stables in preference to taking them to a forge. It was then a favorite theme with people who did not understand much about shoeing or the nature of a horse's foot, to dwell upon the injury done to the hoof by fitting a hot shoe to the same in order to adapt the shoe more perfectly and accurately to the inferior border of the wall. This led to a great many discussions by former writers on the foot; among them Mr. Miles, who was a great advocate for dispensing with so many nails in the shoe, never using more than three on the outside and two on the inside. In speaking of cold fitting he says: "In the practice of shoeing horses in the stable away from the forge where there is no possibility of correcting any defect in the fitting of the shoe, it is so utterly opposed to reason and common sense that I should only have averted to it as a custom of bygone days. Should either of these gentlemen happen to ask the smith what he was doing the answer would in all probability have awakened him to a sudden conviction that he was giving his countenance to a most unphilosophical proceeding for the smith would have told him he was fitting the shoe to the horse's foot, which the gentleman would at once perceive to be impossible, inasmuch as he had no means at hand whereby to affect the smallest change in the form of the shoe, however much it might require it and the truth would instantly force itself upon him that the man was fitting the foot to the shoe, not as he supposed the shoe to the foot." To fit the shoe to the foot without the aid of anvil and forge is impossible; and anyone acquainted with the exactness and precision necessary to a perfect fitting would not hesitate to declare the attempt as absurd as it is mischievous. But passing on to cold fitting at the forge, when hammer, anvil and all other tools are convenient, it is impossible to get a perfectly level foot surface to receive the shoe and to say the best very impracticable, for no one can level the ends of the horn fibers so accurately that they all rest evenly on the surface of the shoe, I care not how good a mechanic he may be. But the chief objection to cold fitting, however level he may get the foot, we find the damp and wet streets soften the horn fibers causing them to become pulpy and vice versa if followed up with dry weather, the horny fibers dry up and recede from the shoe. This impairs the bearing between the seat of the shoe and the foot, causing either the nails to break or to loosen their firm hold on the wall, consequently the loss of the shoe. And I have no doubt that many of you will coincide with me that you have seen the same evil effects of cold fitting where the horn fibers would recede from the shoe showing a want of solidity between the shoe and the foot, that we have it hot fitting.

In 1840, M. Riquet, a veterinary surgeon in the French army, introduced the method of cold fitting to the Minister of War of France. When it was finally decided to test the same at the Cavalry School at Saumur, experiments were made from the 22d of September, 1841, to the 5th of October, 1841. During the three years all the near-side horses of the school were shod by the cold and the off-side ones by the hot method. In the space of time out of 22,579 shoes which had been fitted in a cold state, 386 were lost, detached or broken and only 123 out of the same number fitted while hot. In the case of cold fitting one shoe out of 58 was detached, while by hot fitting there was only one shoe in 183. This evidence is in perfect harmony with that furnished at a later period by Colonel Ambret of the same school, who was at first a zealous partisan of M. Riquet's system. Out of 650, the effective strength of a regiment, during every month from 55 to 60 lost their shoes in marching or manoeuvring since the employment of cold fitting, or in other terms the regiment had not marched for an hour without losing a shoe. With the system of hot fitting the same regiment lost only one shoe in a journey of eight stages (the distance between two places of rest on a road is a stage of ten miles). After an extensive experience this observer writes at the following conclusions:

1. That hot firing is not attended by any danger or inconvenience when properly practiced (that is, on hoofs the soles of which are not pared; that is pared too thin).

2. The solidity of hot shoeing (or fitting) being greater than that of cold, the workman having more facility for the former than the latter and also owing to its requiring less time, we are of the opinion that in the army as everywhere else, the preference must be given to the method of hot fitting.

Now let us come to the advantages of hot fitting over that of cold. While the foot has to be prepared in like manner to the cold method great care must be taken in leveling the wall. This is a very important operation and should be thoroughly understood by the practical horseshoer, as it is very essential that an equal pressure should be diffused all over the lower margin of the wall. Both sides of the hoof should be of equal depth in addition to the inferior border of the wall being perfectly level; this can be done by changing the rasp from a forward to an oblique movement across the ends of the fibers to bring them to the same length. If any doubt remains in our minds that there is a deviation in the depth of either the inside or outside of the foot, it can readily be detected by laying the foot down on a level floor and looking at the leg and foot from front and rear so that the unequal depth can easily be detected and at once corrected. In removing the excessive growth of the wall at each shoeing, great care must be taken, ever bearing in mind that in ordinary circumstances it takes the wall twelve months to grow from the coronet to the lower margin of the same, and great care should be taken not to remove too much at one time.

Very little paring should ever be done on the sole, only the removal of those flakes that are ready to be thrown off in a natural manner; while the frog, in a healthy condition, should never be touched by the farrier's knife, but allowed to shed itself by natural exfoliation. Having thus prepared the foot to receive the upper surface of the shoe, which should be an exact counterpart as far as the foot is concerned, the man who is the fireman or fitter comes to the foot with a shoe of medium heat and lays the same on the foot, the first thing of importance being to make the impression or mark the spot where the clip comes, and let me say that no horseshoer can put the clip in place so accurately or neatly with the cold method as he can by the hot. Having accomplished this part of the work, we again lay the shoe on the foot to find the level bearing, slightly fusing the lower margin of the wall. If there is any point that is uneven take the same off with the knife and again lay the heated shoe upon the foot, which will then fuse itself into an equal bearing all the way round, from heel to toe. The foot should not again be touched with the knife, but if any irregularities still exist they should be carefully removed with the smooth surface of the rasp, being particular not to take off much of the carbonized ends of the horn fibers, as this is what gives solidity to the method of hot fitting and at the same time preserving the foot from the action of humidity.

Dr. Fleming, in speaking of hot fitting, says: "The very fact of burning or fusing the ends of the fibers insures a solid, durable bed, which cannot be obtained otherwise, as this destroys the spongy, absorbent properties of the horn and renders it more eminently calculated to withstand the influence of moisture. Horn is a very slow conductor of heat and it requires a very prolonged application of the hot shoe to affect the hoof to any considerable depth. Three minutes' burning of the lower face of the sole has been found necessary to produce any indication of an increase in the temperature by the thermometer on its upper surface. It is never required that the shoe should be applied longer than a few seconds."

Professor De La Fond, by experiments, showed in a most conclusive manner that a very long continued application of the hot shoe was required to affect part of the foot. Applying a small thermometer to the inner surface of the sole and bringing a hot shoe in contact with the ground aspect of the foot he found that it took three minutes burning to produce any effect on the thermometer. While a thermometer made on purpose to encircle the hoof below the coronet produced no rise in the temperature by application the same length of time and either experiment took three times longer than is needed for a farrier to fit a shoe.

In watching workmen who are unconscious of his presence, in order to note the exact number of seconds during which they held the hot shoe to the foot; his observations proved that in shoeing 100 hoofs the hot shoe was kept in contact with the horn on an average of from 46 to 47 seconds, the maximum of these applications being 80 seconds and the minimum 29. He never knew of a horse being injured in this manner.

This experiment would be well worth the trial as to the length of time required to fit a hot shoe to the foot, by any of our craftsmen who are fortunate enough to possess a stop watch and I think he would find the time reduced from the foregoing statement to be a good many seconds.

Now as to the advantages of hot fitting over that of cold.

1. In hot fitting the shoe is more readily adapted to the foot.
2. The shoe that is fitted hot to the hoofs is applied more equally; the shoeing more solid because of the better adaption and a more intimate adhesion is obtained between the iron and the surface of the horn.
3. Hot fitting endows the hoof with more resistance. The horn heated by the iron is less liable to the action of humidity, or in other words, the sudden change from dryness to moisture.

While I have tried to show you the advantage of hot fitting over that of cold, in conclusion let me say that while the word hot does not convey to us the degree of heat that the shoe should have when applied to the foot, but rather leaves us in doubt on this point, still I believe horseshoers are men of brains and good judgment and also careful and painstaking and none of us would apply a shoe so hot that it could produce injury. It is the excess in burning the foot that is injurious and not the practical application of the same. How often have men gone into a shop when the farrier was fitting a shoe and you could neither see the horse nor the shoer for smoke? Now let us suppose for a moment that you are the owner of that horse and he is a valuable one, what would your feelings be? Would you not be filled with indignation at the lack of judgment of the shoer? It is the abuse of hot fitting and not the use of it that we have to guard against.

Col. Milton Young, when asked to sign the petition rescinding the outlaw rule of the Western Jockey Club, said: "Yes, I will sign this petition, as I think the rule will work a hardship on the majority of Western turfmen, especially those that have made stako entries at the tracks coming under the ban. It would have been better had this outlaw clause gone into effect say, two years hence, thus giving all racing associations a chance to obtain a license, and in no way interfering with stake entries and racing arrangements with owners for the current year. Aside from this I am heartily in favor of the Western Jockey Club."

A Great Proposition.

Messrs. Tuttle & Clark, of Detroit, Michigan, the celebrated manufacturers of turf goods and harness are making the horsemen of the country one of the greatest propositions that has ever been made, through their catalogues Nos. 20 and 21 and it will be of importance to every user of harness and turf goods to send to them at once for either or both of these catalogues and for their Handy Book. Messrs. Tuttle & Clark are one of the largest manufacturers in the country, either wholesale or retail, and have an enviable reputation for the high quality of their goods not only in the United States and Canada, but all over the world. Their catalogue No. 20 illustrates all kinds of harness for pleasure driving, such as buggy, surrey, pole, run-about, trap, coupe and carriage harness, while their catalogue No. 21 illustrates all classes of turf goods, including track harness of every style, horse clothing and other track requisites. Both are exceedingly beautiful books, in fact, the most beautiful that have ever been published in America in the line of harness and turf goods. Messrs. Tuttle & Clark will, until these books are free of charge to all horse owners and others directly interested in the horse, as also their 20th Century Handy Book, which is a valuable little book, including exceedingly interesting statistics on various matters. This little book will be prized by everyone into whose hands it goes. Write to them at once for either of the above catalogues or both if desired and they will make you a great proposition.

The Game Bill Signed By Governor Gage.

The sportsmen of California are now in line for the organization of a mutual admiration society on a monumental scale. Assembly Bill No. 625 is the law of this State and contains more important and necessary clauses strictly in the interest of game protection than has ever yet in this State been enacted with the same principles in view. The bill as passed and signed is a far different document than was introduced early in the session of the Legislature, that bill was drawn up; it has been reported, by the attorney for an arms manufacturing company. The individuals interested in its career entirely ignored the wishes and interests of the representative sportsmen as expressed in a convention held in this city a year ago upon the specious and frivolous pleas that "the labors of the game convention were lost through the unconstitutionality of the law formulated under bad advice, and the negligence of the Chairman of the committee intrusted with the introduction of the bill." This assertion is proven to be a deliberate misstatement of facts for upon comparison of the proposed bill with the one just signed it will be seen that the principal features of both bills are identical in purpose, if not in words. These sections were incorporated in the bill at the instance of sportsmen who were watching the peculiar tactics of the "apostles of game protection." Sec. 626d of the new bill is most severe in its application. This is aimed at commercial interests; the inhibition and correlative matter in the bill is the portion of the new game law that the wealthy corporation before alluded to is particularly interested in and was instrumental, it is claimed by those posted in the tactics of the third house, in having placed on the statute book. Should this particular clause not stand the test of the courts, it would not practically make any difference for or against game protection, but possibly would materially effect the retail trade of our corporation friend. In the light of past litigation, where the interests of this establishment were concerned, we deem it extremely probable that the embargo now placed on the private citizen, the hotel keeper, restaurateur and club man has come to stay. However, much good has been accomplished and one bad egg does not put an incubator out of business.

The bills establishing the office of Game Commissioner and its satellite, the sportsmen's license law, were not signed. These measures were good in principal and design and would have accomplished much in favor of the sportsman's cause, for which they were prepared, but as we stated before, we believe they were weak in constitutional structure. We are not sorry that these bills are dead, with their suppression passed into oblivion the chances for one or two undeserving windbags to feed at the public fountain.

At the Traps.

The main local trap event tomorrow will be the live bird shoot of the Union Gun Club at Ingleside. The blue rock section of the grounds will be ready for practice shooting as usual.

The San Francisco Gun Club live bird shoot at Ingleside last Sunday was well attended, a good lot of birds and pleasant weather being conditions which helped materially in bringing off a successful club shoot. In the regular club race but three clean strings of fifteen birds were made, George H. T. Jackson, John Karney and Harvey McMurchy of Syracuse being the only shooters who scored straight, the two former dividing a substantial side pool to high guns with thirteen men in. E. Klevesahl was very lucky in scoring several birds that would undoubtedly have been lost but for the intervening wire fence, which saved his birds from going out of bounds. H. G. Lougee seemed to invariably draw birds that fled from the traps with rocket speed. M. C. Smith of Syracuse, who was a guest of the club, proved to be a very clever wing shot.

Following the regular club race, a six bird pool, $2.50 entrance, was shot up, and nine men scored straight and divided the purse. C. H. Shaw, F. Feudner, C. A. Haight and A. Roos indulged in a friendly miss and out shoot. Mr. Roos in practice at twenty-five pigeons lost but three.

After the live bird events the club members adjourned to the blue rock bulkheads and smashed clay pigeons. In a twenty target race, $1 entrance, E. Klevesahl won the purse with 19 breaks. The other scores were: Wirtner 7, Wilson 18, Sweeney 16, Bruns 17, Karney 18, Haight 15, Wands 12, McMurchy 18, Whitney 9, Feudner 17, Lougee 16.

In a twenty-five target match Jules Bruns won the pool with a score of 23. The others each broke: Sweeney 17, Wilson 20, Klevesahl 10, Justins 17, Haight 20.

In another twenty-five bird race the scores were Dr. Derby 21, Briggs 14, Lougee 22, King 12, Brown 17.

In a ten target race the scores were: Whitney 4, Maynard 5, Wilson 7, Sweeney 8, Dr. Derby 7, Lougee 8. The scores made in the live pigeon contests were as follows:

Blue rock shooting will be popular in Sacramento this season. Last Sunday the Capital Gun Club held its initial shoot at Kimball and Upson's grounds near the American river bridge. There were a number of preliminary "warm-ups" before the club shoot started. In these events some good scores were made, Derr breaking 29 out of 30, with a run of 28 straight. F. M. Newbert shot in excellent form, winning the club match with 24 out of 25. After the club shoot there was a team match at 15 targets per man between the following teams:

A pleasant reunion of the Olympic Gun Club was held on Wednesday evening in the office of A. M. Shields, Crocker Building. During the meeting a reorganization of the club was effected and a goodly number of names were placed on the roll of active membership. The following board of officers were elected for the ensuing year: Harry B. Hosmer, President; Will J. Golcher, Vice-President; H. Justins, Secretary; F. H. Bushnell, Treasurer; Len D. Owens, Captain; and M. E. Unger, H. L. Miller, Merton C. Allen and H. Rose, Directors.

The club will devote the second and fourth Sundays of each month to live bird and blue rock shooting, commencing next month. The selection of order for the two styles of trap shooting will be effected this week and other necessary details for the early announcement of the shooting program for the season will be arranged for and given early publication. The club season will close in September. The initiation fee will be abolished and the club dues are fixed at 50 cents per month. A plan is on foot to bring about the co-operation of all present and also past members of the club in perfecting a strong trap shooting organization. The club will shoot on the Association grounds at Ingleside.

As an augury for the future successful career of the club under the impetus of reinforced effort and plan of campaign to retain the well fought for prosligo now recorded on the banners of one of the strongest trap shooting organizations the Coast has yet known, we will recall to our readers that among the re-elected officers noted are Len Owens and Hip Justins, respectively the pioneer Captain and Secretary. The team work of Owens, Webb, Nauman, Golcher and Haight as shot into the hearts of admiring sportsmen club members and adversaries at Stockton in '97 will long be remembered as a brilliant example in skill and accuracy with the shotgun for coming generations of trap shooters.

The Red Bluff Gun Club announce a two days' tournament to take place in that city on Saturday and Sunday, May 11th and 12th. The following program has been arranged:

Across the bay the traps on the Empire Gun Club grounds Sunday last were kept busy all day. Besides the regular trophy events a large number of ten and twenty bird pool and practice shoots were shot up. C. W. Debenham was high gun in the State championship trophy contest. J. B. Hauer was top score in the Schumacher prize shoot. A. J. Webb broke 17 out of 10 pair of doubles, shooting from the twenty-yard mark in the Allen trophy competition. In the miss and out race for the Sweeney medal Webb was high gun, with 11 breaks, Haner coming second with 8 targets scored. The scores were:

State championship trophy contest, twenty-five targets—Hauer 18, Debenham 21, Robinson 15, "Chestnut" 14, Jeffreys 11, Alviso 16, Webb 20, Searls 21, Reed 11, Swales 19, Gregg 20, Fish 18, Hansen 16, Miller 15. Advices from England are to the effect that the purse for the international team match will be for $2500 instead of $5000. The American team are willing to shoot for the reduced purse. A desire to make practical comparison between the English and American cracks will tend to make the magnitude of the money partly a secondary consideration. The English live bird shooters are seemingly anxious to meet the visiting shooters in individual and team contests at English blue rocks—the famed test of the wing shot's skill in Britain.

Paul North writes, every shooter in America is curious to know how our best shots will compare with the best shots on the famed swift winged trap bird of Albion. Visiting sportsmen are authority for the statement that when the representative American guns meet the best English trap shooters on their own grounds and with their best pigeons trapped our shooters will show that they are the equal of any shot gun manipulators and will prove their superior skill at anything that flies. But few details are left unfinished in perfecting traveling arrangements and deciding the itinerary of the American team. The results at both live birds and targets will be a matter of more than ordinary interest to American trap shooters.

Fred W. King, who is a skillful goldsmith, is the proud owner of a handsome and unique pair of cuff buttons of original design. The pair represent two U. M. C. Smokeless shells and are perfect in color and finish to the minutest detail. The color is in enamel and the twin trinket is a pretty fac simile of a trap shell. A stick-pin, in the same design, also made by Mr. King is a prized scarf ornament owned by H. G. Lougee.

The Antler Gun Club was organized in Oakland last week. The membership is drawn from the Order of Elks. Harry Newton is the Secretary of the now club. The Antlers will prong inanimate targets each month on the Empire Gun club grounds, the initial shoot being set for Sunday, April 7th.

W. R. Crosby's continuous run of 345 targets is now the world's record.

The Grand American Handicap will commence on Monday.

Napa county is now properly in line for fish and game protection. At the meeting held in Justice Palmer's court room Monday evening "The Napa Fish and Game Protective Association" was organized. The object of the organization, as its name implies, is to see that the game laws are rigidly enforced.

The officers of the association are: President, Geo. E. Caldwell; Vice-President, Theo. A. Bell; Secretary and Treasurer, Geo. F. Gardner.

By-laws were adopted, and the President was authorized to communicate with the Fish Commissioners with the view of securing the appointment of four deputies to aid in enforcing the laws. Regular meetings of the association will be held the first Tuesday of each month. A. B. Swartout and L. Pellett of the St. Helena Game Club attended.

Fish Commissioner Vogelsang, when notified of what Napa had done, was greatly pleased and will at once appoint and put in the field three deputy commissioners.

Fishing in the Deadman.

[J. Mayne Baltimore.]

The State of Washington possesses innumerable fine trout streams. Trending north and south are the vast Cascade mountains. Naturally enough there are many mountain streams, and these abound in the speckled beauties.

Throughout eastern Washington are a number of short mountain ranges, and also a great many chains of lofty hills. Very many streams find their cradles in these upheavals.

At certain seasons of the year, the Spokane and the Little Spokane streams furnish excellent fishing. Latah Creek is also a good stream for angling. However, a fine little stream for capturing trout, is the "Deadman." The name sounds very lugubrious, but the stream came by that cognomen in an honest and reasonable sort of way.

It was more than twenty years ago that a white man was murdered by the Indians on the bank of this little stream. The country was then only sparsely settled, but the murderers feared the vengeance of the "Boston man." Finding a deep pool under the shadow of an abrupt bank, they tied a weight to the body and pitched it into the stream. It sank from sight, but did not remain hidden long.

The man being missed, diligent search was made for him by friends. He was traced to the stream, but no thicket of underbrush. Back from the creek a little way stood a forest of pine and fir.

It was during the latter part of May and the weather was very warm—almost sultry. While we fished, serene short showers fell. We caught many fish—just how many I shall not disclose. None of the trout were very large, but they made good eating.

But we had to toil and sweat for our game. We waded through mud and sand, half leg deep; we pushed through brush and briars; stumbled over rocks and logs—and swore. Then we often teek to the creek, plunging in and wading up to our hips. The water was cold but the air was steaming hot.

Several times we crossed the brawling, capricious stream. Once we all trailed it across an old log, which proved to be very rotten. When we were about midway the log suddenly broke asunder, precipitating us into the rushing stream. The boys gave a regular Comanche war whoop and we waded ashore.

Seen we reached the mouth of Deep Creek, a tributary about half the size of the Deadman. It was a roaring little torrent. As its name would signify, the stream is deep but very narrow.

It abounds in trout and we whipped the waters for several hundred yards above its mouth, meeting with good success. Just below the mouth of Deep Creek, the Deadman purses its pellucid waters into the Little Spokane.

We fished for a short time in the latter stream, capturing several large trout and handsome silversides. But night was coming on apace and a heavy, soaking shower set in, we gave up fishing for that day, and went back to the farm house, where we had made arrangements to remain over night.

Were we wet? Soaked to the skin! Not a "dry stitch" on our bodies. But we were not cold—were actually sweating.

There was a deep and wide old-fashioned fireplace at one end of the capacious sitting room. The rancher piled on logs and soon there was a noble fire. By it, we speedily dried our clothes.

The housewife proved to be a good cook. Soon she had something less than a half a bushel of elegantly fried fish heaped up on several big plates. These, supplemented with hot biscuits, butter and steaming hot coffee, made a superb meal. The rancher and his interesting family and the members of our party gathered around the festive board. There were feasting, big appetites and good cheer.

RUSSIAN RIVER NEAR GUERNEVILLE.

further. Unmistakable evidences were discovered that there had been foul play.

It was a case of "murder will out." A few days after the murder there came a heavy, protracted rain, which caused the creek to swell and overflow its high banks. So violent was the current that it swept the body out of the eddy and carried it up where it caught on the points of some sharp drift. As soon as the waters subsided the body was quickly discovered. Three Indians were distinctly connected with the murder. Suspicion pointed to them; they were arrested, convicted and condignly punished for the crime. From that time the stream has borne the name of "Deadman"—a gloomy, suggestive appellation which will always cling to the beautiful little water course.

The total length of the Deadman does not exceed ten miles. It rises in a bunch of small hills almost due north of the City of Spokane, and, running westward, empties into the Little Spokane.

For most of the distance it flows through level country, amidst a forest of pine. All along its winding banks are dense thickets of willow, alder, maple and other water-loving growths. In places the stream meanders through a sort of morass.

Deadman abounds in deep pools, swirling eddies and broad, shallow riffles—just the places where the elusive game lurks. I was one of a gay party of six who recently paid our respects to that stream and its finny denizens.

On a straight line, the stream is reached in about eight miles from Spokane. The drive for most of the distance is through pine woods which, at that season of the year, was most interesting. We reached the stream about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and began fishing in hard earnest.

From where we began to angle down to the mouth of the Deadman was about two miles and a half. The stream for most of that distance led through a dense

After supper, we sat around the capacious fireplace until bedtime. Then we went out and slept like "troopers," in a big straw stack. During the night several heavy showers fell.

Early next morning we resumed fishing. The weather was gloomy and the skies overcast. We fished several hours with tolerable luck. About 10 o'clock a heavy rain set in, compelling us to give up fishing.

Giving the kind, hospitable rancher a liberal supply of our catch, we hitched up our team and drove back to town under stern-threatening clouds and beneath dripping branches. We had a good time and caught many fish. For a few days after our brief outing we were sore and our faces and hands well scratched from briars and brush.

Where the Trout Hide.

Reports from many streams are most favorable for a thorough enjoyment of the opening day of the trout season on Monday. The streams of Sonoma, Napa and Mendocino counties have been replenished with over 1,000,000 trout fry, the streams themselves, too numerous to mention, have been carefully guarded and most of them are thus early in the season in splendid condition for fly-fishing.

The Marin county streams, the Paper Mill and its tributaries are in better shape for the fly than have been these favorite waters been for years past. The Purissima, San Gregorio and other Coast streams south will not be disappointing. Reports from Santa Cruz county give the fishing streams in that bailiwick a great reputation. The San Lorenzo, however, is said to be very high.

The opening day of the season comes at an inopportune time for many city anglers, who will take their outing with rod and basket later on during the week. To the angler who relies not entirely on his skill with the fly, but must perforce use other lure we will admonish him that should he be in the habit of using shrimp it will pay him to lay in a stock and salt them down prior to May 1st, for after this day a close season on shrimp for four months will be in order.

Among those who have confided in us their destination with rod and reel on Monday we note a party composed of John B. Coleman, Frank Ireland and Fred Bushnell who pinned their faith on the virtues and fish of the Lagunitas. George Jackson and a party of friends will whip the Uvas, staying the while at Vic Paunchlet's resort. Henry Wicker will put his new rod together and try the Paper Mill. Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cooper and Geo. Walker will leave the train at Tocaloma station. John Cadman and C. Havens will slip away quietly to a stream where the pools and riffles are full of fish, and large ones. Fred Dassonville and Ed Dassenville have a trip to Salmon creek in view. A party of well known jelly anglers have arranged for trip to Dutch Bill, a tributary of Russian river. R. Isenbruck will be at Camp Taylor Sunday evening. J. Boswell Kenniff, C. R. Kenniff and Dr. C. G. Levison already have their fish tagged in the Paper Mill near Camp Taylor. Going after them on Monday will only be perfunctory. Charley Breidenstein, Jas. and Will Turner, W. Ashcroft and a party will try Tocaloma station as a starting point on the stream. Pete Walsh has several good fish staked out in the pools of Pacheco creek. Achille Roos and Sam Heller will put out their flies on the Guallala and enjoy a two week's outing before coming back to the city.

The announcement is made with regret that Mr. Chas. H. Kewell had the misfortune this week to lose his father. Mr. Kewell, Sr., was a noted angler in the old country and familiar with all the requisites of the gentle art; he was also a skilled maker of loaders and fly-tyer. Mr. Kewell, Jr., has the sympathy of a host of angling friends in the hour of his affliction.

Striped bass are beginning to take the hook. A seven pounder was recently caught at the Berax wharf in the Estuary. James Parisor landed a nine pound fish on last Saturday evening. O. W. Jackson and Bob McFarland caught some small fish in San Leandro bay on Sunday.

Salt water anglers have been out in force for two weeks past; the catches of rock fish, sea trout and capazoni have been excellent.

Bench Show Notes.

The office of the San Francisco Kennel Club will be opened on Monday next at No. 14 Post street. The prospect for a good list of entries from San Jose, Oakland, Sacramento and San Joaquin is quite bright. Entries will close on April 28th. An announcement of the show at Mechanic's Pavilion in May appears this week on page 15.

It is expected the premium list will be ready for distribution from the office on the 1st.

In addition to the list of specials already published the Livingston Jenks cup for the best Cocker Spaniel bitch puppy, open to all, is announced and Charles K. Harley will offer a gold medal for the best Fox Terrier puppy.

The Pacific Bull Terrier Club members held an important meeting in the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN on Thursday evening when several matters pertaining to the coming bench show were arranged. The kennel page went to press too early this week for a fuller account of the club meeting.

The entries of Boston Terriers this year will be a record one, no less than twelve or fifteen entries are now ready for the show.

A delegation composed of Norman J. Stewart, Chas. R. Harker, Fred Banks and D. J. Sinclair left this week to attend the Northern circuit. Tho' not informed as a fact, we feel safe in adding O. J. Albee's name to the above; it would be hardly possible to take into consideration the idea that Mr. Albee would forego the pleasure of seeing a few Northern Collies, particularly the newcomer at Spokane, Mr. Thos. S. Griffith's Lenzie Prince, a winner of 45 firsts in Scotland. Chas. R. Harker will hand out the ribbons to St. Bernards, Mastiffs, Great Danes and Newfoundlanders. James Cole, of Kansas City, will preside over Pointers and Setters and Norman J. Stewart will judge Collies. C. D. Nairn will judge all other breeds.

Two Dave Earl dogs belonging to Clinton E. Werden have been placed in the care of John E. Lucas and W. B. Coutts respectively. The youngsters are destined to run in the next Northwest and Pacific Coast Derbys.

California Cocker Club.

This enterprising specialty club is wide awake for the coming May show as will be seen from the following list of elegant trophies. The Secretary E. C. Pacific Coast Special Committee.

The following communication was received from Mr. J. P. Norman, Secretary of the Board.

A copy of the circular below referred to was also received but was unavoidably crowded out until next week.

The Pacific Advisory Committee of the American Kennel Club held an adjourned meeting on the 19th inst., its first under the extended powers recently conferred on it by the American Kennel Club. Its first official use of those powers was in the exercise of its prerogatives to approve of classifications. The San Francisco Kennel Club applied for authority to open a winners class in Scottish Terriers, the same not having been included in the proof of the premium list sent to Secretary Vredenburg before the new authority of the Advisory Board rendered such application to New York unnecessary. The Advisory Committee having satisfied itself that the San Francisco Kennel Club had complied with the rules, granted the request for a winners class in Scottish Terriers.

The Committee also resolved that the regular meetings should henceforth be held on the third Tuesday of each month, and all matters intended for consideration at the regular meetings should be prepared and communications addressed to the Secretary of the Committee not later than the Thursday preceding that date. The Committee is sending out to all the kennel and specialty clubs of the Coast a circular letter, and it is hoped that these clubs will acquiesce in the urgent request of the Committee."

Doings in Dogdom.

Mrs. W. C. Ralston recently sold two black Cocker Spaniel puppies by Hampton Goldie out of Ch. Princess Flavia to Plumeria Cocker Kennels.

Three handsomely marked five month's old Egglish Setter puppies are offered for sale in our kennel advertisements to-day. The youngsters are bred in the purple and promise to make cracking Derby entries for the purchaser.

A dispatch from New York relates the following shocking incident. Mrs. Carrie Cobus, living on West Eighteenth street, met death in a pitiful manner on the 17th inst., being killed by her dog. Mrs. Cobus, her husband, her son and her mother, lived together. Mrs. Cobus was 38 years of age and subject to epileptic fits. Her constant companion was a Fox Terrier of unusual intelligence. Mrs. Elizabeth Broadhead, Mrs. Cobus' mother, says her daughter went out into the kitchen about 7 o'clock. A few moments later Mrs. Broadhead heard the dog barking excitedly. The mother ran out and found her daughter lying on the floor. She knew it was an epileptic attack, and, dashing a pitcher of water into her daughter's face, she ran into the hall and screamed for help.

Philip Rockefeller, living near by, heard her and ran to her assistance. They went into the room where Mrs. Cobus lay and there saw a horrifying spectacle. The pet Terrier, seeing its mistress in agony, appears to have gone mad. He flew at the prostrate woman as she writhed on the floor and repeatedly attacked her, burying his teeth in her throat and severing the jugular vein. When Rockefeller tried to tear the maddened brute away it clung to the dying woman with terrible tenacity. He finally got the animal loose. It then attacked the mother and the man, but they beat it off. A physician was summoned, but Mrs. Cobus had bled to death. The dog disappeared in the streets.

The Modern St. Bernard.

The claim of some experts that the St. Bernard is not of the type nor as alert and sagacious as the original dogs of the Swiss monastery, will be received with, possibly, indignation and some degree of incredulity, and many of our fanciers who own and breed St. Bernards will be surprised to learn that their beautiful and costly dogs are in many respects unlike their ancestors. For this statement the Schweiz Thierborse is responsible, and it is qualified to speak with authority on a matter of this kind. Its words are creating no small excitement among the European owners of St. Bernards.

According to this Swiss society the St. Bernards of to-day have little in common with their ancestors, the only marked point of resemblance being in the shape of their heads. As a proof that this is true a letter is cited, which Herr Schumacher, a famous dog fancier of Hollingen, near Bern, wrote several years ago to the Rev. Mr. Macdonald, a clergyman in England, who was much interested in St. Bernards.

"In the monastery where these dogs were originally bred," says Herr Schumacher, "there is a tradition, which the present monks remember well, that the first litter of these animals, which subsequently came to be known as St. Bernards, was obtained by crossing a female Danish dog with a Pyreneese Mastiff, who was of great size and closely resembled a sheep dog. From this Mastiff, it is said, the original St. Bernards obtained their high degree of intelligence, their fine sense of smell and their marvelous memory of places, and from their Danish ancestors they inherited their great bulk and strength. For 500 years the monks have been doing their utmost to improve this breed, and history tells us how well they have succeeded."

From this letter Swiss experts infer that the St. Bernards of to-day, especially the long-haired ones, have deteriorated in some respects, though, on the other hand, they readily admit that they far surpass their ancestors so far as size, color and beauty are concerned. They doubt, however, whether any of the thoroughbred St. Bernards that are now sold for such large sums, are as sagacious or as alert as these that were reared in the famous monastery from century to century.

However this may be, it is certain that no animals have changed so much during the past few centuries as the long-haired St. Bernards, and the mere fact that these animals have grown year by year in popular favor seems to show that the change has on the whole been for the better. Some of the prize-winning beauties of our day might not be able to rescue famishing travelers on the snow-clad Alps, yet even this defect cannot deprive them of their rank as the aristocrats of the canine kingdom.

Breeding of Toy Spaniels.

Of Toy Spaniels five varieties are now enlisting the attention of the fancy. These varieties of the breed and the changes in type readily trace back to the earlier types. Toy Spaniels, it is claimed, had no little influence in the establishment of the modern bench show.

In the early forties of the last century societies were formed on behalf of the Toy Spaniel to promote its careful breeding. The members of these clubs would appoint a particular day, when each member would bring to the club room a dog of his own breeding, and the appointed judges would designate the best, to which would be given a handsome silver or gold collar that had been subscribed for. This was the germ of the present public dog show.

The growing interest evinced by American women in breeding, owning and exhibiting dogs is leading to greater attention being paid to Toy Spaniels. The term Toy Spaniel covers more than one breed. The King Charles, Blenheim, Prince Charles or tricolor, Ruby and the Japanese Spaniel, all come under this general name.

Canine history tells us that of all these the tricolor—black, tan and white—was the earliest type. This, and the King Charles and Blenheim, as well as the Ruby, have been interbred until color alone distinguishes the different families. The white of the early tricolor, or Prince Charles, was bred out until the King Charles, black and tan in color, was produced, and would breed true. The Blenheim, orange and white or red and white, has always had an individuality and romance, its connection with the house of Marlborough lending an interest to the handsome breed; but the Ruby is an offshoot of the interbreeding of these two latter named. It is a purely red spaniel, without white, the white having been bred out until now there are enough reds to breed true or approximately so. The Ruby, however, is comparatively modern, a manufacture of the last fifteen years or so.

It is only, however, within the last thirty years or so that the breeds have developed the abnormally high, round skull and the extremely retousse nose. The Japanese Spaniel, admittedly a very ancient national breed, has certain points altogether foreign to the English breeds.

The English Toy Spaniel has been bred within its own variety until it has assumed certain abnormal properties such as the high bulging skull, the marble eye and the nose which is scarcely discernible. Speaking generally, the King Charles Spaniel must be black and tan, deep in black and rich in tan; the Blenheim, by many considered the most beautiful of the four types, is an orange and white marked dog, with an evenly colored face, a white blaze up the centre, widening toward the top of the skull, in the centre of which should be an orange mark or spot called the "lozonge." The Prince Charles or tricolor is black, white and tan, and the Ruby a rich deep red or ruby wine color.

Before speaking of the particular history of each variety it would, perhaps, be better to describe the general points of the Toy Spaniel.

The head should be well domed, the skull semi-globular, sometimes in a very good specimen extending beyond the half-circle and absolutely projecting over the eyes so as to nearly meet the upturned nose. This condition naturally creates a depression between the eyes and back of the nose even more marked than in the Bulldog, and exhibits a hollow deep enough to bury a small marble.

The eyes are wide apart, with the eyelids square to the line of the face, not slanting like the "Jap" or Fox. They are large, so as to be considered black; the enormous pupils which are absolutely of that color, increasing the description. This large size seems to affect the lacrimal duct at the corner of the eye, and there is usually more or less weeping.

The nose is most important. It must be short and well turned up between the eyes; there should be no indication that this condition has been produced artificially. The nose should be deep, wide and black, the lower jaw is much like the bulldog's, with a decided "finish" or turnup, so as to allow of its meeting the end of the upper jaw.

The ears must be long, almost reaching to the ground. The ears of an average sized dog will extend twenty inches from tip to tip, and some more. They should be set low on the head, and heavily clothed with hair.

The King Charles usually has a longer ear than the Blenheim, and sometimes has a spread of twenty-four inches.

The shape of the Toy Spaniel should rival the Pug in compactness, although much of this solid appearance is due to the profuseness of coat, and in reality the frame is small. The body should be cobby, with stout, strong legs, broad chest and back. The size varies from seven pounds to ten pounds. They should not be larger.

In coat there is some slight diversity which we will point out. Generally speaking the coat should be long, silky, soft and wavy, but not curly.

In the King Charles the feather on the ears is very long and profuse, exceeding that of the Blenheim by an inch or more. The feather on the tail, which is docked to about three or four inches, should be silky and five to six inches in length, forming a distinctive square "flag" which must not be carried over the level of the back.

In the Blenheim there should be a profuse mane, extending well down the front of the chest. The feather should be profuse on ears and feet where it is so long as to give the appearance of being webbed. The legs are also well feathered. Prince Charles and Rubies partake of the same characteristics.

The King Charles is a rich, glossy black and deep tan; tan spots over the eyes and on cheeks and on the legs nearly to the elbow in the forelegs, and to the hocks in the hind, and the inside of the legs is tan.

The Ruby Spaniel is a rich chestnut red. A few white hairs on the chest of a King Charles or a Ruby carries very great weight against the animal in the show ring but does not absolutely disqualify, but a white patch or white hairs on any other part of either of these Spaniels is a disqualification.

The color of a Blenheim should be a pure, pearly white, with rich chestnut red or ruby red markings, evenly distributed in large patches. The ears and cheeks should be red, with a blaze of white extending from the nose up to the forehead, and ending between the ears in a crescentine curve. In the center of this should be the "spot" about the size of a dime.

The tri-color should have the tan of the King Charles with markings like the Blenheim in black, instead of red on a pearly white ground. The ears and under the tail should also be lined with tan. The proper name of this three-colored Spaniel is the Prince Charles.

The Ruby has already been described, is whole colored, and the points coinciding with King Charles.

The white that sometimes comes on King Charles Spaniels is traceable to the early breeding with the tricolor; the breed having been individualized by breeding the darker colored black and tans until the white disappeared.

Blenheims and tricolors are sometimes bred together so that one obtains both varieties from one litter; but when King Charles and Blenheims are crossed the most probable result is not some of each variety, but King Charles with white patches on forehead or on the feet. But there is now no necessity to cross either variety.

Nearly all of these breeds are sprightly and engaging, and especially so the Blenheim, that is not so liable to become fat and podgy, as the King Charles. The King Charles and tricolor are quieter, and not so affectionate and active, and, not being so particular about their food, have a tendency to become obese. This should be corrected, for they quickly lose their glossiness of coat and incline to curliness of coat, which is objectionable. These Spaniels should be carefully brushed or their feather becomes matted, and they soon assume an objectionable appearance.

Of the varieties of Spaniels mentioned above the best local specimens we have noticed in recent years have been among the Japs; H. A. Wogener's Yum Yum, Miss Viola Pierce's Jap, Miss Ida A. Killey's Kekko, W. S. Kittle's Our Jap, Miss Rose Hooper's Mikado, Miss Freda Hatje's Jap H. and Lady Mine. Mrs. H. W. Reddan's Nippon, Mrs. G. W. Berry's Skiddles, Frank Kent's Toots, T. H. Stevenson's Coco, Mrs. G. Bucholtz' Yeddo, Mrs. W. Hatje's Princess Jap, N. J. Stewart's imp. Ki Ku.

Of Blenheims, one of the best ever brought to the Coast is Nerman J. Stewart's Dorothy of Blenheim, her kennel mate Duke of Gloster died shortly after arriving at Rancho Bonita, Aromas, Monterey county. N. J. Stewart's Ethel Barrymore is another good one. The dogs mentioned here were all bench winners.

New Things In Turf Goods For 1901

Two Great Money Winners.

Famous
Blue Ribbon
Treeless
Saddle

Every horseman in America should be interested in the goods represented by the two illustrations herewith. They positively represent the highest advancement in the turf goods business. They are the very latest and best articles in our line. Catalogue No. 21 describes them and all other kind of turf goods and is sent free. Catalogue No. 20 describes buggy, surrey, run-about, trap, pole and coach harness. It is also sent free to those interested in harness for pleasure driving, and also our 20th Century Handy Book, of statistics, a valuable little book for everybody. We have received during the past week testimonials from some of the greatest trainers and drivers in the country with reference to our wear plate quarter boots. Mr. JOE THAYER says they are the greatest boots he has ever seen. Mr. ED GEERS says they are not excelled by any line of boots in America. Mr. C. C. VAN METER says they are the most beautiful work and best fitting turf goods in America today. Mr. GEORGE SPEAR says they are the only perfect boot he has ever seen. Mr. F. D. McKAY says when horsemen see them they will not be without them. Mr. E. M. LOCKWOOD says they are certainly a great improvement over anything now made. Mr. W. L. SNOW says: "I have used your goods for years but think you have made the greatest improvement you have ever made in turf goods. They lay clean over anything else." The testimony of these prominent trainers as also others we have received warrants us in making the statement even stronger than we have done before that our new line of wear plate quarter boots as also our general line of vulcanized leather knee boots and water proof scalpers is the only perfect line on the market today, and far superior to the old style goods that are made by all other manufacturers today.

Notice also that they cost no more and in some cases cost less than the ordinary old style boots. There will therefore be no reason for anyone to use anything else. Further we say our positive guarantee goes with every pair of boots, either sold by our agents or shipped direct. If you do not like them, do not keep them. If you do not say they are the greatest boots that have ever been produced in America if you wish return them at our expense.

We also call the attention of the public to our famous Blue Ribbon Saddle. It has been demonstrated beyond a question of a doubt that this is the only perfect saddle to race a horse in. Trotters and pacers equipped with this saddle last year won more money than with all other kinds of saddles produced. It is a pure scientific improvement over anything that has ever been made. We guarantee that any horse will race faster with the Blue Ribbon Saddle than with any other. Why? Simply because there is an even bearing use. It weighs half what any other saddle weighs. It will wear twice as long as any other race saddle. It will not make the horse's back sore. It gives the animal perfect ease and comfort. It will not injure the muscles of the back as does the old style saddle. It will fit the back of any horse whatever may be the shape. It is more beautiful than the finest Kay saddle. It costs less than any other first class saddle. All our track harness of every kind are supplied with this saddle without extra cost. Mr. H. S. Whitmarsh says: "We gave our horse twelve races with the Blue Ribbon saddle, one of them in a pouring rain where the horse and harness were completely covered with mud for five heats. The harness did not remove the hair from the horse in any spot and I give great credit to the Blue Ribbon saddle for winning this race." Mr. M. W. Johnson of Assumption, Ill., writes: "The Blue Ribbon saddle is the very best thing for the money I ever saw and the best saddle I ever used." "C. K. Peer, Strahan, Iowa, writes: "The Blue Ribbon saddle is the best race saddle I ever used." E. H. Baker, Jeffersonville, Ohio, writes: "The harness which was sent me March 21st was perfectly satisfactory in every way, shape and form. With regard to the Blue Ribbon saddle it is the only saddle in which to race a horse."

Send at once for either or both of the above catalogues and for our Handy Book and we shall make you the best proposition that has ever been made by any turf goods house in America. Address all communications

Mr. B——, a prominent horseman from the East, recently remarked in hearing of a crowd of horsemen: "I believe Boodle is destined to be a great sire of speed, but laying speed aside, his colts with their size, style, beautiful mane and tail and toppy appearance in general, with 3-minute speed, will sell East for more money than the little bullet-shaped cyclones such as are frequently produced with 2:15 speed."

PARKER GUN

Was demonstrated, in the Contest for
the WilliamPayne Thompson Cup,

Value $600, emblematic of the Carteret Amateur Championship, at live birds. Seventeen of the best Amateur Trap Shots in the United States competed for this trophy, at Carteret Gun Club grounds, February 21 and 22, 1901. Harold Money, shooting the Parker Gun, won the Cup and First Money, scored 88 out 100, 30 yards rise, 30 yards boundary. H. B. Kirkover, shooting the Parker Gun, scored 87 out 100. At the close of the above event the Carteret Gun Club gave a cup, valued at $100, for a miss and out contest. Harold Money at 33 yards, again showed the superiority of the Parker Gun by winning this cup and killing 17 straight. Send for catalogue.

JOTTINGS.

THE BEST OPPORTUNITY I know of where a person can invest a little money in a couple of broodmares is offered by Uncle Jesse D. Carr of Salinas. Uncle Jesse is 89 years old and is selling off his horses. Mr. John Parrott, proprietor of the Baywood Stud at San Mateo, recently purchased eleven mares from Mr. Carr, selecting them particularly for their handsome conformation with the idea of breeding them to his Hackney stallion and getting good looking high step-pers. Mr. Carr's mares are trotting bred and as they carry the blood of Carr's Mambrino, Boodle, Electioneer, and Williamson's Belmont, their good looks is accounted for. But to "the opportunity" I referred to: There are two mares by Boodle, one six and the other seven years old, both in foal to Martin Carter's great young stallion Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, that can be purchased at a very low figure. The six year old mare's dam is Mary C. by Antevolo 2:19½ (son of Electioneer and Columbine), out of Mr. Carr's famous old broodmare Gabilan Maid, daughter of Carr's Mambrino and Ida May Jr., by Owen Dale, son of Williamson's Belmont. This mare was stunted to Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ on May 6th last year. The other mare was foaled in 1895 and is out of Gabilan Maid. She was stunted to Nutwood Wilkes in April last year and will foal very soon. Now to the person who is engaged in breeding on a large or a small scale what better chance to get his money's worth can he find than the purchase of these mares at the price of $400 each which I understand is all Mr. Carr asks for them. In the late fall of 1899 Dan Mahaney came clear out here from Maplewood Farm, New Hampshire and paid $1000 for a yearling by Nutwood Wilkes out of a mare by Boodle. This colt is now almost three years old and besides being well entered in colt stakes to be trotted this year, has impressed his owners with the idea that he is good enough to be named in other events and his name "Col. Carter," is to be seen in the published entry lists of several Grand Circuit meetings. I don't know of a better investment right now (oil and other stocks included) than those mares at $400 each. Bred as they are the colts can be sold as two year olds if properly fed and taken care of, for as much as the mares will cost, and if entered in stakes will be worth much more. The person who buys them should breed them back to Nutwood Wilkes this year. The cross has been proven a good one. As the third dam of Nutwood Wilkes was a daughter of Williamson's Belmont and Gabilan Maid was inbred to that horse, these foals will have a strong infusion of that blood, the very best thoroughbred strain, in the opinion of many well posted horse-men, that has ever been used by California breeders. If William's Belmont were alive to-day his book would be filled at $100 per mare within a week. These foals that will be produced by Mr. Carr's mares will have more of this Belmont blood than any foals of the same age in California. If they should be fillies their value as broodmares will be more than that asked now for their dams.

That fellow Hoyston Bawl is out again with a theory, and, of course, it is one of those balancing propositions that no one but himself could ever have originated or can demonstrate. He says that "pacers are unbalanced trotters as a rule," and then goes on to show how he can balance them all if he can get at their feet. A friend of mine bred a trotting mare to a trotting stallion last year and the other morning the mare was walking around the lot followed by a handsome little colt that was taking every step on a pace. He did not seem to know any other gait, and my friend was wondering why it was thus. Since reading Hoyston Bawl I can put him wise. His colt is not balanced. I don't know just what Bawl's treatment would be, and, of course, he will not tell us, but I shall advise my friend to experiment. Perhaps if he could rig a harness to fit the colt and attach a flat iron to one hip, the little fellow might straighten up and trot. Or perhaps a boll boot on his left front foot might do it. There is no doubt but he is unbalanced. I was out to the Zoo at the Chutes last Sunday and there are a half dozen young bear cubs and as many full grown bears in the cages here and every last one of them is unbalanced, as they all pace. I don't know how much Hoyston Bawl is getting now for balancing pacers so they will trot in the East, but I have no doubt the management of the Chutes will double it and sign a six months' contract with him if he will come out here and balance those bears. It would be the greatest drawing card this resort has had, and if they could announce "the only trotting bears ever in captivity, converted and balanced by R. Hoyston Bawl," they'd crowd the grounds. As a special feature they might have Bawl balance the bears in the presence of the crowd. The lion act wouldn't be in it for sensations. Bawl could enter the cage, throw a bear on his back, pare off the long claws on one foot, and tie a weight on the other, and there is no doubt but Bruin would get up and strike a trot that would make Lawson, Cahill, Ketchum & Co. turn green with envy if they could see it. I read Hoyston Bawl's article to another friend of mine who owns a big St. Bernard dog that paces. He took the tip, went home and had all the hair clipped off the dog's right foreleg and left hind leg. You ought to see that dog trot. He can just jog a three minute gait, and if the trotting dog business hadn't gone out of date could make contracts for every half-mile circuit in America. This has proven to me that Bawl is right and that pacers are unbalanced trotters. I wonder he hasn't tried the balancing theory on his own head. He could probably make it level with a little study and experiment.

Murray Howe's new racing scheme may meet with success and it may not, but it seems to me to be one of the best plans yet devised to test the speed and standing of a trotter or pacer. The first heat at a mile will test the speed of the horses at the regulation distance. The winner of the second heat must have stamina if he gets to the wire first as it is at a mile and an eighth. Having tested the horses for speed at a mile, and for speed and stamina at a longer distance, the last heat at a half mile is sufficient to test their ability to sprint after getting tired, and the horse that can keep within the distance during the first two heats and then beat the others to the wire in a half mile dash ought to get part of the money. The division of the purse as proposed by Mr. Howe is also excellent. He gives the largest portion to the winner of the long heat and the least to the winner of the short one. The only point that looks weak in the whole scheme is the one which directs the payment of pools to those whose tickets are on the horse that has won the most money. There is nothing particularly unfair about it as every ticket buyer will know the conditions before he buys, but it seems to me there would be no end of hot air discussions as to whether the best horse had won, and I don't think there would be many pools sold on the general result.

The German Government, or rather the agents thereof, who were purchasing horses here in California for the army in China, have at least eighteen hundred head left on their hands. About 5000 horses were originally purchased, of which nearly three thousand were shipped across the Pacific. Over six hundred were sold at auction in this city about six weeks ago, and it is thought the market is about supplied here in California for that grade of horses and there is some talk of shipping the rest East. They are divided into several bands, some being near San Jose, others near Stockton and some at Baden. The horses range in weight from 900 to 1300 pounds, and are rated as unbroken animals. Some are only halter broke, others broke to saddle only, while a small proportion are comparatively gentle and have been worked single and double. But they are all mixed up now and probably no one knows what horses are broken and what are not. If they are sent East and sold they will go to Kansas City, Chicago, El Paso and other points where it is considered they will sell best. The cost of shipping will prevent any profit being made on the sale and the consignors will be lucky if the band brings enough to pay expenses. All these horses, we understand, were passed by two veterinaries when purchased and branded with a G. There are some good looking animals among them.

The pair of horses pictured on the front page of this issue, hitched to a buggy, are the geldings Hailstorm 2:19½ and Pills, owned by Dr. J. P. Dunn of Oakland. I don't know of a pair of horses that look as little alike and still make as good a team. Both are handsome animals and about the same height, but Hailstorm is much the larger of the two in weight, a grand looking fellow with a large, sensible head, a slightly Roman nose and a heavy boned muscular horse. He is by Anteco Jr. and took his record as a three year old being the first great grandson of Electioneer to enter the list. His dam was by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. and his grandam by American Star 14. Hailstorm has trotted a mile in 2:18. He is now thirteen years old. His mate, that bears the appropriate name for a physician's horse, "Pills," is six years old and by Diablo 2:09½, his dam being the standard and registered mare Fontanita by Antevolo 2:19½, second dam Fontana (dam of Silas Skinner 2:17, Flora Bell 2:24 and of the dam of San Diego, sire of Lottie 2:15) by Almont 33. Pills has a small and slender head, is lighter necked and lighter boned than Hailstorm, has legs like a thoroughbred and is also a handsome gelding, though of an entirely different order than his mate. When they are hooked together, however, they act alike and have the same way of going, and can pole in 2:30 handily. No better team is driven on the roads of Alameda county. They are afraid of nothing and can stand long and fast drives without seeming to tire in the least and are always ready to respond to a call for speed. Seen apart they would never be taken for a matched pair but they are such square, handsome trotters and move so nicely together that they attract attention as a handsome pair. If they were alike in conformation few pairs in America would sell for more money. Dr. Dunn has a couple of McKinnys out of the dam of Pills that are being worked by Mr. C. A. Durfee at San Jose. They are very promising trotters, both being fast. Pills could take a low record if trained.

Training Boom at Los Angeles.

Under date of April 2d, Geo. W. Ford, owner of the great young stallion Neernut 2:12½, writes the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN as follows:

I am happy to inform you that Neernut's book is nearly full of the names of the best mares in Southern California.

Walter Maben is working a "salt-grass-grown" Neernut filly of mine at the Los Angeles race track which has raised a sensation among the rail birds. She trots like Neeretta. She is out of a mare I bought at one of the Palo Alto sales at Los Angeles—Florence C., sired by Alban 2:24, second dam Laura C. 2:29½ (dam of Langton 2:21½) by Electioneer; third dam the thoroughbred mare Fanny Lewis by imp. Buckden. After Walter had this filly four weeks lacking one day he went out to warm her up to a high wheel Frazier cart and she did not do a thing but step the last quarter in 31½ seconds. He then hitched her to a bike and she went to the half in 1:07 and the mile in 2:18½. Walter says he can step her a quarter in 30 seconds. He will now give her a slow "prep" and the green one that beats her will very likely go below 2:10. I have named this filly Neerana, and given Desmond & Maben an option on her for sixty days; also on Toughnut, which will surely trot below 2:10 this fall.

There is now the best demand for good prospects at good prices there has ever been in the south. It is now no trouble to get good money for a good horse.

Will Durfee is getting a good string of horses ready to go east. He will surely get some of the purses.

There are more horses working on the Los Angeles track than I ever saw there in boom times.

Over twenty are being worked at Santa Ana track, and there are a lot more coming this month. The track is in fine condition. GEO. W. FORD.

Kentucky Futurity Fills Well.

LEXINGTON (Ky.), March 31.—Secretary Horace Wilson of the Kentucky Breeders' Association officially announces that 1379 mares have been named in the rich Kentucky Futurity, value $21,000, for foals of 1901, which closed March 15th. There is 109 less than were nominated in the record-breaking list of 1900, but is in itself a magnificent showing. Thirty-five States and territories are represented in the entry list.

Among the nominators of ten or more mares are: Patchen Wilkes Farm, Lexington, Ky., 60; Bitter Root Farm, Hamilton, Mont., 55; Walnut Hall Farm, Done-rail, Ky., 42; H. Schmulbach, Wheeler and Lexington, 25; Cochran Brothers, Lexington, 25; J. D. Crelghton, Lexington, 24; A. S. Ashbrook, Cynthia, Ky., 16; Scott Newmar, Jr., Louisville, 12; Half Day Farm, Half Day, Ill., 11; C. W. Williams, Galesburg, Ill., 13; Palo Alto Farm, California, 20.

The 1379 mares were served by 319 different stallions, of which 27 are in the 2:10 class, 59 are in the 2:15, 51 in the 2:20 and 67 in the 2:30 class, making nearly 66 per cent. of the sires possessing developed speed. It is significant that two sons of Baron Wilkes, Oakland Baron, a Futurity winner, and Moko, sire of another Futurity winner, lead the list.

The mares are a choice lot. No less than 291 of these mares have race records from 2:40 down to 2:30. Thirty-three of them have records of 2:13 or better. Forty-six are in the 2:15 class, 68 in the 2:20 and 143 in the 2:30. Three Futurity winners and the dams of nine others are named. Over 40 per cent. of the mares which are either possessors or producers of speed, is a remarkable percentage in a list of this size.

Largest Purse Ever Trotted For.

At the famous Readville track, near Boston, during the week beginning September 16th this year, Cresceus 2:04, king of trotting stallions; Charlie Herr 2:07, who won two heats from him in the $20,000 Stallion Stake over the same track last September, and the wonderful young stake winner, Boralma 2:08, are to meet for a purse of $50,000—$10,000 a corner, and Thomas W. Lawson, owner of Boralma, to add $20,000. Each party to the race has posted $2500, the balance to be paid on the day of the race. It is to be at mile heats, best three in five, and the money goes $30,000 to the winner and $20,000 to the second horse.

The gate receipts in full are to be divided between the West End Nursery and Infants' Hospital and the Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children of Boston. The race will be held under the management of the New England Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, who own the Readville track.

Cresceus has been trotting since he was a three year old, and has always been a sensational trotter. In his three year old form he defeated a field of aged trotters in a seven heat race, taking a record of 2:11½, which equals the race record for that age. He has reduced his record each season, and at Columbus last year won a race in 2:06, 2:06, 2:07½, the best three heat race ever trotted by a stallion. He won the $20,000 Stallion Stake at Boston, and at Cleveland late in the season trotted to the world's stallion record of 2:04. Mr. Ketcham, who bred, raised and always has driven him, is the proprietor of several theatres and a very wealthy young man. He will drive the great trotter in the match next fall.

Charlie Herr 2:07 commenced trotting as a two year old and has always been a very great racehorse. He was bred by the Lexington, Ky., milkman, David Cahill, who trains him, but John Kelly, Directum's driver, does all his race driving. At Boston he won the first two heats in the $20,000 race, and was barely defeated the third heat, many yet thinking he was first at the wire. His record was made at Lexington, and together with Lucille's 2:07 to wagon, is the track trotting record. Many will look to see him the winner, as he is very game and has steadily improved. John Kelly understands Charlie Herr to a nicety, and neither is defeated till the final stride of the final heat.

Boralma 2:08 shares with John Nolon the world's four year old gelding record and has to his credit the Kentucky Futurity, for three year olds in 1899, in which he took a record of 2:11½, trotting the last half of one heat in 1:03. In 1900 he won all of his races, and when dead lame landed the $10,000 Massachusetts Stake for the 2:12 class, defeating a field of twelve crack trotters in straight heats. Lord Derby 2:07 was the contending horse each heat, and the time was 2:11½, 2:09½, 2:09½. The California horse Ellert was third in the last heat.

Mr. Lawson had the horse barred in the pools, as he did not want the public to speculate on a lame horse, and turned the winnings over to charity. At Lexington Boralma won the Transylvania Stake for 2:13 trotters.

In the first heat the $6100 mare Bay Star 2:08, collided with him and was thrown to the ground, Trainer Kinney injuring a leg so that he will always be lame. The mare was placed eighth and Boralma ninth in the heat, which was won by York Boy in 2:10½. Boralma then went on and won it in 2:08, 2:09, 2:08½, and Lord Derby, Prince of India, Cornelia Belle, Silver Wilkes, Alverda Aiken and others finished behind him. Here again the winnings were turned over to charity, this time to Lexington institutions.

Boralma cost Mr. Lawson $17,000 and it was said that he won $40,000 in the pools on the Kentucky Futurity, fairly betting the bookmakers off their stools when he started to plunge. James Y. Gatscomb drives the great young trotter. He is at Baltimore, having been shipped there, together with the stars of the Lawson stables, to get the benefits of more favorable weather conditions and an "early track," but will be returned to Charter Oak Park, Hartford, this month, to be fitted for his season's campaign. Conservative horsemen believe that Boralma will eventually trot to a record of 2:03 or 2:04, and look to see him champion of trotters. He is a five year old and one of the highest bred trotters that ever started.

James Golden, Boston's premier reinsman, believes that, everything considered, Boralma's record compares with all others. Cresceus' race record is 2:06, The Abbot's 2:06½, Charlie Herr's 2:07; yet Boralma's 2:08, when lame in a big field, is fully equal to the other's showing. Boralma never was tried against "time" on a specially prepared track, with special fitting and conditions entirely in favor of a fast performance, and no one knows just how fast he really is. He has trotted fractions of a mile at phenomenal speed and done all ever expected of him.

Weather favorable, the race must prove the event of trotting annals, and a record breaking attendance is confidently anticipated. To date a stake won by Bouzetta 2:06½, amounting to something like $26,000, is the largest ever contested. At Buffalo and Boston $20,000 was offered; also one at San Francisco for a like amount. The $50,000 now hung up heads the list, and never before was it possible for a horse to win $30,000—$20,000 net. Frank B. Walker, of New York, will start the horses, and the judges will be men who are thoroughly versed in all rules of trotting. It was at Readville that Star Pointer first paced in 1:59½. Since then the track has been resold and Secretary Charles M. Jewett is to have a specially prepared track for the great trio to race over when they meet there in September.

M. W. Savage, Minneapolis, Minn., has bought the famous old mare Bonita 2:18½ by Electioneer and will breed her to his stallion, Buttonwood. Bonita is now 22 years of age, but she produced a good colt last year

Turf Notes From Oregon.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

E. C. Payne is working Sunrise 2:19½ and Little Billy (p) for this year's racing.

L. C. McCormick is doing the rustling act for his McKinney stallion, Harry McC, this year, and is doing a good business.

J. B. Stetson left this week for Boise, Idaho, where he will take charge of his stable of trotters that he left there last fall and place them in active training for the season's racing.

John Green has returned to Portland and will get together a stable of trotters and pacers to campaign. Mr. Green is one of the best trainers and drivers on the Coast and should have no trouble in getting a stable together.

Sam Casto says the prospects for a good breeding season this year is better than he has ever known it before. More people are enquiring about stallions than is usual at this season of the year. Erect's book is filling up fast with a high class of mares.

Aug. Erickson has bought the promising two year old filly Lena Mac from J. W. Shannon. Lena Mac is by McKinney 2:11½ out of Mary A. 2:30 by Altamont, and is entered in the Breeders' Stake of $1000. She has been placed in Casto's stable at Livingston Park.

W. W. Smith has bought from Samuel Elmore the highly bred stallion Vinmont 2:21½ by Altamont 3600; first dam Venetia (dam of Vinmont 2:21, Althalia (2) 2:27½) by Almont 33; second dam Tecora (dam of Chelalis 2:04½, Del Norte 2:08, Touchet 2:15, Tenino 2:19½, Lyla 2:27, Coquette 2:30) by C. M. Clay Jr. Mr. Smith will place Vinmont in the stud at Lafayette and vicinity this year.

Mr. Smith has also purchased from S. W. Simmons his big trotting stallion Malbrino 30454, by Malheur; 1st dam by Hambletonian Mambrino; 2d dam by Rockwood; 3d dam by Oregon Pathfinder. Mr. Smith will also put this fellow in the stud in the vicinity of Lafayette, Ore. The breeders in that vicinity are fortunate in having the opportunity of breeding to such well bred stallions as Vinmont and Malbrino.

Lute Lindsay sends the Spirit the following from Spokane:

Howell Peel has two two year olds by McKinney being jogged that are very promising; he also has a fine brown mare by Delpho that is very promising as a trotter. W. W. Butler has a green mare by Hambletonian Mambrino, dam by Altamont, that shows a wonderful gaiety for a green one; he has a two year old by Delpho, out of Lady Beach, that he feels sure of getting part, at least, out of the two year old stake at Salem this fall. D. B. Stewart has Altano, and a green pacer by Encounter, dam by Almont Medium that he thinks will do to go to the races. Mr. Payne will have Sunrise, Little Billy and Klamath Maid, the latter is very fast for a green one. John Lance has a green pacer owned by Geo. Darby, of this place, that is expected to be very troublesome in the green pacing class; he has a two year old by Doc Bunnell, dam by Ambassador, and a four year old filly by Old Ham, dam Narvisa, by Altamont, that is very promising. Geo. McAuley, I think, will have Kitty Caution and a brother to Caryle Carne, put in training pretty soon. Dr. Dutton owns Almota 2:20 (p) that I think will be raced this year. Alau S. is owned here now and will be raced in the 2:20 class. T. S. Griffith has one or two good green ones that I think will be put in training soon. I have Arab, Babe Chapman, Dr. Luhn, Le Roy and a pacer, brother to King Altamont, that shows well, no record.

He Broke the Jar.

"Billy," said Maratta, the artist, "did you ever hear tell how 'Jim' Reece discovered the Grand Canon of the Colorado? He told me about it himself, and you know a more honest man than 'Jim' Reece never lived.

"I had been riding for three days," said 'Jim,' "without striking water, and both me and the 'bronk' was about played out. We had been climbing rather straight up in the air, and I knew we must be getting to the top or something or other. It was growing dark, and I was looking for a place to camp for the night. Suddenly I felt that the feet of the old horse had given away beneath him. He, and I with him, was dropping right down through space. In the dim light I could see caves and valleys and glaciers and waterfalls climbing right up into the air as we fell. It was dreadful. Once we struck a pine and carried it right down with us. Half way down I lost my breath. From that time on I saw nothing that I could recognize. To make a long story short, that poor horse fell 3500 feet straight down. When we struck bottom he flattened out into a regular pancake. And that was the way I discovered the Grand Canon of the Colorado."

"Well, 'Jim,' said I, 'how do you happen to be here to tell the story?'

"I forgot to say," 'Jim' answered, 'that just before the horse struck the bottom I got off. You know it ain't the falling that mashes a fellow up; it's the lighting.'"—Fish Stories in Chicago Tribune.

A Good Book Free.

Tuttle's Elixir, which is manufactured by the renowned veterinarian, Dr. S. A. Tuttle, of Boston, is a remedy that has stood for years the most rigid tests and exactions of horsemen, breeders and farmers everywhere. Dr. Tuttle publishes a book entitled "Veterinary Experience" which is a practical guide for the cure of diseases of the horse. It covers the subject in a most complete and comprehensive way and is drawn entirely from the large experience of Dr. Tuttle in his extended private practice. This book should be in the hands of every horse owner and will be mailed free to all those of our readers who write for it. Kindly mention our paper in writing.

Thinks We are Progressing Rearward.

"It seems to me simply wonderful that we should go on for all these years and instead of improving everything about the details of the trotting meetings, I honestly believe that we are going backward," said the veteran trainer and driver John Splan, while in New York last week.

"I do not remember of seeing anything in the way of a trotting meeting for ten years, either in management or success, equal to that held in Buffalo twenty years ago and more by Mr. Hamlin and his associates," he continued. "I recollect attending a meeting last year at one of the swell driving parks, where there was the biggest crowd that I have seen in a long time, and yet the grand stand accommodations for the public were simply abominable. The public paid orchestra prices for a seat; boxes were sold in the same ratio, but there were more poddlers and fakirs in the stand than one would ordinarily see at a circus.

"Why should a lot of noisy boys be allowed in a grand stand, shouting, screaming, and trying to sell everything, from chewing gum to programs, to the evident annoyance of the spectators? What would Will Davis or any other high-class theatrical manager do if some badly dressed boy disturbed one of the performances? Why should a man object to dressing himself in an attractive and becoming manner when he goes out to drive a trotter before a respectable assemblage? What is there about the position of caretaker of a good horse that would necessitate a man's looking like a tramp? It seems to me that a class of men who own valuable race horses ought to have a refining influence on the grooms. In our boyhood days we saw and since then have had men who earned their living by rubbing a good trotter, and they dressed, looked and acted like well to do mechanics and tradesmen.

"I think Mr. Lawson deserves the thanks of every one who enters a race track gate. I was invited to his stable last season and spent a pleasant day with Manager Gray, who talks horse to you in a very intelligent manner, and he would pass for a college professor. Every horse was furnished with a comfortable outfit and the men who took care of them wore a uniform. I noticed that they were a well-behaved body of men, who attended strictly to their duties and were civil to every one. When one of Mr. Lawson's horses goes on the track, for work or racing, everyone knows by the uniform of the man exactly who the horse belongs to.

"I noticed also that this good behavior, neat appearance and air of respectability extended to the trainer, both in his treatment of the public and his employees, the rubbers. I cannot see for the life of me how a gentleman of taste can give up $10,000 or $20,000 for a good horse and then send some man dressed like a butcher out to drive him before his friends and the public.

"I wonder what that man would say if he went to a gentleman's house to dinner, and the waiter came in dressed in a pair of overalls and a cardigan jacket. I believe that the drivers themselves are to blame. Each and every one of them ought to appoint himself a committee of one to dress himself properly when he appears before the public. And we need not be Beau Brummels at that."

Hyita, the chestnut mare six years old by Dexter Prince—Helena 2:11½, was sold at auction in New York last month, and was purchased by Ed Tipton for a New York road driver for $3700. Hyita possesses great speed and almost perfect road qualities.

Subscribers to this paper can have advice through these columns in all cases of sick or injured horses, cattle or dogs by sending a plain description of the case. Applicants will send their name and address that they may be identified.

Cocker Spaniel, Pleasanton—Please let me know through the columns of your paper what will cure eanker in the ear of a Cocker Spaniel. My little Spaniel has been troubled with it for some time. His ear discharges and the odor is very offensive.

Answer—Avoid meat diet. Give outdoor exercise daily. See that the bowels are acting regularly. Give a purgative when you begin treatment, and again after two weeks. Clean out the ear thoroughly, daily, with absorbing cotton, until the cotton used remains clean, and not saturated or discolored by the discharge. If the discharge be crusty about the inside of the ear, you may use a little warm water with a few drops of lysol in it, to soften and remove the discharge, otherwise use no water to clean parts. After cleaning thoroughly with absorbing cotton, on pencil or stick, dust a little bismuth subgallate into the ear, spreading it around with a piece of cotton on the end of a pencil.

T. C., Ukiah—I have a yearling colt that has a habit of cribbing, or stump sucking; badly he is in good condition and I can see no cause for the habit. Will you kindly let me know through your paper the cause of the habit and also the remedy for same.

Answer—Cause may be nervousness and want of exercise. Standing too long in stall with nothing to do and nothing to eat. A nervous, well bred colt wants to play or have something to attract attention. Want of salt is also considered a cause.

Treatment—A bit with keys or pieces of chain attached to it kept in mouth when not feeding. A salt brick to lick occasionally. A strap around throat and neck, with a pad underneath, is also used.

SEVERAL IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENTS will be made to the owners and trainers of trotting and pacing horses, through the columns of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN next week. Preliminary work toward the arranging of programs and organizing a circuit of harness racing in California has been begun, but official announcements cannot be made just yet. We can assure the horsemen, however, that there will be some excellent purses offered and when the official programs are proclaimed it will be found that those having horses in training will have classes and purses provided that will be worth winning and give all a chance. We are confident that horses with records will have good money to contest for and that the green classes will also be generously dealt with. The district associations have had twenty-five per cent. added to their appropriations and there is no reason at all why good fairs and good racing should not be held in nearly every district this year. On the main or central circuit we are sure that liberal purses will be offered, and we believe that the horse that wins a fair proportion of his races in California this year will bring a handsome profit to his owner. There were thirty-three horses campaigned exclusively in California last year that won over $1000 each, and we believe the circuit to be arranged this year will provide even better opportunities. Several of the district associations will take action within the next few days and by next week the horsemen will be greeted with announcements that will be both pleasing and interesting reading.

ADVERTISING THEIR COUNTY is a question that is agitating many communities in this State at the present time. Owing to the influx of a large immigration from the East, induced principally by the prevailing low railroad fares, and the further fact that the excursions of the Epworth League will bring thousands more during the next few months, progressive citizens are alive to the importance of making these visitors acquainted with the advantages of their counties as places to build homes and engage in profitable enterprises. We would impress upon these citizens that there is no better plan of advertising a county than by showing pride and confidence in it. If an Eastern man visits a county with the intention of purchasing land for a horse breeding farm, and notices the county fair grounds in a state of ruin and decay, he naturally concludes that the horse business is neglected and probably does not pay. If he sees enterprise and thrift among the breeders, the fair grounds in order and horses being worked over a good track it pleases him and will do more to induce him to buy a place and make a home than all the literature that can be sent to his address in a week. A good district fair is the best advertisement and costs less in proportion to the good accomplished than any other method of advertising. If the Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce could but realize the actual profit to a community that a well conducted fair will bring, they would devote more of their time and assistance to it each year. For some unaccountable reason there are boards of fair directors who seem to entertain the opinion that the money appropriated by the State is only made to be expended without any particular idea of accomplishing any permanent good. If they could but realize that the development of the district's natural resources and the upbuilding of its profitable industries can be aided by these annual expositions they would probably put more energy and attention to detail into their work. Every district fair in this State can pay a profit in coin this year if properly managed and the people of each district can be interested in their success if they are appealed to in the proper spirit. There has not been a season in years which gave promise of more bountiful crops or higher prices for everything that the farmer produces than the present one. The district fair should be one of the leading features in the development of the State. We hope that every board of directors will realize this fact and act accordingly this year.

THIS IS THE SEASON when the tracks and fair grounds of the district and other associations should have work done on them in the way of weed and grass cutting and preparation for a general clean-up. While the ground is easily worked this can be done at a much less expense than at any other time of the year, and if the weeds are cut now, the grounds will present a pretty fair appearance next summer. Many of the tracks are only kept in condition on one half their width, but this is the proper time to begin running the weed cutter and the harrow over the entire track, as a man and team can do more effective work in this matter in a day now than they can in three after the rains have entirely ceased and the soil becomes dry and baked. Every district association that intends giving a fair and race meeting this year should get to work now on the fair grounds and order a general renovation of stalls, buildings, track, etc. Hundreds of dollars can be saved by getting to work early, besides showing to the public that the association is alive and active. Take lesson from the good housewife and clean house in the spring.

STRANGE AS IT MAY SEEM to those who imagine that the bookmaking system of betting is absolutely necessary to the continuance of racing as now conducted by the leading associations of the East, we learn upon good authority that many of the most prominent owners and racing officials of New York have been for some time seriously contemplating asking for the enactment of a law which will prohibit all betting on races except by the mutual or "Paris Mutual" system, as it is generally called. The leading breeders and owners who enjoy racing as a sport are fully aroused to the fact that the bookmaker is ruining it and making what should be a purely recreative sport, nothing but a commercial gambling scheme. It is reported that the Jockey Club, the ruling spirit of racing in the Eastern States, has had its serious attention called to the matter and that many of its influential members are in favor of this change in the betting system. It will be a great thing for the breeding and racing interests if bookmaking is abolished, and will do more to elevate the sport than anything that could possibly be done.

ENTRIES FOR MONTANA MEETING STAKES will close April 20th. See the list in this issue.

ED GEERS, the famous trainer and driver, has become one of "them literary fellers," and published a book. It recites his experience with the trotters and pacers, and is a neatly printed volume of nearly one hundred and fifty pages. From cover to cover the volume is full of entertainment to those interested in the harness horse and his development, while the closing chapters contain "Advice to the Inexperienced" which is worth a hundred times the value of the book, and can be read with profit by the majority of those who imagine themselves graduates of the training school. The story of Mr. Geers' life is told in a simple manner without ostentation, and has many highly amusing incidents. The illustrations are excellent, especially the half-tone portraits of some of the horses Geers has trained and driven to fast records. We acknowledge receipt of a copy containing the author's autograph, and advise our readers to send two dollars to Mr. Geers at Buffalo, New York, and secure a copy.

MIXED RACES are the subject of much discussion among the horsemen and owners who campaign on the half mile tracks in the rural eastern districts, and the advisability of handicapping the lateral gaited horses five seconds in these races is being argued pro and con. Out here in California mixed races have never been advertised by the associations and have been given only for local named horses or in club races. Even these cause no end of trouble when the records are being made up for the Year Book and in many instances pacers have been recorded as trotters and vice versa, owing to the failure of the clerk of the course to properly designate the gait of each horse on the books. Mixed races are seldom satisfactory except in club events and even then they are never completely so. The proper way is to keep the two gaits separate in all races.

RACING AT TANFORAN will continue for ten or twelve days after the close of the San Francisco Jockey Club's meeting on April 13th. President Williams of the California Jockey Club has notified the horse owners that owing to the fact that many of the stables will depart for the East about May first, he has concluded to resume racing under the auspices of his club at Tanforan as by so doing owners will avoid the shipment of horses across the bay prior to their departure. This will be a great convenience to those quartered at Tanforan and Ingleside and is an evidence of the desire of President Williams to do everything in his power to please horse owners and make the new order of things agreeable and convenient for all concerned.

A DIRECTORS' MEETING of the P. C. T. H. B. A. will probably be called next week and a number of liberal purses announced for the meeting of 1901. As the Breeders do not own a track, the association finds it gives greater satisfaction to all concerned to delay the announcement of a program until a place for the meeting has been secured, thus avoiding all misunderstanding as to time and place of meeting. We can assure the horsemen that the Breeders will have some very liberal purses to offer this year and the prospects are good for an excellent program and a successful meeting wherever it is held.

PUMPS, gasoline engines, windmills, etc., are necessary things on most farms. Woodin & Little of 312-314 Market street, have as complete a stock of the very best things in this line as can be found in any establishment in San Francisco. If you write to the firm and mention the fact that you saw their advertisement in this paper they will send you a catalogue that will be of great help to you in selecting anything in the way of heavy or light irrigating machinery.

ENTRIES to the Terre Haute stakes, which contain one for 2:20 trotters and another for 2:18 pacers, each of a value of $5000 will not close until May 6th, but owners and trainers can study with profit the list of stakes and conditions advertised in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. There are four other purses of $1500 each and a letter to Chas. R. Duffin, Secretary, at Terre Haute will bring you an entry blank in return.

OUR PICTURES this week are of a pair of horses owned by Dr. Dunn, of Oakland, the handsome stallion St. Eric that Grant Lapham uses as a huggy horse at Alameda, the little mare Cuba, owned by Mr. J. Coffin, of this city, and the Direct five year old Telephone, owned by Mr. A. Innes, of Alameda, and now being trained by Elias Williams.

THE SEASIDE MEETING at Brighton Beach will be one of the great trotting meetings of the year. The list of purses offered is given in our advertising columns of last week. By reference to the paper it will be found that the purses range from $3000 to $10,000, the largest offered by any association in America this year.

Palo Alto Mares Sent to Nutwood Wilkes.

Superintendent Frank W. Covey, of the Palo Alto Stock Farm, is the best posted and the most successful breeder of trotters on the Pacific Coast to-day. For several years he has selected the stallions with which the matrons at the celebrated farm were mated, and the colt sales held at Cleveland and New York show the result. The high average received and the increased prices at which so many have been resold, together with the records made, are proof of the correctness of the statement made at the opening of this paragraph. As will be seen, Mr. Covey will send five grandly bred mares to Nutwood Wilkes this year, and we predict right now that more than one 2:10 performer will be the result of these matings. We look upon Nutwood Wilkes as one of the greatest speed producers in America for his opportunities and mated with the producing mares of Electioneer blood he will certainly produce colts that will trot fast at an early age. One of the mares, it will be noticed, is a daughter of the famous Beautiful Bells. The letter from Mr. Covey to Mr. Carter asking that the mares be booked is as follows:

PALO ALTO, April 1, 1901.

MARTIN CARTER, ESQ., Nutwood Stock Farm, Irvington, Cal. Dear Sir:—We have selected the below named mares to breed to Nutwood Wilkes this season and will send them along as soon as possible:

(Signed) F. W. COVEY.

The Greatest Outdoor Sport.

At the recent convention of Ohio fair secretaries, held at Lima, O., General Sherwood, of Toledo, made an address on "The Immediate Future of the Harness Horse," which was indorsed, and the address, by resolution of the convention, was ordered printed. We quote an extract, giving both the moral and physical view of our public recreations and pastimes:

"The grand plays of Shakespeare are everywhere being supplanted by the frivolous, vulgar and smutty vaudeville. In England, when Edward VII. was the Prince of Wales, only a few royal dogenerates of his fast set patronized the prize ring; but in all the larger cities of the United States the 400 are in the craze to witness the nose smashing and human blood letting of the prize ring. In view of this deplorable degeneracy, the harness horse offers to-day the most recreative and morally wholesome entertainment of all the outdoor sports and pastimes. A sport free from both brutality and blood. A sport free from snut and all immoral trend. A sport full of good health and good cheer. And it is one of the most hopeful signs of the times that the harness horse is taking such a firm hold of the popular heart; that he is more sought after than ever before; that our best men are now patrons of the harness horse turf and speedway and boulevard; that while the stage is degenerating the turf is rapidly mending in morals and tone.

The history of all civilizations, Christian, Pagan and Mohammedan, prove that God made the horse for man's utility, comfort and pleasure. Those who think that any man-made machine, however artistic, can ever take his place, know little and think less. Of course, we shall have machine motors, as we have wax flowers, and paste diamonds and crockery dolls. But wax flowers will never shed fragrance on the bosom of a divine woman, like the God grown blossoms; and crockery dolls will never take the place of real babies. Neither will the counterfeit blazo of paste diamonds ever mock successfully the rainbow tints of the real gems. And the live horse, the horse immortalized in song and story and sculpture and romance and war, will ever be animated and imperishable, man's best and most wholesome friend among the animals.

It is a historical fact, with two thousand years of civilization to verify it, that the introduction of the horse in public amusement has always marked the improved moral tone of every people, either Christian or Pagan. In that period of brutal rule, so vividly depicted in that great historical novel, "Quo Vadis," when Nero sat above Rome, wild boasts from the forests of Germany were brought to fight gladiators and devour Christian martyrs in the Roman amphitheater amid the wild applause of the Roman populace. Later, when Rome was touched with a gentler and more benign civilization, under the Emperor Augustus, the bloody bouts between men and wild beasts were supplanted by the chariot races, where the horse was the main factor of the entertainment."

In the New York Central 2:12 trot, which will come off over the Syracuse track this year, California will be well represented. Among the entries are W. G. Durfee's Dr. Book, Santa Rosa Stock Farm's Dolly Dillon, A. B. Spreckels' Venus II, Maplewood Farm's [olita, and Pan America Stable's Gazello by Gessipor. It's a good bet right now that some of the money will be won by California bred horses.]

Horses at Louisville.

A. B. Gwathmey, one of the popular speedway drivers, has returned from a visit to Hot Springs, Ark., says the New York Sun. He stopped over at Louisville and looked over the horses in training there. He says the track is in excellent shape and the grounds lively with trainers, stable boys and camp followers. Every stall is occupied and the trainers are industriously getting their horses ready to go to the races when the bell taps. He says that Fred Gerken's The Monk 2:08½, in the hands of Fred Noble, is looking fine. The roan pacer Fred S. Wedgewood 2:09½ is also in splendid shape and taking his work like a glutton. The recent addition to the Noble stable, Maggie Anderson 2:11½, is also in good form. Noble's old favorite, Georgeanna 2:09½, looks well. At the same track is George Spear with several speedway favorites, including E. E. Smathers' Alice Barnes 2:11½, that Noble piloted last year and that had the never-to-be-forgotten brush with The Monk on the speedway a few weeks ago. She looks well and a great deal is expected of her this season.

The Geers stable was also visited. Mr. Gwathmey saw both The Abbot 2:03½, and Lord Derby 2:07 work. He thinks that Lord Derby will be among the sensational performers this year, judging from his looks and action. The Abbot is well rounded out in flesh and looks well. Lord March, by Mambrino King, and The Jeweler by Athanio, are expected to be heard from this year. Both youngsters are out of the same dam, Jewel, and both give promise of being fast. John Hussey has twelve or fourteen head in charge from the Patchen Wilkes Farm, and has given up Red Seal 2:10, and others belonging to R. C. Rawlings, but will retain his M. and M. candidate Chase, by Keeler. Roy Miller wanted to send a few head to Louisville, but could not get stable room and will prepare his string at Selma, Ala.

"I did not see a real poor looking horse at the track" said Mr. Gwathmey, "and if they all happen to fulfill their promise and expectations of their owners, there will certainly be wonderful light harness racing this year."

Answers to Correspondents.

A subscriber asks for the breeding of Gibraltar, sire of Lady Tiffany. His register number is 1185. His sire is Echo 462, son of Hambletonian 10 and Fanny Felton by Magnolia 68. The dam of Gibraltar was the Tiffany mare, whose breeding is untraced.

In regard to the "Hutton Check" preventing a horse from tugging: It and the Raymond check are both good devices. Some horses are cured by driving them with a large leather or rubber hose bit. It must be nearly an inch in diameter, and can be made by covering an ordinary steel bit with leather or a piece of hose.

To B. E., Alvarado, Cal.—Call a good veterinary to see your mare and advise you what to do.

Trainer Henry Titer has taken twelve head of the Forbes Farm horses to the Readville track. Peter the Great 2:07½, is the only one in the lot with a record, and the only other that has heard the bell ring is the bay mare Winaka, by Norvau. This mare was second to the Directum mare Consuela S., in 2:13½, at Readville, last fall, in 2:13½, and looks like one of the best prospects in the green trotting classes. Among the others at the track are Admiral Dewey, 3, by Bingen 2:06½, dam by Nancy Hanks 2:04, Gussurro, 4, by Wildnut, Mascouomo, 4, by Arion 2:07½, dam Honri 2:17, by Onward; Zambia, 4, by Cupid; Avignon, 3, by Bingen, and a bay colt, 2, by Bingen, out of Maggie Sultan, dam of Nico 2:08½, by Sultan. The last named colt is a great individual, and Trainer Titer is very sweet upon him. Peter the Great is in fine shape, and will be given a careful preparation for the coming campaign. Peter has had a year's let up, although he was worked a little last year, and if he is not able to hold his own against Boralma, Charley Herr and the rest of the 2:07 trotters, his friends will be greatly disappointed.

The September meeting of the New England Trotting Breeders' Association promises to be a record breaker. With the Lawson charity race, which now seems to be an assured fact, the amount of money to be raced for will be larger than at any previous trotting meeting. For four trotting events already provided for, $70,000 will be hung up as follows: Three-corned match race between Charley Herr 2:07, Creseus 2:04 and Boralma, $50,000; 2:10 trotting class, $10,000; 2:24 class for four year olds, $5000, and three year old stake, $5000. With the late closing purses to be provided for later, and the money to be paid on premiums for the show classes, the amount of money to be distributed will undoubtedly be the largest ever given by a trotting association for a single meeting.

A. J. Alexander, breeder of the ex-queen of the turf, Maud S. 2:08½, is still alive, but Horace Burger, Captain George N. Stone, William H. Vanderbilt and Robert Bonner, are dead. Captain Stone had the mare developed while he owned her and acted as manager of her after selling her to Vanderbilt, and he was the last of the quartet to die. Stone purchased the mare for $350, and sold her to Vanderbilt for $21,000.

Rosa Sprague, dam of McKinney 2:11½ and grandam of Ferenó (3) 2:10½, died last month in foaling. She was owned by F. C. Sayles, of Rhode Island.

Popularity of the Trotter.

[Kentucky Stock Farm.]

The confidence of the many associations that have so far advertised their meetings is nowhere shown more clearly than in the fact that nearly all have guaranteed stakes richer than ever before. Few are the associations of importance that have no $5000 stake, and what was once a sensational prize is now taken as a matter of course. The earning capacity of the trotter and pacer is necessarily governed by the amount of money to be raced for, and this season leads all previous years. Not only are all of the older associations in line, but two new and most important ones that have never been known as trotting associations, come into prominence through their announcements. The trotter has invaded the field of the thoroughbred at Memphis and Brighton Beach, and each is bound to play an important part in trotting.

To-day a trotter becomes, by virtue of his opportunities, a business proposition. He cannot only earn his oats, but a fortune for his owner, and this is as it should be, for while the ideal sport is one that is followed for sport's sake, racing is such an expensive luxury that unless there is some opportunity of winning expenses, none but very rich men can indulge in it as a pastime, and as many of the best sportsmen in America are men of moderate means, the fact that a stable of trotters can be made self-sustaining leads many men into the sport that would otherwise be deprived of that pleasure.

The more money that the associations of America offer, the more good horses will be seen, and consequently racing the light harness horse will improve and the public will attend in greater numbers. Great stakes draw great crowds, but not by reason of the money at stake alone, but because the great horses are to be seen, and racing cannot thrive when playing to empty benches. The prosperity of the trotting turf will result in many new reforms that are greatly needed. Not the least in importance is the improvement over the present entrance fee. Ten or even five per cent, while it may be a necessity to the associations that do not cater to the public, are a drag-net to trotting, and one great reason why futurity and other colt stakes have grown in popularity is that the entrance fee is so small in comparison with the prize. Horsemen have been trotting for their own money, a condition of affairs made necessary because associations were not able to add much to their stakes, due entirely to the fact that the gate receipts were not sufficient to reimburse the treasury. For this the associations are themselves responsible. It is not that trotting is not popular, for no form of sport appeals more strongly to the American people than this, but it is because the public is not attracted by the management of the trotting meetings. The actual contests themselves enthrall the spectators, but the many inconveniences, annoying delays and cheerless surroundings do much to mar the sport. Trotting meetings should be made so attractive that the layman is pleased as well as the regular.

Scannel Issues a Statement.

Fire Commissioner J. J. Seannel of New York has issued the following statement:

"Wishing to define my position so there can be no room for doubt or equivocation in the future regarding The Abbot and challenges from any owner of horses, I wish to state that I will race The Abbot only according to the rules and customs of the National Trotting association and will pay no attention whatever to any one deviating from a strict interpretation of these rules.

"Owning the champion trotter of the world, I am ready to make four or five races for any reasonable amount that the owner of the contending horses may desire, the match to be trotted over the track of the association offering the best terms, and added money to be divided as may be mutually agreed upon."

J. H. Thayer, the Kentucky trainer, will this year try the novel experiment of starting a three year old brood mare in the Kentucky Futurity. The one in question is a filly by Ashland Wilkes, and she will this month produce a foal by Mr. Thayer's fast stallion The Bondsman. The foal will be taken from the dam at once and will be raised on a bottle, while the dam will go at once into training. As a two year old and while carrying her foal, this daughter of Ashland Wilkes trotted miles close to 2:20, and during the winter she has been given jogging exercise. Should this filly succeed in winning the Futurity—and Thayer thinks she has a chance of doing so—she will establish a record that will not soon be equaled, if it ever is.

According to a Boston dispatch to the New York Sun, horse heaven is to be located in the Hub. A petition has been received by the board of health, says the telegram, asking for a permit to build a seven-story apartment hotel for horses on Lansdowne street, in the Back Bay. The petitioners are all wealthy and influential men. It is planned to have the building divided into suites of three and four rooms. The entrance will be through an open court and there will be a large elevator to convey the horses to their suites on the upper floors.

A Successful Horseman.

Mr. William B. Fasig, one of the most prominent horsemen in the United States, and who met with wonderful success in New York City conducting the great horse sales, makes the following statement: "I have known Quinn's Ointment for years; some of its cures have been little short of miraculous. For all enlargements that are just coming on, or of recent origin, it is infallible." For curbs, splints, spavins, windpuffs and all bunches Quinn's Ointment has no equal. Sent by mail or express prepaid upon receipt of $1. Address W. B. Eddy & Co., Whitehall, N. Y. unless you can obtain from your druggist.

SULKY NOTES.

Directly 2:03½ will be mated with quite a number of Hal mares in Tennessee.

Ed. Geers is confident The Abbot will reduce his record below 2:02 this year.

Every stall is full at the Alamoda track and there is talk of more being erected.

A brand new Toomey bike is offered for sale for $95. It cost $165 and has never been hitched to a horse but twice. See advertisement.

Thos. Lawson, the owner of Boralma, has been such a heavy purchaser of horses during the past few years that he contemplates a thinning out sale in the near future.

A brand of cigars called the Charley Herr has been brought out in Lexington. There is a brand of cigars sold in Yolo county, this State, called the "Kelly Briggs."

The Tulare race track is a lively place just now, there being at least a hundred horses quartered there—trotters, pacers and runners. The Tulare Driving Association has charge of the track and there is talk of a meeting in May or June.

There will be sixty or seventy entries for the races to be given by the Golden Gate Park Driving Association on May 30th. President Williams of the California Jockey Club will be asked to permit the club to use either the Emeryville or the Ingleside track.

Senator McCarty will ignore the recent offer of "Happy Jack" Trout, of Boston, to match Anaconda against Joe Patchen, for $1000 a side, as the money is not sufficient. The Senator says that if the other parties are willing to make it $10,000 they might count on a watch.

Walter A. Clark, New Haven, Conn., owner of Indiana 2:04½, reports the fast gelding in splendid form. It is not yet decided who will handle Indiana this season, as "Knapsack" McCarthy has Searchlight 2:03½, and is not likely to handle Indiana also, as he did last year.

Aegon Star 2:11½ was purchased by W. W. Fisher of Iowa last week for $6000, and will be campaigned through the Grand Circuit. Aegon Star is a good prospect for a 2:05 pacer and the transaction shows that good prices are readily obtained for a horse that is not outclassed.

Creseus 2:04, the great trotting son of Robert McGregor, will make a fall season in Orange county, N. Y. The owners of that historic district have arranged to breed twenty mares to the champion trotting stallion and the fee is stated to be $400 by the season, with return privilege.

Racing is now going on in France. Miss Sidney 2:14 by Sidney, won the second prize at Nice last month, beating eight competitors. Maggie Lass 2:14½, won the Gordon Bennett prize. Domera 2:18½, and Quinand got part of the purse. Miss Sidney also beat fifteen others out of the grand prize.

A. H. Godfrey, secretary of the American Hackney society, says he can now trace 250 farms where hackneys are being raised in America, with all the way from one to one hundred broodmares on each farm. F. C. Stevens, Attica, N. Y., is the most extensive breeder of hackneys in this country.

The Elks of Trinidad, Colo., will have horse races about May 20th. There will be three days of racing and purses amounting to $3000 will be hung up. It is intended to give the races just before the Colorado Springs and Denver meetings in the hope of attracting some of the southern and California strings.

Dr. Frost of Worcester, Mass., has sold the pacer Ed B. Young 2:11½ to A. P. Christie of the Worcester Telegram, who intends to use the horse for road and matinee purposes. Ed B. Young was bred at Pleasanton and is by Direct 2:05½, out of Judge Green's mare Lily Langtry, also the dam of Dudley 2:14 by Nephew.

Rey Direct 2:10 will go East in charge of Wm. Cecil, the well known trainer who has given the Nutwood Stock Farm's horses their records. With such a pacer as Rey Direct and a trotter like Bob Ingersoll, both of which are entered well through the Grand Circuit, Cecil should ride up in the front rank in some of the big events this year.

Another evidence of the trotting-bred horse taking front rank among the coaches, and indeed, the evidence is accumulating so fast it is getting to be commonplace, was when C. K. G. Billings' four-in-hand carried off first honors at Durand's horse show at New York last week. Of the quartet three have records from 2:19 to 2:25, and the other can take one whenever called upon to do so.

The most notable sale of the past week in Chicago, writes Palmer Clark in the Inter-Ocean, was the seven year old bay stallion Aegon Star 2:11½ by Aegon 2:18½, son of Nutwood 2:18½, dam Gipsey A. 2:25½, dam of three in 2:30, by Star of the West 2:26½; J. D. Fisher of West Liberty, Iowa, acting for M. H. Tiehenor & Co. of Chicago, bought him from George K. Wenig of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, paying $6000 for him. The report that he will be campaigned is incorrect, as he will at once shorn of his magnificent caudal appendage, with a view of making him one of the handsomest coach horses in America, and as he is a magnificent individual in every respect he should make an ideal coach horse.

California furnished 47 entries for the twelfth renewal of the famous Kentucky Futurity. Twenty of these were made by the Palo Alto Stock Farm, Kentucky, New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Montana and Ohio are the only states making more entries than California. Bitter Root Stock Farm, owned by the estate of Marcus Daly, made the entire list of entries credited to Montana.

At Pleasanton last week T. C., the three year old colt by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, worked an easy mile in 2:33½, last quarter in 36 seconds. An eight year old gelding by Nutwood Wilkes belonging to Supervisor Fred Horner of Centerville, worked a mile in 2:34, last half in 1:14. This gelding has had no work to speak of having but very lately been put into a trainers hands. He is a splendid prospect for a fast trotter.

The most intensely inbred Robert McGregor mare living is, in all probability, the three year old All McGregor, bred and owned by E. Knell. Her sire was Ben McGregor, son of Robert McGregor; her dam was Maud McGregor, a triple producer, by Ben McGregor; second dam Maggie McGregor, a great broodmare, by Robert McGregor. This filly is 16 hands high and as a two year old trotted in 1:27½, 1:25, in a winning race of half-mile heats.

Trainer John Kelly is now at Lexington, Kentucky, with a stable of trotters owned by Alexander McLaren, of Buckingham, Province of Quebec. Mr. McLaren is the owner of the stallion Larabie, who will make the season at Lexington in the charge of J. L. Tarlton, and Mr. Kelly will have a number of young things by this horse to develop. Besides these Mr. Kelly will have several high class horses for outside parties that he will prepare for the campaign.

Martin Cartor has sent three of his mares to outside stallions this year. Lida W. 2:18½ by Nutwood, the dam of Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, has been bred to Zombro 2:11 and the result should be a great individual with great speed. Georgie B. 2:12½ by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ was sent to Zolock 2:10½ two weeks ago, and a sister to Bob Ingersoll 2:14½ has been bred to Bonnie Direct 2:05½. All the other mares at Nutwood Stock Farm will be bred to Nutwood Wilkes.

It is said that the Lawson horses will race for the helpless children of Boston this year. The gross winnings of Boralma and his stable companions will be given to charity. With the exception of the Lexington meeting, every cent they win will be divided between the West End Nursery and the Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children. If the horses win anything at Lexington, that money will be split up between the hospitals of the Kentucky city.

Mr. H. C. Meyer, of Vallejo, writes us that his mare Easter D. 2:27½, that made her record last year at Vallejo, has foaled a fine colt by Gaff Topsail 2:17½. The colt is entered in the Pacific Breeders' $6000 Futurity, and Mr. Myers adds that he refused $2500 for the mare and colt the other day. Easter D. is a pacer, though she is listed among the new trotting performers of 1900 in the Year Book, a mistake probably caused by the fact that the race wherein she got her record was one of those "mixed" races for trotters and pacers, which generally result in records getting mixed.

F. Gomet of this city has sent his mare Mamie Wilkes to San Jose to be bred to McKinney 2:11½. Mamie Wilkes was foaled in 1891 and is a bay mare by Guy Wilkes 2:15½, dam Mamie Kohl by Steinway. Mamie Kohl is the dam of C. E. J. 2:19½ and of Guy Kohl, sire of Genevieve 2:19½ and Guy Kohl Jr. 2:23½. The second dam of Mamie Wilkes is Lady Blanchard 2:26½ by Whipple's Hambletonian, and her third dam the famous old mare Lady Livingston (dam of the producing stallions Western and Whippleton) and her daughters produced Charley C. 2:18½, Lilly C. 2:20½ and Baden 2:24½.

A. E. Heller, of McMinville, Oregon, has removed to Salem with his horses, and in a letter to us asking that the address on his BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN be changed to the capital, says: "I have ten head of horses, mostly two and three year olds. John A. Crawford 2:17 is looking like a bread winner. He is entered in the 2:15 pace to be held at the Salem State Fair this fall. I have a green trotter, Ned Wilkes, seven years old, that is entered in the $1000 2:20 trot, and a few two and three year old trotters and pacers that will make the boys that beat them go some, and they are all looking well."

The New York Sun of March 28th said: It was stated in horse circles yesterday that the well known driver, Andy McDowell, who piloted Georgena to victory in the $10,000 Charter Oak Stake last year, had cancelled his engagement with Capt. B. H. Tutill, of Goshen, and would go to New Haven to train and drive the noted pacer Coney 2:02½, owned by the young horseman, J. H. Bronson, who bought Coney out of James Butler's consignment at Madison Square Garden last February. The announcement created much astonishment, as it was generally understood that Bert Shauk, who bought the horse for Mr. Bronson, would train him.

M. E. McHenry, who drove Anaconda to his record of 2:02½ last year, says that the California sidewheeler is at once the most intelligent and notional horse he ever saw. According to the man from Freeport, Anaconda knows as quickly as his owner does when he is beaten, but he will struggle and try every time he is called upon, provided he is in good terms with his driver. In his likes and dislikes he is very peculiar. This was illustrated at Hartford two years ago, when a strange driver got up behind him. The man was one of the foremost reinsmen in the country, but Anaconda did not like him, and the horse would not strike a pace, until his old driver, Thomas E. Keating, mounted the sulky. Commenting upon the offer of his new owner to match him against all comers, McHenry says there is not a pacer in the world that has a sure thing of beating Anaconda in a race.

Work was commenced last week on the Oakland Driving Club's new track near the Sixteenth street station in that city. The oval is to be five-eighths of a mile in circumference instead of a half-mile as first announced. The turns are to be thrown up sufficiently to make the rounding of them easy for horses, and every effort will be made to have it ready to work on by the first of May. The Oakland Driving Club has nearly fifty members and some very interesting and enjoyable matinees are looked forward to by the road drivers when the track is finished.

Gen. Blanchard, the veteran horseman, who was formerly with Monroe Salisbury, is working a couple of good horses on the park roads and the speedway, and may campaign them this year. One is a handsome bay mare, Brainer by Echo, second dam Lady Dudley by Tom Dudley. This mare is a beauty and although nine or ten years old has never been worked for speed. Mr. Blanchard says she is a natural trotter and he believes she will be speedy. The other horse he is working is an inbred Button, being by Stevo Dameron, a son of Alexander Button, and out of a mare by Alexander Button. This horse is a pacer and very fast. He looks and acts very much like Tom Ryder 2:13½, though he is a larger horse.

Palmer Clark says: E. P. Robbins of the former great jewelry house of Harrison, Robbins & Son, Philadelphia, being in Chicago last week, recalls to mind the famous old road mare Lady Jenkins, owned by his father. This old mare, after a career on the road in which she met and defeated Ethan Allen 2:25½ (then champion stallion), on the snow for a stake of $500, was at 18 years of age bred to old Hambletonian, and the following year bred back to him. The produce was the famous team Charlotte and Lady Hambleton, sold to W. S. Hobart of San Mateo, Cal., for $16,000. When 24 years old she produced a colt that sold for $500 and is now known to the world as Maxie Cobb 2:13½, once the champion stallion.

Entries for the Buffalo Driving Club's big meeting to be held in August next, have been announced by Secretary Sage in a neat pamphlet just received. The Niagara River Stake, $2000 for 2:14 class trotters has 27 entries. The California horses named are Dr. Book 2:13½ by McKinney, and Janice 2:13½ by Wm. Harold. The $5000 Electric Stako for trotters of the 2:24 class has 59 entries. There are two California entries in this race also—Mr. Mulcahy's Algonetta and Mr. Bruner's Harry Madison. In the $2000 Iroquois Hotel Stake for the 2:09 pacing class, Key Direct 2:10, will hold up the California colors, although a former California pacer Agitato 2:09 is nominated. There are no less than four entries from this State in the Pan American $5000 stake for the 2:24 class pacers. These are the green pacers Rajah by Chas. Derby, entered by H. W. Goodall, Domino by Reet, named by C. L. Griffith, Stanton Wilkes by Nutwood Wilkes, named by A. W. Bruner and Thornway by Steinway, entered by J. C. Kirkpatrick. This makes nine different entries from California at this meeting, and represents an outlay of considerable money for entrance fees.

We are under obligations to Mr. T. L. Quimby of Boston, Secretary of the League of Amateur Driving Clubs for a copy of the by-laws and rules of that organization. The pamphlet is very neatly gotten up in vest pocket size. The rules provide, among other things, that no pool selling or book making of any kind shall be allowed at any of the matinees of members of the League, requires that all clubs composing the League shall be members of either the National or American Trotting Associations, and that all performances shall be made under the rules of such parent associations except as to the following: Making of entries, drawing horses, change of program and postponements, carrying weight, distance, accidents and fines. Hopples are barred at all matinees, and the regular events must all be to wagon. All members of the clubs must be amateurs and an amateur is defined as a man who has not accepted wages or hire for his services as a trainer or a driver. Any individual club member who competes for a purse, or against professionals, except in such events as are especially arranged for amateurs, after May 1, 1901, shall forfeit his amateur standing.

Chicago is a great market for horses. Palmer Clark writes in the Inter-Ocean of last Sunday as follows: When, last Monday, 174 cars brought 1697 head of horses to the stock yards market it set the record for one day's receipts and gives some idea of the immensity of the business. These horses had an estimated value of over $250,000. This number included a large part of the 300 head of high-bred trotting stock which were sold at auction during the week by the Chicago Horse Sale company. This sale proved very successful, considering the quality of stock offered, and, judging by the way the Village Farm stock sold, it was demonstrated that Eastern breeders can sell to advantage in the Western market, especially when the stock consigned is of known quality. The general average was good, but, of course, as sometimes happens at auction sales, some excellent individuals went at bargain prices, and at this sale a notable instance was in the case of Chief Justice, the bay pacing gelding with a record of 2:13½. His owner, William A. Simms of Dayton, Ohio, had been offered $500 for the horse before leaving home, and the party in need of that kind of a horse not being on hand just when he was sold, he was knocked down for $270. Breeding stock sold well, broodmares brought over $500 in some cases; a two year old Chimes colt, just broken, brought $505, and a little three year old by Norval King, out of an Onward mare, brought $500. Nearly everything of quality brought its full value, and yet at the same time should prove bargains to the buyers, as the sale gave every indication of the upward tendency of the market. I would, however, advise those having horses for sale and intending to ship them to the Chicago or any other market, to see that they are properly prepared and in condition to show for themselves in the market, or are as well bred to command attention from a breeding standpoint.

THE SADDLE

One of the largest strings of race horses with which any American trainer has ever entered upon a racing career is at the Monmouth Park establishment of Charles Littlefield, Jr., whose "orange, black hoops and cap" possesses no less than fifty-five candidates for turf honors. One six year old, three four year olds, sixteen three year olds and thirty-five two year olds comprise the stable's total, and with the solitary exception of the senior animal, the entire collection were bred at one or the other of J. B. Haggin's great farms—Rancho del Paso and Elmendorf. The Littlefield colors were thoroughly in evidence in 1900, especially notable performers being Watereolor and Sweet Lavender, each of whom played a really important part in the juvenile department of the year's sport. Unless all signs fail, however, the stable's prospects for 1901 are even more encouraging than was so notably the case a twelvemonth ago, and it is almost unnecessary to add that the owner of Rancho del Paso and Elmendorf would be in only a small measure repaid for his devoted support of the American turf were the present collection of Littlefield horses to secure a long array of our leading fixed events.

Ex-Jockey West says that he bought the Missouri bred horse Bill Garrett for $5000 for Benjamin Rigby, the American rider, now in England. Bill Garrett will be shipped to France, where Rigby will probably ride this year.

"Snapper" Garrison is out on the Gravesend track galloping his horses every day and is one of the hardest working trainers there. Politician, a three year old, is considered Garrison's best horse and in a recent gallop, with his owner in the saddle, he showed good speed.

The first produce of Flying Fox has been foaled at the stud of M. Edmond Blanc, just outside of Paris. Governante, representing the blood of Energy and Gladia by Tournament, was bred to the noted Derby winner, and the result is a well grown colt foal. Governante is the dam of Le Pompon, a winner of the French Two Thousand.

Jockey Harry Vittatoe has cancelled his engagement to ride for an Austrian nobleman this season. He has signed a contract with Joseph E. Seagram, the Canadian horseman.

As showing that all is not sunshine in the horse world, it is announced that J. W. Schorr, an enthusiastic turfman, but one of practical ideas, after testing thoroughly that promising colt, George W. Jonkins, decided to cancel all the engagements he had made for the animal in the big stake events of the East and West and direct that he be trained with all necessary care in the work of drawing a brewery wagon. This is a new idea in connection with horse racing, but one which should commend itself. If more of the horses which have been masqueraded as racers during the winter had been similarly disposed of it would doubtless have been a good thing for racing and might have saved much money to unwary persons who have placed wagers upon their chances of winning. While it is true that a chain of breweries might be needed to accommodate all the horses deserving the fate of George W. Jenkins, it is felt that the results would justify an enormous increase in the output of beer. There are going to be a great number of high class racing animals on the tracks, and there will be little room for others. Mr. Schorr's example is therefore commended to horse owners for their earnest consideration.—N. Y. Telegraph.

"Dick" Dwyer and "Jake" Holtman will both be seen here next season. By an agreement completed with Thomas H. Williams, Jr., the two will alternate during the California racing season of 1901-02. Jake Holtman will probably be compelled to depart for the East before the close of the present season at Oakland, in which case F. E. Mulholland has been engaged to occupy the starters stand.

The forfeit list has been published in the racing calendar. The list is an extensive one and includes the names of many well known horsemen. The forfeit list, though larger than usual this year, comes as a gentle reminder to turfmen every season, and shows conclusively that racing men are much better sportsmen than accountants. Many horsemen, it is certain, will be a bit surprised to see their names in the list published in the Racing Calendar, and will doubtless take prompt measures to remedy the matter. All turfmen are aware that the forfeit rule is now enforced strictly, and that no owner who has not paid forfeits due can start horses on the New York Jockey Club tracks. The publication of the list is also an earnest to winning turfmen that they will get the full amount won and due them while racing under Jockey Club jurisdiction.

Henry Queen will be the presiding judge at Nowport this season. His appointment has been decided upon by the Queen City Directors. Mr. Queen has been identified with the Nowport track for many years and is well known to racegoers.

The spring meeting of the Memphis Jockey Club opened April 1st, with the Montgomery Handicap as the principal feature. It was won by the bay mare Larkspur by imp. Scorpion, dam Linderotto by Linden, The Conqueror (Sir Dixon-Repat) was second, and Aloha II. (Aloha-Blanche) was third. Three thousand people were in attendance. The track was very muddy, owing to a heavy rain in the morning and the mile and a sixteenth was run in 1:53½.

The Messrs. Keeno's colt Olympian by Domino, out of Belle of Maywood, has been backed for the English Derby at 100 to 3, the substantial transaction of $5000 to $150 having been booked in a single wager.

J. B. Haggin has closed a deal for the J. H. Kerr farm of 541 acres near Lexington, adding to the Elmendorf stock farm. This gives him over 4500 acres within one fence in Fayette county. The price was $100 per acre. His new home which will cost $300,000 is nearing completion. His purchases of thoroughbreds for March, chiefly from Eastin & Larrabio, are estimated to aggregate about $150,000.

The prospect of high class racing at Saratoga consequent upon the change of management is now sure to be realized, for the entries to the stake events, published in the current issue of the Racing Calendar, are superior in both quantity and quality to those received for any other meeting. There are sixty-eight nominations for the Saratoga Handicap, over a score more than is entered in the Brooklyn, Suburban and Brighton. The extra entries are mostly high class horses that for some reason were left out of the big races which closed much earlier than the Saratoga event. Kinley Mack, Ethelbert and Banastar are among the top weight division in the handicap, while the most notable addition is the black mare Imp, whose owners had not decided to race her in time to put her in the other big races. The increased number of good three year olds is one of the chief features of the list. James R. Keene has entered Commando and W. C. Whitney has Ballyhoo Bey engaged in addition to his four year old Star Bright. Garry Hermann, the Kentucky Derby favorite, is entered, while among the other three year olds that have earned reputations are Articulate and Joe Frey. The four Peppers—King, Prince, Baron and Princess—are also among those who are entered at Saratoga, but not included in the Suburban and other Metropolitan handicaps. The absence of a number of the poorer class animals reduces the entries to the Saratoga Cup, a weight-for-age race, to thirty-eight. Imp, Ethelbert, Kinley Mack, Commando, Ballyhoo Bey and Garry Hermann are engaged, as well as Frankfort, the son of Hanover, which C. H. Mackay purchased at the Marcus Daly sale. Most of the good ones are also entered in the Champlain Handicap, which has been patronized almost as well as the Saratoga. Eight stakes for two year olds have received 828 entries, an average of over 103 for each, while the Saratoga Special, also for two year olds, has twenty-three subscriptions at $100 each. The names of nearly all the best bred youngsters in the country are in the list. The events exclusively for three year olds have an average entry of fifty-two. Altogether, the entries number 1669, being more than sixty-six for each of the twenty-five stakes.

W. C. Whitney confirms the cablod story that he has leased Volodyovski, the English Derby favorite. The terms of the lease—Whitney secures the horse's running qualities for two seasons—were not made public. Petronius was also leased at the same time. John Huggins will continue to train Volodyovski.

A report from England states that Mr. W. C. Whitney has secured the late Lord William Beresford's interest in Star Shoot and other animals of Capt. Eustace Loder's racing stable. The original lease of these horses to Lord Beresford stipulated that they were to fulfill their engagements in the name and colors of Capt. Loder, and thus the career of Star Shoot, in 1900, was under the "blue jacket, yellow cap" of his breeder, although under Lord Beresford's control and management. Star Shoot is a three year old chestnut colt, by Isinglass, out of Astrology, by Hermit, and won three out of his eight starts as a juvenile. He is entered in the Two Thousand Guineas, Newmarket Stakes, Epsom Derby, Grand Prix de Paris and Doncaster St. Leger, and the remaining animals in which Mr. Whitney has acquired interest are the five year old mare Siboli (Sailor Prince-Saluda), the four year old mare Lutetia (Pontiac-Luella B.), and the two year olds Water Chute (blk c by Gallinulo-Concession), Game Chick (blk f by Gallinulo-Tierce), and Wild Seamew (blk f by Gallinulo-Kit). Siboli and Lutetia were purchased by Capt. Loder at the recent dispersal sale of the Beresford stable, but the youngsters were leased by the deceased turfman some months ago.

The English Jockey Club has refused a license to J. H. Martin to ride on the English turf. The reason assigned for the refusal is the alleged rough riding of Martin at Cairo, Egypt, where he was recently ruled off the Egyptian track.

The differences between the New Memphis Jockey Club and the Tennessee Breeders' Association at Nashville have been amicably arranged, by Memphis conceding to Cumberland Park the dates April 22, 23 and 24, and the bill introduced in the legislature to limit racing has been killed by mutual consent.

Another racing bill has been introduced in the Pennsylvania Legislature by Representative Newhard, of Delaware county, which provides that the Courts of Quarter Sessions shall issue licenses to racing associations which shall remain in force for three years: for cities of the first class the license shall be $5000, for the second class $2500 and $1000 for third class, half of which goes to the county and the other to the State. There is also a tax of 5 per cent on receipts to be paid to the State Treasurer for the public school fund. Bookmaking is allowed on the tracks while the races are going on and meetings must be held between May 1st and December 1st, with fifteen days for each meeting and no association allowed more than thirty days in each year.

Golden Age is being backed to win the American Derby at Washington Park this summer by Peter Riley, the well known bookmaker. He placed, by wire, $250 with Jim O'Loary, calling for $12,500. This is the largest single commission yet received by the stock yard bookmaker for his future book on the blue ribbon turf event, although he accepted a bet of $30,000 against $30 on Glona. The best on the long shots are coming in first. Prices on a large number of the horses have been cut.

A correspondent of the New York Rider and Driver writes as follows of an equine marvel, a blind cross-country horse: The horse is owned by Dr. Cheatham of Chesterfield county, Virginia, and is a big upstanding chestnut, about 16 hands, and entirely blind. He goes at full speed across country, and is the best horse through woods and underbrush that I have ever seen, obeying the slightest touch of the rein without the least hesitation. No jumps of any sort are too big for him, and wire fences are his peculiar delight. I watched with a great deal of interest as the horse approached the first jump, a big post-and-rail, about four feet and an inch high. As we neared the jump Dr. Cheatham stopped the horse and allowed him to touch the fence with his nose; then drew him back and the horse flew it like a bird. You would possibly think that a stop like this would cause a delay, but so quickly was it done that he hardly lost a length in negotiating the jump. Shortly after this we came to a wire fence on top of a high bank, an ugly obstacle that tied up the whole field except the blind horse. As before Dr. Cheatham rode up the bank, allowed the chestnut to touch the wire with his nose and over he went. In jumping ditches the horse is no less remarkable; he is pulled up on the edge, and at a word from the rider jumps, with plenty to spare. I noticed that were the ditch a very wide one the rider raised his voice, and the horse in this way knew what size obstacle he had to negotiate. The doctor is a fox hunter of the old school, who loves sport for sport's sake, and who, although past 76 years of age, still rides with all the dash and vigor of a young man. He told me his horse did not become blind until he was four years old, and up to that time he had been a clever cross-country performer. It seems to me that there can be nothing more remarkable than this in cross-country riding and I therefore take the liberty of calling your attention to this unique blind hunter of Chesterfield county, Va.

About 250 exercise and stable boys at Newmarket, England, have struck for higher wages. The pay they have been getting is $5 per week and they want $6. A threat has been made to import boys from America, but there are no Americans available at English prices.

For the first time since he started to race thoroughbreds, W. K. Vanderbilt, the American breeder and owner, has won a race. At Maisons Lafitte racecourse, Jockey Edward McJoynt piloted to victory Mr. Vanderbilt's horse Ontario II. He also finished second on Dido, another Vanderbilt representative. Jockey Rigby also won two races, and a craze for the American jockeys, similar to that prevailing across the channel, is now fairly started.

The first produce of Flying Fox has been foaled at the stud of M. Edmond Blanc, just outside of Paris. Governante, representing the blood of Energy and Gladia, by Tournament, was bred to the noted Derby winner, and the result is a well-grown colt foal. Governante is the dam of Le Pompon, a winner of the French Two Thousand.

The bookmakers in New York purchase fifty tickets each day at $2 which is their fee for the privilege of making books at the track.

The Grand National Steeplechase, of 2500 sovereigns, was run at the Liverpool meeting, March 29th, in a blinding snowstorm, and was won by B. Bletsoe's brown horse Grudon by Old Buck, out of Avis. The event was a handicap for five year olds and upward, the second horse to receive 300 sovereigns and the third horse 200 sovereigns from the stakes. The distance was the Grand National Course (about 4 miles and 856 yards). There were sixty-two entries, of which eleven forfeited. O. J. Williams' bay gelding Drumcree by Asceite, out of Witching Hour, was second. J. E. Rogerson's chestnut gelding Buffalo Bill by Master Bill, out of Etna, third. Time, 9:47 4-5. Grudon led throughout and won easily by four lengths. The betting was 9 to 1 against Grudon, 10 to 1 against Drumcree, and 33 to 1 against Buffalo Bill.

The announcement has been made that the Country Club Grand Annual Steeplechase will be the great event of the spring meeting of the Country Club of Brookline in 1902, and will assure to the home of steeplechasing an event as great as any ever planned as a permanent fixture in the United States. The purse is to be $5000, of which $1000 will go to the second horse and $500 to the third.

The report that S. C. Hildreth, the well known owner and trainer, had been refused a license by the Jockey Club is without foundation. It probably arose from the fact that Hildreth's name was not among the trainers announced by the Jockey Club a few days ago. It was not on the list because he had not made an application.—New York Sun.

The nomination program for the stakes of the Harlem Jockey Club spring and summer meetings is to hand, and presents quite an imposing appearance. The Twentieth Century Handicap has $9, the Harlem stakes 99, the Chicago stakes 106, the Austin stakes 113, the Garden City stakes 127, the M. Lewis Clark stakes 31, the Riverside stakes 84, the Potito stakes 87, the Graduate stakes 83, the Youngster stakes 107, the Provise 94, and the Junior 92. The nominations comprise some of the highest class horses in the country, and prominent stables are the rule all through the list. A most successful meeting is a foregone conclusion.

At the Traps.

The California Wing Club live bird shoot for April is billed for to-morrow at Ingleside and will doubtless attract a large gathering of shooters as usual.

The Union Gun Club will hold forth at the blue rock section of the Association grounds. The events scheduled are the club match at 25 targets, club handicap match, ability handicap medal race and special medal race at 10 targets.

The Antler Gun Club, a new organization, will hold an initial shoot to-morrow on the Empire Club grounds at Alameda Point.

From the foregoing meetings announced it would appear that local shooters unattached will have a choice of several good shoots.

The Union Gun Club live bird shoot last Sunday at Ingleside was well attended, the shooters having the benefit of excellent weather conditions. The birds provided were, as a rule, a hardy, strong lot. The scores made, considering that most of the club members are comparatively novices at pigeon shooting, were very good. The handicapping of some of the more experienced shooters seems, however, to have been a little severe. Pete Walsh being placed on the 32 yard mark was surely a little too strong. The club's second live bird shoot will be held June 30th. In the club race straight scores were shot up by Geo. Thomas, Mr. Bonner, C. Fischer and Mr. Lasoret.

Following the club contest several six bird pools were shot, in one of which Messrs. "Jones" and Bonner were high guns and divided the purse. In the second six bird pool four straight scores won the purse, they were made by F. P. Peterson, Fred Feudner, "Jones" and A. M. Shields. In the concluding six bird shoot, class shooting "Jones" and W. J. Iverson divided first and second money. The shooting on Sunday of both E. P. Peterson and Otto Heins, between whom there is a friendly rivalry, shows Peterson two birds ahead of Heins.

The scores made in the different events follow:

Club match, 12 pigeons, distance handicap, $3 entrance. Side pool entrance $2. Class shooting, three monies—

The Sacramento Gun Club regular trap shoot at East Park, Sacramento, last Sunday was well attended. The Record-Union says: "That more interest is being shown this season in blue rock shooting than for several years past, and there is reason to believe that trap shooting will yet resume its former popularity, when Sacramento sent to State tournaments teams that brought the trophies home with them."

The first event was at 15 blue rocks and resulted: Kinberg 14, Black 12, Palm 12, Gusto 12, Derr 11, Blemer 11, Clark 11, Wendler 10, Cotton 10, Leazer 9, Davy 7, Morgan 4.

In a ten bird match Kinberg scored 10, Cotton 9, Gusto 9, Stevens 9, Wendler 9, Vetter 6, Palm 6, Leazer 6, Morgan 5, Derr 5, Frazee 5, Brown 4.

The Interstate Association's ninth live bird trap shooting tournament commenced at Interstate Park, L. I., last Monday and will conclude to-day. The principal event on the program was the Grand American Handicap, which was billed for Wednesday, but was by reason of bad weather postponed until Thursday. Over 200 of the crack trap shots of the United States and Canada were entered for this event. Local shooters are particularly interested in the shooting of Clarence Nauman and Jack Fanning, who both entered.

The conditions of this event are, 25 birds, $25 entrance, birds extra, high guns, handicaps 25 to 33 yards, $1500 guaranteed and all surplus added. Sterling silver trophy and $600 to first high gun, $500 to second high gun, and $400 to third. All money in the purse in excess of $1500 divided in accordance with number of entries. This event was won by H. D. Bates, 28 yards, last year, who was tied by seven other shooters and won the trophy by killing 34 straight in the miss and out which decided the tie.

On Monday last for the opening event of the tournament, the weather conditions were good and the birds a strong lot of flyers. "Jim" Elliott was the first man up and killed, he afterward lost his third bird. Tod Sloan, who has been a familiar figure at the local traps was unfortunate in this and the following event losing three out of eight and also out of twelve.

In the first event, Monday, the Interstate Park Introductory, 8 birds, $5 entrance, birds extra, 30 yards rise, 50 yards boundary, high guns; 4 moneys, 40, 30, 20, and 10 per cent. Ties to divide; there was a field of 136 contestants, and of these thirty-one killed straight and the money was divided among them, each receiving $21.90. They were: Stephens, Moline, Ill.; Hallowell, Philadelphia; Hoffman, New Germantown; Arno, Syracuse; Mechanicsburg, O.; Leroy, Campello, Mass.; Parmalee, Omaha; Malone, Baltimore; Ralph Nutting, Washington; "United," Schenectady; Lambert, Lynn; Trimble, Covington; Roll, Blue Island; Crosby, O'Fallon, Ill.; Head, Peru, Ind.; Bond, Jessups, Md.; McPherson, Pittsburg; Hopkins, Aqueduct, L. I.; Van Allen, Jamaica, L. I.; Gottlieb, Kansas City; Glover, Rochester; "Tarheel," Tarboro; Ladin, Rock Island; Bartow, Chicago; Feaganspan, Newark; Rham, Pittsburg; Fulford, Utica; O'Rourke, Yonkers; Bates, Ridgton, Ont.

The second event, the Borough of Queens Sweepstakes, 12 birds, $7 entrance, birds extra, 30 yards, high guns, moneys determined by entries, ties divide, brought 151 men to the traps, twenty of whom killed straight and thirty-five finished with eleven birds. The straight scores received $47.50 each and the eleven men $4.30 apiece, the clean scores were:

Hoffman, New Germantown; Arno, Syracuse; Sim-Teal, Columbus, O.; "United," Schenectady; Crosby, Gilbert, Morrill, Milwaukee; "Redwing," Cleveland; Claridge, New Haven; Van Allen, "Tarheel," Budd, Bates, Ontario; Harold Moore.

Ten of the contestants killed straight in both events, making a total of twenty possible. They were Hoffman, Arno, LeRoy, Parmalee, Malone, Fox, "United" Crosby, Van Allen and "Tarheel."

The American Handicap was commenced on Tuesday morning and was continued until dusk the rain falling continuously during the day's shooting. This had a tendency to make the birds somewhat slow. All told, there were 222 entries in this, the principal event of the week, ten of these were post entries, having come in before the second round was shot up. Twenty-one men failed to show up at the score and forfeited first payment of $10 each. The entire amount of the purse to be distributed among the high guns is $5355. This purse (all in excess of $1500 which goes to first, second and third high guns) will be divided down to the 54th high gun, the excess over $1500 being divided from 7% to 1%. At the conclusion of the twentieth round on Thursday evening there were forty shooters with straight scores, among them was Clarence Nauman.

The blue rock traps at Ingleside were used Sunday by a number of shooters for practice. In two 25 bird races the scores were:

"Chestnut" 21, W. J. Golcher 18, Davies 11, Gordon 16, Robinson 22, Hoyt 14, Fischer 13, Klevesahl 14, McMurphy 20.

McMurphy 19, Cook 10, Golcher 21, King 19, Shields 18, "Jones" 18, Heins 16.

The program for the Olympic Gun Club this season embraces a series of six monthly shoots at both blue rocks and live birds. The live bird day will be on the second Sunday of each month concluding in September, the fourth Sunday of the month will be devoted to blue rock shooting. The club members will be divided into three divisions, viz.: champion class, class A and class B. For both blue rock and live bird events ten gold medals have been set aside for the high guns in each division, namely, two medals for both the champion class and class A, and one medal for class B. The program for the opening shoot at blue rocks on the 21st inst. will contain a big merchandise prize event at 25 targets, $50 worth of merchandise will be distributed, the entrance in this event will be 50 cents. Three 15 target races have been arranged. The club purse of $5 in each race will go to the high guns. These races are open to all, 50 cents entrance.

Clarence C. Nauman left this city on March 19th en route for the Grand American Handicap. Stopping off at Chicago for a day or two he tried his gun on pigeons at Watson's Park and killed twenty straight. On Monday last he made a run of twenty-five straight at Interstate Park. In the regular events, Monday, the Interstate Park Introductory, eight birds, and Borough of Queens Sweepstakes, twelve birds; Tuesday, the Nitro Powder Handicap, sixteen birds, his name does not appear among the high scores. Notwithstanding, his many friends in this city and on the Coast are sanguine that he will give an excellent account of himself. He will leave for England on the 18th inst.

The live bird tournament now in progress at Interstate Park, L. I., has attracted the attention of the truly good busybodies in New York and, it is reported, a movement has now been started to secure legislation prohibiting live bird shooting in New York State. Ralph Waldo Trine, a Boston author, is one of the leaders of the coming crusade.

The law which for years has prohibited live pigeon shooting at the trap in Delaware was recently repealed. Probably more shotgun powder is manufactured in Delaware than in any other State in the Union, and yet until the repeal of this law the trap shooters of the State used inanimate targets.

Trap shooting in Arizona will boom this season if the following extract from an Arizona exchange is any criterion: The tournament of the Kingman Gun Club came off on the 23d and 24th, according to program, at Kingman, Ariz. The Jerome Gun Club representatives were: Messrs. Miller, Hastings, Hawkins, McDonald and Adamson; the Irrepressible Needles Gun Club, Briggs, Anderson, Yeager, Weatherholt, Monahan and Burke; Manvel Gun Club, Blake, Brown, Myers and Seehorn; William's club, J. C. Phelan and Livingood. The Kingman Gun Club was represented by Holmes, H. H. Watkins, Cole, Gooding, J. F. Phelan, Lentzinger, Ewing and Hildreth.

A high wind prevailed both days, and the dust was much in evidence, which made it extremely bad for the shooting. However, with all of the drawbacks to contend with, some good scores were made. In the medal shoot, Kingman club, holding the medal, will retain it for this year.

The best individual score in the medal shoot was made by Lentzinger, with Miller and Adamson a close second, with nineteen each, and Holmes good third, with eighteen out of a possible twenty-five. In the miss and out, ten birds, eight entries, Yeager of Needles won, killing ten straight. Club averages were as follows: Kingman 85, Jerome 74, Needles and Williams 62 each, and Manvel 60. Highest individual averages: Miller, of Jerome, first, with 75 per cent.; Phelan, of Kingman, 74 1-6 per cent.; Holmes, of Kingman, 69 per cent.; Monahan, of Needles, 68 per cent.; Livingood 43 per cent., Mrs. Phelan 28 per cent., both of Williams; Brown, of Manvel, 60 per cent. Cash winners were as follows and in order named for cash above $20: Miller, J. F. Phelan, Holmes, Lentzinger, Monahan, Hawkins and Briggs.

The dance given by the Kingman Club Saturday night was an enjoyable affair. The supper was prepared by Mrs. Selby, and was partaken of and enjoyed by a large number, and outside of the unpleasant weather features, everything was pleasant and harmonious throughout. The high wind and dust that prevailed made it impossible to do fine shooting.

The miss and out, 10 birds, was the last event of the tournament, and the evening trains bore the visitors away to their respective homes, with a friendly feeling under their vests for the members of the Kingman Gun Club, with whom they left the medal with a certainty that it was in safe keeping.

Striped bass catches are reported from many sections. A 20 pounder in the ticket office window of the California Northwestern Ry. and a number of smaller fish sent down from Black Point by Pete Walsh indicate that the Petaluma creek bridge and its vicinity will be the resort of many striped bass anglers this summer. Al Wilson and Manuel Cross caught three fish in San Leandro bay that weighed 19 pounds. A number of good sized bass have also been taken in the estuary.

The Board of Fish Commissioners is now composed of Henry W. Keller of Santa Monica, W. W. Van Arsdale, vice C. B. Gould term expired, and W. E. Gerber of Sacramento, vice Alexander T. Vogelsang term expired. The new Board was to hold a meeting late this week for the purpose of perfecting its organization.

The Fly-Casters.

The casting contests at Stow Lake were resumed on Saturday and Sunlay last. The water of the lake was net up to the usual level by two feet. On Saturday, although the weather was almost perfect, the cross currents of wind were of such perverse influence that the casting was materially interfered with. At one time it looked as if the long distance event would have to be postponed. The only line out beyond the 100 foot mark was Harry C. Golcher's. In the accuracy event Herman Muller scored highest closely followed by Walter D. Mansfield and John P. Babcock. Mansfield's score of 87 8-12 per cent in delicacy was made under adverse conditions, the same which kept the other scores in this event below the usual standard.

On Sunday the rod wielders found the same baffling currents of wind to contend with. In long distance the lines would be sent out for 60 or 70 feet and a cross current would then send the leader and light end line back in a loop, thus spoiling all chances for good casting scores. In this event Mr. Golcher was high man with a score not equal to the Saturday cast. T. W. Brotherton was high rod in accuracy. Fred Daverkosen and W. D. Mansfield were the only casters to exceed the delicacy percentages of Saturday. Lure or bait-casting will soon be taken up again. The next contests will take place on April 13th and 14th.

On next Tuesday evening the club will hold the regular monthly meeting and dinner. Several new features are promised which will go far to make the monthly re-union enjoyable.

On the Trout Streams.

Reports from many nearby fishing waters are of much good import to the angler. The outlook for the season is most promising for splendid trout fishing.

Possibly the largest body of anglers assembled at Point Reyes on Monday. The banks of the "white house" pool were lined with rods and a boat or two was used in trolling. Despite the crowd some splendid fresh run fish of large size were caught as well as a number of small fish. A few fish were caught on flies, the royal coachman, brown hackle, red spinner and march brown, 12 and 14 hooks, on gossamer leaders, were the effective lures. Most of the fishermen, however, used spoons and also baited with shrimp, roe and angworms, the fish being evidently somewhat capricious in taste, seemed to take each of the baits with equal favor. The water in the Paper Mill is low and another freshet will allow a lot of big fish in the pools below Point Reyes to go up stream to spawn. Most of the fish caught Sunday were full of roe and milt and would be ready to spawn in a week or two. Among those who were lucky in the "white house" pool Sunday were Chas. Precht, a 6 pounder, he used shrimp and a red fly. Billy Patterson caught five fish, fresh run and full of roe weighing from 3½ to 6 pounds. J. Boswell Kenniff hooked a fine 4½ pounder and also caught a mess of nice small fish. C. R. Kenniff and Dr. C. G. Levisen also caught a number of small fish; these three anglers used flies. I. Isenbruck and Geo. Lane fished near Camp Taylor. Del Coeper gaffed a 5½ pound fish in the big pool near Bertrand's, Tocaloma. Will S. Kittle caught a basket full of splendid fish at the Bear Valley dam, this water is on the Country Club preserve.

The Lagunitas did not yield the results anticipated, the stream being somewhat too low as is Olema creek. An 8 pound spent fish is reported to have been caught in the Lagunitas by Fred Stelk. Bert Spring caught a number of 7 and 10 inch fish working down stream from Tocaloma to the "willows" on Monday. E. A. Levett basketed a nice string of trout on the Nicasio Monday. Old anglers claim that there always is a number of good fish to be caught in this stream when they are scarce in the Paper Mill and vice versa. Nowt Wright and "Doc" Miller caught some good fish, they fished from the "weed pile" down to Tocaloma. Fred Daverkosen and Will Turner fished from Jules to Garcia and were well rewarded.

Some pretty baskets of trout were whipped out of Wild Caten Monday by Jas. Lynch, Frank Staples and the only Billy Ashcroft, who used his big sunflower fly with much success. This stream is in fine cendition. Our anglers discovered that some unscrupulous person had emptied a barrel of lime in the headwaters of the stream. The farmers in the vicinity reported that lots of fine fish had been taken from the stream for several weeks previous.

Reports from Boulder and San Lorenzo are favorable; A. E. Mocker caught a basketful of splendid fish in the latter stream on Monday. A. B. Finch contemplates a trip to Ben Lomend to-day; he will try some favorite flies on the San Lorenzo to-morrow.

A silver trophy for the best dog puppy and also for the best bitch puppy. A silver trophy for the best novice dog, also for the best novice bitch. A silver trophy for the best limit dog, also for the best limit bitch. A silver trophy for the best open dog, also for the best open bitch. In the winner's class Dr. Washington Dodge offers a silver cup for the best dog, and E. Courtney Ferd a silver cup for the best bitch.

Besides these Mr. Albert Joseph, the owner of Bleomsbury Baron, offers a silver cup for the best one of the Baron's progeny.

There is a great interest shown by the fanciers of this breed and there will be the keenest rivalry for the above trophies. The selection of Mr. J. J. Lynn as judge of the Bull Terriers, has given eminent satisfaction to the Club, as the gentleman has long been known as an expert on the breed.

Mr. Henry Jarrett will judge at Victoria, having accepted the invitation of the Victoria Kennel Club to preside in the ring.

Inadvertently a mention of handlers' prizes, of which several substantial ones were provided for, has been emitted from the premium list. John Bradshaw will judge trick dogs.

Doings in Dogdom.

Mr. Phil C. Meyer is not so entirely wrapped up in St. Bernards as to prevent him from showing a strong fancy for Cocker. A recent purchase from Redwood Cocker Kennels of the following red Cockers: Ch. Colerade, Glenwood Rainey, Redwood Virgy, Empress Dewager, and La Paloma; also the blacks: Ch. Polly Pastime, Peg Woffington, Glenwood Nick and two handsome puppies by Ch. Havee, has given Glenwood Kennels a standing in Cocker circles that will no doubt be influential. The dog Glenwood Nick (Ch. Havoc-La Paloma) is said to be a hard one to beat. Mr. Meyer will have a grand lot of St. Bernards and Cockers in the May bench show.

The Boston Terrier is truly an American breed in its present type and perfection. It is a growth of the last quarter of a century. Generally speaking it is a refined type of the old English Bull and Terrier—the "business" dog of today. It is a combination of the Bulldog and the Terrier, which, through years of intelligent mating, has resulted in a distinct type, which could not, in its present jaunty perfection, be produced by any cross of the original sources.

The breed had a hard fight for recognition as a distinct variety, by the American Kennel Club, but through the efforts of the Boston Terrier Club, this was finally conceded by the governing body about 1892. From that date the Boston Terrier may be said to have outgrown its shell of localism, for at New York and Boston shows the entries have annually increased until new the breed ranks with St. Bernards, Fox Terriers and Spaniels in numbers exhibited.

The Besten product became a Terrier of more than ordinary value, until, as much as $3000 have been paid for one specimen, and several have brought as much as $1500 and $1000, while any acknowledged winner can be counted upon to bring anywhere from $250 to $1000, even from breeders themselves, for really good ones are not at all numerous.

In speaking of the popularity of Spaniels, the allusion more particularly concerns the Cocker Spaniel, the smallest of the several varieties. The Field Spaniel has merely the vicarious encouragement of a few breeders and fanciers, and the same may be said of the aristocratic Clumber, named after the Duke of Newcastle's place in the Dukeries, from which the variety is said to have originated.

The Irish Water Spaniel, another distinct branch of this varied family, is seldom met with at American shows, not more than half a dozen being exhibited, as a rule, even at the principle shows. They are the duck shooter's dog and, with the Chesapeake Bay dog, divide the honors of retrieving.

The Cocker Spaniel in all its variety of color, while, of course, primarily intended to be a sporting dog, has become, through its pleasing personality, a companion and house dog. Its merry action and loving disposition has unfortunately, to some degree, been its undoing, for few breeds have suffered so much from the fancier's moddling. In the craze to make of it a pet dog during the last twenty years we have seen all sorts of sizes, deteriorating from the sturdy, active dog of twenty-five pounds, to the little toddler of seventeen pounds that could no more do the work the Cocker is intended to do in heavy brush, than a child could accomplish the work of a man. But sensible breeders have seen the folly of this and the tendency is now toward a dog of twenty-two to twenty-five pounds weight, although the show limit is twenty-eight pounds.

An Invitation to Consolidate.

At a recent meeting of the Pacific Advisory Board the following circular was submitted, read and the Secretary directed to send copies of the same to all kennel organizations on the Pacific Coast:

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19, 1901.

To the Officers and Members of the Pacific Coast Kennel and Specialty Clubs.

Gentlemen:—The Pacific Advisory Committee of the American Kennel Club hereby calls the attention of your club to a few facts, in the consideration of which will be found food for thought and opportunity for profit.

It is the desire of this Committee to serve kennel interests by uniting all clubs under the auspices of the American Kennel Club. In the recent past, this has been not only difficult, but impossible, on account of the A. K. C. method of governing Coast clubs and Coast shows. The points of objection urged in this behalf have now been so far removed that this Committee feels justified in asking general support of the A. K. C. on this Coast and the holding of all Coast kennel shows under A. K. C. rules. The Pacific Advisory Committee came into existence with certain powers, deemed by many prominent kennel enthusiasts insufficient to overcome objections of long standing to A. K. C. rule on the Coast. In time the Committee came to realize the inadequacy of these powers to meet the requirements of the situation. The result was an appeal to the A. K. C. for additional powers, which would constitute the Committee the absolute agent of the A. K. C. in all kennel matters in the extreme West. This request was considered by the A. K. C. at its annual meeting in New York, on February 13th last, and resulted in the granting of all powers asked. An official communication from the A. K. C. conveyed notice of the adoption of the following recommendation:

"That the Pacific Advisory Committee of the American Kennel Club be accorded authority to act as the agent of the American Kennel Club in the following matters, and all such acts to be subject to appeal to, or correction by, the American Kennel Club:

1st. To receive applications for admission to the American Kennel Club.

2d. To approve of show dates.

3d. To approve of classification.

4th. To fix the value of winners classes.

5th. To receive and transmit all listing fees.

All communications from and to clubs or exhibitors to be transmitted through the Pacific Advisory Committee."

These added powers supplement the original authority of the Pacific Advisory Committee to hear and determine all protests and appeals arising in this jurisdiction.

The effect of the action taken at New York is to give the kennel clubs of the Coast absolute "Home Rule," the one all important point, for which the clubs of the Coast have striven during many years. It seems to the Committee, that by this action, there has been effectually removed all good reason for continued opposition to A. K. C. control of Coast Kennel affairs.

The Committee would respectfully call this fact to the attention of your club and request that your members consider the manifold advantages of an A. K. C. affiliation and the holder of future shows under A. K. C. auspices and control, which will insure harmony of wins, a condition of special importance in view of the fact that the A. K. C. cannot recognize any wins, past or future, not gained under its own rules.

"Home Rule" has been the one all-important right for which Coast clubs have contended. To all kennel organizations on the Coast this right is now assured. Arrangements for shows may now be made with the Committee direct, thereby removing the objection urged on account of the time required to communicate with New York. Under the present arrangement, the Advisory Committee is to all intents and purposes the A. K. C. on the Pacific Coast.

It is constituted the court, in which all Coast matters are to be considered and determined, and more than this the Coast surely cannot ask. The Committee feels that kennel interests can best be served through the A. K. C. We adopt this means to invite the co-operation of your club, and in similar manner all other clubs interested in Pacific kennel affairs. The Committee, as now constituted, represents no faction or special interest. It has but one object in view—the best interests of Coast dogdom. Should a vacancy hereafter arise in the Committee, through death, resignation or otherwise, all A. K. C. clubs on the Coast will be given a voice in the filling of the vacancy. The Committee will certify to the clubs a list of eligible candidates, from whom choice may be made, and the candidate receiving the highest vote will be certified to the American Kennel Club as the one who should be appointed to the place.

Good government is absolutely necessary to kennel club success in the holding of shows. We feel that this government can best be supplied through the A. K. C. A consideration of the facts above outlined, we are satisfied, will lead your club to the same conclusion. Bearing in mind the best interests of dogdom on the Pacific Coast, we urge these facts to your attention and request that your club take steps to hold its future shows under the auspices of the A. K. C. A union of Coast clubs on these lines means much for the future of kennel interests, and we feel safe in counting on your co-operation and support.

Respectfully submitted,

The Pacific Advisory Committee of the American Kennel Club.

The Beagle.

Although but few specimens of the Beagle have been seen at our bench shows, this breed and type of the canine family is by no means an insignificant one. In the East Beagles have a reputation and standing that is recognized by the devotion and attention the breed has been accredited by a large following of ardent sportsmen and enthusiasts. The likely qualities and good characteristics of the Beagle have earned for the dog the sobriquet of the "poor man's hunting dog," the term which is an acknowledgement of its sterling worth, is, however, in its application a misnomer.

The Antiquity of the Beagle is more or less shrouded in mystery. Like several other breeds it was probably derived from selection and then carefully bred to a type. It is more than likely that the Beagle is an off-spring of the Harrier, for there are authentic records of Harriers from an earlier date than we can trace the Foxhound. The Beagle is mentioned in the earlier records of sport, and one of the pretty tales of the breed is that Queen Bess was wont to hunt the hare some 400 years ago, with a pack of "pocket Beagles," as the very small Beagle is badly termed. The story goes that they were so diminutive as to be carried in a man's glove. It is to be presumed that a man's glove it these days was a much more ambitious affair than it is in the 20th century, else the hares of Queen Elizabeth's day must have had a fine time of it.

The Beagle has been rather inaptly termed the poor man's hunting dog, and the term is made applicable in this country, where the rabbit is accessible to almost any one. The American hare is different from the rabbit of Europe, and partakes more of the character of the English hare in its habits, but is not as large nor as strong. In England the Beagle is scarcely ever shot over. There they are usually kept in packs, like Foxhounds and Harriers, and over the well cultivated farming countries and grass lands where the hare is usually well protected or "preserved," the Beagles are hunted on foot, and open runs of 30 minutes to an hour with only a check or two are of frequent occurrence, affording an inexpensive, healthful sport to those who have wind and legs to follow them.

In America, however, the Beagle is in most sections merely an agent in pushing the rabbit before the gun, the hunter standing in some fence corner or other advantageous position, while his little Hound drives the quarry before him for a shot. Especially in New England, the topography of the country, where rabbits abound, is usually so rough that it is almost an impossibility for the Beagle to run a rabbit down, for they practically will not take to the open and when pushed pop into some convenient wall hole or stump. For this purpose a fast Hound is not desirable for obvious reasons; a slow Hound does not hustle the rabbit to shelter, but keeps him moving, thus affording more chances for a shot.

The early Beagles in this country being more or less an adjunct to the larder of early emigrants, was allowed to multiply and increase without regard to form and standard and the Beagle of fifty or sixty years ago was usually a dog more on the Dachshund style or the yellow dog of the Southern negro cabin.

It was not until the early '80's and the formation of the American-English Beagle Club that any organized efforts were made to produce Beagles of uniform type with a miniature Foxhound as an ideal. A standard was drafted by Gen. Rowett, of Carlisle, Ill.; Norman Elmore, of Granby, Ct., and Dr. H. L. Tzaddell, of Philadelphia, who are known as the "fathers" of the modern Beagle in America. This standard was in effect until 1899, when the National Beagle Club, which was organized in Boston and is the principal association of its kind in America, altered it to conform to the more modern type of head.

The old standard called for a moderately domed skull. This was interpreted in various degrees; and, in course of time, inbreeding, or breeding with practically the same blood, produced a lot of apple-headed, peep-eyed, snipy-muzzled little Hounds that could not kill a rabbit if they happened to bite one. Some seven or eight years ago several good English bench winners were brought over. These quickly asserted themselves as winners, and among the progressive breeders the style of Beagle which more resembled the clean cut Foxhound became the recognized ideal. Such was Ch. Lenely, imported by Mr. Krender, of New York, probably the finest Beagle ever brought to this country. The decline of the pet style of Beagle dated from her importation.

Then Mr. James K. Kernehan became interested in the breed, and this well known Long Island sportsman and fox hunter imported some fine Hound Beagles from the best packs in England. These have been extensively used by other breeders, until, with the aid of other importations, a race of high class Beagles has been produced that are both handsome and strong enough to do the work they are intended for.

While the Beagle has been long a favorite hunting dog, the few exhibited at the shows in the eighties did not produce that general popularity to which they were entitled.

With the institution of Beagle field trials by the National Club in 1890, the breed began the boom which brought it to its present importance. The first field trials were held at Salem, N. H., and successfully demonstrated, though the idea had been ridiculed, both in England and America, that the hunting merits of a couple of Beagles could be judged as accurately as of Pointers and Setters. At present there are three Beagle clubs, the National, with headquarters in New York, the New England, of which Mr. John Caswell of Pride's Crossing is president, and the Central, with headquarters at Pittsburg, Pa., all of which held annual field trials.

The Beagle men, unlike breeders of some other sporting dogs, have never lost their eye for form in their love for the chase, and, therefore, much time and thought has been devoted to improvement in type and show properties, on the principle that a good bench show dog can also be a good field dog.

The recent exhibition of Beagles at New York, numbering over 100 entries, is a record for the breed that proves its growing popularity. The Beagle is democratic. There are probably more poor men who own good show dogs than can be found in the case of any other breed.

The general impression of a Beagle should be a miniature type of sturdy, racy English Foxhound, with a square effect of whole outline, that is, it must not be too low set or long in the back and shallow.

Taking the head, the skull should be fairly long, slightly domed at the occiput (and not over the eye) with cranium broad and full; the outline should rise in a gentle curve from ear to ear.

The ears, which lend so much character to this hound, should be moderately low and long, reaching when drawn out nearly or quite to the nose, line in texture, fairly broad, with an almost entire absence of erectile power at their base, setting close to the head. This is very important, for an otherwise good head and expression is often entirely spoiled by ears the sides of which face toward one, or, as they are termed elephant ears. The forward edge turns slightly into the cheek to conform to the outline, and are rounded at the tip.

The eyes are large, set well apart, and must be soft and houndlike in expression, gentle and pleading and brown or hazel in color.

The muzzle must not be snipy or cut away decidedly under the eyes, but of medium length, straight and square cut, and stop moderately defined.

The teeth must be level, lips free from flews, and nostrils large and open for obvious reasons.

A very flat skull is a fault, nor should it be narrow across the top, nor should it be apple-headed. Other defects are small eyes, sharp and terrier-like in expression, prominent or protruding. The Roman nose is tabooed, nor should it be upturned or dished. Short ears set on high or carried too gaily are also faults.

The neck should rise free from the shoulder, and be strong without being loaded, and of medium length. The throat must be clean and free from folds of loose skin; a thick, short neck is very objectionable, especially if carried on a line with the shoulder.

As in all running dogs, the shoulders should be sloping, clean muscular and not heavy.

The chest should be deep and broad, but not so much so as to interfere with free play of the shoulders.

The back should be short, muscular and strong, with broad loin slightly arched, with ribs well sprung, giving plenty of heart and lung room.

The defects are very long back, swayed or roached, or a flat, narrow loin. Flat ribs are also faults.

The forelegs and feet are very important. The legs should be straight, with plenty of bone, and pasterns straight and short; feet close and round and not long and spreading. The forelegs must not be cut at elbows, nor the knees knuckled over. The hips and thighs are strong and well muscled, affording lots of propelling power; stiles strong and well let down; hocks firm, symmetrical and moderately bent. Cow hocks or straight hocks are abominations in this breed.

The tail gives lots of character and style to this dog, and should be set moderately high and carried gayly, but not by any means over the back, and with a slight curve, and with a fringe, called brush, on the under side. A rat tail won't do; neither will a long one.

The coat, as in all Hounds, must be close, hard and of medium length.

Beagles are divided into several heights, but here we usually provide two divisions, under 13 inches, and over, up to 15 inches.

The colors are black and tan, tan and white, or the three colors, tan, but never black and brindle, liver or black.

The body and legs count the most points.

Cured Two Bone Spavins of Ten Years' Standing.

EARLYVILLE (N. Y.), March 11, 1901.

DR. J. B. KENDALL CO., ENOSBURG FALLS, VT.
Gentlemen:—Some years ago I used your Kendall's Spavin Cure on a horse that had two bone spavins, and it removed them entirely. These spavins had been on him from birth, and were of ten years' standing. I now have a case of a mare that was injured by falling through a bridge, and am going to give her complete treatment with your Spavin Cure. Please send me a copy of your "Treatise on the Horse and His Diseases." Very truly yours,

THE FARM.

Thinks Holsteins the Best.

W. J. Gillette of Wisconsin, in speaking of the breed best adapted for grading up the dairy herd said: It is one bred for hundreds of years along the lines of profitable milk, butter, veal and beef production; one that has been entirely dependent upon the dairy the dairy cow and her produce; the one that claims Holland as the land of her nativity, but to-day the Holstein-Friesian of America.

I do not maintain that all good cows are Holstein-Friesians, nor do I claim that all Holstein-Friesians are good cows. In any of the breeds there will be found inferior animals, in fact, whole herds that are of a very ordinary character, where it would be better for the owner, as well as for the breed, to consign them to the block rather than work with the object of profit in view.

I believe success with any breed largely depends upon the matter of selection of the proper type of animal and next the manner in which that animal is handled and developed.

The Holstein-Friesian in point of size is the largest of the distinct dairy breeds and I believe that size is a very desirable characteristic of the dairy animal; not only that, but all other factors being equal, I believe that size is a very desirable characteristic in different individuals of the different breeds. I believe that size has a bearing upon the economical production of milk and butter and that the relation of size to economy of production is favorable to the large breed. From "Feeding Animals," by the late E. W. Stewart, whose authority is recognized as being reliable, I quote the following: "It may be stated as a general law, that the food of support decreases proportionately with the decrease of size in animals—this probably in proportion to the area of outside surface of the animal."

He further states: "We must conclude that size—all other things being equal—is favorable to the economical yielding of milk, that it actually takes less food to produce 100 pounds of milk with a cow of equal merit, weighing 1000 pounds, than with one weighing 800 pounds." Mr. Stewart bases his conclusions upon data furnished by several prominent experimenters of Europe, where numerous very searching trials were conducted for the purpose of determining the effect of size upon food of support and the relation of food to quantity of milk produced, in dairy cows of different weights. This is certainly a point worthy of the careful consideration of the practical dairyman of this country and that the Holstein-Friesian has a decided advantage in point of size no one can gainsay. Right along this line are two other points that must not be overlooked, namely, beef and veal. The dairyman must bear in mind that fifty per cent. of the increase of his herd will be males and must be disposed of as veal, and here I venture the statement that as a rule, the Holstein-Friesian calf at birth is the largest calf in the world, those of none of the beef breeds excepted. This fact, together with their thrift and qualifications to take on flesh, makes them a very desirable and profitable animal for vealing purposes.

Touching upon this subject, W. S. Carpenter says: "In my experience of seven years in the packing house markets and from various other sources, I find that the Holstein veal calf is considered one of the finest and most profitable carcasses to put upon the block." Of the other fifty per cent. increase of the herd, seventeen per cent. will prove, for various reasons, undesirable for dairy purposes and must be consigned to the block. Now, we do not claim that we have the best beef breed, but we do claim that of the distinct dairy breeds ours is the best for beef and this from the fact that they are large in size, broad in their conformation and take on flesh rapidly when not in milk. I do not claim that a first class beef animal and a first class dairy cow can be had in the same animal, but the fact still confronts us that about sixty-seven per cent. of the increase of the dairy herd is unfit for profitable dairy work. Injuries to udders, failures to breed, sorting out and many other causes which render the cow undesirable for dairy purposes are constantly making inroads upon the best herds in the land, and it is not far out of the way to say that the best kept herds are revolutionized at least every ten years, hence give us the general purpose cow. By general purpose I mean a good milch cow and a cow that can be sold for beef when her days of usefulness in the dairy are ended.

Formaldehyde.

A correspondent who is interested in the question, requests us to give a somewhat explicit account of formaldehyde, and its effects on the digestion when used in milk.

Formaldehyde is one of the most powerful of antiseptics. It prevents putrefaction, and for this purpose it is used in embalming the dead. It is made from wood alcohol, and has an odor something like witch hazel.

Its deadly effects, when taken into the stomach, may be judged by the fact that in a well-authenticated case in Ohio speedy death resulted to a patient to whom half a teaspoonful had been given by mistake.

It is used in milk and cream to prevent souring and it is customary to use about a teaspoonful of this poison to ten gallons of milk. This makes a proportion of one part formaldehyde to 12,000 parts milk, while the best authorities state that one part of this poison to 100,000 parts of milk is injurious.

Formaldehyde is used of late to coagulate and toughen the blood of animals, by which a new variety of billiard ball is made. Our correspondent can judge whether such an agent is a healthful one to take into the stomach. Its effect is to harden and toughen all tissues, living or dead, with which it comes in contact. No honest milk producer or milk dealer, will use such a compound in his milk.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Good or Indifferent Care.

A dairyman peddling milk to a city buyer had forty-three cows that gave sixty gallons of milk per day, writes a correspondent to the Home and Farm. He suddenly discharged his herdsman. In three weeks after hiring a new man the milk flow increased eighty quarts per day, after which no more gain was made. This gain held during the winter and represented an increase of $4 cash value per day. The cows received the same amount and quality of feed as formerly—4 A. M., clover hay; 7 A. M. wet brewers' grain. Brewers' grain cost $1.25 per day for the forty-three head. After graining them they were watered in the barn. The barn was then cleaned and the feeding floor swept, all of which was finished by 11 A. M. They were watered again at 3 P. M. and then fed corn meal and shorts, mixed two to one, six to eight pounds being given each cow. Corn fodder was then supplied and they were milked at 4 P. M. The first man had a sullen temper, rarely spoke, had little experience and paid no special attention to the feeding capacity of the individual cows. The second man did his very best in everything, had a liking for the work, and fed each cow according to her capacity. He was punctual and quiet.

SAN FRANCISCO, SATURDAY, APRIL 13, 1901.

SUBSCRIPTION
THREE DOLLARS A YEAR

1—Bay filly, foaled Nov. 1899, by McKinney, dam by Boodle; owned by F. Hahn, San Francisco. 2—Prince Onward, b g, by Egyptian Prince-Leap Year 2:26; owned by J. W. Thoms, Alameda.
3—Hermia 2:19½ by Soudan; owned by F. Sweitzer, San Francisco. 4—May Melody, blk m. by Secretary; owned by W. Ford Thomas, San Francisco.
5—Sir Albert S., b g, by Diablo; owned by Wm. G. Layng, San Francisco.

JOTTINGS.

PRINCE ONWARD, whose "counterfeit presentment" is on the front page of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN this week, is owned by Mr. J. W. Thoms of Alameda, and is one of the handsome horses driven over the clean macadamized streets, which are the rule in the little peninsula city across the bay. My camera got a fair likeness of Prince Onward last Sunday at Alameda as he was hitched to a buggy in which were seated his owner and Mr. Chas. S. Neal. He is a horse of excellent manners and has a large share of good looks. He is a bay, about 15.3 and will weigh probably 1050 or 1100 pounds. I forgot to ask Mr. Thom his height and weight and am only guessing at it. Prince Onward was sired by Egyptian Prince 14431, a son of El Mahdi 5232, he by Onward. The dam of Prince Onward is Leap Year 2:26½ by Tempest 1881; second dam Eulogy (dam also of Iago 2:11) by Commodore Belmont; third dam Gracie H. by Fancy Goldust, and fourth dam the Hulse mare (dam of Goldust 150) by Zileadi Arabian.

Hermia 2:19½, the bay mare by Soudan that Mose Hart raced last year, was on the track Sunday being worked by her present owner, F. Switzer. Hermia was a pacer last year, but has recently concluded to trot and worked a nice mile Sunday in 2:30, last quarter in 34 seconds. She may be raced this year and will probably start in the Golden Gate Park Driving Association races.

Hans Frelson took Capt. Thomas' handsome black mare May Melody by Secretary to Alameda on Sunday and will work her there. May Melody is a very speedy pacer, having shown eighths in 15, and quarters in 30 seconds. She was worked a mile last year in 2:18, and is thought to be an excellent prospect for the green classes this year if raced.

Sir Albert S. is the title that William G. Layng, former editor of this journal, bestowed upon a gelding by Diablo 2:09½, which he bred. There is as much bone and muscle in Sir Albert S. as in any horse of his size I ever saw. His muscles are like those of Sandow, the athlete, as they stand out all over him and show that he has great power. He has speed to burn, an eighth in 14½ seconds being to his credit in a workout. He has never started though he was in training last year and well entered in the California circuit. A car accident first threw him out of training and a blind splint prevented his getting back to work during the season. Every horse owner in California is enthusiastic over him, and Mr. Layng tells us that the greatest praise he has heard of his pacer came from the lips of Orrin Hickok and Budd Doble, two of the greatest horsemen in America. The sire of Sir Albert S. is Diablo 2:09½, dam Effie Logan by Durfee 11256, second dam Ripple (sister to Creole 2:15) by Prompter 2305, third dam Grace (dam of Dadaelion 2:11, Creole 2:15 and Eagle 2:19½) by Buccaneer 2656, fourth dam Mary (dam of Apex 2:26 and granddam of Welcom 2:10½, Wayland W. 2:12½, etc.) by Flaxtail, fifth dam by Bright Eyes a son of the thoroughbred horse Boanerges. Durfee, sire of the dam of Sir Albert S., is the sire of Shecam 2:14½, Sid Durfee 2:20½ and Billy M. 2:22, and was by Kaiser son of George Wilkes and sire of the dam of Coney 2:03½. Sir Albert S. was foaled July 27, 1896.

The McKinney filly whose handsome picture, taken while feeding, adorns a corner of the front page is but fourteen months old, having been foaled in November, 1899. I think she is about the handsomest turned filly I have seen this year and the McKinney-Boodle cross is certainly a prize one for good looks. This filly is owned by Fred Hahn of this city, who also owns Addison 2:11½ and who sold Waldo J. 2:08 a few months ago to Hawaiian parties. The dam of this filly is a full sister to Thompson 2:14½. Mr. Hahn says he will train the filly, give her a record and then breed her to Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½. She ought to produce a whirlwind trotter from that mating.

A mare dropped dead on the Alameda track on Thursday of last week and when she died a match race was off that threatened to outrival anything that has been seen in California history. Two prominent road drivers of San Jose named Becker and Rice owned a mare called the McClay mare. They thought she could beat Star Pointer when just right and the Pointer horse not on edge. They were in San Francisco a few weeks ago and heard Messrs. Sprague and Peterson of this city, owners of the well known pacer Localer, extolling the speed of their horse. A match was made after a liberal expenditure of hot air, and the race, a mile dash, was to have come off at the Alameda track last Saturday for $100 a side. The match was kept dark, as there is no fence around that track and it was feared by the match makers that all the horse loving people from San Jose, San Francisco and Oakland would be there and crowd the grounds so that the race could not be held. On Thursday the San Jose mare was taken to the track to be worked a little, and after being hooked to a bike was driven on to the course. She was started at a jog and on rounding the first turn, gave up the ghost and laid down and died. The admirers of Localer sneeringly say that the sight of a race track was too much for the San Jose animal, as she was raced years ago in her youth and had probably begun to think that no such hard work as a race was to be given her again.

A bay colt is running by the side of Black Line, a mare at Martin Carter's Nutwood Stock Farm, that is worthy of notice for his blood lines alone. He is a handsome looking little fellow about two weeks old. Just make a note of the crosses in his veins as I give them. He is by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, he by Guy Wilkes out of Lida W., a Nutwood mare. His dam, Black Line, is by Direct Line, son of Director and Lida W., the dam of Nutwood Wilkes. The second dam is Lou G. (dam of Bob Ingersoll 2:14½ and Who Is She 2:25) by Albert W. 2:20, son of Electioneer. There are two crosses of Nutwood, through Lida W., a Wilkes cross, one of Electioneer and one of Director. If there is anything better than this combination of blood I don't know where one would go to find it, and the little fellow that is stretching his limbs in the Nutwood Stock Farm paddocks is related to pretty nearly all the champion pacers and trotters in America. I like these two crosses of Nutwood through Lida W. 2:18½. If she had never done anything but produce Nutwood Wilkes she would be great, but she was a good race mare herself, her son Direct Line has a record of 2:29 and has sired one with a record of 2:22½. Nutwood has sired more standard performers than any other stallion, and more of his daughters are producers and have produced more 2:15 performers than any other stallion. Guy Wilkes was a champion sire of winners, Electioneer is the greatest progenitor of extreme speed and Director was a champion and the sire of such champions as Directum 2:05½ and Direct 2:05½. Is there anything more royal than this breeding? We wet not.

King Cadenza 2:15½ will go East with the horses that leave California to race in the East this year. He has not been entered in any of the early closing events, as his owner, Mr. H. H. Dunlap of this city, but recently concluded to race him over the mountains. King Cadenza is eligible to the 2:16 pacing classes and there are many races for him that close later on. The son of Steinway is so much heavier and stronger than when Mr. Dunlap first got him that one would hardly recognize the horse. I saw him at the Alameda track last Sunday and he is certainly a hundred and fifty or two hundred pounds heavier than he was two years ago. Then he was a thin, scrawny looking gelding with a dead looking coat, and while he would always show speed on the track or road when another horse came alongside, when alone he seemed to lose all ambition and acted like a sick horse. Now, he is round and broad, his coat shines like satin and he gives every evidence of feeling like a new horse. That he was fast and game was shown last year on the California circuit. He won two races, was second in one, and placed over $1000 to his credit. As he started but four times, this is a good showing for a horse handled by an amateur driver, as Mr. Dunlap never trained a horse or drove a race until he purchased the King. I should not be at all surprised if King Cadenza paced to a mark of 2:10 or better this season.

Pays Him to Advertise.

The following letter was received by the editor of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN this week and is self explanatory:

HAYWARDS, April 9, 1901.

EDITOR B. & S.—From the number of mares and inquiries I am receiving about Educator from a distance, I feel indebted to you for the advice given me some time ago to advertise; that the proper way to place the horse before the public would be through the columns of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN and so far I find it very satisfactory. The latest mare received is a very fine thoroughbred by imp. Friar Tuck, which was sent up from the Oakland track. She is certainly a fine individual. I am also pleased to say that no one has come to see Educator with view to breed that has gone elsewhere.

Yes, the advertising is all right, not only in the stallion line, but you remember the good sale I made to the party from the Islands. I might have had the mare yet had it not been for the ad I noticed in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. Again thanking you.

Yours truly, M. HENRY, Haywards.

Answers to Correspondents.

G. L., Henleyville, Cal.—Geo. Wapple is a chestnut horse with a pacing record of 2:25, made at Willows, Cal., in 1893. He was eleven years old at the time. Geo. Wapple was bred by Charles Sherman of Chico. He was sired by Brigadier 797, dam Lucy by Copperbottom.

"Breeder and Sportsman" by Wilkes Direct.

Mr. S. M. Henley, a stock breeder of Nevada, recently offered T. W. Barstow a carload of horses which he said are worth one hundred dollars each, in exchange for a three weeks' old colt by Wilkes Direct 2:22½ (full brother to John A. McKerron 2:09) out of Princess Airlie, a mare by Prince Airlie 28045, dam Minnie Princess by Nutwood. Prince Airlie is by Guy Wilkes 2:15½ and his dam was Chantilly (dam of Chanty 2:13½ and Cascade 2:14½) by Nutwood, second dam Crepon (dam of 6 in 2:30) by Princeps, third dam Crape Lisse (dam of Braid 2:10½ and two more in 2:30) by Geo. Wilkes. The dam of Princess Airlie was Minnie Princess (dam of Leonora 2:25) by Nutwood, second dam Belle by Paul's Abdallah, third dam Kate Crockett by Langford, son of Williamson's Belmont, fourth dam Fanny by American Boy Jr., etc. This gives the little colt, which has been given the name BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, three crosses of Nutwood, three of Geo. Wilkes, three of Williamson's Belmont, three of American Star 14 and last, but not least by any means, one of Director 2:17, sire of Directum 2:05½, and one of Echo, sire of the dam of Direct 2:05½. We feel complimented that a valued patron and subscriber should name such a royally bred colt after this journal, and hope that he will be a worthy descendant of his illustrious ancestors. As showing how the prices of horses have changed during the past few years we will state that at the closing out sale of the Corbitt farm in 1898, Prince Airlie, sire of the dam of this colt, and whose breeding is given above, was sold for $270, and was shipped to South Africa. Bred as he is, he would readily sell for five times that price were he in America to-day. At the same sale Minnie Princess, dam of Mr. Barstow's colt sold for $30, and now a carload of horses is offered for her three weeks' old foal. As ordinary range horses are selling at $50 a head in San Francisco at the present time, it will be seen that the investment of $30 in Minnie Princess and the breeding of her to Wilkes Direct was a profitable one.

Notes From the Sacramento Track.

SACRAMENTO (Cal.), April 4, 1901.

There are about thirty horses now stabled at the track here and it reminds one that the racing season is near at hand.

The track is getting good and they can work fast miles if they so desire and their horses have the necessary speed.

Vet Tryon is handling some green ones. Jumbo by Silver Bow stopped an eighth for him in 16 seconds the other day. This horse is fast and barring accidents will step in 2:10 this year.

J. Pender has Captain Jones by McKinney. He worked a handy mile in 2:40. Mr. Pender has another colt by McKinney that is showing speed.

H. S. Hogoboom has Stam B. 2:11½ in the stud and several green ones he is working. Stam B. has as much speed as ever and stepped a quarter in 32 seconds last week.

O. J. Holmes has a green pacer from Davisville that all the boys are watching. "Ho will pace your eye out," is the remark, and if he is not a winner I will miss it. Lanky Bob by Waldstein is another good one in Mr. Holmes' string.

Geo. Beckers says business is good with Zombro, and I notice that he is having some very high class mares shipped to him. Mr. Carter's great mare Lida W. 2:18½ by Nutwood was bred to Zombro last week.

Mrs. E. W. Callendine's Abdine worked a mile easily in 2:27 the other day, and Chas. Cline's herso worked in 2:30.

Chris Jurgonsen has quite a stable of green ones. He has a Diablo that is showing race horse speed. L. M. Clark has a string of green ones that are very promising.

Mr. Marten is working early and late to keep the track in good shape, and we think it is the best track in the State at present. All are wondering when the State Fair announcements are going to be made and what they will offer the harness horses this year.

WILITA.

The Way Shults Will Breed Them.

Mr. John H. Shults, "the king of the auction buyers," showed me a list of the mares he will this season breed to Axworthy 2:15½ and The Earl 2:17, writes Percy in New York Telegraph. He sends to Axworthy Bellwood A. 2:07½, Sunol 2:08½, Brightlight 2:08½, Lenna N. 2:05½, Laurel 2:09½, Magnolia 2:09½, Gold Leaf 2:11½, Belleflower 2:12½, Nyanza 2:12½, Pasente 2:13, Kitty Bayard 2:11½, Town Lady 2:11½, Lillian Wilkes 2:17½, Russella (sister to Maud S. 2:08½), Lucy Wilton, dam of the $9000 stallion Gayton 2:08½; Mystic, dam of Fred Kohl 2:07½; Nell, dam of Vassar 2:08; Belle Vera 2:08½, Susie T. 2:09½ and others—surely the best lot of prospective speed producers possible for one man to own. Sunol is champion trotter to high wheel sulky, Lillian Wilkes is the only trotter that ever defeated her, Belleflower is the fastest of the "Beautiful Bells family," and a sister to Chimes, the sire of The Abbot 2:03½; Nell, one of the very greatest extreme speed producers, and Lenna N.'s record, when made, was the champion pacing mare's record. I hope the master of Parkville may have splendid luck with the royally bred youngsters these wonderful mares may produce. To The Earl 2:17 he will send Susie T. 2:09½, Georgie Lee 2:12½, Elfrida 2:13½, trial at the Bonner Farm 2:08½; Clorine 2:13½, Falfa, two year old record 2:20; the first of the Allerton trotters, Secret 2:26½ by Secretary and Myra 2:29½, besides several highly bred unmarked mares. He will have a very great speed sire in The Earl, as he is one of the best ever bred at Village Farm.

Horse News from Reno, Nevada.

The Nevada State Fair grounds are undergoing quite a change for the better under the supervision of Senator P. L. Flanigan, President of the Board of Directors. An entirely new fence is being built around the property, the rocks and gravel are being removed from the course and a top dressing of clay will be placed on the track. This is a great improvement as there was poor footing for horses on the old course.

The pavilion is being moved from town to the track and Mr. Flanigan will commence work in a few days on his own account, laying a track from Fourth street to the Fair grounds, on which electric cars will carry passengers to the track for five cents.

There are but two strings of horses being worked here at present, but more are coming as soon as the track is completed.

C. P. Ferrell has the fast pacing mare Peggy 2:17, and the runner Wing. Both are looking fine and I expect to see Peggy return from California, where she will be raced this year, with a mark below 2:10.

Lottie G. will not be raced this year owing to an accident in a collision last fall at Sacramento. She had her right shoulder badly bruised and it is doubtful if this good mare will ever race again.

Mrs. E. J. Schwartz has a few gallopers working and they are going to suit the trainer. One of them is, I think, the handsomest colt ever saddled. He is a bay stallion, two years old, by Mafada-Agnes, and carries the name of Adafam. Another is a two year old by Uncle Giles and looks like a good prospect.

Aunt Bird will foal in a few days. She was bred to Joe Terry last season.

Odd Eyes, the Burns & Waterhouse cast off is going sound again after having a tendon cut entirely off last fall. She has developed wonderfully and is more quiet and business like than before. She will be ready to break another State record this fall. Mrs. S. is now ready to match her against any horse in Nevada from one half mile to a mile and a half for $500 a side. This goes for any horse owned in this State.

The stallion Joe Terry has 32 mares booked already. P. G. Lane, of Palisade, will be in as soon as the track is completed with some Bright Phœbus and Joe Ripley colts. They should be a good lot.

The Hon. Lem Allen, of St. Clair, will soon arrive with quite a string of green ones to develop.

D. O'Keefe's horse Lode Star is looking well and will be set going in a few days.

The boys at the track are having quite a feast on Lake Tahoe trout caught from the Truckee river. This stream runs so as to divide Reno, and fish are as thick in it as touts around the San Francisco race tracks.

HORSEMAN.

RENO, April 9, 1901.

Horses for War.

The war in South Africa is not over by a good deal. There were shipped from this country to Africa during the eight months ending with February, 21,342 horses, valued at $1,998,670. In the same period there were shipped, principally to Africa, 27,594 mules, valued at $2,609,040. In February alone the shipments of horses to Africa were 2950, and of mules to all points, assumed to be chiefly to Africa, 3980. It does not appear that any of these horses and mules went to the Boers, but it is maintained that there would be no objection to selling to the Boers if they wished to buy, and were willing to take chances in having their cargoes captured on the way out. The effect of these great shipments of horses and mules has been to run the prices for these animals up far above the usual rates. The United States Government has had to pay the prices established by the British demand. The railroads and the dealers in horses and mules are perfectly satisfied. The Illinois Central Railroad is reported as having sent to New Orleans during the year more than 70,000 horses, and this was only one of the many roads carrying animals for shipment to Africa. It may be mentioned that the number of horses required by the British seems large to the War Department, which was staggered by the demand for 10,000 horses to be sent to the Philippines.

Canning Horse Meat.

The horse abattoir at Linton, Oregon, which was shut down last fall, has started up again. As conditions are more favorable now for its successful operation it is likely to be kept running indefinitely. About 800 cayuse ponies have been sent in from the ranges and it is probable that 10,000 will be slaughtered this year. It is estimated that there are more than 500,000 cayuse ponies ranging over the country tributary to this market. Stockmen are very anxious that those horses should be driven away to preserve the ranges to cattle and sheep. Horse meat has found favor in Sweden and Norway, and several orders have been received from there.

The Village Farm campaigners will be entered in Ed Goers' name this year. It was stated last fall that the farm would not campaign a public stable, consequently Goers was allowed to select a few horses and go down the line on his own hook.

The Only Cure for Bone Spavin.

W. G. McKEEN, Real Estate and Loan Agent.

PEREYVILLE, Ark., March 25, 1901.
DR. B. J. KENDALL Co. Enosburg Falls, Vt. Gentlemen:—Please send me a copy of your "Treatise on the Horse and his Disease." I have one of your books that a friend of mine gave me, but quite a number of leaves are gone from the same. I can truthfully say that your "Spavin Cure" is the only thing that I have ever used on bone spavin that did the least particle of good. I saved a very fine mare by using same, and you can rest assured that I do not hesitate to recommend it to every one.

Yours truly,
W. G. McKEEN,

Good Entry Lists in Oregon.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

Frazier & McLean has bought the speedy pacer Maplemont 2:21½ from E. C. Keyt. He will be used on the road this year.

Senator Robert Inman has bought from Frazier & McLean the good roadster Twilight 2:30, full brother to Bonner N. B. 2:17. The Senator no doubt expects to travel in fast company this year.

Wm. Frazier has bought Roy S. 2:34½ from Roy Smith and entered him in the Capital City stake of $1000 for 2:20 trotters. He is a very promising candidate in the large number of entries made for first money in this rich stake.

R. Huston has sold his two year old colt Corvallis by Coeur d'Alene, dam Beauty by Put Smith to Al Weaver of McMinnville. Corvallis is a full brother to Robert H., that won the pacing division of the two year old stake at the State Fair last fall, and it is said he is as promising as his full brother. A. E. Heller will train him.

C. A. Wallace reports the sale of his pacing filly, Oregon Maid, to T. A. McCourt. Oregon Maid is by Del Norte 2:08 out of Dwina, the dam of Alta Dell 2:16. She should be a good one in the three year old classes this year, for she showed a wonderful lot of speed and had a good way of going in her two year old form.

The large number of entries received in the early closing stakes of the Oregon State Fair indicates a revival in racing in Oregon this year. Owing to the lack of breeding and training in the past few years, the number of two and three year olds are not large, but the entry list is larger than was expected and brings together a lot of high class youngsters.

The Capital City stake for 2:20 trotters shows a list of 21 entries, while the 2:15 pacers have 16 of the fastest sidewheelers in the Northwest. Altogether the entry list is very flattering and insures some high class sport at the State Fair this year. Following are the entries:

The Hoss.

[By J. Whitecomb Riley.]

I claim no hoss will harm a man,
Nor kick nor run away, cavort,
Stump suck, or balk, or "catamaran,"
Ef you, I'll just treat 'em like you ort.

But when I see the beast abused,
And clubbed around, as I've seen some
I want to see his owner noosed,
And just yanked up like Absalom.

Of course they's difference in stock—
A hoss that has a little ear,
And slender built and smaller hock,
Kin beat his shadder might near;

While one that's thick in neck and chist,
And big in leg and full in flank,
That tries to race, I still insist
He'll have to take the second rank.

And I have just laid back and laughed
And rolled and wallered in the grass
At fairs, to see some heavy draft
Lead out at first and come in last.

Each hoss has his appointed place—
The heavy hoss should plow the soil.
The blooded racer he must race,
And win big wages for his toil.

I never bet—nor never wrought
Upon my fellow men to bet—
And yet at times I often thought
Of my convictions with regret.

I bless the hoss from hoof to head—
From head to hoof, and tail to mane!
I bless the hoss, as I have said
From head to hoof and back again.

I love my God the first of all,
Then Him that perished on the cross
The next my wife—and then I fall
Down on my knees and love—the hoss.

How to Raise Salable Horses.

Those who are in direct touch with the horse markets know that the most effective consideration that determines the market value of a draft or carriage horse is the substance of the one and the size of the other. This, however, is not generally recognized, for if it were there would be fewer horses of indifferent types at present seeking a market. For the massive, powerful and wearing draft horses there are waiting plenty of purchasers and the same is true of the rangy, stylish, good-acting, ambitious driving horse.

To arrive at an understanding as to how those desirable attributes may be secured, the matter must be traced to its furthest source, and every feature of the work of rearing horses must undergo scrutiny. The most fertile source of error, undoubtedly, is the use of inferior sires, both as to individuality and pedigree, or what is fully as grievous a blunder, the use of unsuitable sires, meaning thereby those that are not likely to mate well with the mares to which they are bred. That horseman knows not the first principle of his business who is wheeled out of his good money by a self-asserting friend or groom, through inducing him to patronize a stallion that has been specially prepared by drugs and pampered by soft food so as to approach the form of a draft horse. Such horses never fail, unless the mare is unusually vigorous, to get puny and rickety foals. While instances of this kind abound, yet not less infrequent are worse results obtained through mating animals of such opposite types that common sense with a tincture of "horsey" knowledge would immediately ridicule the action. There is without doubt a great scarcity of good draft mares in this country. Yet if those that are good were kept in their place and bred to good stallions, and the lighter mares as rigidly in their, a great improvement in our market horses would at once result.

Another important matter that has a striking influence on the size and substance of our horses is the indifferent care that is too often given to the broodmares. A broodmare nursing a lusty colt has an extra heavy tax upon her system, and to sustain her so that the colt may go right ahead, she must have something more than grass or dry hay. She cannot do a hard day's work and at the same time do her maternal duty by her colt. When on pasture, some grain food or bran will prove beneficial, if in the stable, milk stimulating foods, such as clover hay or silage, chopped oats or bran. After the mare has dropped her foal there need be no fear of keeping her in too high condition providing too much corn is not fed.

All the above observations will amount to naught if the colt is not given every comfort and fed as strongly as compatible with health. It should be taken early under guidance and taught to relish a mess of chopped oats or of bran before it has left its mother. There is a great variety of advice in the opinion of breeders in regard to the time of weaning foals, some advocating six months, or even earlier, as the best time, others believe in letting them follow the dam much longer. As long as the mare's flow of milk is good, and she can be spared from farm work, it is sound policy to let the colt run with her, for there is nothing so nourishing and growth producing in the case of young animals, as the milk of the dam. The time of foaling is also a consideration that has an effect on the aftergrowth of the foal. A fall colt in comfortable quarters will make more rapid progress and attain to a greater size than a spring colt, as both the dam and the colt may be better attended to during the winter season. This fact is well known that nothing will more surely and markedly effect a colt in his growth than the slightest check at weaning time. This is fully provided for in the cases of the fall colt, as it goes right ahead at weaning time on pasture. Undoubtedly, climate and soil strongly effect the bone, muscle and growth of a colt, but these are less influential than any of the others we have mentioned.—Stock World.

Horses are going higher and higher. In Anderson county, Ky., last week a farmer sold two saddle performers in the rough, entirely unmannered and just fairly bridle wise, for $275 and $250.

A CIRCUIT IS CERTAIN in California this year and we are pleased to announce to the anxious horsemen who are training harness horses that it will begin not later than August 1st, and continue for seven or eight weeks at least. The Directors of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association will meet during the coming week and at that time will announce several liberal stakes for the slow and fast classes. At Santa Rosa, Napa, Vallejo, Woodland, Sacramento (State Fair, two weeks), Stockton, Salinas and Los Angeles meetings will be held and it may be that Petaluma, San Jose and Fresno will be in line. It is certain that good liberal stakes will be offered for trotters of the 2:30, and pacers of the 2:25 class, which will give the owners of good green horses a chance to earn considerable money by winning a fair proportion of the races in which he enters. The most popular classes for the faster horses, for which liberal stakes will be hung up through the circuit, are the 2:15 trot and the 2:13 pace. It is believed that these classes will fill well and provide great contests in every instance. It is proposed to open the four stakes above mentioned so that they will close about May 15th or June 1st. Later on other purses will be announced and a determined effort will be made to make the harness racing season of 1901 not only first class in every respect, but profitable to the horsemen. At a conference of several representatives of the interior associations held this week it was agreed that the special race should have no place on the programs of 1901. A good lot of purses and stakes will be advertised with as liberal terms and conditions as it is possible to make and the racing program for each meeting will consist entirely of such races as fill. If enough for six days get the required number of entries, six days racing will be given, but if there are only entries sufficient for three days the racing will be limited to that time. It seems to be the unanimous sentiment of the horse owners, trainers and the directors of the association that the district meetings in California have been, to use a homely expression, biting off more than they could chew, and towns where three or four day meetings would be sufficient, have been trying to give six days at a loss. At one of the most successful meetings held in California last year the gate receipts on the first two days were less than $150 all told, while for the remaining four days the admission tickets sold brought returns averaging four hundred dollars a day. The people of the community patronized the meeting well but they could not afford six days and cut out the first two. The purses trotted for on these two days were as large and the other expenses as great as on the other days, and for this reason and this reason alone, the meeting resulted in a financial loss of something over three hundred dollars. Had the program of races been confined to four days, there would have been a profit and consequent greater satisfaction and more enthusiasm displayed in regard to giving another meeting this year. Work is being done on the tracks at Santa Rosa, Vallejo, Woodland, Sacramento, Stockton, San Jose, Salinas and Los Angeles at the present time in anticipation of holding good fairs this year, and there need be no fear on the part of horsemen that a good circuit will not be arranged. Those who own harness horses that they think have a chance of winning in any of the classes from the 2:15 trot and the 2:13 pace down to the green classes should begin getting them ready to start for the money about August 1st, as the circuit will begin then or during the last week in July. There will be purses of $500 and upwards at all the meeting on the main circuit.

RACING IN MONTANA, which has always furnished good sport, will be better this year than ever. The purses will range from $250 to $500, and there will be five or more running races and one or more harness events each day. For the running races, entrance fees have been practically abolished and it may be that the same plan will be followed in arranging the harness races. There are ten generous stakes for runners advertised in this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, one being $1500, seven of $1000 each, one of $500 and one of $800. They are so arranged that all classes of horses are provided for. On or before the 12th of next month a program of harness racing will be announced, and Mr. E. D. Lawrence, the Racing Secretary, states that purses will be offered for all classes. The racing will be at Butte and Anaconda and will close September 7th.

THE BIGGEST DEAL in racing affairs that has been consummated in many years will take place on the 18th inst. On that date the San Francisco Jockey Club will turn over to the California Jockey Club, of which Thos. H. Williams is President, all its right, title and interest in the Tanforan and Ingleside racetracks, and the actual owners of those properties will also make a conveyance of them to Mr. Williams and his associates. President Williams notified the gentlemen several days ago that the first payment of $200,000 was in bank awaiting the drawing up of the necessary papers for the transfer.

AN ARMY TRANSPORT with 657 horses on board, which left this city for Manila March 31st, returned last Thursday in distress, her boilers being in such a leaky condition that they could not keep up a steam supply. The horses were landed and taken back to the Presidio. On Monday 570 will be taken on the vessel Thyra, to make another start for the Philippines, and the remainder will be sent on the Samoa. There is a scarcity of horse transports at the present time or another thousand horses would be sent away during the next two weeks.

TWO BIG PURSES are offered for trotters by the New England Trotting Horse Breeders Association, the races to come off at their great meeting at Readville in September next. A $5000 purse is to be given for four year old trotters of the 2:24 class, in which the entrance is 5 per cent., with nothing deducted from winners. $10,000 is offered for the 2:10 trotters, with 5 per cent. entrance in five payments of one hundred dollars each. The full conditions of these races will be found in our advertising columns.

THE BOARD OF APPEALS of the American Trotting Association will hold its next regular meeting at the Auditorium Hotel, Chicago, Tuesday, May 7, 1901, at 10 o'clock A. M. All new applications and written evidence must be received at the office of Secretary Steiner not later than April 20th.

IT IS UNFORTUNATE for the horse business that there are writers on turf topics for the daily and weekly newspapers who seem to be imbued with the idea that they are endowed by nature with all the wisdom and honesty that the good Lord has disbursed. They are the self appointed superintendents and bosses of everything in the horse line, and call in question every act that is performed without a previous consultation with them. They were never known to do anything in the building up line, but are particularly strong at tearing down. In their minds every man who does not follow their advice is either a knave or a fool and they never fail to "write him up" whenever the opportunity offers. They have driven many good men out of the horse business by their numerous writings and we suppose they will continue to do so as long as they are allowed to live and can find editors who are stupid enough to give their screed space. The latest man to be driven out of the racing business by these scribes is Thomas W. Lawson, the Boston millionaire. In a recent letter to Secretary Wilson of the Kentucky Association Mr. Lawson agreed to race Boralma against The Abbot and added:

"My endeavor to arrange the race with The Abbot necessitated considerable correspondence and public statements upon the part of The Abbot's owner as well as myself. The desire for newspaper publicity did not enter into the matter in any way. In fact, if it had the printed matter could have easily been multiplied many times, for the newspapers were notably very inconsistent. I thought the great interest I have in the horse, and trotting horse particularly, both financial and otherwise, entitled me to at least a fair public expression of my views as applied to this great opportunity. But no one of us is always right, and I find after careful perusal of professional criticisms that I have been all wrong, and instead of having engaged in an earnest endeavor to do something nice for our friend the trotting horse, I have been 'wind jamming.' Just what wind jamming is, and many other curious things which I confess I do not understand the meaning of, and above all, have been engaged in a controversy which, instead of elevating, was of injury to our four-legged friends.

"I am, as you know, only in the game for recreation and pleasure, and finding that I was so far wrong in my views, as I have been in this instance, I have concluded before I really make myself uncomfortable to place myself beyond this positively.

"I am cancelling all my engagements for my stable, with the exception of Boralma's race at Readville and one or two engagements for Dreamer which he already has entered into, and no trotting horse of mine will again appear in a public race. I am going to retire then to the farm.

"The fact of the Boralma-Abbot episode, which pained me more than any other was that our good trotting horse friends should have thought me so un-sportsmanlike as to have boycotted or in any way done a thing to injure that great horse, The Abbot, and that I may undo any injury that has been done to this great horse, and that our good Kentucky friends may see Boralma before he retires from racing, I will accept your offer, more than that I will insist upon making the match upon The Abbot's terms, best three in five. I send you herewith my check for the $5000 deposit for the proposed race for $10,000 a side, and you may give to Lexington's hospital whatever share Boralma may win, both stake and gate receipts, and through fear that my horse may not on that day give The Abbot, the interesting race which I expect he will, that our Kentucky friends may not be disappointed, I will donate $5000 to be raced for on the same day by Creseus and Charley Herr, to be divided as your association sees fit."

Monterey is Sidney's Greatest Son.

Monterey 2:09½ is the fastest and the greatest trotting son of Sidney. Just so sure as there will be horses bred in California ten years from now, breeders will be looking then for Sidney blood in colts that are to be entered and raced in stakes and class races. For his opportunities Sidney is a great horse, and although his get were more systematically "knocked" than those of any horse in this State, they have forced their way to the front by actual merit and won money and records in hard fought, long drawn out races. We believe now with P. W. Williams, owner of Monterey that this son of Sidney can beat any trotting stallion on this Coast two mile heats and none but a game and fast horse could win such a race, as there are many good and fast horses here. Monterey is making a season at Milpitas at $50 the season. He is one of the handsest horses in California.

Death of Charles Cochran.

On March 21st, at Palo Alto Farm, Charles Cochran, the veteran care taker of noted trotters, passed away. For years he had been a pensioner, the late Senator Stanford having provided for his maintenance and burial. "Charley," as he was familiarly called by all who knew him, took care of the famous Goldsmith Maid during nearly her entire racing career, and coming to Palo Alto many years ago had the care of some of the most famous horses on the place. He was nearly ninety years old at his demise.

Racing at Trinidad.

The Elks will give a meeting at Trinidad, Colorado, on May 21st, 22d and 23d. Six purses ranging from $300 to $500 have been offered for harness horses, the classes being for 2:20, 2:25 and 2:40 trotters, 2:20 and 2:40 pacers, and a free-for-all, trot or pace. The races will be under the rules of the American Trotting Association. There will be four days' racing to follow at Colorado Springs, and the Denver meeting of two will begin immediately thereafter.

Records of the Champions.

The Abbot, Cresceus. Chrrey Herr and Boralma will be the bright particular stars in the trotting firmament this year and their past racing form will be of interest.

The Abbott 2:03½, has started in thirty races and was first in twenty-three, second in two, third in one unplaced in four, and distanced in two. He started in 104 heats, winning seventy-four, of which thirty-eight were in 2:10 or better. The Abbott's fastest first heat is 2:07½, second heat 2:06½, third heat 2:06½, fourth heat 2:08½, fifth heat 2:09½. Fastest two heats 2:08½, 2:06½. Fastest three heats 2:09½, 2:07½, 2:07½. His fastest miles in 1900 were: Detroit, July 19th, 2:07; Readville, Aug. 22d, 2:05½; Providence, Aug. 30th, 2:04½; Hartford, Sept. 7th (wagon), 2:05½; New York, Sept. 13th, 2:04; Terre Haute, Sept. 25th, 2:03½; Lexington, Oct. 10th (trial to wagon) 2:03½.

Charley Herr 2:07 has started in forty-one races, and was first in eleven, second in eleven, third in eleven; fourth in three, unplaced in four, distanced in one. Charley Herr's fastest first heat is 2:07½; second heat, 2:07; third heat, 2:08; fourth heat, 2:09½; fifth heat, 2:12½; sixth heat, 2:12½; fastest two heats, 2:07½, 2:07½; fastest three heats, 2:09½, 2:07, 2:08. Boralma 2:08 has started in twelve races and was first in ten, third in one, unplaced in one. Has started in thirty-seven heats, winning twenty-eight, of which six were in 2:10 or better. Boralma's fastest first heat is 2:09½; second heat, 2:08; third heat, 2:09½; fourth heat, 2:08½; fastest three heats, 2:11½, 2:09½, 2:09½; fastest four heats, 2:10½, 2:08, 2:09, 2:08½. His fastest miles in 1900 were: Cleveland, July 27, 2:09½; Buffalo, Aug. 6, 2:09½; Readville, Aug. 22, 2:09½; Lexington, Oct. 4, 2:08.

Zombro 2:11 is Doing Well.

McKinney's greatest son, Zombro 2:11, is being mated with some fine mares this year at Sacramento. On April 3d he was bred to Lida W. 2:18½, the dam of Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ and Direct Line 2:29½. Lida W. is an old mare, but strong and vigorous, and Mr. Beckers is certain she will get in foal to Zombro as he is a certain horse. Unfortunately she missed three seasons to Direct 2:05½.

Mr. R. O. Newman of Visalia sent to Zombro last week Ida May (the dam of Homeward 2:13½ and Homeway, two year old trial of 2:30) by Grosvenor 1833. He also sent Dewdrop Basler, a mare by Robert Basler that has produced a two year old that trotted a public trial of 2:30. There are mares coming to Mr. Beckers' address every week from all parts of the State. Up in Oregon several of Zombro's colts are in training and we notice that several have been entered in the stakes at the Oregon State Fair.

Mr. M. A. Murphy of San Bernardino has two four year olds by Zombro that he sold recently to Willard Stimson. One is a black colt out of Sarah Benton (the dam of Ellen Madison 2:12½) by Albion, that can step a mile in 2:20. The other is a dark bay filly out of Nellie Bly (the dam of Harry Madison 2:27½), the horse that will be raced on the Eastern Grand Circuit this year) by Woolsey 2:28½, last quarter in 33 seconds. Mr. Murphy has five yearlings by Zombro.

Wm. Rourke of San Bernardino has a yearling filly by Zombro out of the dam of Hazel Kinney 2:09½, that is one of the greatest trotters for a young thing that has been seen in Southern California.

Jim Campbell of San Bernardino has a four year old Zombro colt that weighs 1025 pounds and is a sweet gaited trotter and fast. He will not race him this year but when he is five years old will turn him around for the word and says he will get the money. Mr. Campbell also has a three year old brother to him that he is driving now and he shows lots of speed.

There is no doubt but the Zombros will make a good showing. Several will be raced this year. They are invariably good lookers. Zombro's season in California will end June 1st, and it is Mr. Beckers' intention to take him to Oregon for a short season in June and July, as there are a number of breeders in that State who have Zombro colts that have been writing to him to bring the horse there again.

All Purses Filled at Glens Falls.

A dispatch to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN from Secretary W. F. Bentley dated Glens Falls, New York, April 11th, says:

"All purses filled. Have two hundred and ninety-one horses entered."

This is cheering news for the California horsemen who entered at this meeting, and we congratulate Secretary Bentley on the grand list he has received. The purses advertised were but eight in number and it will be seen that the entries received will average over 36 to the race. It is a great showing and Glens Falls will have one of the greatest meetings of the Grand Circuit.

Capt. Tom Merry has bound files of the New York Spirit of the Times for sale from 1882 to 1890. They should be very valuable to a horse breeder. See ad.

Our Heritage of Sportive Tendency.

[Western Horseman.]

We are accustomed to thinking that the present sportive tendency of the American people is an acquired or educational element. We estimate the universal tendency to race after athletic sports, such as baseball, fistic contests and horse racing, as born of our rapid civilization and environment, and not as a hereditary trait. We are very generally of the opinion that our great, great grandsires were cast in a severely pious mold, and led lives of rigid abstinence, free from all the battles and foibles of the present materialistic age.

In view of this grave apprehension, a little ancient history seems appropriate and timely, especially in view of the fact that the Legislature of staid and steady-going Connecticut has just passed a law legalizing fistic contests. It is a historical fact that the early settlers of Connecticut, the staid and steady-going patriots that culminated against George the Third, long before the Declaration of Independence, were enthusiastic devotees of horse racing. According to official records found in New Jersey, the Colonial dads, at least one hundred and fifty years ago, were so much given to horse racing that the Colonial Legislature passed a law to suppress the pastime, declaring it a nuisance, and limiting the sport to certain designated days. The recent discovery of this ancient, moss-grown law has thrown a ray of light on the pastimes of our illustrious ancestry. It also puts back a hundred years at least our previous understanding of the origin of pacing and trotting races. In the prohibitory law against racing, enacted by the colonists of Great Britain, no gait is mentioned, but we have good reason to believe that pacing was the gait.

Maryland also had a statute against racing older than the New Jersey law. An old Colonial law has recently been dug up in Maryland, enacted in 1747, before the Republic was ever dreamed of, which proves conclusively that pacing races were going on in Sweet Mary's land at that early day. And it is a good guess to say that they were straight-away races on a grass turf, bare-backed, Indian style. As this venerable Maryland law, enacted 154 years ago, only sought to repress pacing races, it is evident that the American trotter of to-day was not then on earth, or he had not developed sufficient speed to become offensive to the moral spasm population of Mary's land.

The early settlers of South Carolina were of the same moral texture and build, evidently, as the pioneers of Connecticut, Virginia, New Jersey and New York. But the early South Carolinians took to the runners, and to-day the runners are the only enjoyable sportive motors in that sport-loving State. But pacing races were also frequent. The first newspaper ever printed in that State was the South Carolina Gazette, started in 1744. In that first issue thirty horses are advertised as either strayed or stolen. In twelve cases the gait is given, and ten of these were pacers. A challenge is printed in this paper by Joseph Butler to race his gelding, Chestnut against any horse, mare or gelding in the colony for five hundred or a thousand pounds (equal to $2500 and $5000). So we can see that as far back as 1744, or 156 years ago, the Colony of South Carolina had a valiant and strenuous counterpart to our ideal turfite, Thomas W. Lawson, of the modern hub, Boston civilization.

Hence, as stated in the outset, we inherit our love of horse racing from a long line of red-blooded ancestry, and the present outlook is that we are still in no danger that that inherent love of the horse and the outdoor sports are on the wane. We find this love in the blood we inherit from that ever alert and glorious ancestry that culminated the Declaration of Independence and transferred a colonial empire into a continental republic. And all the signs of the times indicate that the American trotter of to-day (which includes the pacer) is as firmly grounded in the affections of his devotees as the Republic.

Diablo at Woodland.

We are more than pleased to know that William Murray's great young stallion Diablo 2:09½ is getting a large patronage at Woodland this year, and that many high class mares have been sent to him from all parts of the State. There is no horse in America that can sire more extreme early speed. The Diablos go fast as soon as they are hitched up, and he is considered one of the leading sires of America. This week three mares were sent to him by a resident of this city that were peculiarly bred. Two were by Hock Wilkes (son of Guy Wilkes and a thoroughbred mare by Hock Hocking) out of mares that are half thoroughbred. The other mare is by Cornelius 11335 (son of Nutwood) out of a thoroughbred mare. If the produce of these mares are not whirlwind pacers we will be mistaken. It is a mistake, however, to say that all the Diablos pace, although nearly all his representatives in the list are of that gait. We have seen many fast trotters among his colts, but it is so easy to shift them that nearly every trainer puts them to pacing to get extreme speed as soon as possible. Diablo puts more finish on his get than most stallions and we do not remember of ever seeing one that was not at least a fairly good looking animal. His breeding is of the very best and those who breed to him this year will find that they will be able to sell the produce at profitable prices.

Answers to Correspondents.

Seattle—We have no means of knowing just how many or the names of the horses in training are by the sire you name.

W. D., Chico—We cannot find any record of a horse by the name of Percino. Was Percino a trotter or pacer, and where did he start? He has no standard record so far as the Year Book shows.

Will Add to His List.

McKinney 2:11½ stood at the head of money winning sires in America last year and his 2:15 list is much the largest of any stallion of his age. From present appearances the get of this great sire that will take standard records this year will be larger than ever before, as there are many new ones in training and reports come from every track that they are all showing speed. There are at least ten in Los Angeles that can enter the list this year, and there is hardly a track where horses are in training on the Pacific Coast but two or three McKinneys are at work. The mares that are being bred to him this year are a grand lot with many producers as well as record holders among them. He is now looking as well as he ever did in his life and could step a quarter or a half now at as great a rate of speed as he ever showed. The fact that the McKinney colts and fillies are in such demand at good prices is enough to satisfy any reasonable person that it pays to breed to the best.

A Good Horse to Breed to.

Janice 2:13½ will go East to race this year and will be a 2:10 performer for her sire William Harold before she returns to California. She is the only one of this horse's get to start, but there are five more of them that are old enough to train and they are following in the steps of this fast mare and all show speed. William Harold is one of the best sons of Sidney and breeders are wise who keep the Sidney blood on their farms or get it if they are not already possessed of it. Send to Geo. Gray, Haywards, for a tabulated pedigree of this horse.

He Sired Phoebe Wilkes 2:08 1-2.

A producing son of Geo. Wilkes and a high class one at that is standing for service in California this year at $40, and he should be well patronized. Hambletonian Wilkes sires good looks, size, style and speed as uniformly as any horse in America. He is the only son of the great George Wilkes in California, and there probably will never be another. Turn to our advertising pages and look at the list of this horse's 2:20 performers, and then write to R. I. Moorhead, Santa Clara for a pedigree card and further particulars.

Said George H. Ketcham recently: "I believe that Cresceus will trot this year in 2:02 and he will then be retired for breeding purposes entirely. I think The Abbot will cut down his record this year, too. Cresceus' sale at $100,000 would be a bad deal for me. He is worth $20,000 a year, and for breeding purposes he is good for 15 years. Cresceus is not a handsome horse, but is good natured. With the harness on there is no kinder horse. Unharnessed, he is not bad, but he is then playfully disposed and doesn't comprehend how rough he is. He insists on demonstrating his good fellowship much like a locomotive would. He always wants to hand you something. He doesn't know he is rough, however. Cresceus as a three year old killed a boy at Springfield. He was playful and struck the lad with his head, killing him instantly."

The Woodruff $5000 purse for trotters of the 2:25 class, which is one of the big stakes to be given at Syracuse this year, has 34 entries. One would almost think in reading them over that the race was to be held in California. The following California bred horses have been named in this race: Deacon Chase, b g by McKinney-Leonor; Harry Madison, b g by James Madison-Nelly Bly; Algonetta, b m by Eros-Algonita; Lamba, b f by Cupid-Gallata by Stamboul; Princess Derby, blk m by Chas. Derby-Princess; Hyita, ch m by Dexter Prince-Helena 2:11½; Marston, b g by Dexter Prince; Eleata, blk m by Dexter Prince-Elden 2:19½; Carolita, blk m by Dexter Prince-Carrie C. by Electioneer; Lauretta, ch m by Norris-Laura C. 2:24½. There is certainly a California flavor to this race.

The Charter Oak management have decided to add a half-mile track to their property. It will be used for trotting and pacing meetings and will enclose a field which will be laid out for athletic sports. The new track will be located at the southeastern part of the park grounds and will be independent of the one mile course. The Gentlemen's Driving Club of Hartford will use it for matinee racing, and it will be available for college and other athletic sports. To make this a covered track is the principal object.

A big race often takes less winning than a little one (says an English paper). The biggest race in England is the Derby, and yet the late Sir Joseph Hawley was wont to say that it was a much easier race to win than the Cosarewitch. He had some grounds for what he said, as though he won the Derby with Teddington, Blue Gown, Musjid, Beadsman, and, as some think, with Poro Gomez, he never once won the Cosarewitch, frequently as his colors were seen in that race.

Value of Little Things to the Trainer.

The year 1901 will be one of the greatest years of racing that has ever been in the United States. The entry lists will be extremely large and wonderful fields of horses will answer the bell and some great tests will undoubtedly be the result. Little things will undoubtedly win many races. A little mistake often loses a race; a little advantage often wins a race. How important, therefore, it is to have your horses equipped with the very latest and best paraphernalia of all kinds. If a quarter boot changes its position it will at once interfere with the action of the horse. If an overcheck should break it will certainly do the same thing. If a hopple strap gives way a driver is liable to be distanced. How important, therefore, it is to see that you get the best. Messrs. Tuttle & Clark, Detroit, Mich., the great turf goods manufacturers, are making some wonderful offers to users of horse goods this season. They certainly have a line that is superior to anything on the market and have made some really wonderful improvements in the line of turf goods. Every owner or trainer of horses should either send to this firm for their catalogue and read it over, studying carefully the great improvements they have made or call upon your dealer and see the goods they have produced for 1901. Great credit is certainly due this firm for the magnificent improvements they have made in horsemen's paraphernalia during the last five or six years. Their Little Handy Book is a real little volume which should be in the hands of every horseman in the country. Their catalogues and Handy Book are sent free of charge.

SULKY NOTES.

Keep the tracks in order.

Too many fast miles now will mean slow ones later on.

Secretary is now at Alameda track, and will make a good season.

Algonetta worked a half in 1:07 at Pleasanton track last Wednesday.

Jack Kinney says Penn Valley Farm recently refused $30,000 for Oakland Baron, sire of Dreamer 2:14.

Three hundred dollars is to be spent on the Woodland race track to put it in the best possible shape for training.

Joe Rea writes from the Bitter Root Stock Farm, Montana, that the noted mare Elmore 2:08½ has foaled the finest looking colt by Prodigal he ever saw.

Milliard Sanders received ten head of youngsters from Ira Pierce of Santa Rosa Thursday. They will be put in shape for the New York market.—Pleasanton Times.

Vendome Stock Farm, of San Jose, will send a string of colts to Oregon this year. Several entries have been made in the early closing stakes for the Oregon State Fair, which will be held during the latter part of September.

Wm. Hogoboom of Marysville recently sold a handsome four year old colt by Lynmont to Mr. Beod of Reedland for $400. The colt was a thoroughly broken and well behaved roadster. That kind are bringing good prices now.

Sandy Smith has bestowed the name of Funston on the roan pacer by Dictatus he recently purchased from P. W. Hodges for a Pennsylvania horseman. Sandy says Funston always gets there when he starts, and the horse will be like him in this respect.

The annual meeting of the American Trotting Register Association was held last week, W. R. Allen, president; F. S. Gorton, treasurer, and J. H. Steiner, secretary, being re-elected to their respective offices. A dividend of 5 per cent on the capital stock was declared.

There is a two year old colt up at Clement on Geo. Fox's farm that is the fastest thing ever seen on the place they say. He is by Silver Bow, first dam Josie Clawson by Nushagak, second dam by Arthurton, third dam a full sister to Venture 2:27½. This colt is a trotter.

Boydello 2:14½ is looking in perfect condition. At $25 the season he should get a good patronage. He is a grandson of Electioneer, a fine individual, well bred on his dam's side and is a fast and game race horse—qualifications enough for three times the price of his service fee.

Mr. J. S. Bransford, of Salt Lake, visited Pleasanton the other day and while there admiring the horses was invited by Mr. C. L. Griffith to drive his black pacer Direct Nut, better known as Sharkey. Mr. Bransford proved himself quite a reinsman, as he drove the horse a quarter in 30 seconds flat.

Dolly Dillon 2:11½, and Janice 2:13½, have been consigned to the Cleveland sale by the Santa Rosa Stock Farm. Dolly Dillon worked a quarter in 32½ seconds at Pleasanton this week and should be a good mare in her class over East this year. She has been well entered through the Grand Circuit.

Emma Winter 2:14½ is eligible to and will probably be a starter in the Transylvania Stake for 2:13 trotters this fall. She is now owned by William Simpson of New York, who paid $8000 for her in the recent Fasig-Tipton sale, the highest price paid for a trotting mare since 1893. She is expected to trot as good as 2:06 by John Kinney.

John A. McKerron is making four sets of trotting harness and a lot of horse boots on an order received from the well known trainer and driver Geo. Starr, who is now located at Terro Haute, Indiana. Mr. Starr wanted the best harness and the best boots that could be made, and it is evident he knew the proper place to get them.

Tom James, of Des Moines, Iowa, owner of the Baron Wilkes stallion Barondale 2:11½, will probably remove to California next year and become a resident of this State. If he brings Barondale with him the horse should get a good patronage as he is grandly bred, a fine looker, has a fast record and is an own brother to Grand Baron 2:12½.

Fred Chase sold a lot of roadsters, work horses and mules at his place of business 1732 Market street last Tuesday. The bidding was fast and prompt and horses of every description brought good prices. A pair of draft horses brought $350 and a saddle horse $150. Many horses brought from $75 to $125, and a good average was obtained.

Searchlight has been running in a lot adjoining his stable in New York every mild day during the past winter and there are hopes of him being a better horse this year than ever. His temper was bad last year and he did not do much. If he could have three or four months of California grass and sunshine in a paddock he would probably pace closer to two minutes this fall than any horse now in training.

C. C. Webb, a capitalist and stock breeder of Montague, Siskiyou county, has been in this part of the State during the week looking for a good Percheron stallion. He wants a ton horse of dark color, and says if he does not find something to suit him in California he will send a man East to purchase one.

The Missouri State Fair has agreed upon the following classes and purses for its speed rings at its coming meeting at Sedalia, September 9th to 14th, inclusive, viz.: For trotters, 2:45 class, $500; 2:30 class, $1000; 2:27 class, $500; 2:23 class, $500; 2:18 class, $500. For pacers—2:35 class, $500; 2:25 class, $500; 2:17 class, $1000; 2:10 class, $500; three years and under, $300. Entries close August 1st.

Now that the question of matinee records and bars are under discussion Martin Carter, proprietor of the Nutwood Stock Farm, says he has a filly that was dropped on the 10th instant, which he is afraid some one will protest if she ever starts in the green class, as she went a mile in 2:28½ before she was foaled. This filly is by Klatawah 2:05½, and her dam Queen C. by Nutwood Wilkes took a record of 2:28½ last fall while carrying her. Queen C. carried this foal a year lacking three days.

That "Honolulu horse," as they call the pacer Geo. T. Bennett by Alex. Button out of a mare by Cresco that Will Welch has at Pleasanton is a "Lulu" for sure. Welch worked him out last Saturday with Goshen Jim 2:10½, driven by James Thompson. They made the pace a very hot one from the half-mile post to the wire and the mile was in 2:13½ with the Honolulu horse in the lead. Geo. T. Bennett has rich blood on his dam's side as his second dam was by Echo, and his third dam by the thoroughbred Jack Hawkins, son of Boston.

Dr. A. McLaughlin, of this city, is an enthusiastic road driver and owns three or four well bred trotters that he drives on the road and sometimes on the speedway. He owns the five year old mare Whisper by Gossiper 2:14½, first dam by Satinwood, second dam by Strathmore; the bay horse A. B. P. by Fairmount, dam by Guy McClellan; the bay mare Bess by Del Sur, dam by Nutwood, and a bay colt he calls Denny Healey after the Petaluma courser enthusiast of that name. This colt is by Gossiper out of a Guy McClellan mare and is very promising.

Rey Direct 2:10 is being mated with some high class mares this season. His owner Geo. A. Davis has leased from the Green estate, the mare Stemwinder 2:31, the dam of Directum 2:05½ and Electrina 2:20. The Oakwood Park Stock Farm has booked to Rey Direct the mare Babe Marion 2:17½, by Steinway, out of Ida Wood, therefore a full sister to Owyhee 2:11, and has also sent to him Lurline that took a two year old record of 2:45. Lurline is a full sister to Al Gregor 2:11 and W. W. Foote 2:15½, being by Steinway out of Maggie McGregor by Robert McGregor.

A race has been lost more than once by reason of a bike breaking down, and it behooves every trainer and driver to see that the wheels of his bike are all right before he starts racing. Kenny, the bikeman, makes the best wheel in use in California, fits them with ball bearings or with roller bearings. He is the only mechanic that makes the roller bearings and they will run all through the season without oiling or cleaning. If you want your sulky fitted with a pair of wheels that you can rely on see Kenny at 531 Valencia street, San Francisco.

"Truly, the ideal American trotter is something to be striven for, and no wonder," says the Kentucky Stock Farm, "it is that men will pay a fabulous price for one that can, by his marvelous flights of speed, faultless action and easy carriage, annihilate space, and by his intelligence and courage make him superior to all animals. It is this type that should be the ideal of every breeder, for it is this that appeals to the mind of all true lovers of the horse. Valuable as he is to-day, he can be made more so by wise management; his good qualities can be made more pronounced if given an opportunity of doing himself justice. He must not be hampered and destroyed by methods that tend to wear him out before coming into possession of his fullest powers."

With a faith in the future that is almost astonishing the breeders of the country have been nominating in the various futurity events at a rate never before equaled in the history of the business. Most of these stakes are for foals of 1901, to be trotted either as two or three year olds. Of those already closed the $20,000 Hartford Futurity has the largest number of entries, the total footing up over 1800, representing nearly every state and territory in the Union. The Horse Review $10,000 had over 1000, which is over 200 more than it has received any year since its inception seven years ago. The Kentucky Futurity is the oldest of all fixed events of this class. It has a value of $21,000, and 1379 mares have been nominated with a view of having their produce get a share of this rich purse.

Arrangements are now almost complete, says the San Mateo Leader, for a day of very fine sport at the Hobart track on Wednesday afternoon, May 1st. The moving spirits in the undertaking are the members of the San Mateo Driving Club and the Athletic Club. Mr. W. S. Hobart has very kindly consented to allow the use of his private track for the occasion, and in consideration for this kindness the clubs will see to it that the spectators confine themselves strictly to the immediate vicinity. A band of music will be engaged from San Francisco to enliven the occasion with popular airs, and no admission fee will be charged. The Driving Club has arranged a trotting event. The distance will be three-quarters of a mile, best three in five, owners to drive. The Athletic Club has arranged a program of athletic sports to occupy the time between the various heats of the trotting race. An effort will be made to induce the various business men of San Mateo to close their respective places of business on the afternoon of May 1st, that a general half-holiday may be possible.

Secretary Wilson of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' association is being congratulated on bringing Lawson and Scannel together for a meeting of Boralma and The Abbott in October, and, incidentally, the meeting of Cresceus and Charlie Herr on the same day. Mr. Wilson said the other day: Scannel accepted the proposition to race in a terse telegram immediately on receipt of our offer, and Lawson's equally prompt acceptance has been made by mail, the letter having been received. It Lawson's letter he additionally made two extremely generous propositions—one being that in the event he won he would devote the entire stake to Lexington charities, and the other being that to insure the audience that day of at least one great race in case his great young horse should not be as great as he thinks he will be, he will offer a purse of $5000 to be raced for by the grand stallions Cresceus and Charlie Herr, on conditions as determined by us. I think we will ask the owners of these two horses to pay an entrance fee of $1000 each and race for the $7000 under National rules, best three in five heats, the winner to get $5000 and the loser $2000. This generous action of Lawson is a big thing for us, as it enables us to give this additional race without going further into our pockets, for everybody knows that there is not one chance in a thousand of half the gate receipts netting $10,000.

Nearly every horseman in California knows Sewell Harris of Sutter county, the man who bred Don Lowell 2:14½ and others. Mr. Harris is getting along in years and wants to sell a lot of well bred horses he owns. Among them is a slashing son of McKinney 2:11½ that ought to bring a good price and meet with a ready sale. He is four years old, stands 16 hands high, is a handsome bay and those who have seen him say he is an extra good looking colt. His dam is by Antevolo 2:19½, son of Electioneer, his second dam is Esmeralda, the dam of Don Lowell 2:14½ by Brigadier, third dam Nelly by California Dexter, a son of Whipple's Hambletonian, and next dam said to be by Copperbottom. Now as this son of McKinney is a good looking horse he ought to be able to earn a lot of money in the stud next year as the well-bred sons of McKinney will be sought after from this on. This colt has the Wilkes-Electioneer cross which is so popular, and there is no reason why he should not trot fast himself and sire speed. He has already shown quarters in 36 seconds with hardly any handling, on Mr. Harris' track which is not much better than the average county road. Mr. Harris has a few colts by him as he bred him as a two and three year old. Up on the Harris ranch there are a number of well bred horses, mares and colts for sale, and it will pay to drop him a line if one wants a good colt or a broodmare.

We have heard more than one horseman express the wish that he had purchased the stallion Prince Airlie that was sold at the Corbitt closing out sale and went to South Africa. Prince Airlie was by Guy Wilkes and his dam Chantilly by Nutwood is now the dam of two with records better than 2:15. Mr. Corbitt intended Prince Airlie for his premier stallion, but misfortunes came and the horse went for a song, was shipped to South Africa, and it may be that the Boers have him now. There is a four year old bay mare by Prince Airlie over in Alameda in J. M. Nelson's stable that was purchased as a yearling at the Corbitt sale, by a farmer who has found that she is too good a mare for him to keep as he can neither train nor race her, not having the time, the inclination or the money. He wants to sell her and she is an excellent prospect. Her dam was by Regal Wilkes 2:11½, second dam Mamie Kohl by Steinway, third dam Lady Blanchard and fourth dam famous old Lady Livingstone. This mare is called Lady Airlie and is 16 hands, weighing 1050 pounds. She is a trotter and can show a mile in 2:40 without training. Mr. Nelson thinks he can drive her in 2:30 this month and believes 2:20 will be easy for her this year. There is also a two year old by Geo. Washington 2:16½ for sale that is entered in the Occident and Stanford stakes for next year. She is just broken and is quite promising. If you want a good road mare, one that will do to race, go over to Alameda and look these mares over.

When the resulting foals from this year's mating are old enough to demonstrate what speed they possess the question of whether developed speed can be transmitted will have some additional evidence that should tend to a solution of this vexed problem, writes Palmer Clark. Among the notable fast performers that are to be mated this spring are: Fantasy 2:06 to Dare Devil 2:09, Onoqua 2:08½ to John R. Gentry 2:00½, Sphinxetta 2:08½ to Joe Patchen 2:01½, Wigalotta 2:10½ to Heir-at-Law 2:05½, and it remains to be seen if the acquired traits of their speedy parents are to be a part of their inheritance. Heretofore it has been shown that such matings are subject to the same vicissitudes as the offspring of less illustrious sires and dams. In fact, some of the greatest racing stallions as well as mares have proven practical failures in the stud, and it is a question that time only can settle as to whether the continued mating of developed horses from generation to generation will result in so fixing the type that the artificial gait of trotting and pacing can be transmitted with certainty. I confess some misgivings as to such a successful issue, and if we are to take as an example, even at this late date, our most successful producers of extreme speed, either as a combination or individually, we have to award the palm to Chimes and Mambrino King, and neither of these had standard records, and, although the former had a mark of 2:30½, yet it cannot be argued that his training was such as to establish the characteristics of speed as a potent part of his individuality. Still, speed is the only test of the harness horse breeders' success, and consequently they will continue, and rightly, to breed either to speedy horses or the blood or combination of blood that has produced such, with the same expectancy and with the same uncertainty as heretofore, which is, after all, the chief charm of the business to those who are in it for the sport and the incentive for those who are in it for what there is in it. The lessons of the past as they multiply, however, have their real value to the thoughtful student, and can be studied with profit.

THE SADDLE.

Dick Dwyer has wired Secretary Nathanson that he will arrive in Chicago Monday, April 15th, at 9:30 A. M., and will be on hand to start the first bunch of the season at his old post on the Indiana track. There is more or less sentiment connected with the work of the famous starter at Roby, as it was there he acquired his reputation which has since extended over the country. Dick had officiated at some of the smaller tracks previous to his first work at Lakeside, but it remained for him to establish his reputation as premier flagman down on the Indiana sand dunes, and he always returns to the old track with pleasure.

A dispatch from London says: Great changes are contemplated at Ascot Heath. The royal inclosure will be abolished and two race meetings will be held annually, instead of one. King Edward will transfer his breeding stud to Ascot. His Majesty intends to increase his racing stud largely and to maintain the tradition that racing is the "sport of kings."

Last Thursday C. W. Menzies and L. McCreery of Burlingame left for Liverpool with fifteen California bred polo ponies. Both are members of the famous Hurlingham polo team of England and expect to realize a handsome profit selling these ponies to the Hurlingham players.

A special race at six furlongs has been arranged for this afternoon at Tanforan between Kenilworth, Articulate and Beau Ormonde. It should be worth seeing.

The last day of racing given by the San Francisco Jockey Club will be next Friday, April 19th. The California Jockey Club will assume control the following day, and after seven days of racing at Tanforan will open the Oakland track for five or six weeks of racing, when the season will end. The next season will probably commence about November 1st.

Imported Sain, the stallion which Barrey Schreiber purchased here three years ago and sent to his Missouri breeding farm, is doing well as a sire. Among his first crop of colts are the winners Corrigan and Zirl, and Mr. Schreiber places a very high valuation on the horse, which he obtained at a very low figure. Sain was imported by the late Marcus Daly and while a fast horse and elegantly bred, is not a grand looker by any means.

Memphis horsemen say that Charles W. Meyer, the youngster that won the Gaston Hotel stakes is the best two year old colt that was ever trained at Montgomery Park. J. J. McCafferty offered Johnny Schorr $10,000 before he was taken to the paddock Tuesday, but, according to a correspondent, it is doubtful if $25,000 would buy him.

The demand for American jockeys in foreign countries does not seem satisfied yet, despite the fact that nearly fifty of the best riders in this country are now under contract with foreign horse owners. More of our riding material is wanted in Austria. Albert A. Boxtray of Vienna, Austria is now in New York in search of youngsters who can ride at from 75 to 100 pounds. He has a commission from several Austrian owners to engage boys for the coming season in that country. According to Mr. Boxtray, the Yankee lads now in Austria are in great favor and are in good condition awaiting the opening of the season next week. He says big salaries are paid good boys and that nothing will be spared to gain the contracts of the best jockeys here.

This year's crop of McGrathiana yearlings numbers 130 head. Part of them will be sold in New York and part late in the summer.

Before 10,000 spectators T. P. Hayes' bay colt Royal Victor won the Tennessee Derby at Montgomery Park last Monday from John F. Schorr's bay filly Lady Schorr, with George Long's Gaheris third. The time, 1:57, was a very creditable performance. The Schorr stable had named three starters, but Alard Scheck and Joe Frey were scratched and Farmer Bennett was added to keep Lady Schorr company. Siddons, the Commander and Dick Burgess were also scratched. The Schorr pair were held at the prohibitive odds of 2 to 3, while 8 to 1 was laid against Royal Victor. After two false breaks they were sent away to an excellent start, with Royal Victor a head in front of Farmer Bennett and the others close up. Farmer Bennett and Lady Schorr raced to the front, and with Royal Victor a length away made the running to the stretch. At this point Winkfield sent the Hayes colt up to the leaders, and in the run home he challenged Lady Schorr. J. Woods, on the latter went to the whip, but his efforts were of no avail, Royal Prize, well ridden by Winkfield, winning handily by three parts of a length. Gaheris made up a lot of ground in the stretch and finished third.

Sophia Hardy, dam of Lieut. Gibson and others, was destroyed recently. After foaling a full brother to Gibson she had blood poisoning and her destruction was necessary. The foal has been adopted by another mare.

A despatch from Cincinnati states that Assistant Secretary Dillon, on his arrival at the Turf Congress office, announced he would continue as an official of that body on the ground that the action recently taken by the minority was illegal and in opposition to the constitution. Mr. Dillon is in the offices of the Congress used by the Latonia Jockey Club, of which he is an official. The race track will change its quarters as soon as a suitable place can be found. He said: "I was caught off my guard, for had I known what the parties intended to do, I would have most positively declined to turn over the books. I wired Secretary Hopper and President Howard, and the former told me to follow the instructions of the president. Mr. Howard wired me to continue, and I will."

The club proposes to give sixty days' running racing in Butte and Anaconda, commencing Saturday, June 29th. The stakes announced are: The Montana Derby, $1500, for three year olds (foals of 1898), colts to carry 122, geldings 119 and fillies 117, one mile and a quarter; the Daly Memorial Cup, $1000, a handicap for three year olds and upward, two miles; the Miners' Union Stakes, $1000, a handicap for three year olds and upward, one mile; the Butte Selling Stakes, $850, for three year olds and upward, six furlongs; the Hot Times Stakes, $800, a handicap for all ages, four and a half furlongs; the Labor Day Handicap, $1000, for three year olds and upward, one mile and an eighth; the Silver City Selling Stakes, $1000, for three year olds and upward; one mile and a sixteenth; the Silver Bow Stakes, $1000, for two year olds, four and one-half furlongs; the Hamburg Handicap, $1000, for two year olds, five furlongs; the Anaconda Handicap, $1000, for all ages, one mile. H. L. Wilson is president and Louis Frank secretary.

In consequence of the building now occupied being torn out, the Jockey Club will move to the Windsor Arcade about May 1st, and the second floor will also be occupied by the Westchester Racing Association, the Saratoga Association, the Coney Island Jockey Club, and, it is said, perhaps the Queens County Jockey Club. The building is between Forty-six and Forty-seventh streets, in Fifth avenue.—New York Times.

Fondling, the dam of the great mare Imp, has arrived at J. B. Ewing's Willamette Stud, near Lexington, Ky., and will be bred to Imp, Top Gallant.

A bay colt by Kingston, out of Ella T. by War Dance, recently foaled at Messrs. J. R. and F. P. Keene's Castleton Stud, Kentucky, is considered by Major F. A. Daingerfield, superintendent, the finest foal ever dropped on the farm and he has advised his entry in the Derby and other English classics.

A record was broken at Tanforan on Friday of last week. In the two year old race Brunswick by St. Carlo-Sloe, carrying 109 pounds, ran four and a half furlongs in 53½ seconds, the former track record being 0:55½. The American record for the distance on a circular course is 53 seconds and was made by Meadows, a six year old, carrying 103 pounds. Handpress, a two year old with 100 pounds up, ran the distance over the Morris Park straight course in 52 seconds. On the same day Kenilworth ran six furlongs in 1:12½, the track record.

Beau Ormonde is quite a sprinter and on Monday last at Tanforan equalled the track record of 1:19½, for six and a half furlongs and was not ridden out.

A jockey club has been organized at Savannah, Georgia, and a winter meeting will be held. Such prominent citizens as Mayor Herman W. Meyers, Jacob Littman and others equally well known are interested in the enterprise, and the incorporators represent brains as well as capital. It is proposed to begin a fall and winter race meeting immediately after the Georgia State Fair next November. The meeting will be run from a date in December to be decided on later through the winter until March 1st or 15th. Purses will be $250 and upward, with special events, and a strong effort will be made to attract a superior class of horses and horsemen. The old Ten Broeck course, a full mile track, about twenty minutes from the centre of the city, will be fitted up for an extended meeting in thorough up to date style. The population of Savannah is close to 80,000, and being on the direct route of travel to the Florida resorts, many transient visitors from the North going down and from the South coming up will stop over for the race meeting. The overflow from New Orleans and other sportsmen that will be attracted should make the venture a success in every way.

A dispatch from Louisville, Ky., dated April 6th says: His Eminence, the handsome Falsetto-Patrons colt, owned by Frank Van Meter of Lexington and entered in the Kentucky Derby, was sold to-night to T. J. Kemper, the Chicago turfman, for $10,000. Kemper came down to Louisville last night prepared to pay $7500 for the colt, which had been held at $12,000 by Mr. Van Meter. The two have been dickering all day, and before Kemper left for Chicago to-night they split the difference, and the colt went to the Chicago man for $10,000. His Eminence has done the best work of any colt at the track. He did a mile in 1:47½ a number of times when the track was very heavy. He is considered the best entry in the Kentucky Derby. Captain S. S. Brown, who bought Garry Herrmann, was after the colt also. Kemper is said to stand to win $30,000 on His Eminence in the winter books.

The case of School for Scandal, a candidate for the Louisville "Oaks," is interesting. When Col. Barnes, her breeder, sold the mare to R. A. Swigert, the latter did not care to enter her in the Oaks, and allowed Col. Barnes to enter her in his name. When Swigert sold the mare, nothing was said about her entries. She was afterwards sold at auction to Romo Respass of Cincinnati, who sent a check to the Louisville Jockey Club in payment of the second fee on the race. It was found that Col. Barnes had already paid it, so the club returned the amount to him; but he refuses to receive it, claims the entry as belonging to him, and will not allow the mare to start, as he has two other fillies in the race.

The well known red and blue colors of Philip J. Dwyer will be missed from the turf this year. He has sold to trainer Matt Allen his entire racing stable, consisting of five highly bred two year olds. The amount paid was said to be $40,000. There are two crack-jacks in the collection, a colt by Hanover-Bonita Belle, half brother to the noted Beau Gallant and a black colt by Handspring. Both youngsters have shown remarkable work over the Gravesend course. It is said that the youngsters were bought for Fred McLewee, who was conspicuous on the turf when young George Ehret's stable was at its best. Outside of the two cracks the lot is an indifferent one, and it has been Mr. Dwyer's custom to give such youngsters away if they do not show work to warrant his keeping them.

There is a good deal of truth, says an exchange, in this paragraph of "Vigilant's" about the kind of men that win over outsiders: "Any odds some of these outsiders!" used to be a more familiar call on our race courses than it is at the present day. Still, it is no unusual occurrence for a horse to win at a 'long shot,' and during last season several hit the mark that well rewarded those whose good judgment or good luck led them to risk a little on an outsider. Talking recently on the subject with one of the best judges of horse racing in the land, he remarked, 'The worst of backing outsiders is that they don't win!' That, doubtless, is the experience of most men. I have known some who seem to hit on winners at long odds with curious frequency, but in such cases we hear only of the successful ventures, and know nothing of money frequently lost on horses that, may be, made no show in the race. The backer most likely to find winners, at good odds, is, I think, to be found amongst men whose acquaintance with the turf has been long and intimate, whose memory is retentive, and who know that in horse racing, as in other affairs, history repeats itself. That knowledge, and a sort of instinct, besides, suggests to them that circumstances have brought about an occasion when a race is likely to fall to an outsider. Even then, of course, the choice may fall on one that fails to hit the mark. Still such men, who no longer engage in the day-to-day business on the turf, but weigh carefully the prospects of a race, taking advantage of all that training reports can tell them, will more frequently find an outsider destined to hit the mark than others who visit meetings week after week throughout the season, and mix mainly with friends and acquaintances who believe that no theory is so sound as that of 'following the money.'"

The starting-gate is, of course, the greatest racing improvement of modern days, and how we did without it for so long is a mystery (says an Australian exchange). As to betting, it is possible that more people bet every year. This is a matter upon which nobody but an anti-gambler with no knowledge of his subject would venture to speak positively, but this much we can say without fear of contradiction. Heavy betting is very rare nowadays, the average owner being content to go for a very moderate stake in comparison with the owner of twenty years ago. Whether this is due to larger stakes or the advent of cash betting and the totalisator, we cannot say. Whatever the cause there is no doubt the change has benefited the turf. Altogether we think those interested in racing have every reason to congratulate themselves that steady progress is being made and that there is no fear of the national sport losing its hold on the public.

Burns & Waterhouse have decided to race in the East and when they purchased Favonius from G. B. Morris, they assumed all Eastern engagements of the horse. In 26 races during 1900 he was eight times first, six times second, six times third and six times unplaced. In the majority of cases when beaten it was by some of the fastest sprinters, whereas his forte is distance and he is thoroughly game. Favonius has had considerable racing this winter and will get a rest.

The cross-country steeplechase of the San Mateo County Hunt Club on Saturday last was the most exciting race ever run under the club auspices. So delighted was every one, particularly the spectators, that Francis J. Carolan, master of the hounds, offered to put up another handsome trophy for a repetition of the affair. It was decided, however, that as the Duke de Abruzzi cup will be the next affair of importance, it would be better to wait until the autumn to have another steeplechase like that of Saturday. The Abruzzi cup is for polo ponies over hurdles, and the Poniatowski cup, won by Charles Wheeler, of Philadelphia, was for hunters. Walter S. Hobart did not ride Saturday, as his mount had been over the course and was disqualified, but Laurence McCreery rode Hobart's chestnut hunter. Among those who rode Saturday were: F. J. Carolan on Merry Boy, C. Wheeler on Mr. Carolan's Spectator, George Parsons on a large thoroughbred, J. Lawson on his large horse Vanity, A. L. Whitney on a horse owned by J. Downoy Harvey, Harry Scott on a hunter belonging to P. D. Martin and L. McCreery on a chestnut horse belonging to Mr. Hobart.—San Mateo Leader.

The Grand American Handicap.

Eugene C. Griffith of Pascoag, R. I., won the Grand American Handicap at Interstate Park, Queens, L. I., on the 5th inst., winning the silver trophy emblematic of the live bird shooting championship and $600 in money.

Twenty-two shooters had tied at twenty-five kills, the limit number of birds in the handicap proper, and after a close and exciting finish of the shoot-off miss and out, to decide the three high guns for a division of the association's $1500, offered as a guarantee prize for the three highest scores, the Rhode Island man was returned the victor after a total of forty-three straight kills for the shoot. J. L. D. Morrison of St. Paul, Minn., was second, he having missed his eighteenth bird. R. Rahm of Pittsburg, Penn., was third, having failed to land the fifteenth bird in the shoot-off.

The Grand American Handicap was finished shortly after noon and then preparations were made to shoot off for the cup and money prizes. Every man left in declined to divide. The traps opposite the casino were used so that all could watch the sport. C. C. Nauman was the first to step to the trap. He killed. Dr. J. G. Knowlton of the New York Athletic Club was next and he killed, too. Then came A. H. Fox, who up to that time had killed 127 birds in succession. He missed a driver and retired. In the first round Pierce, Townsend, McKay and Lockwood followed Fox, missing their birds. In the second round Alabaster missed. In the third round Johnson retired, and in the fourth round Parks and Parmalee missed. This left thirteen in the race and all killed in the fifth round. In the next Greiff missed and in the seventh Bond, Nauman, Feiganspan and Hickman retired. Eight men were still in the race, but Trumbauer and Merrill went out in the next round, Knowlton missed in the ninth and only Morrison, Rahm, Gottlieb, Barto and Griffiths were left. Gottlieb missed his tenth, Barto his eleventh and then three remained.

When the principals in the shoot-off had narrowed down to Griffith, Morrison and Rahm a crowd of fully 2000 men and women pressed close to the rail. Morrison's twelfth bird was a sitter and another had to be substituted. Despite the annoyance the bird was killed splendidly. At fifteen Morrison's gun missed fire on the first barrel. According to the rules, the shooter handed the gun to the referee who allowed another bird after examining the defective cartridge. This second interruption seemed to tell on Morrison. He killed his fifteenth bird neatly, however. Then Rahm missed and was out of the race. Griffith was cool and apparently unconcerned by the close score and by the demonstrations of the crowd, and, barring accident, was looked upon as a winner. At eighteen Morrison missed his bird, a left driver that shot into the air and was off like a flash. Griffith then had the match in hand and he stepped up to the mark and scoring with both barrels dropped his bird within ten feet of the traps.

When the shoot opened at 9 o'clock the weather was anything but promising. A drizzling rain wet the crowd and the absence of wind promised another day of lazy birds and high scores. Before long, however, the weather cleared and with it the birds became faster. There were 161 entries of the day before eligible to continue, and it was announced that each would shoot at five birds, unless disqualified. Twenty-two shot their five straight, as they shot straight the twenty of the day before. Of the forty who were tied at twenty on Thursday, eighteen fell by the wayside in the finish Friday.

The scores in the miss and out that decided the championship follow:

E. C. Griffith.....28—2222 2222 21122 22—18
 J. L. D. Morrison.....29—2222 2222 22222 20—17
 R. Rahm.....27—2222 2222 22220 —14

Following is a list of those who took part in the shoot-off for the Grand American, arranged according to the way they finished, together with the amounts of money prizes each received: E. C. Griffith, Pascoag, R. I., 28 yards, 18 killed; $600 and silver cup. J. L. D. Morrison, St. Paul, 29 yards, killed 17; $500. R. Rahm, Pittsburg, 27 yards, killed 14; $400. J. B. Barto, Chicago, 28 yards, killed 11; $255. Chris Gottlieb, Kansas City, 29 yards, killed 10; $218. Dr. J. J. Knowlton, New York, 29 yards, killed 8; $182. R. R. Merrill, Milwaukee, 29 yards, and R. Trumbauer, Royersford, Pa., 28 yards, killed 7; $127 each. C. C. Nauman, San Francisco, 28 yards; R. B. Bond, Jessups, Md., 27 yards; C. W. Feiganspan, Newark, N. J., 30 yards, and Ed Hickman, Kansas City, 28 yards, killed 6; $100 each. G. E. Greiff, New York, 28 yards, killed 5; $72. Henry, Newark, N. J., 28 yards, and F. S.

Parmelee, Omaha, 30 yards, killed 3; $72 each. E. S. Johnson, Atlantic City, N. J., 28 yards, killed 2; $72. J. L. Allabaster, Chicago, 27 yards, killed 1; $72. A. H. Fox, Baltimore, 30 yards; D. L. Pierce, Wytheville, Va., 29 yards; W. D. Townsend, Omaha, 27 yards; F. E. McKay, Minneapolis, 27 yards, and C. A. Lockwood, Jamaica, L. I., 26 yards; each missed their first bird and received $72.

The remaining money was divided among forty-six contestants, who scored twenty-four each, and the men received $34 apiece.

It was a noticeable fact that none of the well known experts lasted long enough to get into the group of leaders at the end of the twenty-fifth round, and, with the exception of Crosby and Gilbert, they were shut out of the money by failing to kill twenty-four.

Among those who missed two or more birds were such crack shooters as J. A. P. Elliott, of Kansas City, Rolla O. Heikes, of Dayton, Ohio; Thomas Marshall, of Keithsburg, Ill.; Harold Money of the Carteret Gun Club; E. D. Bates, the Canadian who won last year; Thomas Morley, E. D. Fulford, of Utica; Well Brock, Phil Daly, Van Allen, and J. S. Fanning who killed 22.

Consolation Handicap, sixteen birds; $10 entrance, high guns, not class shooting, ninety-one entries—Nauman, Bates, Brown, Sperry, Parmelee, Gottlieb, Harold Money, Griffith, Colonel Martin, Tramp, Greiff, Lilly, Merrill and Steubner killed sixteen each and received $55 each. Sixteen others killed fifteen birds and divided the money, each getting $4.20.

The shoot was concluded late last Saturday evening in a drenching downpour of rain and the wind blowing half a gale from the southeast. From early morning the rain fell incessantly, and as the day wore on the wind increased to such an extent that at times the trap shooters had to take refuge in the clubhouse, and the storm was so severe that they could not face the traps.

Two more contests were on the program, one for the Gilman-Barnes trophy and the other for the Sportsman's association trophy. Both were handicaps and each event called for twenty-five birds per man, $15 entrance. Class shooting. The events were shot off simultaneously at two sets of traps, but owing to the severity of the storm it was arranged by mutual consent on the part of the shooters and the management that the number of birds in each case should be reduced from twenty-five to fifteen.

In the Gilman-Barnes trophy contest nine men tied with straight scores of fifteen kills each, and in the Sportsman's trophy contest there were seventeen straight with fifteen each. These ties were to have been shot off "miss and out," but the weather conditions prevented this being done, and the men drew lots to see who should get the trophies.

J. L. D. Morrison of St. Paul, who was the runner-up in the Grand American, won the Gilman-Barnes trophy, and Frank S. Parmelee of Omaha, Neb., was the lucky man in the draw for the Sportsman's trophy.

Forty-one men competed in the Gilman-Barnes handicap and thirty-six in the Sportsman's handicap. The following made straight scores in the Gilman-Barnes handicap: Nauman 28 yards, E. Pierce 29 yards, Alabaster 27 yards, Leroy 28 yards, Gilbert 32 yards; Parmelee 30 yards, Morris 29 yards, Linderman 28 yards and Heikes 30 yards.

The straight scores for the Sportsman's Association trophy were: H. Money, Captain Money, Allen, Townsend, Merrill, McKay, Alabaster, Tramp, Gilbert, Parmelee, Budd, Van Allen, Morrison, Linderman, Heikes, L. E. Parker and E. C. Griffith.

There were four moneys in each event. Those who killed straight divided 40 per cent. of the purse, the second men divided 30 per cent., the third squad 20 per cent. and those with twelve kills each divided the remainder of the purse, which was 10 per cent.

At the Traps.

The Ingleside trap shooting attractions to-morrow will be the initial live bird shoot of the Olympic Gun Club and the regular monthly live bird shoot of the San Francisco Gun Club.

Across the bay the Empire Club regular monthly shoot offers a card composed of the diamond medal event at 25 targets and the re-entry match at 25 birds. The competition for the Yellowstone and Schumacher trophies will also be continued.

Webb and Baird are high men in the diamond medal race and for the money match additional prize Cullen is high gun with Debenham, Fish, Gregg and Lambert tied for second place. In the open events Debenham is high score for the championship trophy and Hauer holds first place for the Schumacher trophy.

The California Wing Club shoot on the 7th inst. was well attended by club members and visiting shooters. The day was a perfect one and the birds supplied an unusually good lot. The only straight score in the club race was made by "Wilson" who divided a side pool, $5 entrance, with "Slade" who was second high gun. Following the regular event six bird pools were shot up during the afternoon. The scores made during the shoot were the following:

The maiden shoot of the Antler Gun Club last Sunday on the Empire Club grounds brought out Oakland's contingent of Elks. Those who did not shoot "rooted" for those who did. The scores made, considering that a majority of the shooters were novices, were excellent. J. B. Hauer and A. J. Webb gave the new club men valuable pointers in trap-shooting. The Maugatrap was used, the gunners taking to the game with avidity and enthusiasm, so much so, that it is probable the Antlers will shoot on two Sundays each month instead of holding but one shoot a month as originally contemplated. An elegant lunch was served to the company assembled. A summary of the scores follows:

The Washington Gun Club (Yolo county) opened its blue rock shooting season last Sunday with a goodly number of contestants. The Black Butte Gun Club will give shooting tournaments at their grounds in Upton, near Sisson, on the first Sunday after the 15th of each month from April 21st to August 18th. To the champion blue rock shooter of Northern California, a handsome $50 gold watch will be given as a prize, also a repeating rifle for the best average shooter in the season of five shoots.

A meeting of the Visalia Rod and Gun Club was held recently, organization was perfected by the election of R. A. Whitley, President, J. Thomas, Secretary, and M. A. Fessler, Treasurer. The shooting grounds are to be located on the Canty ranch south of the Encina orchard or across the county road from Company E's target range. The first shoot was scheduled for Sunday, April 7th. The secretary was instructed to correspond with the State Fish Commission and secure as many trout as they will let the club have to plant in the streams east of the city.

Trade and Personal Notes.

Parker Bros., Meriden, Conn., have issued a calendar of particular interest to all trap shooters. Half-tone portraits of thirty of the prominent experts are given, together with the most important scores, making, altogether, a very useful as well as appropriate ornament for the walls of gun club houses or sportsmen's homes. A portrait is also shown of Master K. I. Konvalinka, Mason City, Ohio, 6½ years old, who has a record of 10 out of 15 targets, and 6 out of 16 live birds, made with a Parker gun. The fact that such a large proportion of winners during 1900 used the Parker gun, is proof that this arm can be relied on to place the load just where it is held. The calendar is supplied free to secretaries of gun clubs writing for it, and to all others at cost of mailing, 10 cents. Catalogues of guns sent free. Parker Bros., Meriden, Conn.

S. A. Tucker, the popular representative of Parker Bros., reached this city last Saturday. Mr. Tucker reports business good and prospects indicative of a large demand for Parker guns.

E. C. Griffith, the winner of the Grand American Handicap, used a Parker gun.

Some guns shoot well some of the time. Smith guns shoot well all of the time. A few interesting Smith records are the following: Hallowell high in 1897, 154 straight; Young high in 1899, 211 straight; Jack Fanning high in 1900, 201 straight; "Billy" Crosby high in 1901, 345 straight.

Harvey McMurchy has been away for a week on a fishing trip in Mendocino county.

Cartridge and Shell.

Sacramento sportsmen recently have had plenty of English snipe shooting, the birds are reported as being more plentiful than for years past.

Windy Bill, a leading oil speculator of Antioch, was a prominent figure on Sportsmen's Row this week. President Lemmer reports that William is the happy father of another little "Black Jack."

The annual meeting of the Eureka Gun Club was held April 3d. It was quite largely attended and after the regular business had been transacted the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, C. J. Janssen; Secretary and Treasurer, C. P. Soule; Committee of Arrangements, L. J. Greenburg, S. I. Allard and Harry Kelly. The only contest was for the office of Secretary and Treasurer, six candidates making a strong fight for the position. Among the contestants were L. F. Puter, S. I. Alard, Dr. W. E. Cook, Dr. H. G. Cross, J. Vansant Jr., and E. G. Pluke. Before a choice was reached about fifteen ballots were taken and finally when a deadlock appeared certain Mr. Soule was elected by a majority of one. Among other business transacted was the election of S. I. Allard to membership and the tendering of a vote of thanks to the retiring president, C. W. Young.

The members of the club and invited guests met at the banquet board on Tuesday evening and passed several happy hours in social re-union and the discussion of subjects dear to the heart of the angler. The evening was enlivened by song and instrumental music. The singing of Mr. Frank and banjo playing of Mr. Hastings were particularly appreciated by the company present. Walter D. Mansfield presided as toast-master. After coffee and cigars speeches were in order. Judge John Hunt's remarks on piscatorial subjects were received with much attention and general applause, a few verses on "Striped Bass" although having an excelsior stuffing, were dedicated to Alex T. Vogelsang and accepted with shouts of laughter.

During the business portion of the evening Messrs. J. B. Kenniff, ex Fish Commissioner C. B. Gould and T. C. Kierulff were elected to membership. The decorations were appropriate and unique, several baskets of different varieties of trout from the ponds at Sissons were displayed and evoked many expressions of admiration from the followers of the gentle art.

The chairman announced to the club members that railroad rates for themselves and families would be fixed at a favorable figure and with a generous time limit this year for points on the Truckee, McCloud, etc. Among those present were Walter D. Mansfield, H. Battu, Charles G. Young, Merton C. Allen, John Butler, Louis Butler, Wm. Frank, A. B. Finch, Mr. Hastings, Henry E. Skinner, H. C. Golcher, C. E. Mitchell, J. F. Siebe, J. X. The third fly-casting contests are programmed for Stow lake this afternoon and to-morrow morning.

Sans Souci, Also Some Brook Trout.

OLEMA (Marin Co.), April 6, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: On the 1st of April, behind a mare by Rustie, and a gelding by a son of the dam of Nellie R. 2:17½, I started out for the Alameda gulch to catch the speckled fish, as they call trout. My companions were Miss Agnes Duff, of Berkeley, my daughter and Mr. White. When I made an atrocious or ferocious pun the girls smiled sweetly on our thin escort and said he was the only White man in the party. Once on the top of the ridge, what a view! Mt. St. Helena to the north and Mt. Konockti, the guardian mount of Clear lake. To the east Mt. Tamalpais. To the northwest the fair Pacific; its waves laughing in the sunlight in a million dimples. To the west Point Reyes—bold, clear cut, standing out like a cameo from the blue water which surrounds it; there it stood, the actual lookout from which to spy the incoming of friend or foe to the entrance of the Golden Gate. From the water shed we took our winding way down alongside steep ravines, rock ribbed and brush crowned, across grassy slopes, until we had reached the "mesa" tableland next the Coast. We pulled up at the "Alameda," Alder creek; helped the ladies out, unhitched the horses, turned the two buggy horses loose; tied up our saddle horse so as to be sure we could catch our harness horses. Mr. White and Miss Duff took the stream from the crossing down to the mouth to fish, while my daughter and I fished from the bridge upstream.

The fish were few and far between. I had caught five or six before my companion "de chasse" had caught one. "Nellie," I said, "Willie Kittle tells me to fish for trout with a tremolo movement of the hand not too much 'spirit,' but just enough to agitate the fly so to attract the fishes' attention to the lure."

At noon we had caught twenty-one. Mr. White had to catch the train, so after lunch our friend mounted Billy and rode eight or ten miles to Olema and then caught the train for San Francisco. After our companion's departure we had a brief council of war. The girls acknowledged that they were sore and "nettled" at their poor success; said no more fishing; let us follow the Coast line to Bolinas. Fearful that unless I yielded my veracity would be attacked, I had told some fish stories gracefully, I gave up any further fishing, hitched up the team, assisted my fair voyageurs in, picked up the lines and drove off. As we drove by Bass Lake on the Pt. Reyes Club preserve we met Frank Vernon, who had drank at the spring of perpetual youth—outdoor life and field sports—accompanied by the club's head keeper, Tom Irving. Below us lay the beautiful Bass Lake, hemmed in by an oven border of tules.

"Well! How do you do, Mr. Vernon and you, Tom. Any luck fishing?"

"Yes," said Mr. Vernon in his quiet, soft voiced way, "I have caught my limit, Mr. Payne, of thirty-five, most of the members who are fishing, some five in number, have about caught theirs. I am about to try the black bass to see if they rise to a spoon, just an experiment."

It was only a few minutes more before we passed Trout Lake. Men were fishing from the wharf, and some from boats. After leaving Trout Lake we passed little pockets, filled with water, among the rock ribbed hills; evidently of volcanic origin. Soon we entered a rocky pass where ten warriors could hold at bay 100. Through the rocky opening, the rock built frame to the picture, we saw the Farallones sitting on the silent sea.

Winding in and out of ravines, from the ocean and to it again, we reached a point of vantage from which we, far, far in the distance, saw the Cliff House the Pt. Bonita site and the white sand near the Park. In the foreground was an oil derrick, the drill down some 800 feet going through shale and oil sand.

Further on upon the table land near the town of Bolinas, we saw another derrick opposite Duxbury reef. We drove down on the beach where the summer girls swam. It was deserted save by the white gulls which are always there. We drove through the quiet town then up the opposing hill, turned and looked back on Baulinas "the bay of whalos" and the bit of San Francisco we could just see. "C'est joli," I said, turning to the girls; "We are not talking French now," they replied; "we are thinking of the German." "Oh! you want to dance do you? Sit still it is Lent, toe the mark, oat fish. 'Oh! you horrid thing,' they said, 'take us where we can catch fish.'" On our return to the Oaks we learned that our friend Will Kittle had caught 50 good sized brook trout in the Bear Valley dam in a short time. One small boy had caught in the little brook with his worm and hook 24 trout. But we had had the ride and had caught some brook trout beside.

The Royal Kennels will bench four Maltese Terriers.

Mrs. E. B. Thompson's Irvington Kennels will be represented by King Crockett, Doris, Prince Orange and one other rough coated St. Bernard which will, it is claimed, create a sensation in dogdom.

M. C. Delmas of Rocklin will judge Greyhounds. The following additional classes are opened in Greyhounds, sapplings, dogs and bitches, first prize $8, second $4. Junior dogs and bitches, 12 to 18 months, first prize $8, second $4. Champion dogs and bitches, one champion stake to qualify, first prize $25, second prize $15.

Glenwood St. Bernard Kennels' rough coated bitch Alta Maud whelped eight puppies to same owner's Le King. Le King, it will be remembered, won first limit, Winners and special for best in show at Tanforan last year. Among the St. Bernards that will be shown by Mr. Meyer are Le King, Alta Rachel Belline, Miss Barry, Grand Master Jr. and Princess Rachel.

Irving Ackerman, owner of Beau Prummel II., will introduce his young dog St. Leonard, who although only eleven months old is a remarkably large dog.

The Cocker Spaniel Lester Rose was recently sold by Frank Jones of Kansas City, Mo., to Mr. William S. Noyes of this city. Lester Rose is a good one and will be shown at the May show. She has a good bench record.

E. Courtney Ford's Irish Terrier Virginia F. recently whelped a litter of four puppies to Mr. Ford's Barney F. The dam and puppies are doing nicely at the Woodlawn Kennels.

N. H. Hickman's Fox Terrier bitch Ione (Scorchers-Lillian Sage) recently shown at the Boston show, won reserve in novice and limit. The bitches who beat her were Lewanee Liberty Belle, Norfolk Twostep, Norfolk Patience; Norfolk Butterworth, Hillcrest Folly, Norfolk Twostep. Liberty Belle was reserve in winners. Liberty Belle was beaten in New York by Twostep in novice. The Fox Terrier entries at Boston are reported to have been a good lot, Norfolk, Hillcrest and Lewanee Kennels captured most of the honors. The win under the circumstances is a good one and Mr. Hickman is to be congratulated on his pluck and enterprise in sending a dog 3000 miles to compete against the best field the Eastern fanciers would put up.

Doings in Dogdom.

Bull Terrier circles are much interested in two new ones recently brought here by John Bradshaw, who purchased from the Bayview Kennels, Toronto, Can., for Mr. O. Heydenfeldt of this city, Bayview Brigadier and American Belle (formerly known as Bayview Sabatia.) Both these dogs have a creditable list of wins to their show account. They are said to be two of the best in type and conformation that have ever been seen here. It is claimed that if these two dogs are the proper exponents of the Eastern standard of Bull Terrier, local dogs are not in the running. Brigadier was a consistent winner last year at the principal Eastern shows and Belle has a nice string of firsts to her credit.

Deputy Fish Commissioner H. T. Payne, of the California Fish Commission, left this city on Sunday last with a string of thirteen dogs of different breeds. Mr. Payne will handle the dogs and exhibit them at the Seattle and Portland bench shows. This means much to the kennel interests of the North, for it is not often that an important State official honors a dog show by journeying such a long distance with a string of entries to further kennel successes by precept and example. Mr. Payne is a fancier of national reputation, he was once the President of the Pacific Kennel League he introduced the Countess Noble to a long suffering public and is a hot popper in the game protection stew.

The Fox Terrier.

At the coming May show the lovers of a good dog and the fancy at large will have opportunity of viewing a splendid benching of the sprightly breed. Within the past three years some excellent dogs have been located here. The bid for superiority and improvement in the type has not been misplaced as will be noted by the appearance of a fine lot of youngsters in the Produce Stakes of the Pacific Fox Terrier Club. The recent win of Mr. N. H. Hickman's bitch lone at Boston is a happy recognition of enterprise and breeding.

Of all the different kinds of dogs which follow the fancy of man, the Fox Terrier may justly claim the palm for popularity. This foremost position has been achieved during the last twenty years and the reasons are not far to seek. Of a build which commends itself to the eye for smart attractiveness, style and pretty coloring it is no wonder that those who can boast a roof over their heads swear by the Fox Terrier as a faithful companion and reliable watch dog. His game-ness, acute hearing and faithfulness to one friend, master or family account for one thing for his special adaptability as a burglar alarm. As a field companion this breed has qualities and characteristics that have endeared it to lovers of a genuine good dog.

The Fox Terrier, for these reasons, affords a fine field for the ambitious breeder. It matters not whether one breeds for pets or whether one strives to breed terriers with all the points which command attention in the show ring, a ready sale is usually found for superfluous stock.

The Fox Terrier, some twenty years ago, was a byword for diversity, and no wonder its detractors were loud in their claims that the breed was a manufactured one. Indeed, they were of all sorts of shapes and sizes, and the most diligent efforts of breeders to produce a uniform type met with little success for a while.

But this terrier was too engaging to suffer long, and soon such English breeders as Doyle, Vicary, Redmond, Tinno and others picked their types out of the ruck, and, cultivating a hereditary purity of type, carefully excluding all impure blood, however tempting its immediate results might be, soon stamped the different strains with an individuality that became and is now a byword in fancier ranks. Thus we have the Vicary type, like the illustrations of Voracity and Handicraft, the Redmond terrier and so on. Practically these two, it is claimed, are the leading types of Fox Terrier today.

So many people have and do today breed Fox Terriers that the wonder is the breed is not more diversified. Perhaps this is because every kennel owner or breeder secures his breeding stock of the best blood obtainable. This may degenerate through lack of system in breeding and provide the world at large with a lot of terriers that would not get a card at a show, and at best are a long way from prize winners.

Not only in this the experience of the amateur, but the class of breeders who may be said to make a hobby and study of the breed, more often than this, lose themselves in the intricacies of the different strains and flounder about, figuratively speaking, with a winner once in ten years, while another, sticking to his one type, scouring the world for the blood he knows he must have, turns out winners every year. Such men are the Vicarys and Redmonds in England, and Messrs. Carnochan, Rutherford, Gooderham, Ingwer-son, Holgate and others among the leading Eastern fanciers. Over here perhaps one of the best examples of this systematic breeding is the Norfolk kennels of smooth terriers of Toronto, Ont., who turn out several winners consistently every year. It is only by keeping the control of the blood for many generations that this "science of breeding" can be depended upon.

That the Fox Terrier has existed of a type resembling the one of today for nearly a century past is borne out by history, but the early terriers were known as kennel terriers, and were usually found in connection with packs of Foxhounds. They were, and are still, used to bolt the fox when he runs to earth, into a drain or other place of refuge. These kennel terriers were, as a rule, of a sturdier build and lower on the leg than the modern terrier, although old stagers aver that there were terriers sixty years ago that could win today, but this must be accepted with a saline reservation.

The early history of the Fox Terrier is, like many kindred breeds, shrouded in mystery. Some authorities claim that the breed is derived from judicious crossing of the Beagle and the Bull Terrier, and the hound markings and the big ears that crop out in the best regulated kennels give color to the claim. Still, the majority of proof lies in the direction of the old kennel terrier as the fountain.

Many of these old terriers were black and tan. Old Trap, one of the original pillars of the breed, was the son of a black and tan dog, and breeding largely to Old Trap blood will yet bring a race of heavily marked terriers. It was found in working gorse and hedge-rows after hares and rabbits that the darker colored terriers could not be plainly seen by the sportsman, therefore the introduction of "white" blood.

When Fox Terriers were first exhibited the entries came chiefly from the hunting kennels, such as the Grove, from which came the "pillars" of the stud, Old Jock and Grove Nettle, and from the Quorn, Psyche, the Oakley, Old Trap, Belvoir and Belvoir Joe. From them sprang the modern terrier.

When the breed first jumped into popularity about thirty years ago in England, a well marked head was often counted of more value than legs and coat and shape of head, so that soon all definiteness of type was lost. This accounts for much of the fashion in terriers—one day the rage was for low-set and small dogs, the next day it would be long legs and big terriers. The true terrier was in danger, and but for one or two conservative breeders, who kept right on breeding as their intelligence dictated, the breed might have suffered extinction. Happily there is no fear of this now, for types are well established, and there are more real good ones on the benches to-day than ever.

True, many of the terriers during a few years past have been bred too high on the leg, but to-day there is a tendency toward a medium in size, while still retaining the style and quality of the bigger ones.

To secure pluck it is claimed that the Bull Dog and the Bull Terrier have been used on this terrier, but inadvisedly, for not only would this make the Fox Terrier unduly savage with his fox, attacking and killing it in the drain or earth, rather than snapping at and bolting it, but have a tendency to make them work mutely. Moreover, use of the bull blood brings pink noses and prick ears, so they say. Perhaps the kennel which exerted in the early days of showing the most influence on the breed, for merit, was that of the Belvoir Hunt, owned by the Duke of Rutland. From this kennel came the great progenitor, Belvoir Joe. This dog, with Old Jock and Old Trap, are known as the original progenitors—the Shem, Ham and Japhet—of Fox Terriendom. From these are descended nearly all our terriers.

The Jack blood gave terrier character and the Belvoir the beautiful cleanness of head and limb and outline so much admired in this terrier. Another strain, the Foller, gave the hard coat.

Terrier men consider the cleanness of head an evidence of pure breeding, for a strain that runs to a bull cross, or coarse outcross, will generally show evidence, in the thickening of the head, when the terrier gets to be something over a year old and is matured. A true terrier will hold as good almost at six years as at one. Such were Olivo, Belgrave Joe, Dorcas, the Brockerhursts, and, to come to more modern dogs, the smooth champions, Norfolk kennels' Voracity and Handicraft, and the wirehair champion, Meersbrook Bristles, owned respectively by George Gooderham of Toronto and Charles R. Keyes, East Pepperell, Mass. These two terriers may be said to have done much in establishing the representative strain of the two varieties in America to-day. In other words their type is so potent that it can be recognized as superlative along a bench of a hundred terriers.

Meersbrook Bristles is the sire of the world-renowned terrier, Champion Go Bang, for which Mr. Carnochan of New York paid $2500, and all his best sons continue his good work, thus showing the strength and individuality of the strain from which he springs.

Space does not admit of entering into further particulars of the different strains of Fox Terriers, but to a terrier fancier the subject is most fascinating, for the Fox Terrier is a dog with much history carefully compiled. Descendants, and representative ones too, of all the most famous English and American cracker will be found in the kennels of our Coast fanciers. A description of these dogs would take more space than we feel disposed to devote to them in a general article and which subject we hope to enlarge upon in a future paper.

In describing the Fox Terrier there are two varieties to be considered, the smooth and the wire. They do not differ in points excepting in length of coat. The head of a Fox Terrier should be flat in skull, moderately narrow, gradually decreasing to the eyes. The muzzle should be cleanly chiselled out below the eye which must be small, dark, keen, almost round in formation, and on no account bulging. The jaw must be strong and the teeth level; an undershot mouth should put the dog out of the running; of fair punishing length, and nose must be black and should taper.

The ears should be small, triangular and not too thin. They should not be set too high on the head, nor yet hang helplessly from the neck.

The neck should be clean, that is, without any throatiness, of fair length and gradually widening toward the shoulder. The chest should be deep and narrow; width of chest interferes with earth and drain work and gives no more power, besides, it interferes with the dog's action. The depth gives space for heart and lungs and slope of shoulders.

The shoulders should be thin, long and well laid back and fine at the points. The middle piece should be neither flat-sided nor tub shaped, but the ribs should spring well from the spine and descend with an oval sweep. The back ribs should be deep, and back well-ribbed up, providing this does not interfere with liberty of action. Loins should be slightly arched and powerful.

The stern should be set on gayly, but not carried too far over, and is docked. The carriage of the stern should follow that of the Foxhound.

The thighs are long and muscular, free from droop or crouch, with the hocks near to the ground. The forelegs must be straight, the inside line being the test, for the muscling on the outside sometimes interferes with the true lines. They must be short, strong and straight in pastern, with elbows true to the body. Feet not large, but round and compact, pads hard and tough, toes well knuckled, close and turning neither in nor out.

The coat in smooths should be dense, flat and hard—fine to the eye and thick to the hand—flatter on the thighs and a thick stern are looked for, the latter denoting strength and constitution. In color, white should predominate, with black and tan or tan markings, or none at all; brindle, liver or red markings are tabooed.

Weight is by no means a criterion to a terrier's fitness for work; general shape, size and contour are the guides, and the limit in show condition should be twenty pounds.

The Fox Terrier is game on all kinds of vermin, is an excellent water dog and as a trappy companion and watch dog is unexcelled.

New Things In Turf Goods For 1901

New Curved Heel with Wear Plate

All prominent dealers now handle and have in stock our new improved horse boots. Owners and trainers will please send for Catalogue 21, or call upon their dealers who can show the goods, the merits of which will be evident at once to all. The illustration to the right shows a quarter boot made of our new vulcanized leather, which is proving so popular and giving such great results all over the country. It is positively guaranteed to give greater protection than any other kind of leather that has ever been produced. It makes no difference how wet it may become as soon as a boot made of this leather is dried again it is just as beautiful and soft and non-chafing as if it had never been wet, as far as the leather is concerned. It is the greatest improvement we have ever put upon the market. Week after week as horsemen commence to use our new improved wear plate we are informed of many advantages it has that we have never thought of before. It keeps a boot absolutely in the same position and it removes all friction from the quarters, thereby absolutely obviating all chafing. Where there is no friction there can be no chafing. It is of such a form and shape and is so placed upon the boot that it is impossible for the horse to hit it. We also find that for shoe grabbers it is indispensable. Any dealer will guarantee these boots to do absolutely everything we claim for them and if any user finds that they do not he is privileged to return them to the dealer and get his money refunded. There will therefore be no reason why every horseman should not use our line of boots this season for they are absolutely guaranteed to be superior to the old style of boots which are made by every manufacturer in the country today and they cost less money.

We wish to emphasize the great advantage of our new shaped or curved heel. It is one of the greatest improvements we have ever made and an improvement which should have been incorporated in horse boots years ago. Take any boot made by any manufacturer in the country today; place it on the hoof, having the upper part fit the quarters closely as well as the lower part and you will find that the strap in front is away down on the toe, which is not the position in which the boot rests after being buckled on. Now then buckle the quarter boot in its proper position and you will find that the upper part of the boot behind on the quarter sticks away from the foot, leaving an open cavity in which dirt and gravel will settle. A boot of this class can give little protection to the quarters. It is entirely different with our new curved heel quarter boot. As soon as you put it on the hoof it will naturally come to its place both on the quarters and in the front. The straps in the front which hold the boot on the hoof will at once go to their place and at the same time the boot will fit snugly and nicely on the quarters. At the same time the wear plate will hold the boot absolutely in position. It will not move one-sixteenth of an inch and therefore will not chafe. If you wish to buy of your dealer call upon him at once. If he has not got our boots have him send for our catalogue No. 21 which fully describes and illustrates the great advantages of these goods. This catalogue also illustrates our beautiful line of track harness which is not equalled by any line on the market today. We are producing the finest track harness that has ever been worn on the American trotting horse.

Our Blue Ribbon saddle has been proved to be the only saddle in which to race a horse. We can produce hundreds of unsolicited testimonials from the best trainers in the country to this effect. It gives a smooth even bearing all over the body of the animal and is guaranteed not to injure the back in any way. It is absolutely superior to any metallic tree saddle the bearing on which comes at a point where the bottom of the tree rests. All our Blue Ribbon harness are supplied with Blue Ribbon saddles, or your dealer can supply you with these saddles if you wish. Those desiring a catalogue of harness for pleasure driving, such as buggy harness, surrey harness, runabout harness, pole harness, carriage and coupe harness, will please send for our No. 20 catalogue. It is the most beautifully illustrated catalogue that has ever been published in this country and the prices we are offering are lower than we have ever offered before. We also publish a book which we call our 20th Century Handy Book which is an exceedingly interesting and valuable book for everyone, filled with statistics of great interest to every horse owner. Send for these books at once. They are absolutely free for the asking. Catalogue 21 shows all turf goods.

THE FARM.

Pasture Crops for Hogs.

Pasture and range are necessary in order to keep breeding swine in a healthy condition and grow the stock at a profit. The man who tries to raise swine under other conditions is playing a losing game, and his balance will be on the debtor side of the ledger just as sure as we have day and night. Although these facts have been vouched for many times by experiment stations and successful swine raisers and given wide publicity, thousands of farmers still continue in trying to raise hogs in a dry lot with nothing but corn as a feed, with the expectation of making it a profitable operation.

A hog pasture does not mean a dust lot with possibly a few old weeds off in one corner, but a good and commodious range and if planned to give the best results, it will contain a variety of crops, selected as to their food value. The pasture should not be so small that the hog is compelled to eat his own filth to get the feed. Every farm should have six to eight acres of hog pasture fenced purposely for this use. This is in addition to what range may be utilized outside at times. Better far to have a little too much than not enough. If the crop gets ahead of the hogs and becomes woody cut it off with the mower and a new growth will start. This can be done with many plants and will pay even if the mowed portion is not gathered. The pasture may be greatly fertilized by this method in many cases. The enclosure should be divided into two or three parts, at least, so that while one part is being pastured, crops may be growing in the others.

While succulent food is very essential the year round for growing and breeding stock, the exercise is just as necessary. Pigs confined in pens will do much better if they have some green feed, but the results will be vastly better if the pigs are allowed a range and the chance to gather this feed for themselves.

Any green crop is much better than no pasture, but some crops for this purpose are very much superior to others and a variety of crops, even though they may be much alike in composition, are superior to a single crop. Many swine raisers that appreciate the value of a hog pasture, do not realize the importance of giving attention to variety and composition of the plants to be used.—Coleman's Rural World.

The oldest of his get are four year olds, and no horse in California can show a greater proportion of large, handsome, strongly built and well boned colts. They all look alike and in nearly every instance are square trotters.

SEYMOUR WILKES is by Guy Wilkes, his dam Early Bird by Playmail, second dam by Odd Fellow, third dam by a son of Williamson's Belmont, fourth dam by Blackhawk 767. He weighs 1200 pounds, stands 16 hands high, and is one of the most symmetrical horses in California. Several of his get are in San Francisco and will be shown to prospective breeders with pleasure. For further particulars apply to THOS. ROCHIE, Lakeville, Sonoma Co., or J. W. Gregory, St. George Stables, 408 Bush street, San Francisco.

Mares can be shipped direct to ranch, via Steamer Gold. Pasturage $3 per month.

Was demonstrated, in the Contest for
the William Payne Thompson Cup,

Value $600, emblematic of the Carteret Amateur Championship, at live birds. Seventeen of the best Amateur Trap Shots in the United States competed for this trophy, at Carteret Gun Club grounds, February 21 and 22, 1901. Harold Money, shooting the Parker Gun, won the Cup and First Money, scored 88 out 100, 30 yards rise, 30 yards boundary. H. B. Kirkover, shooting the Parker Gun, scored 87 out 100. Col. Thomas Martin also shooting the Parker Gun, scored 87 out 100. At the close of the above event the Carteret Gun Club gave a cup, valued at $100, for a miss and out contest. Harold Money at 33 yards, again showed the superiority of the Parker Gun by winning this cup and killing 17 straight. Send for catalogue.

JOTTINGS.

SEVERAL District Agricultural Associations in California will not hold fairs and race meetings this year, but will do so next year and draw the entire State appropriation at that time. If it were not for the section of the law which provides that all the money can be expended for a fair during the second fiscal year of the appropriation, but only one half during the first year, there could be an agreement entered into by many of the districts, whereby they would hold their fairs on alternate years. The directors of a district which gets but a small appropriation, are like other people and feel that a surplus is easier to handle than a deficit, consequently they are willing to hold a fair once in two years and thus be assured against actual loss. The association which holds a fair every year, however, is of much greater aid in the development of a community and will give more successful meetings than the one which can only be aroused to action once in two years. There is no reason except unwise management why any district in California should lose money on a meeting this year. The State aid is twenty-five per cent more than last year and if properly used will assure an exposition that will be a credit to the district that uses it.

The five furlong track which the Oakland Driving Club is building, will offer an advantage in starting races at one mile which, in my opinion, will be very evident whenever racing at that distance is held over it. I have often thought, when watching a start on a regulation mile track, that much better results could be obtained and starting made easier, were the start made further up the stretch. When the word is given there is always a rush for the pole to avoid the overland route when rounding the first turn. As the starting point is very close to the turn every driver on the outside has his horse pointed toward the inside rail as soon as possible after the word is given and in large fields there is an extra endeavor made by every driver to avoid getting cut off. Now on the five furlong track the start for a mile race would be near the beginning of the straight on the back stretch. The horses would have a straight score of 247 feet before reaching the starter, which is ample, and a straight race of 577 feet before a turn was reached. This, I believe, would make starting easier and more satisfactory for all concerned. When the drivers see that there is quite a stretch of straight sailing ahead they will not crowd to the pole so quickly and there will not be the inclination to "get off in front or spoil the start" that is some times shown on the mile tracks. I shall expect to see good starts the rule at the first meeting of the Oakland Driving Club.

Mr. Hugh Vail of Santa Barbara, one of the directors of the 19th agricultural district, was in the city this week, and in conversation I found him very much in favor of his district making an attempt to hold a fair and race meeting this fall that would be on the main circuit. Santa Barbara is one of the beautiful spots in Southern California and the association has the use of an excellent track there owned by Mr. Underhill. If a program of racing could be arranged so as to attract the leading harness horses as well as the runners, and the week just prior to the Los Angeles meeting selected, there is no doubt but a big list of entries could be secured and some high class racing result. Salinas will give a meeting this year and the horseman bound for Los Angeles could ship over the new coast route after racing in the Monterey county town. If San Jose does not give a meeting Salinas will probably follow Stockton, and this would bring the horsemen to Santa Barbara about the first week in October. The Los Angeles meeting opened October 20th last year, but I understand they will open earlier this year, and will endeavor to catch some of the best of the runners on their way from the East to San Francisco.

Thos. Gibson, M. Diggs and A. C. Stevens, three of the directors of the Woodland Agricultural Society came to San Francisco this week to confer with the owner of the Woodland fair grounds in regard to securing a lease of the same. The association finds that it must do something toward keeping the track in order or the horses now in training will be taken to another locality by their owners. The citizens of Woodland recently subscribed a large sum of money to spend on the track and grounds which are private property, as the owner would not do it, and the association has doubtless come to the conclusion that it will be saving money by keeping the track in order instead of getting it in order a few weeks prior to the fair as it did last year. It cost nearly a thousand dollars last year to clean up the Woodland track and get it in shape for the fair but it would not cost one half that amount this year if work should begin now and keep up until the date of the meeting.

While it is a matter of pride to California horsemen that all the tracks on which racing is held here are a mile in length, it would probably have been better for many of the district associations had they built half-mile rings instead of the regulation mile tracks. A half-mile track sixty feet wide can be built on fifteen acres of land, and a twenty acre tract, if in the proper shape, is sufficient for stalls, grand stands, cattle sheds, etc., etc. As in most instances at least sixty acres is taken up by the track and buildings of the district fair grounds, and the rental for the land alone is generally ten dollars per acre, the saving for rental between a tract of fifty acres and one of twenty is three hundred dollars. It costs just twice as much to keep a mile track in order as it does for one of a half-mile and there are other ways in which expenses are lessened. Racing on a half-mile track is as pleasing to the public as on the regulation tracks, and if the stretch and first turn are made eighty feet in width the starting is as easily effected, and as satisfactory. The time made is necessarily a little slower, and it is not expected that records will be broken on the shorter ovals. There are many things in favor of the half-mile track in small towns, and the principal one is the saving in the expenditure.

John Phippen Writes of Texas Horses.

DALLAS (Tex.), April 12, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The spring weather has come at last here in Dallas. Everything looks green, with the climate something like California. The Electrites are working very nicely; only two of them will be sold at the Cleveland sale in May, but they are crackerjacks:

Senator Mills, 4 years, three year old record 2:29½, first dam Clifton Roseberry, she by Roseberry 2:15 by Strathmore; next dam thoroughbred. He has worked a mile in 2:38, last half in 1:13, last quarter in 34½ seconds. Two weeks ago would have stepped him a good quarter on the 9th but it rained.

Aylwin, 3 years, by Electrite, first dam Silver Bell by Simmons and back to thoroughbred, is a great colt. On April 6th I worked him two slow miles and let him step some the latter end; first in 2:40—last half in 1:14½, last quarter in 34½; second in 2:32—last half in 1:10, last quarter in 32½; this was to a Toomey cart. These two colts are both trotters and the best prospects for race horses ever sired by Electrite, to my notion, or most any other horse.

The others that I am going to take to Cleveland to sell are Black Ruben, 5 years, by Americus, a son of Kentucky Prince; first dam Rubia by Guy Wilkes, second dam Ruby 2:20 by Sultan, sire of Stauboul 2:07½. This fellow is a grand looking individual and can step a 2:20 shot. Miss Jura Bell 2:19, 10 years, by St. Bell 2:24½, is a very handsome mare, can go fast and will make some gentleman a roadster and a matinee performer that you will read about. Last, but not least, is a seven year old gelding pacer called Pilot D., by Joe Patchen, that will step about some at Cleveland; need not need any boots or hoppers, nothing but one set of harness. He has stepped a quarter this spring very easily in 32½ seconds to a cart.

I have nineteen dead all told that are working well. Mr. W. O. Foote has been enjoying good health this winter and is working hard every day on about fifteen head, all doing nicely. The Private (p) 2:07½ is big and strong this spring and is working fine. I think he will knock pretty hard at Concy's and Anaconda's records before fall.

Also my friend, Mr. Geo. R. King, can be seen every few minutes all day on the track. He has about twenty head that he is breaking and working for speed. He has four or five that he expects to go North with this spring that are working well; the fastest one is Blondie 2:13½, the others are green but good. I expect my family here on Sunday, the 14th, to visit me for a month and expect it to be the happiest month I have yet put in in Texas. With regard to all, I am as ever,

Yours truly, JNO. S. PHIPPEN.

Anaconda and Lady of the Manor.

"Anaconda was the boy to give them a battle," said Myron McHenry last week to a Chicago Tribune reporter. "I shall never forget the first time we hooked up with the Hamlin mare, Lady of the Manor. It was just after she had got the record for pacing mares, a trifle better than 2:05, and the Hamlin people got it into their heads that she could beat Anaconda. It was a great betting race, for Geers had the fever, too, and that meant a lot. You know how the Lady had been winning her races by coming from behind with a grand flourish and cutting down her opponent in the homestretch. I was off in the lead with Anaconda, and about the time the mare was due to make her brush I thought to myself that she would sample a different brand of goods that trip. And she did. She got Anaconda's wheel, and, to be frank, she hung a little longer than I thought she would, but the way Anaconda dug out for the wire when he found her alongside of him was a sight. He won the heat in 2:03½, and he took the tuck out of that mare so that in the next heat she would not strike a real square pace, and I could have shut her out, Roan Wilkes beating her for the place. I hope Anaconda's new driver does well for him, for he is a brave, honest horse, but he will have to get the combination just right if he does."

Time to Return a Mare.

An inquiry of interest is thus submitted by T. E.:

"The breeding season is at hand and there is great interest awakening here in horse and mule raising. I stand a stallion and jack and would like to get information on the proper time to return a mare to the stallion after she has been served. I am sure an article on this subject would be of great benefit to many of your readers."

Most men who own mares and most men who handle stallions are greatly in need of sound information on this very subject. As a very general rule the mare owner is anxious to find that his mare has safely settled in foal so that he may be sure of her having a colt and that he may not be bothered any more with taking her to the horse. On the other hand the stallion owner is just as anxious to get the mare with foal to his horse, as that means so much more revenue. The net result is that mares are tried at seven, nine, ten, eleven, twelve, fourteen, seventeen and twenty-one days—not at each of these several periods, of course, but at periods marked by the lapse of so many days.

The most general rule observed is to try mares on the tenth to the fourteenth day after covering. This is all wrong. Naturally a mare will come in use about every three weeks. In the extremely hot weather we have in the Middle West and among corn-feeding farmers the periods of oestrus in mares often extend very much longer than they do in colder countries and where colder foods are more largely fed. When a mare, therefore, continues long in use, as she does here, she may be tried and be bred again in one heat, while if she had been let alone and permitted to go till the twenty first day she would have been found to have settled all right. As it is, she is bred again and the consequent constitutional disturbance may cause her to cast what has gained place in her uterus and then keep coming back and back all season long.

The best and most successful stallion handlers in the country insist that a mare should not be returned to be tried by the horse oftener than every three weeks. To submit her to the teasing of the horse oftener merely encourages her to form bad habits and to keep perpetually in use. But the stallion man who is thoroughly up to date in all his methods rarely now is much bothered with mares coming back often to his horse. He calls in the aid of science to help him and so settles the mares regularly and many of them to the first leap—Breeders Gazette.

Meetings at Vancouver, B. C.

As will be seen by reference to our advertising columns the Vancouver Jockey Club will hold a race meeting on the 24th and 25th of May. These will be both harness and running events, full particulars of which are published.

The Vancouver Jockey Club have expended upwards of $3500 this year on improvements to their track and grounds. A large block of new stables have been erected, with comfortable quarters for attendants attached.

Vancouver is easily reached by direct steamers from San Francisco and Puget Sound ports; especially favorable terms to horsemen are made on these boats. Vancouver has also direct railway connections with Seattle and other points.

United States horses can be bonded in for exhibition purposes, free of charge. By signifying their intentions of being present, owners will save themselves trouble and delay.

A meeting of the Board of Directors of the club was held in Vancouver Saturday, April 6th, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Jas. Fullerton; Vice-President, Dr. McPhillips; Treasurer, J. O. Benwell; Secretary, Robert Leighton; Thomas Dunn, Jas. P. Garden, M. P. P., and Mayor T. O. Townley were elected Honorary Vice-Presidents.

It is proposed to hold a matinee on June 15th, at which prizes will be offered for home bred horses. The subject of the Dominion Day program was taken up. It was decided to make two special purses of extraordinary magnitude in order to induce the attendance of the very highest class of race horses. The committee is assured now of the fact that it will have such a track and stabling accommodation as the most fastidious owner of the most valuable race stock will have nothing to cavil at, and we are sure that the enterprise will be justified by a large high class entry. The two events are: On Dominion Day, July 1st, a $1000 purse for free-for-all trotters and pacers will be offered, and on July 2d, the Dominion Day Handicap of one and one quarter miles for all ages will be of the same value. That $1000 purse for pacers and trotters ought to be big enough for some of our fast California pacers to try for.

A Large Skeleton.

The Terre Haute Express says: Dr. S. V. Ramsey has on exhibition at his veterinary hospital, on South Third street, the skeleton of "Old Kalip," the largest horse known to have lived in this part of the country. Old Kalip belonged to John Bodewin, the well known horse trainer, and was exhibited at all the country fairs in this part of Indiana for a number of years. He was eight years old when he died, and weighed 3240 pounds, and stood 22½ hand high. The skeleton weighs 264 pounds and stands 20½ hands high.

The race between The Abbot and Cresceus at Brighton Beach track is off. Mr. Ketchum, owner of the latter, returned the contracts to New York last Wednesday, claiming they were not in accord with the original verbal agreement. He will shortly leave with Cresceus for the Oakley track, Cincinnati.

A Visit to Pleasanton Race Track.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 14, 1901.

Arriving one day last week at the home of Direct and Directum, the racing wonders of California, I was met by Mr. George A. Davis, who invited me to take a ride. I accepted and in a minute we were going at a two minute clip. I asked Mr. Davis what pacer he was driving, and he surprised me by saying, "This is Flying Jib." I had supposed that the Jib horse was too eccentric to pull a buggy, but he is truly a model roadster, does not pull, does not shy and is in perfect accord with his driver. Mr. Davis informed me that Jib is being driven by Mrs. Davis as a family horse. He is surely a beautiful animal. I was shown over the Rancho Del Valle, and the colts I saw do credit to their sire Rey Direct. As a sire of size, beauty, color and speed no horse living or dead has an edge on him. I saw Rey Direct 2:10, and no description ever written of him does him justice. He is a perfect model, is the most docile of animals, and his legs are as smooth as plate glass. He is in fine form and when he strikes the fast Eastern tracks he will make his record of 2:10 a back number. Mr. Davis is giving him a slow, careful preparation. Rey Direct has his speed, and is one of the gamest pacers that ever lived. His racing career of last season proves that to be a certainty. Mr. Davis has a band of broodmares that do credit to any farm, from a point of breeding and good looks, and the young Rey Directs are sure to add lustre to their sire wherever they go.

After looking over Mr. Davis' farm, I was again driven behind the Jib horse to the famous Pleasanton race track, where so many champions got their first lessons. I met Mr. James Thompson, who at present seems to be taking the place of Monroe Salisbury as King Maker. Mr. Thompson came out behind a beautiful bay pacer, and the way that pacer split the wind made me ask his name. I was told it is "Thornway," owned by Colonel Kirkpatrick. The rail birds say Thornway is a wonder; he certainly acts like one.

Next Mr. Thompson came out behind the bay gelding Little Thorne 2:07½ and this little horse can step a merry clip; he looks and acts like a winner. Then came the sensation of Mr. Thompson's stable in the shape of a big strapping bay gelding named Rajah, that worked a fast mile. Mr. Thompson asked a very large and handsome gentleman to drive Rajah the second trial; the gentleman accepted, and I could hear him make some nautical remarks to the pacer as he flew through the stretch; it sounded like "starboard," then "port" and "hard over." I wondered why those sailor remarks. But when I learned that the gentleman is a ship captain, I knew that he thought the Rajah was a flying ship. Anyway, he was a good horse pilot, for he brought the Rajah safely into port away head of the runner, which was not fast enough to set the pace. The Rajah goes East and Mr. Thompson will surely make the Eastern cracks step some to beat him.

Next we saw Bonnie Direct, and beyond any question he is one of the handsomest horses alive, and no doubt one of the fastest. His owner, Mr. Griffith, can be justly proud of him. Mr. Griffith has a very pretty bay filly by Directum. This filly is a trotter with a beautiful, trappy gait, and she is a sure fast one.

Then we saw a yearling pacer owned by Mr. Griffith pace an eighth in 18½ seconds, and do it easy—then a trotting yearling by Diablo that is a trotter and a fast one. Burt Webster has these babies in nice fix, with good manners, and he certainly deserves credit.

In the same stable we saw a filly by Chas. Derby that will be troublesome about racing time.

Mr. Bigelow was out behind Tags. This mare is in fine form and has speed to throw away. A filly by Hanford Medium, out of the dam of Kelly Briggs, came next, and few horses can show more speed or finish. She will do to buy a ticket on in the slow classes.

Mr. Welsh was up behind a son of the mighty Allerton. This horse is a bay and a beautiful gaited trotter. He has no record, and in Mr. Welsh's hands should add one more fast performer to Allerton. Next Mr. Welsh brought out a two year old chestnut by Allerton that stepped like a hackney.

Then an old gentleman rode out behind a little brown pacer. This colt is by Direct out of Rosie C., and he can show a two minute gait right now. He is owned by Tom Clancy of Seattle, as is his full brother, who is also a pacer.

Honest John Sawyer drove Kinmont, a handsome son of McKinney. Kinmont is a resolute trotter and will make a 2:15 performer ere snow flies again. Pathmark, a son of Pathmont, is the best horse in Sawyer's stable, and will surely place 2:10 after his name. Chief Seattle, a grandson of Direct, is a pacing wonder. Mr. Sawyer is very proud of him.

John Blue is busy making speed with a lot of good looking young horses and he should know how, as he has been a pupil under the best preceptor in America.

J. M. Alviso rode behind a beautiful brown mare by Direct. This mare is a bold going trotter and she has speed to burn, and when the bell rings, barring accidents, she will be able to place a 2:20 mark to her credit, as she can now stop a mile in 2:20 and better. Mr. Alviso has four black mares by Chas. Derby that do credit to that grand sire. They have not had enough handling yet to go fast, but Alviso says they are sure trotters with the best of dispositions. These trotters all belong to Mr. Crellin, former owner of Searchlight. Mr. Crellin has the faculty of picking out good ones, so everyone looks for great things from the trotters in Alviso's stable.

Mr. Griffith came out behind a black pacer with a blaze face called Sharkey, and this horse is surely a pacing wonder. The show horse of Pleasanton is a black gelding by Rect, owned by Mr. Griffith. This horse can show with the Mambrino Kings, Stambouls, or any of the famous families of show ring horses.

He has size, finish and manners—and speed galore. Mr. Griffith has done more than his share for horse interests in breeding such a horse as Bonnie Direct, and every horseman in this State owes him a vote of thanks.

Mr. Davis, owner of Rey Direct, is certainly raising a family of young harness horses that will bring money and fame to him as a breeder.

William Cecil brought out Bob Ingersoll by Nutwood Wilkes. This gelding goes East to represent his illustrious sire, and he has speed enough and good looks enough to add new laurels to one of California's greatest stallions. Mr. Cecil is giving his horses a careful preparation, and he has heretofore had success as a driver and should make this year his banner year.

Next came one of the foremost reinsmen of America, Millard Sanders behind Janice. This beautiful mare acts like a real lady. She has her speed and it will take a good trotter to outfoot her when she strikes the fast Eastern tracks.

Mr. Sanders also drove Dollie Dillon, and you could not ask for a more perfect going trotter; she is fast enough for any company. Mr. Sanders horses are all in fine form and Sanders looks happy and contented. No trainer has a better lot of horses to handle, and, barring accidents, Millard will finish in front a lot of times.

The Directs predominate around Pleasanton. The S. P. Station Agent came out behind a handsome bold going trotter by Direct. This gentleman takes a lot of pleasure riding behind this Direct gelding and so he well may.

After all the workouts were over it was time for dinner and Mr. Thompson invited us to his bungalow to dine. Now everyone knows Thompson is a good horse trainer, but he has another good quality, that is, he is a model host, and the way he arranges his neat bungalow, and the way he entertains his guests would make any hotel keeper look green with envy. Every luxury from White Seal to Brie cheese was on hand, and Mr. Thompson certainly can go in the free for all class as a host.

Then a game of Pedro was started; in that I found Mr. Thompson was inclined to act a bit erratic; he seemed to be short of speed, and Mr. Griffith had the call on all the money. The game wound up with some Scotch and soda, when we all retired to rest, only to be awakened at times by Mr. Thompson making remark in his sleep about the Rajah and bad Pedro players. We were called at 5:30, breakfast at 6, and then Mr. Thompson drove us to the train, and it was with regret I took my departure from "horse heaven." I certainly enjoyed a pleasant visit and was royally entertained by these Princes of Good Fellows, Messrs. Davis, Thompson, Griffith, Sanders and Crellin.

Electioneer-Wilkes. A Study of the 2:10 Trotter.

The new Year Book lists 123 trotters with records of 2:10 or better, and all have the blood of Hambletonian except five. The whole list may be sorted into four lots, as follows: Four per cent. without Hambletonian, 20 per cent. with Electioneer, 40 per cent. with Wilkes and the remaining 36 per cent. with Hambletonian blood outside the two branches of Electioneer and Wilkes.

Electioneer claims precedence as a progenitor of 2:10 trotting speed, because no stallion has sired more 2:10 trotters than he, and he has more in the second and third generation than any 2:10 sire. Hence, it seems reasonable to believe that the single influence of Electioneer in the production of 2:10 speed is more potent than that of any other stallion.

ELECTIONEER'S 2:10 FAMILY.

Sire of Arion, (4) 2:07½; Sunol 2:08½, Palo Alto 2:08½, grandsire of The Abbot 2:03½, Azote 2:04½, Fantasy 2:06, Bingen 2:06½, Dione 2:07½, Nico 2:08½, The Monk 2:08½, Bouncer 2:09, Copeland 2:09½, Countess Eve 2:09½, Athanio 2:10, Little Albert 2:10, Serpol 2:10.

Great grandsire of Tommy Britton 2:06½, Charley Herr 2:07, Boralma 2:08, Directum Kelly 2:08½, Derby Princess 2:08½, Dave Devil 2:09, Jasper Ayers 2:09, Neeretta 2:09½, Contralto 2:10.

No other stallion can show such a distinguished list of descendants in the first three generations, and when it comes to age, where can you find in one family such another lot of four year olds as Fantasy, Arion, Boralma, Nico, Directum Kelly, The Monk and Contralto? It should not be forgotten that Charley Herr also took a record of 2:10 when only a four year old. The champion records and the great race horses in the above list are too well known and need not be singled out. For early and extreme speed, together with quality and class, the Electioneer branch has attained the greatest distinction, although it is one of the younger families and by no means as large numerically as some of the others.

In passing on to a consideration of the Wilkes family we must take three descendants of Electioneer with us, viz.: Bingen 2:06½, Boralma 2:08 and Bouncer 2:09. Bingen has a double cross of Wilkes from his dam Young Miss. Boralma has Electioneer from sire and dam, but still there is an important Wilkes line. His sire Boreal is out of Rosy Morn by Alcantara. Bouncer's sire is out of Edith by George Wilkes. With these three, the 2:10 trotters which carry, through one or more channels, the Wilkes blood, number 51 as follows:

GEORGE WILKES 2:10 FAMILY.

First generation has no 2:10 speed.

Second generation through sons.—Guy Wilkes 2:15½ is sire of Fred Kohl 2:07½, Hulda 2:08½, Lesa Wilkes 2:09. Alecyono 2:27 is a sire of Martha Wilkes 2:08, Bush 2:09½, Harrietta 2:09½.

Young Jim is sire of Trevillian 2:08½, Dandy Jim 2:09½, David B. 2:09½.

Wilton 2:19½ is sire of Bessie Wilton 2:09½, Rubbor 2:10, Moquette (4) 2:10.

Onward 2:25½ is sire of Beuzetta 2:06½, Pilatus 2:09½.

Jay Bird 2:31½ is sire of Allerton 2:09½, Early Bird 2:10.

Baron Wilkes 2:18 is sire of Oakland Baron 2:09½, Baron Rogers 2:09½.

Ralph Wilkes 2:06½, Phoebe Wilkes 2:08½, Dan Cupid 2:09½, Rilma 2:09½, Captain Jack 2:09½, York Boy 2:09½, all by different sons, making 13 sons, that are sires of 2:10 trotters.

Third generation through grandsons.—Jude 2:07½, Georgeanna 2:09½, Dan Wilkes 2:09½, Ellard 2:09½, each by a son of Red Wilkes.

Sarah S. 2:09½, Little Corporal 2:09½, Battlodon 2:09½, Dick Hubbard 2:09½, each by a son of Onward.

Gayton 2:08½, Alves 2:09½, Eagle Flanagan 2:07½, by sons of Jay Bird.

Grattan Boy 2:08, Lord Vincent 2:08½, by sons of Wilkes Boy 2:24½.

Valpa 2:09½, Hazel Kinney 2:09½, by sons of Alecyono.

Ellorece 2:08½, Praytell 2:09½ by Axtell 2:12, son of William L. Kingmond 2:09, Lecco 2:09½, John A. McKerron 2:10, by sons of different sons.

Bingen 2:06½, Letah S. 2:09½, Early Reaper 2:09½, from daughters of different sons. Their sires have no Wilkes, but Bingen and Early Reaper have double crosses of Wilkes from their dams.

Ouqua 2:08½, Bouncer 2:09, from sons of daughters. Onoqua's dam is by a son of Red Wilkes.

Fourth generation.—Boralma 2:08, sire is from daughter of Alcantara.

Pat L. 2:09½, sire is from daughter of Wilkes mare.

In the Electioneer family there is but one example, Boralma 2:08, where the parent strain is double, but the Wilkes tribe being a family of more age with descendants more distant from the common ancestor, the intercrossing of its members has been frequent. Those with two crosses are Allerton, Alves, Bingen, Baron Rogers, Dick Hubbard, Eagle Flannagan, Ellorece, Early Reaper, Kingmond, Lecco, Onoqua, and Gayton has three crosses. Almost one-quarter of the entire 2:10 Wilkes family are interbred.

In calling attention to these two main "common sources" of 2:10 speed, for together they embrace 60 per cent. of the entire list, it is by no means contended that there are not many other meritorious lines of extreme speed. (It is proposed to investigate them after a similar fashion in some future issue.) Neither is it always easy or indeed convincing to place one's finger on some particular line of a trotter's pedigree and say, "That's it," and the others go for nothing. All the ancestors have a share, but some have far more than others. When we find such an array of fast trotters all related to each other, and all tracing quickly back to a common ancestor, we are bound to believe in the prepotency of that ancestor and the excellence of the family. In the light of recorded facts, the bonanzas of extreme trotting speed are in the Electioneer and Wilkes veins, and it is wiser to seek for nuggets where they are plentiful than in the thinner alluvial scatterings.

The fastest speed got by George Wilkes was 2:13½, and two of his sons get trotters to go in 2:06½. The son of Chimes takes the record five seconds below the mark set by the champion daughter of Electioneer. Both families have a large enough number of fast trotters to prove that the capacity for extreme speed is a family characteristic, that it is "bred in the bone" and not solely an accidental or individual acquirement. The records, however, do not show that there has been much crossing between the two families, and they show little intercrossing between members of the Electioneer family. Breeders are now by no means blind to the advantages of doubling up the Electioneer and crossing it with the Wilkes. It has been forced upon their notice. But it is only within the past few years that they have fully awakened to the situation, the so-called rivalry between the families causing prejudice on both sides, and so results must be waited for.

Who knows but that the two-minute trotter may be nearer at hand than we yet dream of? TRON KIRK.

A New Experiment.

The demand for high class polo ponies, not only in this country, but abroad, is so great that many breeders naturally have turned their attention to producing the type most desired by those who indulge in the pastime. That America now produces the best type of this class in the world, there is no doubt, and although many horsemen might have their doubts as to the value of the Arab blood, yet no one can deny the fact that the desert blood has been a great factor in this line. A number of prominent breeders in the country have experimented with the Arab blood with varying success and if some of them have failed to breed the right kind, the failure in almost every case has been the selection of unsuitable mares. A new experiment is being made by W. G. Hughes, the well known breeder of Hastings, Tex., which appears to be very feasible and the result is being watched by many interested breeders. Mr. Hughes is one of the largest breeders in the United States, of ponies, Angoras and Jersey cattle. For several years he has carefully studied the pure blooded mustangs. He has made several trips into Mexico and now owns the choicest selection of mustang mares, one might say, in the world.

Last fall Mr. Hughes, while on a trip East, visited several American-Arab breeders, but could induce none to part with any of their American-Arab stallions which he liked.

While in Philadelphia he offered a big sum for T. C. Patterson's famous pony sire Kasim, but the offer was declined. Through The Christmas Horseman and by the advice of Randolph Huntington, Mr. Hughes went to Fox Lake, Wss., recently and after some delay and through the good offices of mutual friends, persuaded F. C. Warren, proprietor of the Laurel Hill Horse farm, to part with Nimrod at a reported price of $3000, an account of which was given in The Horseman recently. Nimrod will be bred to Mr. Hughes' pure blooded mustang mares and he believes that this union will produce the finest type of the polo pony in the world. As stated, breeders will watch the result of the experiment with much interest.—Chicago Horseman.

NOMINATIONS CLOSE TO-DAY for the rich stakes offered by the Montana Jockey Club, whose meeting begins June 29th and continues sixty days. Of these stakes the Montana Derby is $1500 for three year olds at a mile and a quarter; the Daly Memorial Cup, $1000, two miles, a handicap for three year olds and upward; the Miner's Union Stake, a $1000 handicap at a mile; the Butte Selling Stake, $850, six furlongs; the Hot Times Stake, $800, four and a half furlongs; the Labor Day Handicap, $1000, a mile and an eighth; the Silver City Selling Stake, $1000, a mile and a sixteenth; the Silver Bow Stakes, $1000, four and a half furlongs; the Hamburg Handicap, $1000, five furlongs, and the Anaconda Handicap, $1000, one mile. It costs but five dollars to make the entry in any of these stakes, and the entrance to purse races to be given there is to be free. The Montana meeting offers an excellent opportunity for owners now in California who have no Eastern engagements, and gives them an opportunity to race for good purses all summer at a small cost for transportation. The stakes that close to-day should receive many entries.

WEDNESDAY, MAY FIRST, is not far away and on that date will close the entries for the $10,000 purse for 2:10 trotters and the $5000 purse for four year old trotters of the 2:24 class, both of which are offered by the New England Trotting Horse Breeders Association, whose meeting will be held at Readville, Mass., September 16th to 20th. There should be several entries from California in both these purses.

CALIFORNIA WILL BE REPRESENTED on the Grand Circuit this year by many good horses, and the reputation of this State will not lose any of its lustre of former years. While this State is but a small portion of the Union when population is considered, and but few of our wealthy citizens are engaged in breeding the light harness horse, our trotters and pacers go East annually to compete against the best from every section and return with a good share of the money and the records. This year will be no exception. Among the entries to the big purses and stakes already closed, there are horses bred at Palo Alto, Oakwood Park, Nutwood Stock Farm, and by many of the smaller breeding establishments, sons and daughters of Dexter Prince, McKinney, Steinway, Chas. Derby, Diablo, Nutwood Wilkes, Eros, Stamboul, Hawthorne, William Harold, Sidney Dillon, Cupid, Altivo, Mendocino, Direct, and other stallions whose names are household words on the Pacific slope, and some of which have held world's records. Never since breeding harness horses was first begun in California has a faster lot of green horses been prepared for the Eastern trip, and on conformation and looks they will outrank any consignment ever headed for the big stakes on the Grand Circuit. The death of T. E. Keating was a serious blow to California training and had he lived his string of campaigners for this season would have been very conspicuous in the stake races, but while his presence will be missed, there will be California horses, and good ones, too, in nearly every important event decided this year, and we feel confident that when the Grand Circuit ends at Memphis the season's records will show that California bred trotters and pacers have won a goodly portion of the events and that many of them are among the fastest of the new 2:10 performers.

A SHORT SIGHTED POLICY is pursued by many owners of race track properties in the country districts of this State. While every track is not so situated as to be a training centre, there are quite a number that would bring good rental to the owner each year were they kept in condition for training and a fair held annually or once in two years. There are fair grounds in California for which the owners demand a rental of from $250 to $600 from the district agricultural association for one week, and after this enormous rent has been paid the association is compelled to expend as much more to clean the grounds and make them fit to hold a fair on. The stall rent at some of these tracks brings to the owner an additional revenue, and yet if any improvements are to be made, such as repairing stalls, keeping the track in order, etc., the citizens of the community are called upon to pay for them, and the hat is passed round for the purpose. There is not a mile-track in any of the important districts of the interior but should pay a good interest on the investment if kept in order and properly managed. We know of two or three that never rent more than thirty stalls that do so. The infield amounting to thirty acres or so produces a crop of hay or grain annually, and the stalls are rented for a dollar each per month and a fair price is asked from the district association for use during the fair. As those properties return a fair profit each year to the owners it is within reason to suppose that the others would under the same sort of management. There is one track of less than sixty acres in this State for which the owner received $700 per annum regularly from the district association for rental, and which is now used as a hog pasture. The fences are down, the track in very bad shape, and the buildings going to decay. And yet the owner insists this year that he shall be paid $600 for the use of the grounds for a fair for one week, the association to make all necessary repairs on fences, buildings and track. The association cannot afford to pay such an exorbitant rental and the fair will probably not be held.

THE BREEDERS ASSOCIATION is endeavoring to secure a track for its summer meeting and has several under consideration. A selection will be made during the coming week in all probability and immediately thereafter a list of purses will be announced. It will be especially arranged to provide racing for the horses which remain in California this year and the purses will be liberal. The slow classes will be especially well treated by all the associations giving meetings in California this year and the owner of a good green horse that can win in the slower classes will be able to place a goodly sum to his credit.

D. S. W. McMAHAN of the Western Horseman, one of the best of the high class journals devoted to the light harness horse, is back in Indianapolis again after an extended sojourn in Colorado Springs in quest of health. We are glad to know that the Doctor is much improved.

THE BIG DEAL has been completed and a new corporation called The New California Jockey Club will control racing here in San Francisco and vicinity, owning the three tracks at Oakland, Ingleside and Tanforan. The first payment of $200,000 was made last Thursday, the big certified check being signed by Thos. H. Williams Jr., President, and R. B. Milroy, Secretary, and the stock, rights, title and interest in the magnificent properties at Ingleside and Tanforan were transferred to the new organization. One of the first announcements made by President Williams after the deal was completed was that of the appointment of Mr. Chas. F. Price to the position of general manager of the three tracks. Mr. Price has been connected with the California Jockey Club for two years as special judge and President of the Board of Stewards and has given eminent satisfaction in those positions. He came here from Louisville, Ky., where, as Secretary of the Louisville Jockey Club he had made a reputation as a thoroughly competent official, whose aim was to keep racing clean and high class in every way and since his arrival here that reputation has been sustained. It is also announced that the purses to be offered for the next racing season here will never aggregate less than $2400 per day, which means that purses will be not less than $400, and the stakes and handicaps to be given will make the average much above that sum. A new series of stake events will be arranged but the Burns handicap of $10,000 will remain and be an annual event. Mr. Price will go East at the close of the season here and will offer the inducement of a large list of rich stakes and generous purses to the owners of the best class of horses to make entries for the coming season of racing. Now that the transfer has been made and the racing atmosphere cleared, there is a general feeling of satisfaction that matters have been shaped as they have. President Williams' expressed determination to shorten the season and make the racing as high class as possible, his generous condoning of all past offenses and announcement that violators of the rules need not expect clemency in the future has done much to establish confidence in the minds of all that the control of racing affairs on this coast is in the hands of those who will improve the sport in every way.

BIG ENTRY LISTS are the rule with every association in the East that has thus far closed its entries for its principal purses. Secretary Dexter of Narragansett Park is the latest to announce a list. These purses closed this month and have received the greatest list in the history of the association. The total number of nominations to the six stakes was 184. The Park Brew 2:10 pace stake, $10,000, has 31 nominations. The Roger Williams 2:14 trot pace, $10,000, has 28 nominations. All of the stakes are filed and are as follows: 2:14 trot, stake $10,000, 28 nominations; 2:20 trot, stake $2000, 34 nominations; 2:30 trot, stake $2000, 33 nominations; 2:10 pace, stake $10,000, 31 nominations; 2:14 pace, stake $2000, 25 nominations; 2:25 pace, stake $2000, 35 nominations.

SIX BIG PURSES offered by the Terre Haute Association, will close Monday, May 6th. The Wabash is for 2:20 trotters and is $5000; the Side-wheeler is of the same value and is for pacers of the 2:18 class; the other four purses are $1500 each and are for 2:28 and 2:15 trotters, and 2:25 and 2:14 pacers. The entrance fee to these purses is five per cent, payable in installments, the first of which is but one per cent of the purse. Terre Haute always holds one of the best meetings on the Grand Circuit, and the Californians who go East this year should not fail to enter there. See the advertisement.

A MATCHED TEAM of roadsters is wanted by an advertiser in this journal who states in his advertisement what he wants. Parties owning first class teams need not be afraid to price them to this gentleman. He is ready and anxious to pay a good price for a good pair, but he wants the horses to be worth the price asked. A pair of horses that will fill the bill can be exchanged for a sum of money that will make the trade a very profitable one to the seller, but it must be a case of "show me."

HORSEMEN IN THE ANTIPODES are being shown by illustrations reproduced in the journals there from the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, the proportions of some of the leading trotting bred stallions of California. The latest to be pictured by the New Zealand Sporting and Dramatic Review, which is one of our valued exchanges, are Nutwood Wilkes 2:16 1/4 and William Harold 2:13 1/4. The original photo-engravings appeared in our last holiday edition.

Fairs and Race Meetings This Year.

For some unaccountable reason the associations that give fairs and race meetings are slower than usual in making announcements this year. That a circuit of racing will be given is certain and if it could be officially announced and a list of purses advertised without further delay there would be plenty of life in the business.

The Vallejo Association may not give a meeting this year and the directors very much desire the Breeders Association to hold their annual meeting at the Vallejo track. Director T. J. Crowley of the P. C. T. H. B. A. and Secretary F. W. Kelley are in Vallejo to-day conferring with the Vallejo Board of Directors in regard to the matter.

The Napa Association wishes to hold a meeting but is having trouble in securing the track. The owner of the property demands $600 for its use and asks the association to stand the expense of putting it in order. This is more than any district association can afford to pay for a track for a week and unless better terms are offered the meeting will not be given.

There is talk of the Breeders going to Petaluma but nothing definite has been accomplished. A meeting will very likely be held at Santa Rosa, but just what organization will manage it is not yet determined.

Woodland will certainly give a fair. The directors have claimed their dates and a program of races will soon be announced.

The State Fair will run for two weeks as usual, with good purses for harness horses as well as runners. The program will be arranged very soon.

Stockton will hold a meeting. It is proposed to make it better than ever, and all the best horses in the State will race there. The Stockton people are hard workers and always make their fairs pay.

Secretary Irwin of the Marysville Association says there will be no fair and race meeting in the 13th district this year.

Secretary Simpson of the Chico Association says that while the Directors have not decided the matter yet, he does not think any meeting will be held this year at Chico.

Tulare and Kings counties (the 24th district) may give a meeting. Secretary Miot says it will probably be held at Hanford, in Kings county, this year, but everything is to be arranged yet.

District No. 6, Los Angeles, will give a meeting in the fall. The dates have not yet been selected, but they will probably be earlier than last year. A number of liberal purses will be announced soon.

Colusa Agricultural District No. 44, will not give a fair and race meeting this season. Vice-President E. C. Peart writes that it is too much of an undertaking for one man, and he cannot afford to neglect his business. Probably the Colusaites could find another man if they would rustle a little.

The Monterey Agricultural Association, District No. 7, will give a fair and race meeting in the fall. It will follow the San Jose meeting if a fair is given there, and if not the Salinas people will probably take the date usually taken by San Jose, which is the week following Stockton.

At Santa Barbara where the 19th agricultural district holds its fair there is some doubt about the track being available. The Southern Pacific Railway is contemplating a change in the route of its road bed and if the change is made it will cut the present race track and fair grounds in two. If the change is not made a meeting will be held, and an effort will be made to get a date on the main circuit.

Some of the directors from Yreka district, Siskiyou county, think it would be best to not hold a fair this year, but wait until next year and draw the entire appropriation then. There are others, however, who are alive to the advantages of giving a fair each year and it may be that a fair and race meeting will be given. If so it will be announced through the columns of this journal. There is a driving club at Yreka of which J. M. Walbridge is President and R. S. Taylor Secretary. The members are talking of holding races during Fourth of July week, but no authoritative announcement has been made as yet.

The Nevada State Agricultural Society will hold a fair and race meeting at Reno, Nevada, during the week following the California State Fair. The Nevada fair will thus open on Monday, September 16th.

Gurney Gne, who conducts the trotting horse department of the New York Sun, has the following to say about The Abbot-Boralma imbroglio: "The popular notion that Boralma 2:08 is a stouter horse than The Abbot 2:03 may be open to some doubt. His breeding does not warrant such a belief, and while he won a six-heat race in his three year old form, it is known that he was trotting well within his limit of speed in this contest. The last race won by The Abbot was a five-heat contest, in which he trotted the third, fourth and fifth miles in 2:07, 2:08 and 2:10. Bingen and Cresceus were his competitors."

Strictly Amusing.

"It was my intention," said the Old Campaigner, "to say nothing more on the development theory. But the secretary and general manager of the Society for the Dissemination of Fool Notions has broke out again and I feel called upon to give him another spanking. He has been digging through the new Year Book, and cackles like a pullet over her first egg because he has discovered that of 1099 new performers for 1900, the startling number of 89 trotters and 55 pacers are out of developed dams. It is an almighty strange thing that it did not occur to him, as it will to every man of sense who reads his alleged argument and studies his figures, that if nearly nine-tenths of the new performers of a year are out of undeveloped dams there is no good reason for developing broodmares into trotters or pacers. No one has ever even pretended to believe that the developed mare will not produce and the sap-heads who say that such belief is held by any one need a course in moral training. If their theories are so sound what's the need of their lying about the opposition? Why is it that not one of the writers in support of the development theory has ever argued the real question? There is but one point at issue, and I dare any one of the developed howlers to argue it. No one of them ever has done it and I don't if he ever will. But to get back to the amusing figures. Here they are:

"In 1900, 580 trotters and 510 pacers of established breeding entered the standard lists, of which 89 trotters and 55 pacers were out of developed dams."

"That is the gist of the whole thing. Ninety-nine thousand and ninety-nine pages of statistics could tell no more of the story, for that is all there is to it. Keep that paragraph and its totals in your mind and do not forget that it represents the sum of the achievements of the record mares for an entire year. They managed to contribute just enough new performers to get into the list of 'also rans.' That's the cold English of it, in spite of all the twistings and turnings of the rainbow chasers who imagine that it is the very essence of wisdom to argue that an acquired trait can be transmitted as an instinct. For the benefit of the public, and more especially for those who believe that the development of the dam is of such great importance, I have compiled two short tables showing the best performers of last year, that are out of undeveloped dams, and have followed them with tables showing the best performers of last year out of developed dams. They make interesting reading. Besides they show that I am not begging the question:

TROTTERS OF 1900 OUT OF UNDEVELOPED DAMS.
Cresceus 2:04, champion trotting stallion.
Tommy Britton 2:06, record as a two-year-old 2:15.
Charley Herr 2:07, Kentucky's greatest race horse.
Lord Derby 2:07, champion green trotter.
Georgena 2:07, winner of the $10,000 Charter Oak.
Bay Star 2:08, greatest race mare out in 1900.
Beralma 2:08, winner of the $10,000 Massachusetts and the $5000 Transylvania.

Grattan Boy 2:08, second to Cresceus at Columbus in the fastest three heats ever trotted by a stallion.
Gayton 2:08, fastest trotter of the Allertons.
Dare Devil 2:09, fastest trotting son of Mambrino King.
Lamp Girl 2:09, one of the best race mares of the year.
Hazel Kinney 2:09, fastest trotter in the McKinney family.

Letah S. 2:09, the first new 2:10 trotter of the year.
Georgeanna 2:09, winner of the fast five-heat race at Lexington, Ky.

Neeretta 2:09, fastest five-year-old trotting mare of the year.

York Boy 2:09, fastest trotter by Wilkes Boy, and winner of 12 races out of 14 starts.

Dan Wilkes 2:09, a good winner in the Great Western Circuit.

Early Reaper 2:09, admitted to be as great a trotting stallion as the West ever produced.

Contralto 2:10, best four-year-old filly of the year, and practically unbeaten.

John A. McKerron 2:10, champion stallion to wagon.

Annie Burns 2:10, greatest money winner in the Grand Circuit.

Fereno 2:10, fastest three-year-old filly of the year, winner of the Kentucky Futurity.

TROTTERS OF 1900 OUT OF DEVELOPED DAMS.

The Abbot 2:03, world's champion.

Lucille 2:07, world's champion wagon mare.

Dione 2:07, fastest mare in California; record against time.

PACERS OF 1900 OUT OF UNDEVELOPED DAMS.

Prince Alert 2:02, fastest pacer of the year.

Anaconda 2:02, second fastest pacer of the year.

Coney 2:02, third fastest pacer of the year.

Connor 2:03, champion money winning pacer of the year.

Frank Bogash 2:03, who won some of the best races of the year.

Indiana 2:04, fastest pacer of his tribe.

Royal R. Sheldon 2:05, fastest pacer in the Wilkes Boy family.

PACERS OF 1900 OUT OF DEVELOPED DAMS.

Free Bond 2:04, champion of the year to wagon.

Bonnie Direct 2:05, fastest new pacing performer.

Hetty G. 2:05, fastest pacing mare of the year.

"That's enough. The list includes all the best. If I am any judge, extreme speed is the crucial test, and I am willing to stack up the trotters and pacers out of undeveloped dams against the whole herd of those whose dams have records. I don't think The Abbot 'lays over' Cresceus to any extent. I don't think Lucille is in the same class with Boralma, and Dione will hardly do to play against even Contralto, to say nothing of Bay Star.

"Now, just a word or two on the point to the argument. The subject for discussion is this, and nothing more: 'Does the development of the mare make it more certain that she will produce her kind?' As I said before, no one has ever argued that the developed mare will not produce speed. But I insist that the records prove that the undeveloped mare will produce just as many and just as fast performers as the developed mare. That being true, and I will bet a dozen dollars against a rotten apple that it is true, what earthly good does development do? Watch the development fellows squirm when that query is put at them, and go to talking about the quality of green cheese in the moon. It took just as much work to make a trotter out of The Abbot as it did to make one out of Cresceus, yet, according to the Fool Notion society, the former had all the best of it because his dam had a record of 2:20, while the dam of Cresceus had no record at all. Facts are stubborn things, and the few I have given herewith are respectfully submitted to the fellows who stay on the other side of the fence because they think it is popular."—The Horseman.

Answers to Correspondents.

W. R., Woodland—The record for a milo and a quarter on a circular track is held by Charentus, bay gelding by imp. Charaxus—Contenta. He carried 106 pounds and ran the distance in 2:04 at Empire City track at New York on Monday, October 22, 1900, beating Imp. Pink Coat and others. We do not know the address of the firm you mention, and cannot publish addresses of that nature.

C., Porterville, Cal.—A man here claims he has a mare by Dawn, dam Emma Temple. Others here claim that Emma Temple never had a colt. The mare is six years old this spring, is a deep chestnut and said to be foaled on the Agnew Farm. Can you give us any information?

Ans.—Write to the Agnew Stock Farm, Hillsdale, Santa Clara county.

The bay stallion Vasco 10996, foaled 1882, by Hareld dam Vassar by Belmont, second dam Venus by American Star 14, died recently from neglect at Audubon, Ia. He had spent the winter in Missouri, and when he was shipped back to Iowa his owner, Matt L. Williams, was not notified of his shipment, and the stallion remained five days in the car without care. Vasco was bred at Woodburn Farm, and for several years was owned by J. R. Bascom, of Berry Hill Farm, Bath county, Ky., and was sold by him to L. E. Brown, Delavan, Ill. Vasco was the sire of thirteen trotters and three pacers, including Vasto 2:16, Ed Rosewater 2:16, Bill Lindsay 2:17, Val 2:18, Valissa 2:19 and King Vasco 2:21.

The match race between Cresceus and Charley Herr, scheduled for the October meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, is now an assured fact. Secretary Wilson last Wednesday received a letter from George H. Ketchum of Toledo, owner of Cresceus, saying that the terms were satisfactory. His check for $500, which amount of the side bet of $1000 must be deposited at once, is expected in a few days. The horses will contest for a purse of $7000, of which $2000 goes to the loser. David Cahill agreed at once to enter Charley Herr.

It is currently reported that Tom James, for many years a good breeder and stannch patron of the turf, now residing at Des Moines, Ia., and owner of Barondale 2:11, may in the near future take up his residence permanently in California, taking Barondale with him. Mr. James has been out there spending the winter and likes it, but it is hoped by his many friends in Iowa that he will decide to remain. Mr. James also for many years owned Cuyler, one of the best sons of Hambletonian 10.—Horse Review.

His Eminence, the Kentucky Derby colt, has been sold to J. T. Kempner, of Chicago, for $9000. His new owner stands to win $30,000 on the colt in the American Derby.

SULKY NOTES.

Bonnie Direct beat 2:10 seven times in 1900.

The Terre Haute Matron Stake of $10,000 received 310 nominations.

Tom Conley, of Salinas, lost by death last week a fine imported English Shire stallion.

Coney paced eight heats below 2:10 last year, the fastest being 2:02½ and the slowest 2:08½.

J. M. Alvise is training three or four good ones at Pleasanton that will probably be raced.

Ed Geers says that he once drove Brown Hala a quarter in 28½ seconds to high-wheel cart.

The little pacer Freddie C. by Direct C. worked a mile in 2:18½, last half in 1:06 at Pleasanton last week.

The first foal sired by John A. McKerron 2:10 was born week before last. Its dam is Henrietta G. 2:19½ by Myria.

The National and American Trotting associations have stopped the practice of giving copies of the Year Book to members.

Orrin Hickok was at Pleasanton last Saturday and while there got up behind Little Thorne and worked him a mile in 2:14.

If Charlie Mac 2:17½ meets with no accidents this year he should be a good winner in the classes in which he is entered over East.

Georgena 2:07½, winner of the $10,000 Charter Oak last year, has again gone lame and no further attempt will be made to train her.

The seven year old California-bred stallion Electaboul 2:27 by Stamboul was burned to death at Poughkeepsie, New York, April 3d.

The Dexter Princes are being heard from in all parts of the country. James Golden has one out of Flower Girl that can run away on a trot.

At three sales, those of November, February and March, the Fasig-Tipton company has sold 1331 horses for $587,345, an average of $441.25 per head.

Dollie Dillon has been worked several heats better than 2:20 lately and can show as much speed as ever. She should be a good money winner this year.

Arrangements are being made for three races between Anaconda 2:02½ and Frank Bogash 2:03½, to come off during the year on New England tracks.

Murray Howe will issue free programs at the Memphis meeting. He believes that patrons of race tracks are as much entitled to programs as are the patrons of theatres.

Hal Dillard 2:04½ was recently purchased by D. H. Mast, of West Milton, Ohio, who paid $3000 for him. He is the sire of Hal B. 2:04½, Fanny Dillard 2:06½ and 17 more in standard time.

A yearling colt by Cresceus 2:04, dam Jean Look 2:30 (dam of Praytoll 2:09½), was sold in Rhode Island last week for $2000. The colt is a chestnut and resembles his illustrious sire.

Anna Belle 2:27½ by Dawn 2:18½ foaled a bay colt by Hambletonian Wilkes on Sunday, April 7th. This colt is a full brother to La Belle 2:16 and Robert I., the fast pacer that was out last year.

The black pacing filly by Direct that is owned by Mr. Juan Galleagos of Mission San Jose and which John Bluo has been handling for a few weeks, worked a half in 1:05 at Pleasanton one day last week.

Vanco Nichols is training at Cleveland a full sister to Oakwood Park Stock Farm's good stallion Owyhee 2:11, being by Chas. Derby, dam Ida Wood by Simmons. This mare worked a mile in 2:20 last year.

Sable Guy 2:27½, is the most intensely inbred of the new sires of 1900. He is by Sable Wilkes (a son of Guy Wilkes out of a mare by The Moor), dam Linda Wilkes (a daughter of Guy Wilkes out of a dam by The Moor).

It seems that De Veras 2:11½, full brother to Rey Direct 2:10, will be a member of the Butler campaign stable this year. It is stated that Mr. Butler has leased him of his owner, Antoine Wending, Brockville, Ont.

Belle Air 2:14½, by Pathmont, owned by Martin McDonough of Oregon, has been sent to John Pender at Sacramento to get ready for the races this year. Belle Air got her record at Salem, Oregon in 1899. She is a pacer.

B. O. Van Bokkelen has named Vic Shellar by Hambletonian Wilkes in the Board of Trade $5000 purse for 2:23 trotters at Columbus, Ohio. He has also named the four year old colt Tom Smith by McKinney in the same race.

Free Silver 2:21½, said to be one of the greatest show horses in America, was sold by E. C. Hasey of Minneapolis to Mart Demarest of New York a few days ago for $5000. Free Silver is a bay horse and was sired by Col. Simmons, a son of Simmons.

Hambletonian Wilkes, although twenty-one years old, has a better record as a foal-getter than many younger stallions. None of the mares bred to him during the last two years have failed to get in foal, and his colts are all strong and vigorous.

* Sam Gamble was over at Alameda looking at The Roman 2:18½, and says the son of McKinney looks and acts much like Nico 2:08½. Some of the horse men who have seen both The Roman and The Abbot think there is a great resemblance between the two.

Henry Titer has taken eleven horses to the Readville track from Forbes' farm, among them Peter the Great 2:07½, Admiral Dewey, the three year old by Bingen 2:06½, out of Nancy Hanks 2:04, and the two year old by Bingen 2:06½, out of the dam of Nico 2:08½.

Oscar Spaulding, of Clinton, Iowa, has a black mare, twenty-nine years old, by Swigert, that to the cover of Sir Hildebrand, son of Norval and Gladys by Onward, dropped a filly the spring of 1899; also one in 1900 by the same horse and was again bred to him.

Carriage builders say that nine times out of ten the failure of pneumatic tires to withstand rough treatment is due to drivers becoming careless about keeping the tires well inflated. When the air pressure is insufficient the tires are easily ruined through rim cutting.

Ed A. Tipton has received an order from England to purchase several trotting bred carriage horses for export. Mr. Tipton sent over a few American park horses of the heavy harness type to his English customer last year, and their combined action, speed and stamina completely captivated the British horseman.

The entries made by Vendome Stock Farm in the stakes at the Oregon State Fair, were Thomas R. by Iran Alto in the Capital City Stakes $1000 for 2:20 trotters, Nora McKinney by McKinney in the Webfoot Stake, $500 for three and four year old trotters; Our Boy's Sister by Baywood and Way Direct by Direct in the Salem Chamber of Commerce stake $1000 for 2:15 pacers.

There was speed at Pleasanton last Saturday, and there would have been more had the track been in good shape. There has not been enough water used on the track lately according to those who are training there, and the track breaks a little under the horses. However, Thoruway worked a mile in 2:18, the Honolulu horse one in 2:15 and Goshen Jim made the circuit in a little less than 2:15.

Six stallions are now credited with one hundred and more in the standard list of performers. Nutwood leads with 163, and is the sire of the dams of 164; Electioneer has 160, and sired the dams of 93; Onward has 153, and his daughters have produced 76; Red Wilkes has 149, and sired the dams of 105; Alcantara has 141, and sired the dams of 44, and Pilot Medium has 111, and sired the dams of 26.

David Cahill is as game a man as Charley Herr is a race horse, and is quoted as saying: "I will enter into any agreement satisfactory to the owners of any of the champion stallions. I think my horse the equal of any now living and I will post a forfeit for any kind of match race. I have posted a forfeit for a meeting with Boralma and Cresceus and would like to meet Lord Derby, Grattau Boy and other fast ones."

The Galesburg (Illinois) Driving Park Association has just opened six stakes of $1000 each for 3:00, 2:25 and 2:15 trotters, and for 3:00, 2:20 and 2:11 pacers. This association owns the beautiful residence now occupied by C. W. Williams, and will give this away to purchasers of admission tickets. It will be in the manner of a raffle, and each purchaser of a $1 admission ticket will have a chance to own this elegant house.

Five gentlemen at Lexington, who are interested in the trotting horse, last fall purchased five Arion colts, each standing a pro rata of the cost. They have each selected a colt and have agreed to break and train it. In the fall they will hold a race, each man to drive his own colt and the winner is to have all five colts. If any of the colts should turn out to be a pacer that colt cannot compete in the race, but it will be presented to the winner of the race.

Henry Edelman, formerly of Los Angeles, owner of the pacer You Bet 2:12½ and other good ones, is now in business in this city at 201 Powell street. Mr. Edelman is the owner of a three year old pacer, one of the last of the get of Nutwood, that is phenomenally fast. The colt is at Dubuque, Iowa, and Mr. Edelman says one day last week he worked a third heat of a workout in 2:10½. This is a phenomenal mile for a colt at this season, especially in Iowa.

In the big horse markets the trotting bred coach and driving horse has led the procession during the past few weeks so far as price is concerned, says the Horse World. "It was not so long ago that a certain class of agricultural papers always referred to the trotting bred horse as 'the scrubby little trotter,' but nowadays those same papers are forced to admit that the leading horse in the big markets is the one produced by trotting blood."

Mr. John Parrott, proprietor of the Baywood stud recently sold to Mrs. W. H. Crocker of this city a pair of horses for $2500. They were the geldings Bravo and Brigand and are a well-mannered carriage pair. Bravo was a prize winner at the Tanforan show last October. Both are by Mr. Parrott's Hackney stallion Green's Rufus. Mrs. Crocker purchased at the same time a pair of smaller horses bred and raised at Baywood stud for which she paid $750.

J. D. Staley, who purchased the mare Mia Louise 2:15½ of L. E. Clawson in 1899, bred her to McKinney and shipped her to his home in Sidney, Ohio, is back in California on his way to Alaska, but will remain in San Francisco until after the visit of President McKinley. Mia Louise lost her foal by McKinney after being shipped East, and was bred last year to Norval, one of Electioneer's greatest sons, and has a fine colt by him. Mr. Staley has not given up his intention of getting a McKinney colt and would buy a good yearling by this horse at a reasonable price.

We have for sale at $150 a new McMurray runabout. It is entirely new, and the price asked is the net price at the factory, thus the purchaser will make a saving of the freight, which is nearly twenty dollars. This runabout is a pneumatic tired, bike wheeled pianobox and is just the thing for driving in the park or on the road. It is a very handsome and stylish vehicle, up to date in every particular. Can be seen at this office.

The graves of Lady Suffolk, Goldsmith Maid and Lucy, the greatest trotters of the world in their time, will be changed from the Fashion Stud Farm, near Trenton, N. J., to the head of the new speedway, at Newark, N. J. Col. E. S. Edwards, at a recent meeting of the New Jersey Road Drivers' Association, said that he proposed that the bones of the three famous trotters be dug up and buried at the head of the new speedway which is to be built at Newark in the near future. He wants to have a suitable monument placed over them telling something of their record. The ground in which they are buried at present is being cut up into building lots and Col. Edwards wants to save them from being lost.

It is said that M. E. McHenry will campaign a stable of but four horses this year. He means to have four crackerjacks and the first one selected is the bay stallion Dan Patch 2:16 by Joe Patchen 2:01½, dam by Wilkesberry, second dam by Pacing Abdallah. This horse in the hands of his owner, an aged but experienced Indiana man, created somewhat of a sensation on the Indiana half-mile tracks last season. It is said that he paced a mile in 2:10, and quarters in a 2:00 gait. That he is possessed of sensational speed is certain or he never would have been selected by McHenry for one of his select stable for this year, and it is possible that the famous black stallion will be represented by a pacer fully his equal in point of speed in this follow.

Ed Geers is not one of those who predicts what he or his horses are "going to do." Nevertheless he says this of The Abbot in his book recently published: The gait of The Abbot, when at full speed, approaches perfection as nearly as we are likely to see in any horse for some time; there is just enough but not too much, knee or hock action; his stride is even, fast and frictionless, with no false motions or waste of power. He has constantly improved in every race and every trial since the commencement of his career, and as he is now only eight years old, perfectly sound and without a blemish of any kind, I can see no reason why, if he does not go wrong in some way, he should not further reduce his record. That a horse will trot a mile in harness in two minutes in the near future does not in my judgment admit of a doubt."

Hon. Frank Jones, of Portsmouth, N. H., will campaign one of the biggest stables of the year, in charge of Tom Marsh. Among those which have been entered in events already closed are: Kingmond 2:09 by King Darlington, dam by Red Wilkes; Who Is It 2:10½ by Nutwood Wilkes, dam by Brigadier; Betonica 2:10½ by Azmoor, dam by Wildside; Idolita 2:12 by Mendocino, dam by George Wilkes; Axtello 2:15 by Axtell, dam by Combat; Belle Curry 2:18 by Simmons, dam by Nutwood; Juntorio by Altivo, dam by Gen. Benton; The King by Clay King, dam by Red Wilkes; Electa by Dexter Prince, dam by Nephew; Carrie Caswell by Altivo, dam by Hambletonian 10; Katrinka G., sister to Klatawah 2:05½ by Steinway, dam by Electioneer; Col. Carter by Nutwood Wilkes, dam by Boodle; Pauline by Potential, dam by Wilkes Boy.

Word comes from Denver that work at Overland Park on the new modern grand stand and 100 new stalls is progressing rapidly. The place will no doubt present such well appearance when the Western harness horse again gathers there in June that the old timers will scarcely recognize the place. This might, however, well be expected, for that is the record of Edwin Gaylord and the men associated with him. They never do anything by halves. Speaking about good horse sales from the West to the East, it might not be out of place to recall the fact here that Ed Gaylord, of Denver, bought two four year old trotters within the last few years, Mr. Middlemay 2:13½ and Major Geers 2:14½, for about $1000 each, and kept them less than a year and sold them for nearly $5000 each. That's the kind of man he is in the business.—Horse Review.

In some localities the harness horses will draw crowds when they race, but in others the runners have the call, while there are still others where horses are not appreciated but the sporting element will turn out strong to see a ball game. A dispatch from Louisville, Kentucky, dated April 7th says: The Louisville Driving and Fair Association is a thing of the past, for the people of Louisville have not appreciated the light harness races, and the promoters, after losing thousands of dollars, have been compelled to abandon the venture; but, despite the fact that races are not to be held here this year, nearly 300 horses are quartered in the stables, of which there is now not an empty stall, and they will remain, or at least most of them, until the opening of the Grand Circuit. They are here from all parts of the country, and, as Ed Geers expressed it, "we are here because of the good track and the climate." The track is particularly adapted to spring work, for a few hours of sunshine will put it in condition, even after a hard rain, because of its hard, sandy material. Of the stables now at the track may be mentioned that of Ben Kinney with twenty-four; Fred Noble of New York, with twelve; Eddie Lock of New York, fourteen; Ed Geers of Buffalo, twenty-two; John Hussey, Iowa, twenty-four; Joe Thayer, Lexington, ten; Fred McKey, Lexington, ten; Tom Price, Lexington, twelve; George Spear, New York, twelve, while Charley Van Meter and Charley Lyon of Louisville have a dozen each in training. No work of any consequence has thus far been done, owing to the unsettled weather but during the last ten days a little speeding has been done in the stretches, and another week will see them moving along at a lively clip.

THE SADDLE.

The New California Jockey Club is the name of the organization in which is now vested the title to all the property heretofore owned by the California Jockey Club, the Western Turf Association, the Pacific Coast Jockey Club and the San Francisco Jockey Club. The transfer was made on Thursday and the new organization now holds the lease of the Tanforan property, a new lease (to run seventeen years with the privilege of purchase at expiration) to the land at Emeryville on which the California Jockey Club's plant is situated, and becomes the owner of the splendid plant at Ingleside. The first payment of $200,000 was made and to-day the racing at Tanforan will be under the new management. Few, if any, changes will be made in the corps of officials or those holding concessions at Tanforan until the close of racing at that track. When the horses move across the bay to resume racing April 29th, Judge Pettingill will be in the stand as Associate Judge, that position having been tendered him by President Williams and accepted. Jake Holtman will continue to wield the flag for several weeks and when he returns East to fill his engagements there, Fred Mulbolland will take his place at the gate. Racing will continue until the first of June in all probability and when the gates close, they will not open again for such long seasons as have been the rule heretofore. Five months instead of seven will be the duration of the San Francisco racing season. There is no question but the new order of things will put the California racing business on a much better basis than ever. The season of 1900-1901 has not "elevated" the sport to that lofty pinnacle that some of the turf scribes would have people believe. It takes something more than "added money" to make racing high class.

C. E. DeCamp, a director of the Sixth District Agricultural Association of Los Angeles has been in San Francisco during the past week conferring with J. W. Brooks of the California Jockey Club and a number of horse owners with a view to holding a two weeks' meeting at the Los Angeles track at the close of the racing season at Oakland. If the Oakland meeting closes early enough quite a large number of horses can be secured and the meeting will be given.

Elmer Lawrence, racing secretary, and J. T. Finlen, vice-president of the Montana Jockey Club, are in the city in the interest of their club. There are to be sixty days' racing at Butte and Anaconda, and numerous California owners contemplate making the trip this year.

Joseph A. Murphy has resigned as secretary and presiding judge of the St. Louis fair grounds and presiding judge of the Delmar track at the same place. When Messrs. Cella, Adler and Tilles secured control of the fair grounds they decided to continue Judge Murphy in his former position and also appoint him to preside at Delmar. Judge Murphy advised the selection of starters Dwyer and Holtman and some first class man as associate judge. P. A. Brady was selected as associate, and Judge Murphy objects to him on the ground that he was formerly a bookmaker. His idea is that the betting end of racing should be kept apart from the racing itself as much as possible. William Bruen was appointed starter against the advice of Judge Murphy. That official says he was a failure as a starter last year. Now that Judge Murphy will not go to St. Louis, he will likely preside here until racing closes at Oakland, about June 1st.

John Hanning, New York, has purchased for English parties, for a price recently reported to be $7500, the two year old chestnut colt J. M. Camden, by St. Savior, dam Orle, by imported Deceiver. Hughes & Co., this city, owned the colt, and had worked him a half up the hill over the local course in 0:50½, with 120 pounds up. The price is the largest paid there in many years for an untried two year old.

The latest jockey engagement is that of Cash Sloan to ride for Jean De Reszke, the famous tenor, who expects to race at St. Petersburg, Moscow, Warsaw and other places. He has some good horses, several of American breeding. Indeed, De Reszke is becoming quite Americanized in sports, as in other matters, for his stable supplies, trappings, veterinary medicine, etc., are all American. He says: "I have been looking out for a capable American jockey for a year or more, and I have now a good one. I will give him plenty of mounts, horses that he can win with."

The prospective selling race war between Schorr and the Cella-Adler-Tilles combination is causing both speculation and amusement among turfmen, writes S. B. Weems. Louis Cella, who is said to be at the head of the combination, claims that he will bid on every Schorr horse that is entered at less than his value. The cause of all the trouble, it is claimed, is that after the Cella-Adler-Tilles secured a contract for the betting privileges at Memphis, Mr. Schorr, who is a stockholder in the Memphis Jockey Club, tried to oust them and give the privilege to G. C. Bennett, who has had it in previous years. A queer angle in connection with this misunderstanding is that hitherto Mr. Schorr has raced very successfully at the Fair Grounds in St. Louis. But with the change of venue from the old Fair Grounds management to Messrs. Cella, Adler and Tilles, it looks as though the Schorr forces might not have either an ace or a percentage in Fair Grounds racing the coming season. This makes a queer mixup all around. Mr. Bennett, who, as before stated, has had the betting privileges at Memphis, and who generally runs from two three books on all leading Western tracks, has not taken kindly to the placing of the betting privileges in the care of outside people. Mr. Bennett is a resident of Memphis. He has a breeding farm there and next to Schorr, the best racing stable in the West. Mr. Bennett no doubt has a right to expect some consideration in his own territory.

So far as can be gleaned from the reports of the work of the older division, the supporters of Ethelbert and Kinley Mack each have reason for confidence. Before Eastin & Larabie sold the latter to J. B. Haggin it is said they thought he could take up 140 pounds if necessary and have a chance for one of the big handicaps, while those who pin their faith to Perry Belmont's great horse are equally sure that he will prove the better when he meets Mr. Haggin's acquisition. In the three year old division the question of supremacy is even more open. The Western crack, Garry Herrmann, is still favorite for the American Derby, in which both Commando and Ballyhoo Bey are engaged, but this is ascribed more to the fact that the latter may be considered as doubtful starters than to the belief that Capt. Brown's colt is sure to outfoot the Eastern cracks. Lady Schorr's good win at Memphis has brought her into consideration as a possible Derby winner. Joe Frey and Silverdale are also highly fancied by the Westerners, while La Valliere, Beau Gallant, Bollario and Sweet Lavender each has many adherents.

A Cincinnati dispatch says: Thoroughbred racing will be revived at the Oakley race track this year. Negotiations were opened recently between a representative of the Horse Owners' Protective Association and the present lessees of the property. The proposed plan is one of several moves on the part of the Horse Owners' Protective Association to defeat the plans of the new Western Jockey Club in the enforcement of the outlaw rule.

The Coney Island Jockey Club's great filly stakes for the autumn meeting has 464 entries. Its estimated value is close to $25,000.

The bay colt foaled this year by G. W. Johnson, dam Sopbia Hardy, the brother to Lieut. Gibson, died recently at the farm of R. L. Baker, near Lexington, Ky. Sopbia Hardy died a short time after giving birth to this colt.

In speaking of The Hoyden, the crack filly of A. H. & D. H. Morris, T. H. Shannon said: "There are only four two year olds which showed class enough at the New Orleans meeting to win up the line. The Morris filly, The Hoyden, is good enough to win in the East. She carried 115 pounds and ran five-eighths easily in 1:02½; the first three-eighths from a standing start in 0:35. This is the best race ever run by a two year old at New Orleans with weight up. As to the jockeys, W. Dale, whom the Fleischmanns have signed, will prove to be one of the strongest finishers of any of the boys who have left the West for a long time."

Ethelbert is all right contrary to statements that he has gone wrong. His trainer said last Saturday: "Ethelbert has not missed a morning gallop for the last two months. If the horse was not sound he would not be asked to do what he has been doing right along. He has not been asked to extend himself yet, but yesterday morning went a half mile in 58 seconds. Ethelbert would go a mile to-day in 1:47 without being hurried, but I have been waiting for good weather to put him through fast work. It is very doubtful whether Ethelbert will start in the Brooklyn Handicap, but he will surely start in the Suburban, and I expect to have him fit for that race. Ethelbert will be retired to the stud next year and I am anxious to have him win two big races this season to wind up his eventful career on the turf."

The first great disappointment of the racing season of 1901 has come in the announcement that William C. Whitney's great colt Ballyhoo Bey, in all probability, is a "roarer," says the New York Times. If he races at all, it is said, he will have to take a place in a lower class than he was intended for and run as a sprinter instead of going into the first rank and contending for the classic stakes for the three year old division. That anything was wrong with the great colt was unsuspected until a few days ago. Ballyhoo Bey wintered at the Whitney farm at Westbury, L. I., where he has been under the care of Trainer John Rogers and until actual training for the coming season began was supposed to be in as good condition as he was when racing closed last fall. It was known generally last winter that the colt had been sick, but when he recovered it was supposed that all trouble was past. Up to two weeks ago there was not the slightest indication that there would be any permanent ill effects, and visitors to the Whitney training quarters at that time saw Ballyhoo Bey apparently in rugged health and big and hoarty after his winter's rest. Trainer Rogers, however, answered all inquiries about the colt by saying that Ballyhoo Bey had been sick in the early winter with catarrhal fever, and, while he showed no bad effect it might develop later on. Rogers is one of the most conservative trainers on the turf, and his caution in regard to making promises for the colts therefore was passed as simply characteristic. At the first effort to train the horse for the coming season, however, a reason for Rogers' reticence became apparent. Though his owner and his trainer have not yet admitted that Ballyhoo Bey is a "roarer," as the infirmity is termed in England, or a "whistler," as it is more commonly known in America, the fact that his lungs are affected is generally known. To inquiry concerning the colt last week Mr. Whitney authorized his secretary to make a statement, which was as follows: "We fear his wind is affected, but are not certain about it. He probably will race this year, but he may not be the horse he was." How far the fears of the owner may be verified is a matter of conjecture, but the admission that has been made is one that leaves little doubt that Ballyhoo Bey is seriously troubled. He was one of the best horses on the American turf last year. Though beaten in the early spring, later when specially prepared for his fall campaign by John E. Madden, who sold him to Mr. Whitney for $10,000 as a yearling, he swept all before him and won the most important events of the autumn, beating at that time his most prominent rivals for the honors of first place among the two year olds and finishing the greatest money winner of the year, and in the minds of the great majority of race-goers first and best of his age.

The dead heat at Bennings on April 6th, between Belgrade and Speedmas, which led to a mix-up by which the backers of the former were unable to collect the full money for their bets, has been the subject of much discussion. After the numbers had been placed on the boards W. C. Day insisted on running off the dead heat, and as the owner of Speedmas refused to do this, the stakes went to Belgrade. The ring, misled by the board, had commenced paying off on the dead heat basis, and Belgrade's supporters got the worst of the deal. This is not the first time that the lack of a hard-and-fast rule on the course to be pursued when a dead heat occurs has caused trouble. Several years ago, at Morris Park, when Sir Walter was an almost prohibitive favorite, he ran a dead heat and his owner refused to let him run a second heat for the money. A prominent racing man said recently that it should not be optional with owners whether they run off a dead heat or not, but that the matter should be in the hands of the Jockey Club. It was suggested that a rule be passed making it obligatory that all dead heats be run off, or if it is considered advisable, the race should not be run over.

Detailed reports of the recent strike of the English stable boys, which have reached here, show that they are really paid smaller wages than the American boys. This is why there was no rush to accept the offer made to our lads to fill the strikers' places. In England the rate of wages is $5 a week, but out of this they have to pay $2 for rent and almost another $1 for coal. This only leaves them $2 a week to spend, while in this country the boys receive $20 a month, with board, lodging and medical attendance provided.

A dispatch from St. Louis dated April 12th says: Indications point to this city being the battle-ground in the approaching race track war between the Western Jockey Club and the American Turf Congress. Recently Tilles, Adler and Cella, owners of the Delmar Jockey Club, greatly strengthened their position by the purchase of the Fair grounds property, paying therefor nearly $250,000. This left Kinloch park out in the country, in a hopeless position, for it could not cope with its great rivals. To-day it is reported in racing circles that an agent of John Condon, who has been here for a couple of days, has succeeded in acquiring a controlling interest in Kinloch. This will enable the Western Jockey Club to put up a hard fight against the American Turf Congress. Size of the purses will influence horsemen, and it is expected that this summer will see some lively racing at the rival tracks. In this connection the Inter-Ocean of the same date says: In regard to the report from St. Louis, to the effect that John Condon's agent had succeeded in acquiring control of Kinloch park, Condon last night denied that he had invested in any St. Louis turf property, but he admitted that parties in sympathy with the Western Jockey Club had been negotiating for the property. Who they were he declined to say. "Negotiations have been under way several weeks," he said, "and I was approached to go into the deal. When hunting Indians it's a good plan to get as near your aborigine as possible, and should I enter the St. Louis racing field it would be with a new first class track, and not through the gates of a plant twenty miles out in the country. The parties who have secured Kinloch have applied for license to the Western Jockey Club stewards, and will be recognized by that body, coming in under the rules as one of the recognized bodies in the Western racing field. You can state positively that I am not interested financially or otherwise in the Kinloch park deal. It would not become me to make public the names of the parties until they desire to become known in connection with the project. It will all come out in a few days at the most." From other, and apparently as reliable, sources the sale was confirmed, and it is understood that Chicago parties are directly interested, and the new owners of Kinloch can, no doubt, be found in the immediate vicinity of Worth. Geo. Hankins was mentioned some time ago in connection with the matter, but it is understood that he was not able to finance the deal. With Kinloch, Worth and Windsor under their control, the Wagners will become even more important factors in Western racing than ever before. Other rumors are that the whole deal was operated and financed by St. Louis sports.

At the Traps.

The regular blue rock attractions to-morrow will be the initial target shoot of the Olympic Gun Club at Ingleside. A splendid program, concluding with a merchandise shoot, has been prepared. The regular shoot of the Lincoln Gun Club, billed for Alameda Junction for to-morrow is postponed until May 5th. The Lincolns will hereafter hold their regular shoot on the first Sunday of each month.

At the Ingleside grounds on Sunday the average of scores made at both live pigeons and inanimate targets were above the average. In the live bird shoot of the Olympic Gun Club the club shoot at 15 birds went through without a straight score, 14 being the best that could be shown. The fact that a lively lot of birds were sprung from the traps accounts for some of the experts having been caught napping. In the club race, the three high guns, 14 birds each, scored by Messrs. Haight, Neustadter and Feudner divided the side pool, entrance $5, with nine men in. During the day Clarence Haight missed but one pigeon out of 36, Nate Neustadter, shooting in good form, failed to bring down two out of 33. Joe Sweeney missed two out of 25 and E. A. Klevesahl lost only one out of 22. Following the club match a number of six bird pools at $2.50 entrance were shot out, the high guns dividing the purse.

At the blue rock section of the grounds Jules Bruns was high gun losing seven targets out of 120. Straight strings of 25 were also made by Will Golcher and Edg. Forster. The average of scores were, as a rule, higher than usual.

Empire Gun Club members were out in force at the club shoot on the 14th inst. Pleasant weather conditions favored the meeting and in the regular events and impromptu shooting contests the scores were of an excellent average. In the championship diamond medal race we are pleased to note the high scores tallied by C. W. Debenham, a straight string of 25 breaks. A. J. Webb was high gun in the Yellowstone Trophy race, having a lead of one target over Debenham. In the contest for the Schumacher Trophy, J. B. Hauer is high man for the month. In the classification re-entry race, Webb and Ireland tied for the first class purse, in the shoot off Ireland was the winner on a score of 8 to 7, shooting at 10 targets. Second class money was annexed by Swales. The third and fourth class rewards were captured respectively by Lambert and Juster. Following the regular events, practice and pool shooting at singles and doubles thrown from the Maugratrap kept the shooters busy for several hours. A summary of scores in the various events is the following:

The Song of Sir Harry, P. K. L.

When I was a lad I served a term,
 As office boy to a game protection firm,
 I studied "hot air," raised a Setter dog,
 And polished up the noddle of the big game hog.

(He polished up the noddle of the big game hog!)

I polished up his noddle so carefree,
 That soon I'll be the ruler of the Com's navee.

As office boy I made such a crack
 They gave me the post of editorial hack.
 I "roasted" game slaughterers with a smile so bland,
 And "stewed" pot hunters in a free round hand.

(He "doped" county clubs with "pipe dreams" grand!)

I wrote so many letters in a hand so free,
 That now I am the daddy of the Com's navee.

I squeaked the doin's of the game convention,
 And toted in a hill of sly invention.
 This raised a jolly row and brought up a sack;
 We were saved by the straddlers who didn't get a whack.

(Who "copped" the hoodie in his jeans so slack?)

When the Board needs a tip or a game idea,
 They'll consult ole Pain of their own navee.

Of game protection knowledge I nequired such a grip,
 They let me down with a deputyship.
 Now this bloomin' deputyship I ween,
 Puts a close season on the troubles I've seen.

(His hadge so new with its dazzling sheen!)

Throughout the session I wrought so paynefulee
 'Twas the proper caper to put me in the Com's navee.

No, there's never a stopper on my jaw tackle,
 I'll hrew new potions of this peculiar cackle.
 Oh! the larks and the dogs of my halfiwick!
 We've planted in Fresno, a preserve good hrick.

(To save the stock and fences, they said so slick!)

I'll ride on all the roads and boats so free,
 On organizing trips for the Com's navee.

Now, sportsmen all, wherever you may be,
 If you want to climb to the top of the tree,
 Inflate with "hot air" at a pessimistic school—
 Be careful to be guided by this Golden Rule—

(This will show the wisdom of the game protection drool!)

Stick close to "hunkum"—and then you'll hee,
 A big spread eagle in the Com's navee.

The Sacramento Gun Club shoot last Sunday was well attended. Frazer, of the first class, made 24 out of 25 and won the first class medal. Stevens, also of the first class, was a close second, with 23 breaks. In the second class Derrman also made a good score by breaking 21 out of 25. Beardsley, of the third class, broke 16, winning the third class medal. This is the first shoot for the three gold class medals, which will be shot for seven times more, the winner (in each class) at the end of the season to become the permanent owner of the class medal. The club now has fifty-one members, divided into three classes.

Both stream and salt water angling are prolific in recent results for sport and recreation. Reports from Santa Cruz county credit the streams with being now in splendid condition. Whipping the Pieta, Big and Little Sulphur and Sonoma creeks has given the angler numerous creels of excellent trout. In Marin county the principal fishing resort is the "white house pool" near Point Reyes station; a number of largesized fishes have been caught there recently on the spoon. One of the best catches yet reported was made by Achille Roos, Dave Sachs and Sam Heller, who last week fished the tide water lagoon at Gualala. Putting out their lines at 10 o'clock in the morning, by 2 o'clock 125 pounds of fish had been taken; the steelhead ranged from eight to fourteen pounds in weight. The fish were taken on spoons; many large fish were hooked and got away. The rain spoiled two days' fishing; the trout, big fellows, could be seen by the hundred at the bottom of several deep pools, where they sulked, refusing to notice any lure whatever. The party hooked ten more fish ranging from two and a half up to ten pounds in weight. Many small fish were also caught. The prospects for a continuance of the sport in that locality are first class and worth the attention of sportsmen who would like to stay a week or two.

Striped bass fishermen are jubilant over some splendid, although somewhat elusive prospects. On Thursday last Al Wilson caught in San Leandro bay, one one tide in mid-day, fifteen striped bass aggregating in weight 75 pounds, the largest fish scaling eleven pounds. On the day following he caught about thirty pounds more. Many anglers were at the same water, between the railroad and county bridge for days afterwards, but the results were hardly noticeable, thus giving our fishermen another bass riddle to solve. W. F. and Paul Shattuck last Sunday fishing in Petaluma creek, near the Petaluma Sportsmens' club house, landed eleven bass, the largest weighing seven and a half pounds. Some of the club members also hooked bass. The fish are evidently plentiful in these waters now and good results should be had in San Antonio and Shultz's sloughs. Never for years have so many striped bass in such good condition been seen in the local markets. We noticed a bass on Wednesday that scaled 48 pounds.

Stow Lake Fly-Casting.

The third Saturday meeting of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club members at Stow lake was not notable for any extra increase in individual scores. The wind coming in strong gusts from the west was a severe handicap in casting efforts. On the following day the windy conditions were nearly similar; Harry C. Golcher, however, managed to let out his line 126 feet in the long distance event. There was a good attendance of members at the lakeside on Sunday; several of the new members wet a line on their initial appearance among the regulars. The scores for both days' casting were the following:

Doings in Dogdom.

The Winters Collie Kennels will have a large benching of Collies and Greyhounds.

John Lucas has received his well known Pointer Alec C. back at the Mt. View Kennels from Dave Rose. Alec made the rounds of the Eastern field trial circuit last fall.

Bert Mehring's prize winning Bull Terrier Rudyard will compete against the crackerjacks of the breed, we are informed by the clerk of the show, but for what purpose in view it would be hard to divine.

Glenwood Kennels will also bench the largest number of St. Bernards (mentioned in last week's issue), and the following Cockers Ch. Colorado, Ch. Polly Pastime, La Paloma, Empress Dowager, Glenwood Nick and some Ch. Havoc puppies.

Phil C. Meyer, owner of the Glenwood Kennels, is awaiting the arrival from Newmarket Kennels, Montreal, Can., of two Bull Terrier bitches. Newmarket Queen is said to be a most promising bitch, the opportunity to judge her merits will be afforded when she is benched at the May show.

Considerable unnecessary comment has been recently made over the premature and incorrect announcement that John Bradshaw would judge Greyhounds at the May show. The Ingleside disqualification recorded against Mr. Bradshaw is not of the serious quality generally believed and was prompted more by personal reasons than for a coloring of responsibility.

W. E. Chute's handsome English Setter bitch Dolly Y (Hopo's Ridgo-Hope) was recently shipped to Ridgeville, Indiana, to be bred with W. J. Baughn's Count Danstone, the field trial winning son of Ch. Count Gladstone IV. and Dan's Lady. This is Dolly's third trip East, she was sent to Mario's Sport in 1899 and to Uncle B. last year. The Uncle B litter met with disaster, most of the puppies succumbed to distemper. We trust Mr. Chute will have better luck this time. The breeding will be a grand addition to Setter blood on the Coast.

Seattle Bench Show.

The Seattle bench show opened on the 11th inst. and closed last Saturday evening. The exhibition was held under P. K. L. rules and seems to have been an unqualified success. Last year 165 dogs were entered, this year, for the sixth annual dog show, 305 dogs were catalogued comprising an entry of over 400, pretty good indeed for our northern fanciers.

The English Setter class was the most represented. Seattle now boasts, it is claimed, some of the finest setters in the United States. Next come the Collies, then the Cocker Spaniels, after them the Fox Terriers; Greyhounds stand next in line, St. Bernards follow, then come Bull Terriers and then dogs of the miscellaneous class. There was never before such an assortment seen on the bench in Seattle.

Mr. James Cole, of Kansas City, favorably known to many of our local fanciers who met him last year at Sacramento, judged all classes. The judging was remarkably free from criticism and favorable mention from fanciers qualified to express opinions was heard on all sides concerning Judge Cole's awards.

Three well known society ladies, Mrs. J. C. Haines, Mrs. Frederick Karl Struve and Mrs. C. D. Stimson, were the examining committee to award the prizes for the best decorated kennels. The awards for decorated kennels were as follows: First, Bruce & McCarthy; second, Fred Yoder; third, O. C. McGilvra; fourth, Charles F. Mannery. Honorable mention was accorded the kennels of Miss Josephine Young and Miss E. L. Little.

The attendance throughout was good; the show has given doggy affairs an encouraging boom in the North. The feature of the show on the opening afternoon was the battle royal between forty-nine English Setters, the majority of them as high class animals as could be found in America. For over two hours the ring was filled with the silky coated, spirited animals, handled by owners whose every nerve was bent upon displaying the points of superiority.

The sensation of the show came when C. D. Stimson's Count Dick went down in defeat before Charles W. Minor's Roy Montez, owned in Victoria. The favorite of former shows was in the opinion of Judge Cole not only outclassed by Montez, but also by Montie H. (litter brother to the first prize winner), Victor L. and Seco R., thus forcing Count Dick into v h c place. The competition in the other classes of English Setters was equally acute. In puppies, dogs, R. M. Palmer's Merry Hunter and C. B. Mandell's Ringling, were placed first and second, respectively. In local dogs Palmer's Dashing Fleet captured first honors with Yandell's Laddie Gladstone a close second. In limit and open bitches L. H. Roger's Queen's Beauty swept all before her, easily outclassing her twelve competitors.

Mr. Cole's judging was infallible at Sacramento according to the oracle of the Pacific Coast dogdom. We wonder what Mr. Dogberry Canis will say now, at the smashing of another idol, in placing Champion Queen of Counts in the three letter division. Champion Count Dick F and Countess Harold also with three letters is another nut for the Setter authority to crack. The Irish Setter Ch. Count Mack is not listed among the winners. Possibly he may have been in for exhibition only, if not, we tremble for the judge.

Mrs. C. A. Smart's Princess Scheherazade won first in open and winners among the rough coated St. Bernards. In the smooth coats E. D. Conolley's General B had a walkover, he also took the special for best St. Bernard in the show.

Li Hung Chang and Banner Jake two Cockers formerly owned by Redwood Cocker Kennels, won ribbons in limit, open and winners. Irish Terriers seem to have been well represented. Cardiff Warman a winner at the last Oakland show could not do better than a third.

Scotties had a good entry, we are informed Mrs. Bradley-Dyne has a grand lot of "die hards." C. K. Harley's Klicitat, second in puppies and reserve in limit and his Lolita third in puppies, first in limit and reserve in winners is the record for our local Fox Terriers. Another local dog to win was Mrs. H. T. Payne's Italian Greyhound Ioki, first in open. The list of awards is the following:

THE FARM.

$6000 for a Hereford Bull.

English advices report the sale of the famous four year old Hereford bull Protector (9660) for shipment to America at the long price of twelve hundred pounds sterling. Mr. F. A. Nave, Attica, Indiana, former owner of the champion bull Dale, is the buyer.

Protector was bred by Mr. Allan Hughes of Wintercote and has been a great winner at the English shows. In 1898 he was first as a yearling at the Royal, besides winning several other honors at local shows. He was then sold to his late owner, Sir Joseph Pulley of Lower Eaton, Herefordshire. As a two year old he was not fitted, but as a three year old he was again brought out winning first at the Shropshire show at Shrewsbury, second at the Bath and West of England, first and champion at the Royal Counties show at Winchester, first and champion at the Herefordshire and Worcestershire show at Leominster, besides first at the Royal at York. At the latter exhibition the bull was seen by the writer hereof and there can be no question as to his right to the honors assigned him. The competition, it is true, was light in the aged bull class at York but Protector would have been able to have defended his title against all Hereford bulls of the year. He is a rich-fleshed, deep-bodied bull, compactly built, exceptionally broad-ribbed, and very low in the twist and flanks; in short a capital stamp of the best feeding type of the breed. And he certainly has his excellence by that best of all titles, inheritance. He is a son of the famous Albion (15027) out of Newton Plum by the mighty Rudolph (6660). It will be remembered that Albion won several championships for Mr. Hughes, besides siring a large number of prize-winning bulls and heifers. He never failed to "nick" well with this cow Newton Plum. Protector's own sister Wintercote Plum was first at the Royal and many other shows in 1896 and 1897. An own brother, Prosperous, calved in 1898, was first at the Royal at Maidstone and another own brother Wintercote now heads the good herd of Henry Haywood at Blakmere.—Breeders Gazette.

Lamb Feeding Experience.

A correspondent gives his experience with lamb feeding as follows:

In the first place we believe that we must have the right class of lambs. The kind which we have found the most profitable for feeding are those from fine wool ewes or half-blood ewes and Shropshire rams. We want a lamb with a dense fleece of short or medium wool, showing some of the black points on feet and legs, wide chest, and better to have wool on its head and legs. We prefer a lamb which came later than April 1st for feeding later than January 1st.

Our experience goes to show that the early, coarse-wool, white-faced lambs, weighing 80 to 90 pounds in November, are not good feeders. We put up 25 coarse-wool, white-faced lambs November 12th, averaging 80 pounds each, and February 16th they weighed 90 pounds each. On the same day we put up 25 half-blood Shropshire lambs, weighing 70 pounds each, which were sold on January 20th weighing 90 pounds each. A comparison of these figures will readily show why we are partial to the black-faced, medium-wool lambs. Further, we find that they will fatten on much less feed.

We started both of these bunches with oats and good clover hay for one week; then increased with corn until we fed one pound of corn and oats mixed per day a head. Then slowly reduced the oats and increased the corn until we were feeding one pound of corn a day. This change occupied a period of about one month. Then we increased the corn until the Shropshire lambs received one and one quarter pounds of corn per day, which we found to be all they would eat. The above results show a wonderful gain of these lambs. The white-faced lambs were fed a pound and one-half of corn per day and still continue to receive that ration, but are not yet as fat as were the Shropshire lambs over a month ago. While they have large bodies, they do not seem to take on fat and get the weight required for profitable production.—Exchange.

Dairy Notes.

Milk of different temperatures should never be mixed.

Make butter to suit the tastes of your customers.

The globules that rise to the surface in the first twelve hours make the finest butter.

Milk giving is a maternal function and should never be abused.

No cow should be retained in the dairy herd unless she has some good quality to recommend her.

Butter should be exposed as little as possible to the air from the time it is churned until packed.

Care should be taken never to overwork butter, as the grain and texture should be preserved.

Don't let milk stand until the cream rises before straining.

Don't put onions or cabbage, etc., near milk or butter, as they will absorb the unpleasant odor.

Don't let milk stand before skimming until the cream looks speckled, as it will cause the butter to be "strong."

Don't let the cream turn to whey before churning.

Don't, when churning, make the temperature too high, as it will injure the keeping quality of the butter.

Don't put the hands on the butter. It destroys the grain and makes it tallowy.

And don't, don't don't make butter into balls with the hands. Make a small paddle out of wood. Pine will do if it is boiled until the pine taste is out of it. Make the butter out in pound rolls; or, if preferred, use pound butter molds. The appearance of butter has much to do with selling it. Then, if the butter has an excellent flavor and keeps well, the customer will buy the same make of butter the next time it is offered him. She will tell the neighbors and soon you will have a call for all the butter you can make. Then it's your own fault if you do not keep your customer. Now, all farmers wives do not make bad butter, but I think it would be safe in saying that the majority of them do, and the sooner we all learn to make good butter the sooner "country butter" will command a good price.—Rylie.

Money in This Angora Goat.

Edward L. Arnold, a farmer living near Geneva, New York, has found that there is money in Angora goats—that is, there was money in one that he purchased recently. He sent to St. Louis and purchased a full blooded buck, paying $250 cash for him, as he was a prize winner and a fine specimen. Mr. Arnold kept the goat in a box stall and on the 7th of this month went into the stall to feed the animal. After returning to the house Arnold missed his wallet containing over a thousand dollars in bills. He repaired to the stall to look for it, and found it spread open in the straw and the money missing. From marks on the wallet it was evident that the buck had been tampering with it and had probably eaten the money. After a consultation with his wife Mr. Arnold killed the buck. There was money in that goat, mutilated, but still redeemable—seven $100 bills, four $50 bills, five $20 bills, three $10 bills, one $5 bill and one $2 bill, $1037 in all.

Mottled Butter.

The Maryland Experiment Station, in its investigations as to the cause of mottles in butter, came to the following conclusions:

1. The uneven distribution of salt is the cause of unevenly colored butter spoken of as mottled butter.

2. Washing the butter with water below 40 degrees does not cause mottles. It does, however, make a little more working necessary to thoroughly distribute the salt.

3. The light colored streaks or portions of mottled butter are not caused by an excess of casein, but mottles are evidently caused by some physical action of salt on the butter fat, which causes it to admit more light.

4. Mottles can be prevented by working the butter sufficiently to thoroughly distribute the salt.

5. Butter washed with water at 40 degrees and under and worked immediately shows a better grain when sufficiently worked to insure its being evenly colored than with any other treatment.

6. Washing butter with water at 40 degrees and under does not injure its firmness when subjected to high temperature.

QUINN'S OINTMENT FOR HORSES

stands at the head of all veterinary remedies. Such troubles as Spavins, Curbs, Windpuffs, Splints, Bunches have no terrors for a horse if the master keeps and applies Quinn's Ointment. All well known horsemen speak of it in the highest terms:

Miller & Sibley of Franklin, Pa., owners of St. Bel, brother of late Bel Boy, write, "We have used Quinn's Ointment with great success and believe it fulfills all claimed for it. We cheerfully recommend it to our friends." For Curbs, Splints, Spavins or Bunches it has no equal.

He will weigh between eleven and twelve hundred, is a fair gaited, fast horse for what he has been handled, and can step a quarter in 36 seconds on my track, which is not much better than a road. I have a colt from him out of the dam of Gen. Smith 2:17 1/4, and another out of the Venture mare, the dam of Lockinvar 2:23 1/4. I also have a filly by Nutwood Wilkes out of the dam of my McKinney colt. My horse is well patronized and I can get all the mares I want bred to him. I am getting old and would like to sell them all out. Well bred broodmares and colts for sale.

At Pleasanton Track.

Last Saturday the trainers at Pleasanton had fine weather and a large number of visitors. The horses were nearly all feeling well and speed was shown that made eyes open rather wider than usual.

Will Welch stepped Geo. Bennett, the Honolulu horse, a last quarter in 31½ seconds, and did it so nicely that it is the general opinion that he has a horse that can win a good pile of money this year.

Chas. Griffith worked Bonnie Direct 2:05½ and let him brush along in places very fast. In looking over this horse one is always impressed with the idea that he is in every particular a king among horses, being high bred, good mannered, very handsome and the best of all the fastest green horses in their first year's campaign. He is a two minute pacer.

James Thompson was working some of his numerous pacers and let Goshen Jim step a mile in 2:12½, which was easy for the big horse. He gave Col. Kirkpatrick's three year old some slow work but let him step lively for short distances.

Mr. Trefry had one of his little Directs out. The little fellow was as busy as a bee and stepped the mile in 2:20.

J. M. Alviso worked several of Mr. Crellin's youngsters. They are all doing nicely and can show considerable speed.

Tommy Murphy, the champion horse shoer of California, delights in driving the runner that teases the harness horses when a fast mile is to be made. He frequently gets a mount on such occasions, handles the lines well, and is a good judge of pace.

Det Bigelow's horses are all working well. He will have a great mare in Tags 2:13 by Diablo this year. She is better than ever.

Millard Sanders is getting ready to ship to Cleveland about May 5th, and I believe he has the best conditioned lot of horses I ever saw. He worked Mr. Spreckels' mare Venus II. several slow miles, one in 2:21½, last quarter in 31½ seconds. Czarina 2:13½ is working good. She scores nicely and gets away well. Her mile Saturday was in 2:17½. Dolly Dillon worked a mile in 2:17, and Janice one in 2:16½. All four of these mares in Mr. Sanders' stable look almost fit to go a horse race now. Millard drove Dr. Finlaw's green mare by Daly a mile in 2:18, last half in 1:08. She is certainly a very high class green mare. She has been turned over to P. W. Hodges who will campaign her in California this year. Mr. Sanders worked Judge Green's two year old Directum colt a quarter in 38½ seconds. As this fellow has had but two months' training he is looked upon by the Pleasanton trainers as a speed marvel, and he has the making of a great horse.

Sandy Smith has paid over the coin, $2000, and has the roan pacer Funston in his charge. He will take him to his new owner in the car with Sanders' string. This pacer is one of the best green prospects ever seen in California. He has been at San Jose in care of P. W. Hodges who has developed him, and who made the sale for the breeder of the horse, Mr. Theuerkauf.

Supervisor Fred Horner's handsome big bay gelding by Nutwood Wilkes worked a mile in 2:30, the last half in 1:13. This trotter is coming very fast and if he continues to improve will be very fast horse.

T. C., the big chestnut three year old worked a mile in 2:30 very nicely, and has the making of a very fast trotter. He is a wonderfully big and strong colt, but will not be raced this year. He is too good a horse, and too large to take chances with, but when he is older and they get him ready he should do in almost any company.

John Blue's string of horses from Mr. Galleagos farm at Mission San Jose has many promising members. The black filly by Direct and the Diablo four year old are two of the best green pacers at Pleasanton. All of the horses in Blue's charge are in perfect condition.

At Alameda Track.

A trip to Alameda track any of this fine mornings is worth one's while and it is a reminder of the old days when trotters and pacers were kings. While no very fast miles have been shown some good work is being done and fast quarters are not scarce.

Grant Lapham worked that sweet little trotter Phoebe Childers 2:10½ a mile in 2:20½ and the trotter General Smith a mile in 2:32 the other morning.

Budd Doble, the celebrated reinsman was up behind that grand colt The Roman 2:18½, on the morning of my visit and stepped him a mile in 2:25 accompanied by Mose Hart who drove that handsome mare Dora Doe 2:12½. Both horses worked very nicely. C. E. Morrison worked his racy looking mare Lady B two easy miles in nearly the same notch—2:29½ and 2:29½.

Ed Lafferty was on the track with quite a number. He has driven no fast miles yet but has a number of good ones.

H. D. Brown has Doc Wilkes 2:15½ going sound and this pacer will be a hard nut to crack in the 2:16 class this summer.

Marchand, of Lady O. fame, has a shoeing shop in Oakland but finds time in the morning to attend to five head of trotters he is working.

H. R. Ward has a fine-looking Altamont that acts like a first class colt and I think you will hear from him this year.

Hermia, the mare by Soudan worked a mile at the trot in 2:25. She can beat her pacing record of 2:19½ at the diagonal gait sure. VISITOR.

"Uncle George" Fuller's contract, whereby he is now conducting a training school for drivers in Russia, expires next February and he is expected home soon after. The proceeds of his three years' work there will "put him on easy street" for the rest of his days.

Will Inherit Speed.

One day last week James W. Rea, owner of Vendome Stock Farm, San Jose, Cal., received the following letter:

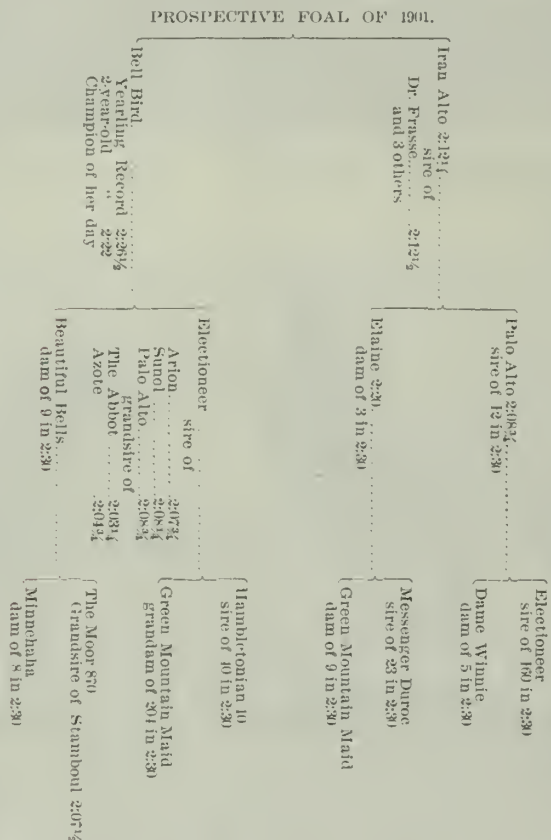

PALO ALTO STOCK FARM, April 18, 1901.
HON. JAS. W. REA, San Jose, Cal. Dear Sir:—We will send Bell Bird to Iran Alto on April 25th, arriving at San Jose in the evening of that day.

Yours truly, F. W. COVEY.
P. S. I hope the produce will be a horse colt. The blood lines would read well.

Palo Alto 2:08½, champion; Elaine 2:20, champion; Green Mountain Maid, Queen; Electioneer, King; Beautiful Bells, The Queen.

He, or she, the produce would have the greatest combination of speed at all ages, and sex ever bred.

COVEY
When shown the above letter by Farmer Bunch, superintendent of the Vendome Farm, we asked the privilege to copy the same into the columns of the B. & S., as the mating of Bell Bird and Iran Alto is noteworthy. A three cross tabulation of the prospective foal's pedigree is here given:

Glens Falls Entries.

California-bred horses are well represented in the list of entries which the New New York Trotting Horse Breeders have received to their Grand Circuit meeting:

The 2:28 class trot, purse $1500, received 53 entries, and more than 20 percent. are California bred. They are Zambia by Cupid, Hyita by Dexter Prince, Blue Gum by Nephew, Florist by Dexter Prince, Boodler by Boodle, Ethel Derby by Chas. Derby, Algoneta by Eros, Deacon Chase by McKinney, Dr. Shorb by McKinney, Tom Smith by McKinney, and Vic Sheller by Hambletonian Wilkes.

In the 2:24 class trot, purse $1500, forty-four horses have been named, six of which bred in this State, viz: Carrie Caswell by Altivo, Gussurro by Wildnut, Hyita by Dexter Prince, Boodler by Boodle, Vic Sheller by Hambletonian Wilkes, Tom Smith by McKinney, and Mercury, a bay gelding by McKinney, that was sold East two years ago and is now in Scott Hudson's string at Lexington.

Thirty-six horses have been entered in the 2:18 trot for which $1500 is the purse. There are five Californians named, three of which, Mercury, Charlie Mac and Maggie McKinney are by McKinney, the other two, Jummie and Mary Celeste being by Directum and Oro Wilkes respectively.

The 2:14 trot, $1500, has a high class lot of California bred horses in it. These are Thompson 2:14½ by Boodle, Dr. Book 2:13½ and Charlie Mac 2:17½ by McKinney, Czarina 2:13½ by Dexter Prince, Janico 2:13½ by William Harold, and Bob Ingersoll 2:14½ by Nutwood Wilkes. There are thirty entries all told in this race.

But two of the twenty-one entries in the 2:25 trot for three year olds were bred in this State and both first saw the light at Palo Alto Farm. They are the fillies Lesa by Dexter Prince and Adabella by Adbell.

A big list of entries was received for the 2:24 class pace, no less than fifty-three horses being named. The three promising green ones Rajah by Chas. Derby, Thornway by Steinway and Domino by Rect are entered and we notice that Rio Alto, the son of Palo Alto 2:08½, that took a record of 2:16½ as a trotter in 1894, and has been in the stud since, has been shifted to a pacer and entered in this event. He is just ten years old.

The 2:18 class pace at Glens Falls failed to attract any entries from this State and the 2:12 class pacing purse has but one entry from this balliwick, Fredericksburg, the chestnut pacer by Nephew Jr., that was on the Coast circuit last season.

The Hartford Entries.

The list of entries for the Charter Oak Park meeting at Hartford has been received and is a record breaker. The Charter Oak $10,000 stake for trotters of the 2:13 class has seventeen nominations, of which California furnishes two, Millard Sanders and W. G. Durfee taking nominations in this big event.

The 2:19 trot, a purse of $3000, has 59 entries. No California stable has made an entry, but a number of horses bred in this State are entered.

There are 54 horses named in the 2:30 trot for a purse of $3000. W. G. Durfee has named Deacon Chase and Dr. Shorb, both by McKinney and B. O. Van Bokkelen names the four year old Tom Smith also by McKinney and Vic Sheller by Hambletonian Wilkes. There are a number of Eastern owned but California bred horses by Dexter Prince, Direct, Directum, Altivo, Cupid, Wildnut and other sires that have been named in this purse.

The 2:09 pace $3000, has 29 entries. There is a brother to John R. Gentry, a son of Star Pointor, a son of Mambrino King and a son of Chimes among them, but they will have to race their best if they beat the California contingent, Rey Direct 2:10 and Goshen Jim 2:10½, both being entered in this event.

There are 28 entries in the 2:14 pace but none of the California stables are represented.

In the 2:30 pace, $3000, C. L. Griffith of San Francisco, has named Domino by Rect, Dr. Boucher of San Jose enters Harry Logan, a son of his great pacing mare Miss Logan 2:06½ and Col. J. C. Kirkpatrick has named the good three year old Thornway by Steinway. California ought to be in the money in this race, although there are 39 high class horses named.

The Abbot and Cresceus Matched.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Secretary C. A. McCully, of the New York Trotting Association, has just returned from Toledo, O., after securing the signature of C. H. Ketcham, the owner of the trotting horse Cresceus, to an agreement for a match between The Abbot and Cresceus, to take place at Brighton Beach during the week beginning August 12th. The agreement also bears the signatures of W. I. Marks, acting for John J. Scannell, and William A. Engemann, for the New York Trotting Association.

The conditions of the race are best three out of five, one-mile heats, for a purse of $12,000, the winner to receive $7000 and the remainder of the purse to go to the loser. The owners have agreed to bring their horses to the post in good condition, and have also agreed that the horses shall not be raced against each other in a match or special contest prior to the filling of their Brighton Beach engagement under the auspices of the New York Trotting Association, the date of which will probably be Thursday, August 15th.

In consideration of Ketcham's withdrawing the entry of Cresceus in the $10,000 free-for-all trot, which, next to the match race, is the principal feature on the program, the New York Trotting Association has guaranteed $5000 in any event for the appearance of Cresceus at the Brighton Beach track.

Appropriations for District Fairs.

The agricultural districts of California received a 25 per cent increase this year in the appropriations made by the Legislature. There are forty-five of these districts and the amount appropriated for each is given in the appended table. It will be noticed that no appropriation was made for district No. 37. Santa Barbara county was divided into two districts some years ago, called districts 19 and 37. Provision was made for district No. 19 this year but none for 37, the Legislature considering that one appropriation was sufficient for one county. The number of each district, the county or counties comprising the same, the place where the fair grounds are situated and the amount appropriated to each is here given. The appropriation is for two years. One-half these amounts can be used each year, or the full amount during the second fiscal year, but an association cannot use the entire amount during the first year.

News From the North.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

E. B. Tongue has placed Ben Bolt and Mark Hanna in John E. Kirkland's stable to be trained this year. They are now at McMinnville where they will be jogged for the present time.

Viola, dam of Giles Noyes 2:05½, has foaled a fine filly by Claymont, full brother to Chehalis 2:04½.

J. Garrison, who has been wintering at Lewiston, Idaho, passed through Portland this week on his way to a visit up the valley. He says quite a number of horsemen are wintering at Lewiston and among them he mentions: Hick Jackson, Mr. Cole, Jake Richardson, Shorty Martin, Ed Getchell, H. Covington, H. Nunomaker, Ed. Hickock, Jack Agnew, A. Neil and Pat Keenan.

A. E. Heller has moved his stable of trotters and pacers to the Fair Grounds. He has quite a string, mostly youngsters as follows: Two year old colt by Del Norte out of a mare by Wilkie, son of Guy Wilkes; Hazel Dell, two year old by Del Norte-Altamont; Jno. A. Crawford 2:17; Corvallis, two year old colt by Coeur d'Alene-Put Smith; Oregon Maid, three year old by Del Norte-Dwina, dam of Alta Dell 2:16; Athalene, three year old by Altago out of the dam of Alameda 2:09½; Gracie Dell, three year old by Del Norte-Arena; The Bryan, two year old by Caution-Timosa; Frank Watson, three year old by Steadman-Jennie Lapham; Trailbyome, a three year old by Gerome-Oneco; Ned Wilkes, green trotter by Ebony Wilkes-Dolly.

C. X. Larrabee, of Brook Nook Stock Farm, Montana, reports the recent purchase of the stallion Vice Regent 20965, that is now on the way to his breeding farm in Montana, where he will be placed in the stud. Vice Regent is a chestnut stallion bred by C. J. Hamlin and sired by Mambrino King. First dam Estabella (dam of Hoir-at-Law 2:05½, Prince Regent 2:16½) by Alcantara 2:23; second dam Annabel by George Wilkes 2:22; third dam Jessie Pepper by Mambrino Chief 11; fourth dam Lona Pepper by Sidi Hamet; fifth dam Wickliffe mare by Diomed. Vice Regent is a full brother to Heir-at-Law 2:05½ and Prince Regent 2:16½ and is one of the highest bred stallions in America.

Better than an Automobile.

On Stephons creek, north of the Saratoga summit, lives an Italian family by the name of Galiazzo, who send five children to the Fairview school, a distance of some two or three miles away. The children all ride on one horse and cover his back from his shoulders to his tail. The eldest, a girl, rides in front and guides the horse, while a smaller one that rides nearest the caudal appendage does the necessary whipping to avoid the tardy marks. Neil Carmichael, who vouches for the truth of this story, says it is an extremely comical sight to see this outfit galloping along, the wee tiny mite behind playing the whip and the five separate and distinct little heads bobbing serenely up and down—Mountain Echo.

At Nutwood Stock Farm.

A royally-bred filly arrived at Martin Carter's Nutwood Stock Farm last Wednesday morning, having been foaled by the handsome mare Brown Eyes. The filly is a daughter of Nutwood Wilkes and is a chestnut with a star and snip. Brown Eyes is by Direct Line (son of Director 2:17 and Lida W. 2:18½, the dam of Nutwood Wilkes), out of Lady Mino (dam of Irvington Boy 2:17½ and Irvington Belle 2:18½), by California Nutwood; second dam Lou G. (dam of Bob Ingersoll 2:14½, Who Is She 2:25 and Fred Wilkes 2:26½) by Albert W. 2:20; third dam the mare Tillie by San Bruno. Tillie won for Mr. Carter a match race of $1000 at San Jose in 1881.

Hon. Jesse D. Carr of Salinas has sent two mares by Boodle 2:12½ to Nutwood Wilkes this year. Both mares were bred to him last year and Mr. Carr is so pleased with the foals that he has bred the mares back. J. B. Iverson of Salinas has also sent a mare up to Mr. Carter's farm to be bred to his stallion. This mare is a daughter of Eugeneor, out of the dam of Dictatress 2:12½.

Mr. Theuerkauf of San Jose has sent to Nutwood Wilkes a full sister to the roan pacer Funston that Sandy Smith recently purchased for an Eastern gentleman for $2000. She is by Dictatus, out of Sister (dam of Lee 2:17½) by Eugene Casserly, son of Gen. Taylor.

Nutwood Wilkes has already had more mares booked this early than were booked to him during the entire season last year and breeders are only just beginning to book their mares in the majority of cases, as foals are just now beginning to arrive. All the get of that horse that are in training are showing speed without exception.

Geers' Opinion of The Abbot.

A correspondent of the Chicago Horse Review visited Louisville track last week and while there saw Ed Geers work The Abbot, and wrote as follows: "The champion's appearance and gait struck me as being very much better than I had ever seen in him before at this season. The Abbot looks big and strong, is going nicely and reeled off a quarter in 33 seconds, which was a mere jog for him.

At the conclusion of The Abbot's work, I had a conversation with Mr. Geers as to how he liked the champion this year. He immediately replied:

"I never was so well pleased with The Abbot at this season of the year as I am at the present time. You know I have always been troubled in the early training months to get him going, as he required quite a little weight and has frequently been very unsteady at the beginning of the season, while he would not have his speed. But I am only using a two-ounce weight at present, and I do not think he really needs that. As you saw to-day he is going smooth and lovel, is full of trot and he can just fly."

In answer to a question as to how fast The Abbot would trot this year, Mr. Geers said he "fully expected to be able to drive him a mile in two minutes this fall," and continued: "I could have stepped him a half most any time late last fall in a minute flat, and a quarter in 29 seconds, and I am positive he will, with training, learn to carry this clip." Mr. Geers is very conservative in stating what he expects from his horses, and generally accomplishes what he starts out to do.

I recall a conversation I had with Mr. Harry Hamlin last summer at the Iroquois Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., during the Grand Circuit meeting there. He said: "It is our intention to prepare The Abbot for a fast record. Mr. Geers informs me that he believes he will be able to drive him a mile in about 2:04½ at the Readville meeting and to beat the world's record at the Torre Haute meeting." It is a matter of record just how correct Mr. Geers was in his prediction.

In regard to the match between The Abbot and Boralma at the fall meeting at Lexington, Ky., Geers had the following to say:

"I do not know what leads Mr. Lawson and his friends to believe that Boralma can beat The Abbot. They say Boralma will improve. But, great horse that he is, he will certainly have to show an unprecedented gain in form. Granting this be true, however, I fully expect great improvement in The Abbot.

Will Be Sold at Cleveland.

Chas. A. Winship of Los Angeles will send six trotting bred horses to the Cleveland sale, the car leaving Los Angeles about May 1st. The one that will probably bring the longest price is the filly Zephyr by Zombro 2:11, out of Gazelle 2:11½, dam of Zolock 2:10½. This filly will be three years old in May and is one of the greatest prospects in America to-day, as she has shown more speed in her work than any three year old heard from up to date. Mr. Winship, who weighs 212 pounds, drove her a mile early in April in 2:18, the last quarter in 32½ seconds. Zephyr was hitched to a 46 pound cart at the time. This is a wonderful performance and stamps this filly as one of the best of the year beyond a doubt. If she were entered in some of the big stakes she would bring a very large sum of money at the Cleveland sale and a long price will doubtless be paid for her as it is. We have heard that Mr. Winship was offered $3500 for Zephyr after he had consigned her to the sale, but refused it and will stand pat on the consignment.

Another good one that he will send to Cleveland is Pacific King, a four year old pacer by Diablo 2:09½. This horse paced a very handy mile in 2:19 last quarter in 33 seconds. Lady Waldstein 2:15 by Waldstein, Aster 2:12 by Dexter Prince, Vornie McGregor 2:26 by Invincible, and a green pacing mare called Velvet Rose that has shown a mile in 2:20 make up the balance of this consignment. Mr. Winship thinks Lady Waldstein will pace in 2:10 before the first of June. Aster and Vornie McGregor have been driven to pole for some time and make a very fast and handsome pair.

THOROUGHBREDS.

A MEETING OF THE DIRECTORS OF the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association has been called for Monday next, April 29th. At this meeting there will be propositions presented to the Board from the managers of the grounds at Vallejo, Sacramento, San Jose and other places, asking that the association hold its annual race meeting over their tracks. At the same meeting several preliminary purses for trotters and pacers will be decided upon and will be advertised in these columns on Saturday next. The Directors are fully alive to the fact that the harness horse is the most popular animal in America to-day and that good purses will attract a large entry list. The Breeders Association has done much to encourage the breeding and developing of high class horses in the past and will continue the work in the future. The $5000 stake for colt trotters, which was inaugurated last year will be continued. There will be a good lot of purses for the meeting this year, and they will be as liberal and as numerous as it is possible to make them. The horsemen can rest assured that the P. C. T. H. B. A. will provide a good program of liberal purses for them this year and that the meeting or meetings wherever held will be conducted in an up-to-date manner and in accordance, as closely as possible, with the rules of the National Trotting Association. As soon as the Breeders program is out several of the district associations will announce their purses. There is every reason to believe that the California circuit this year will consist of not less than eight weeks of good racing.

THE BREEDING SEASON has just now fairly begun. There will be a very large increase over last year in the number of mares bred, but there are a number of owners who are not fully alive to the situation as yet and have not booked their mares. We cannot impress too strongly on the minds of these owners that they should breed every good mare they have this year to some good stallion. There are plenty of them as the advertising columns of our paper will show and it need not take a person of average intelligence long to find the proper horse to send his mare to. Every mare should be bred with the purpose of getting some qualifications beside speed. A mare without beauty or quality should be sent to a stallion that has those requirements in a high degree, and we would advise every breeder to breed for good looks. It always adds much to the value of an animal. Breed for speed if you want it, but do not make it the only requisite. Good looks, size, bone, muscle, brains and endurance are qualities that every breeder should strive for. Breed up all the time. Try to pick a horse for your mare that is a better individual than she if possible. Try to improve all the time, and you will find that it will pay. Good handsome roadsters are in demand so much that buyers are looking for sellers and traveling far and wide to find what they want. This demand is on the increase and cannot be supplied in less than six years. Get in now while the demand is growing and you will gain a profit if you use ordinary good judgment. Breed your mare this year, feed the colt well until he is fully matured, handle him so that he will be gentle and he will pay you a profit on the investment in nine cases out of ten. Those odds are enough to remove the business from the speculation ranks.

DENVER'S MEETING will be a great success this year. The early closing events filled well and now the association has advertised a big lot of purses for harness horses all of $500 each, to close Wednesday, May 15th. It has also advertised the Colorado Derby, one and one-eighth miles, for three year old runners, to which $500 is to be added. Entries to this race will close Wednesday next, May 1st. The conditions of all these races will be found in our advertising columns to-day. There is every prospect of the Denver meeting being the best ever given in that thriving city. There will be two harness events and four or more running races each day. The harness horses have a splendid mile track to race on, while the runners are provided with a separate track seven furlongs in length that is kept in perfect condition. California horsemen will find it to their advantage to enter at Denver, especially if they are going East to race.

THE ENTRY LISTS received by the Eastern associations are unprecedented. The record is held by the New York Trotting Association, that will give a meeting at Brighton Beach in August. It received 95 entries to its $2000 purse for 2:20 trotters, and all the other purses have nearly as many. The association has arranged a big race for The Abbot and Cresceus and the meeting will be one of the big enterprises of the season.

THE TERMS of two Directors of the State Agricultural Society will expire next month and as soon as their successors are appointed the Board will meet and promulgate its program for 1901. That there will be a good generous lot of purses offered for harness horses is certain and they will be arranged to suit all classes. The State Fair of 1901 should be one of the best ever held.

A SALE OF TROTTING BRED HORSES from the Santa Clara farm of Henry Pierce will be held on May 20th at the Occidental Horse Exchange in this city. There are some well bred and fine looking animals in this consignment, several highly bred mares with colts by standard sires and a number of good work and driving horses. See advertisement.

TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS is ready for the 2:10 trotters, and five thousand dollars for the 2:24 class four year old trotters at Readville this year. Entries close Wednesday next, May 1st. If you are going East enter in these purses. See the conditions in our advertising columns.

MONTANA'S STAKES filled remarkably well and as soon as racing secretary Laurence arrives in Butte he will announce them. There will be some high class running over in the copper district this year. A program of purses for trotters and pacers will be announced soon.

LOTS OF MONEY is hung up at Terre Haute. The entries to a number of rich purses will close Monday, May 6th. Consult our business columns for full particulars.

JOTTINGS.

AT THE SAN JOSE TRACK there are quite a number of horses working, and last Saturday it was the best track the writer has seen this year. There has been lots of work done on the oval so that trainers can work fast miles if they so desire. The grounds have been cleaned up, many of the trees (which were getting too numerous and producing too much shade) cut down and many other improvements made. The horsemen who are training there suggested that the Breeders hold their meeting at San Jose this year and if they should, it is believed they could place San Jose once more in the ranks of the popular and profitable harness horse towns.

Among the trainers who are located there are B. O. Van Bokkelen with a string of ten, half of which will go East. Henry Hellman with a dozen or so to be campaigned on the California circuit; Dr. Boucher, who is getting his big chestnut pacer Harry Logan ready for his Eastern engagements, which are numerous; John Gordon, T. V. Barstow, P. W. Hodges and others. C. A. Durfee has McKinney 2:11 there and is handling a few of his colts. McKinney will make a very heavy season this year. I don't think he ever looked any better in his life than he does now. Mr. Durfee showed me his service book and 73 mares bred and to be bred this season were recorded in it, and the season has only just begun. Here are a few of the mares booked: Galetto Wilkes 2:12, Miss Logan 2:07 1/2, Myrtle 1 horn 2:18, Miss Jessie 2:13 1/4, Linda Oak 2:18 1/2, Bon Bon 2:26, Wanda 2:14 1/4, Flora M. 2:16, Hazel Wilkes 2:11 1/4, Dr. Frasse's Sister 2:25 1/2, and many others with records that I failed to remember. Among the producing mares are Fennella, dam of Janico 2:13 1/4, Last Chance, dam of Bell Patchen 2:16, Maud by Inca dam of Maud McKinney, and a dozen or so of Palo Alto Stock Farm's best mares. Mr. Durfee received a letter from the owner of one of the leading breeding farms in the East last week, making him a generous offer to take McKinney back there this summer, and guaranteeing a big lot of very high class mares at $100 each, but Mr. D. was compelled to decline as the horse's time will be fully occupied here in California.

There are some very promising horses among those pictured by our camera this week, although all but one are without records.

The roan pacer by Dictatus that now bears the name of Funston will go East in a few days in charge of Sandy Smith, who is perfectly confident that he has the best green one that has been produced in California up to date. Sandy induced an Eastern gentleman to pay $2000 for him, and there is little doubt but the new owner has received his money's worth for the roan fellow is a combination of brains and extreme speed that is rarely met with. I saw him work a mile at San Jose last Saturday and he is the easiest going one I have seen this year. They told me he worked a mile in 2:11 1/4 the Saturday previous and Mr. Hodges said he did not wish him to go as fast again as the horse was to be shipped East in a few weeks and they were letting up on him. He gave him a mile in 2:25 and he was only jogging. He wore no hopples and nothing but the lightest of quarter boots on his legs. In this heat he wore a check, but upon my asking Hodges to let the horse stand for a picture when he came out for the next heat, he said, "I will leave his check off as he will look better, and it don't make much difference to him as he can pace as fast without it as with it." After the snap was taken he scored the roan down once or twice and then went away. Funston did not give one the impression that he was trying hard, as he moved so smoothly. He is a leg pacer and just about the sweetest one in California. He made the mile in 2:16 1/4 with the lines loose and evidently making his own pace. I think he'll do when he strikes the good green ones over East, and I don't care how good they are, if he keeps right he will be in the money. His dam is the mare Sister, the dam of that good old campaigner Lee 2:17 1/4. The Year Book says she is by Gen. Taylor but her owner tells me she is by Eugene Casserly, a son of the old gray champion thirty mile trotter. The breeding of the dam of Sister is unknown to her owner and has never been recorded, but it is said that it can be ascertained. The sire of this pacer, Dictatus, had as much speed as any horse I ever saw and had he not been spoiled in training and taught to be about the worst puller that ever spoiled a start he would have done his miles below 2:10. His breeding is about as good as that of any stallion in the country. By Red Wilkes, dam by Dictator, second dam by Mambrino Abdullah, third dam by Harold, fourth dam by Mambrino Patchen, etc. Dictatus is the sire of that good little mare Dictatress 2:12½, but she will not be the fastest of his get when this roan fellow gets to racing.

Another good one I saw at San Jose was the bay four year old Tom Smith by McKinney. He is looking better than ever and is a very handsome horse. He got no mark last year, but won considerable money. He met The Roman and Eula Mac in his races and thus failed to win, but he was never outside the money. Mr. Van Bokkelen, who is handling him now, thinks him a great four year old and so does every horseman who sees him at work. I heard a man who knows a good horse when he sees him, say to C. A. Durfee as Van drove the colt by: "I'll put in with you and buy that horse."

"It will take $2500 to get him," was Durfee's reply. "All right," came the rejoinder; "I think he is well worth it, and the best young trotter I ever saw."

Mr. Van Bokkelen has an option on the colt which expires the first of May. He must be pretty sure of getting him as I see he has entered him well over East. Tom Smith is owned by Prof. E. P. Heald, President of the P. C. T. H. B. A. He is by McKinney 2:11½, dam Daisy S. (dam of two in 2:30) by McDonald Chief 3583; second dam Fanny Rose (the dam of Columbus S. 2:17 and George Washington 2:16½) by Ethan Allen Jr.; third dam Jenny Lind, the dam of Prince Allen 2:27. He is a square-gaited, level-headed, line trotter, and is all business. He stands 15.1 and is a very handsome horse with plenty of substance and quality beside.

Another good son of McKinney that is at the San Jose track is Ben Liebes, also a four year old. He belongs to Mr. H. L. Frank, of Montana, and is out of Belle McGregor, a daughter of Robert McGregor. This colt got no mark last year. He started three times and showed speed and gameness, but he was a very growthy colt and was not severely trained. At that time, I am told, he worked a mile in 2:16½ very nicely. He is a big horse and a handsome one, as his picture shows. I never saw a richer, brighter bay, and if he don't get a low mark and win a lot of good races it will be because he is sick or disabled. He ought to make one of the greatest stock horses in the country.

Several of the owners and trainers who will race harness horses in California this year have suggested that the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association hold more than one meeting. The idea is that the association hold meetings at two or three of the interior towns where the local associations will not give fairs. All the horsemen are anxious that this should be done as they would rather race under the Breeders management than under any other association, as they know the tracks would be put in the best possible condition, there would be no deep harrowing next the pole to accommodate the runners, as all the races would be for harness horses, and there would be good management all through. The P. C. T. H. B. A. has done much for the harness interests of the coast. It kept the interest alive when breeders were selling their farms and getting out of the business discouraged by the hard times. It has never given a meeting when less than $3000 net was distributed among the horsemen and the amount has been as high as $10,000. No organization in America has given cleaner racing or meetings more free from scandal. About the only strong criticism I have heard of it in late years is that its purses, stakes and place of meeting are not announced early enough. I think this criticism is proper, although the fact that the association owns no track and is thus badly handicapped is one partial justification of its course. There are many horsemen who object to the membership fee of $15 and annual dues of $10 as too high and I think they could be lowered with advantage and profit to all concerned. If the P. C. T. H. B. A. owned a track it could soon be one of the leading organizations in America. There are many wealthy members of the organization and I have not the least doubt in the world that if a tract of suitable land could be secured on the San Francisco peninsula or across the bay that sufficient stock would be subscribed and paid for to equip a trotting track in good shape and that big crowds would attend the meetings. A well equipped track with plenty of stall room if located in a spot sheltered from the trade winds would be patronized by a very large number of trainers. It is not an extravagant prediction to say that two hundred stalls could be rented at $2 per month each the year round.

"There are mighty few high class green trotters in California this year," said a horseman to me the other day, "and I don't think 2:15 will be beaten many times." Perhaps not, but when one makes a tour of the training tracks and holds a watch on the horses working, he soon realizes that there is lots of "green speed" to be seen. I have no doubt but the 2:30 trots will get fifteen or twenty entries in California this year and that when the horses score up for the word they will be in two tiers. I also predict that while any green trotter that can do three heats in 2:18 or better will win a good pile of money, that at least a half dozen of them will have records of 2:15 or better before the close of the season. Wise drivers never know just how fast their horses can go until they race them, but realize about how fast they will have to go, and put them in condition for the ordeal. The "other-wise" trainers knew all about their steppers early in the season and it is only after the races that they begin to understand that the purses are not paid for workouts. I heard of a green horse that was discarded by his trainer the other day because he could not work a mile better than 2:20. He had been worked just six weeks and after a lot of honing had trotted a mile in 2:21. This was enough to knock out an ordinary horse and because his ankles filled and he could not show any speed the next day, he was turned out and branded as a counterfeit. A road driver bought him, and its a two to one proposition that the horse will prove a good one yet, as the man who made the purchase has brains under his hat and will not ask the animal to do the impossible.

The Corbitt Ranch Sold.

The famous farm owned by the late William Corbitt, where Guy Wilkes ruled over a harem of great broodmares, and where some of the greatest winners of the Grand Circuit were bred, has been sold to Mr. Francis J. Carolan, President of the Burlingame Polo Club. A sum approximating $250,000 was paid for the land and improvements thereon. Mr. Carolan bought the property as an investment. He intends to establish another polo field on the race track of the ranch and lease it to the polo club of Burlingame, so the polo players may use one field while the grass is growing on the other, and thus stimulate interest in the game.

The development of the sport in California is closely observed by Mr. Carolan. He notes that Eastern experts, who formerly went to Aiken, S. C., in the winter season, prefer to come to California. The purpose he has in view in the extension of polo grounds is to afford Eastern and resident admirers of the sport all the facilities demanded by the widening interest in this form of outdoor exercise.

The transportation companies have already derived considerable revenue from the polo tourists. Burlingame has been onlivened by the sojourn of these Eastern players, who formerly went to South Carolina. Returning East they proclaim the advantages of Burlingame as a polo resort and bring back with them other men of means who have a fancy for this style of field exercise. In this manner the resident population of Burlingame is augmented, as many who come with their friends to pass the winter decide to remain all the year round. The railroad companies are beginning to find that it pays to make known to the Eastern world the attractions which Burlingame presents to the disciples of polo.

The Burlingame Club, with its club house and twelve acres of land, is an established social institution apart from the polo clubs, yet it is in sympathy with the field organization. All the leading polo players are members of the Burlingame Club proper, but all the club members are not players.

Mr. Carolan's purchase of the Corbitt ranch and the creation of a new polo field will not transfer the present attractions of Burlingame to another section of San Mateo county. No changes in the character or purposes of the Burlingame Club are in contemplation. The purchaser having faith in the San Mateo land values, and believing that property on the peninsula of San Francisco is bound to increase in value, bought the land.

We understand that Mr. Carolan will probably utilize the farm as a place to breed polo ponies and will use California mustang mares and small thoroughbred or trotting bred stallions on them.

Answers to Correspondents.

FREESTONE (Cal.), April 23, 1901.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Kindly inform me if there is a bay mare by the name of Piedmont registered, and please give me the number. The mare is claimed to be out of a mare named Piedmont raised by Stanford. Also let me know if Don Fallis is registered and his number. By so doing you will greatly oblige, Yours respectfully, JOHN O'GRADY.

You have doubtless made some mistake about the mare Piedmont. We can find no such mare registered. The horse Piedmont was a stallion. His record was 2:17½ and his registered number 904. He was owned by the late Senator Stanford and died his property. Don Fallis is not registered. He is by the registered horse Fallis 2:23, dam a mare by the thoroughbred horse Bayswater.

A Sacramento correspondent wants the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN to decide for him which of two stallions he names is the better bred. They are by the same sire but from mares of entirely different breeding. We cannot decide this matter, as such would be only an individual opinion and there are no rules by which an authoritative opinion in such a case could be formulated. If the correspondent desires to patronize one of these stallions he should decide for himself which horse would nick best with his mare, taking her breeding into consideration.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nebr., March 23, 1901

Mr. W. F. Young, Springfield, Mass. Dear Sir:—Some time ago you sent us a quart can of your Tarecum for trial. We used it on a mare that from all symptoms had uveculia disease in one forward foot. It has cured her and she is now as sound as the day she was foaled. We think it the greatest thing for horses feet that a person can use. We have used lots of other hoof remedies and it beats them all. M. W. PLOURD & SON.

The Directors of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association met at Lexington last Saturday and arranged the stakes to be offered for the leviathan fall meeting to be given at that noted track. There are fourteen stakes, besides the great match races between The Abbot and Borahma, and Cresceus and Charley Herr, the former being for $30,000, and the latter for $7000. The Ashland Stake has been canceled and in its stead a sweepstakes for 2:10 trotters, with a forfeit of $300, with four payments of $75 each, named the McDowell, in honor of the late president, Major H. C. McDowell, has been announced. The Transylvania has been increased to $6000, and made for the 2:12 class. Following are the stakes as arranged: Kentucky Futurity for foals of 1898, $16,000; Louisville prize, foals 1898, $10,000; Transylvania Stake, 2:12 class, named September 17th, $6000; McDowell Stake for 2:10 trotters, sweepstakes, estimated $5500; Kentucky Futurity, foals 1899, $5000; Walnut Hall Cup for 2:15 trotters, $3000; Tennessee Stake, 2:08 pacers, named September 17th, $3000; Blue Grass Stake, 2:19 trotters, $2000; Johnston Stake, 2:24 trotters, $2000; West Stake, 2:29 trotters, $2000; Wilson Stake, 2:20 trotters, $2000; Lexington Stake, foals 1899, $2000; Kentucky Stock Farm Purse, foals 1898, $2000; Kentucky Futurity, pacing, foals 1899, $1000. SULKY NOTES.

P. C. T. H. B. A. Directors meet Monday.

Several associations claim dates this week.

Several tracks are bidding for the Breeders' meeting.

Read the Denver program in our advertising columns.

San Jose track is in perfect condition at the present time.

High class road horses are in greater demand than ever.

California horses will be numerous on the Eastern circuit this year.

The Breeders' Association will announce a number of purses next week.

A carload of horses will leave Pleasanton about May 5th for the Cleveland sale.

Edenia 2:13½, by Endymion, has a chestnut filly by her side, by Baron Wilkes 2:18.

Call at this office and see that handsome speed wagon for sale for $150. It's a beauty.

The Abbot and Cresceus will race at Brighton Beach and the papers have been signed.

It is thought that Indiana 2:04½, will be one of Coney's stable companions in Andy McDowell's stable.

Dora Doe 2:12½, is being worked at the Alameda track by Mose Hart. She has as much speed as last year.

Dolador 2:20, by Advertiser is in Grant Lapham's string at Alameda. He will probably be out again this year.

Phoebe Childers 2:10½, will be shipped East May 9th. She will go in the same car with James Thompson's horses.

John Dickerson has secured Lady Geraldine 2:11½ to race this season. He will also drive others belonging to Col. Goff.

A meeting of the Directors of the State Agricultural Society will be held very soon and a program of racing announced.

No stallion in California has sired a better looking lot of horses than Hambletonian Wilkes and they are fast and game.

Budd Doble with "The Roman" and James Thompson with his string of fast ones will leave California for the East May 9th.

The Alameda track is in good shape for fast work and the horses in training there are being given pretty fast quarters and halves.

Brook Curry has a yearling by Belsire 2:21½, that is a phenomenal trotter; one of the best, and perhaps the very best ever in Kentucky.

Last fall 2000 loads of clay were put on the Cleveland track and, as a consequence, that course is expected to be faster than ever this year.

An offer of $10,000 has been refused by H. R. Murray of Monarchal Stock Farm, New York, for his Gayton colt. He cost him $3500 at eight months old.

Secretary Hockheimer writes that the Glenn County Agricultural Association will probably give a fair and race meeting this year either in July or August.

Chauncey Sumner, owner of You Bet 2:12½ by McKinney, has placed this pacer in the hands of Frank Erwin of Kansas City who will campaign him this year.

Tom Galligor, of Cleveland, has accepted the position of superintendent of W. B. Fasig's farm, Bannockburn, near New York City, and will take up his residence there.

Simmons 2:28, now has ninety-seven standard performers to his credit, and should pass the century mark the coming season. He is the sire of nineteen pacers.

Two Fort Worth, Texas, dealers shipped to New Orleans during the past two weeks, 1200 horses and nearly 1500 mules as part of a contract with British agents.

Cyrus Lukens says that thirty years ago the late Dr. Herr offered the services of Mambrino Patchen free to owners of pacing mares with records better than 2:30.

Jack Trout, who has in his stable Anaconda 2:02½, L. L. D. 2:08½, Helen R. 2:10½, and Orienna 2:12½, will locate at Dover, N. H., to remain until the racing season opens.

At Village Farm last week, the champion pacing mare, Lady of the Manor 2:05½, by Mambrino King, foaled a chestnut colt, by the $10,000 stallion Direct Hal, son of Direct 2:05½.

The dropping of a line of type from an item published in these columns two weeks ago stated that Geo. Blanchard was driving Brainerd by Echo on the speedway. It should have stated that he was driving a mare by Director 2:17 out of Brainerd by Echo. The mare is one of the handsomest trotters that goes over the San Francisco roads.

J. H. Lawson, who resides at Bakersfield, the centre of the oil belt in California, has sold to J. W. Reynolds of Lima, Ohio, a gelding by Nelens Volens 2:26½, that is said to be a great prospect.

Breed a mare to Charles Derby this year and you will not regret it. He is one of the coming great sires of America and those who own his colts two or three years from now can get good prices for them.

Good road horses are in such demand that the supply is totally unequal to it. There are inquiries every day at this office for high class roadsters, and whenever one is found a good price is paid without hesitation.

John P. Klug, of Weld county, Colorado, has just sold the army people twenty-five head of cross-bred French cavalry horses bred by himself at his ranch near La Salle. The price is $110 for each animal accepted.

Homer Davenport, the cartoonist, has again entered his famous imported Arabian Koobishan in the New York parade and expects to win a prize. Last year he was the only one pelted with bunches of violets during the parade.

C. W. Main of Corona, Cal., owns two colts by Zombro that he says will make race horses. They are full sisters and their dam traces to Almont 33 on her sire's side and to the thoroughbred horse Norfolk on her dam's side.

George Van Dyke wants to have a series of races between Searchlight, Coney, Anaconda, Prince Alert and his horse, Frank Bogash. He proposes that five races be held and the ante from each owner be $1500 for every race.

J. H. Vance, a well known trainer, has arrived from Los Angeles and taken charge of J. B. Iverson's trotters and pacers. Mr. Vance is quite a reinsman as well as conditioner, and has developed some of the speediest horses of the orange belt.

Chas. Marvin will breed the dam of the champion two year old gelding Endow 2:14½, also his Red Wilkes mare, the dam of his great two year old filly that trotted a mile last fall in 2:27 as a yearling, to C. W. Williams' Electioneer stallion, Expedition 2:15½.

The fast bay mare Lamp Girl 2:09, by Walter Morrill, has been purchased by J. D. Coltery, the well known Pittsburg road and matinee driver, and will probably be retired from the regular turf. She is now the fastest trotter by the records owned in the Smoky City.

Sister Red (dam of Emma Winter (3) 2:14½) by Red Wilkes, has foaled a bay colt by Directman (son of Directum 2:05½). The colt is owned by Brook Curry and is entered in the Kentucky Futurity for foals of 1901. The sire, dam and colt are all owned by Curry.

To many it will be news as to how Dare Devil went lame. Geers' book says it happened the year Mr. Hamlin retired him to the stud, and that he hurt himself somehow in his stall. It is a hip that is injured, and but for this mishap Dare Devil would have a truly phenomenal record. As it now is he does not expect to lower his present record.

Sam Hoy has gone to the Sacramento track with a string of four horses, headed by his great pacer Kelly Briggs 2:10½. The Sacramento track is in excellent shape and Mr. Martin, the lessee, is keeping it so. He has expended a lot of labor, time and money on it and proposes to have a first class training track as long as he has the lease of the ground.

More than fifty of the best horses in Kentucky were exhibited at the April stallion show recently. Mr. Williams' four, also Oratorio, Adbell, Charley Herr and others attracted great attention, but the country man who came in with the gray horse by Drennon, which he said was out of a mare that trotted in 2:10, carried off the honors of the day.

It is an open secret that Ed Geers thinks Lord Derby the coming champion. In his recently issued book he says of Derby: "The horse is now in perfect condition, and what he may accomplish in the future I hardly dare hazard an opinion. That he is a great horse there can be no question. Whether he will be 'the' greatest time alone can disclose. But measured by the records of one season's racing, he is the greatest trotting race horse I have ever driven."

The fast Missouri pacing mare Coinetto 2:12½, by Free Coinage 2:11½, has been sent to Douglas Thomas, Paris, Ky., to be trained and raced. Free Coinage 2:11½, has been sent to Douglas Thomas, Paris, Ky., to be trained and raced. Free Coinage, the sire of this mare, was bred at the Oakwood Park Stock Farm by Steinway out of Nellie E. by Elmo. He was foaled in 1890, and Coinetto is his first representative in the list.

Simone, the handsome black mare by Simmons out of Mi Lady by Baron Wilkes, owned by S. Christenson of this city has been placed in Grant Lapham's care at Alameda and is being worked for speed. She is a green mare and her training has all been done in the past few weeks. On Wednesday of this week Mr. Lapham gave her three heats the first and slowest in 2:42, the third and fastest in 2:32. She is a line trotter and one of the most promising mares in training in California.

In addition to Cresceus 2:04, George Ketcham has another great trotter in his stable in the bay gelding Henry S. 2:12½ by Goldstone, dam by Louis Napoleon. Henry S. was an M. and M. candidate last year, but went lame while scoring for the race, and did not start again until in September, when he took his record at Hartford. He has trotted a mile in 2:09½ and a half in better than 1:02, and Ketcham thinks he will be one of the extremely fast trotters of the year. Ketcham also has a pacer Gus Waible 2:14½ by Argot Wilkes, and the three year old colt Cresceus Route by Cresceus, both of which he thinks well of.

Bouncer 2:09, the fastest trotter ever bred at Empire City Farm, has been sent to Goshen to be bred to John R. Gentry 2:00½. W. J. Andrews, who developed and raced the daughter of Hummer, also drove John R. Gentry to his record, and he always has wanted Mr. Simpson to breed Bouncer to Gentry. The produce of this mating will not only be the product of highly developed parents, but it will have a double cross of Wilkes blood, one cross to Electioneer, one to Mambrino Patchen and one to Belmont.

George Amos, the shipper from Knoxville, Iowa, who recently died of pneumonia at Bellevue hospital, New York, made a deal in range horses three years ago which is believed to be about the largest on record. Mr. Amos contracted in 1898 for 27,000 head of range horses at $20 a head, the animals to be removed from the ranches within three years. The Iowa horseman had taken away about eleven thousand head up to the time he died. A New York firm offered to pay him $5 a horse for his contract, but Amos declined to sell.

Five of the Forbes Farm mares have dropped foals this year. Maggie Sultan 2:30, dam of Nico (4) 2:08½, has a fine bay colt by Peter the Great (4) 2:07½; Nowaday (3) 2:14½ has a nice bay filly by Bingen 2:06½; Norroway, the five year old daughter of imp. Meddler and Starlight 2:15½ by Electioneer, has a bay filly by Peter the Great; Braganca by Larabee (3) 2:12½, dam May Be 2:24, dam of Loma 2:14½, has a nice bay filly by Peter the Great, and Lichee by Arion, out of the great broodmare Toto, sister to Trinket 2:14, has a bay colt by Bingen.

Chehalis 2:04½ was sold last week to Blake & Ring, of Newport, Vt., and was shipped from Boston to his new owners on Wednesday. He will be kept a short time in the stud, and will then be campaigned over the half-mile tracks in the free-for-all by Peter McCabe. Jere O'Neill, the Boston trainer who has had charge of Chehalis, has a great opinion of him as a sire. Already three of the mares he was bred to last year have foaled, and in every instance the youngster has taken entirely after the sire in looks. In one case the mare was a chestnut, with three white feet and a blaze in the face, but her foal has not a white hair.

Rose Dale Stock Farm at Santa Rosa has turned the promising green pacer Julia S., by Daly, over to P. W. Hodges, who will train her for the California circuit. Julia S., has been in Millard Sanders hands at Pleasanton for the past two months and Mr. Sanders says that he never handled one that he thought was a better prospect. Mr. Sanders will leave for the East in a few days and as the owner of the mare desires to have her campaigned at home, he has selected Mr. Hodges as the one to handle her. Mr. Hodges is one of the most successful trainers and drivers in California and we are certain he will drive Julia S. to a low record this year and win well with her.

A. G. Gurnett, owner of the Sulphur Spring Stock Farm, owns a four year old filly by McKinney 2:11½ out of Lassie Jean (the dam of Who Is It 2:10½ and Dolly Marchutz 2:19) by Brigadier. This filly was injured as a yearling by getting under a fence. She got caught and her back was hurt so that she could hardly walk for a year. She finally straightened up, however, and Mr. Gurnett will make a broodmare of her. She is a big, fine looking mare and was bred this year to Mr. Gurnett's stallion Direct Fils, a son of Direct. This mare is the only daughter of Lassie Jean that Mr. Gurnett owns, and probably the only one living. Lassie Jean died several months ago.

Trainer Harry C. Stinson, through his father R. Cope Stinson's connection with San Mateo Farm, and by bringing out the two year old Mary Celeste (2) 2:17½ by Oro Wilkes (4) 2:11, has formed a very high opinion of that superior trotting stallion. Harry recently visited J. W. Daly's Mt. Kisco Farm and purchased two yearling fillies, also bay colt, eight months old, by Oro Wilkes, dam Hindie by Allerton 2:09½, second dam Elloree 2:08½ by Axtell, etc. Mr. Daly has placed in trainer Stinson's hands, a two year colt by Oro Wilkes, out of Abbie 2:26 by George Wilkes, and two year old black colt by Delmarch 2:11½, dam Sable Dale (2) 2:18½ by Sable Wilkes 2:18. The Stinson string will take lessons this season at the Cleveland mile track, in Glenville.—Veritas in Trotter and Pacer.

Says a well known New York dealer: "Quality is not far different from high finish. It means that a horse's neck is shaped right and comes out of his shoulders right, and is joined to his head in the right way. A horse can't have a steep rump like a pacer or a Percheron and have quality; neither can he have crooked legs or curby hocks, or anything of that kind. High action has nothing to do with the case. I have a horse here in my stable that hits the polo strap every time he lifts his knees. He can go as high as a tree, but he has no quality. Lots of people have followed me into the stable when they saw this horse on the street, but the minute they saw him with the harness off it was, 'That will do, thank you.' If that horse possessed quality in keeping with his action he would sell for $2000; without it he is worth about fifteen cents on the dollar."

Judge Green of Oakland owns a colt by Directum 2:05½, out of Little Wichey by Director, that is a great prospect. This colt will not be two years old until the 12th of June. He was taken up for the first time last November and handled for a month. Judge Green sent him to Millard Sanders on the 22d day of last January and on Saturday last the colt trotted a quarter in 38½ seconds very handily. The colt has fine action, a level head and every horseman at Pleasanton considers him one of the greatest prospects ever seen on the track there. As the colt is entered in several big stakes to be trotted in the East next year Judge Green has opened correspondence with Chas. Marvin, the well known trainer, formerly of Palo Alto, but now the proprietor of a breeding farm in Kentucky, with a view to having Mr. Marvin train the colt and race him next year.

An International Horse Trade.

Marche done! Marche done! Hi-i-i dere, goet apalong," and Napoleon Pelletier hunched forward and pushed on the reins. He was clattering along in his buckboard, bound for the village. He had suddenly spied another team coming toward him, and Napoleon always wanted to produce a good impression as to the speed he had between the thills. The old horse with the hip knocked down was making pretty good time when he met Jase Ferguson. Jase pulled up. So did Napoleon.

"Boo hoo, Nape."

"Bo' jour, Faggusong."

"What ye drivin'?"

"Aw-w-w, he ben prattee good wan."

"Any p'tic'lar advantage in havin' him three-cornered?" asked Ferguson, pointing to the knocked down hip.

Napoleon canted his head to one side, raised his eye-brows and shrugged his shoulders.

"Aw-w-w, he go dat fas, dat he don' geot tam' for to h'is' heem laig op."

"Pretty speedy, then, is he?"

"Tal yo' wa't dat hosses ban do. I leeve ma plac' 'bout t'ree an' a ha'f o'clocks to-morrow afternoons an' I geet on dis' plac' 'bout four an' som' past o'clocks di afternoons. W'at yo' t'ink, hey?"

"I think you're a dandy," said Ferguson. "They ought to send you to Congress, Napoleon. But say, what's the matter with talkin' shift? I got a hoss here that you may like."

Napoleon looked at the horse and then at Jase suspiciously. The animal that the Yankee drove was a really handsome creature.

"Aw, yo' ban try to play de fool onto maself," said Napoleon.

"No, honest Injun, Nape, I'm willin' to trade. I git sick of a hoss kind o' quick, ye know."

Som' thing ban ail dat hosses w'at yo' hav'," persisted the French-Canadian, still suspicious.

"He's all right, tight, sound and kind," said Ferguson, "jest with the exception that he don't look as well as some hosses."

"He ban look good en'of, for me," declared Napoleon after a survey of the animal.

"Wal, of he suits, 'nough said," replied Jase. "Some folks like their hosses to look a little better'n than he does, that's all. But if he's the kind of a hoss you like, then you'll like jest this kind of a hoss."

"I like eet cef yo' say dat t'ing wance ovaire ageen," said Napoleon.

"I said, if that is the kind of a hoss you like, why, it's jest the kind of a hoss you'll like!"

"Dat 'Merican langwidge fonnee som' tam," allowed Napoleon. "Som' tam' I don' t'nk I h'unnerstan' heem."

"Any outs about your hoss?" asked Ferguson.

"He fars' r-rat hosses," declared Pelletier. "Only t'ing ho do ees bito w'en he eats."

"Bites when he eats?" repeated Ferguson. "Well, he would be a funny hoss if he didn't."

"Mabbe so," responded Napoleon, calmly. "But som' pippel don't lak' deir hosses do dat t'ing."

"Well, I do," said Ferguson. "I don't want no hosses gummin' it round my barn."

"Wal, cof yo' ban lak' heem dat way," said Napoleon. "I t'ink yo' lak' dis hosses vary fars' r-rat' as ovaire could was."

They traded. The horses were changed into the respective wagons then and there.

When Napoleon started away he was a bit slack in his reining. His new acquisition staggered out into the ditch and fell down. The French-Canadian leaped out and sat on the animal's head. While he crouched there he waived his hat before the horse's eyes. The creature never blinked.

"Arw!" yelled Napoleon at Jase, who was just hitching the back-strap and preparing to drive away.

"Aw, yo' ban de liar mans. Dat hosses he can saw nottin's 't all. W'at for yo' do dat onto maself?"

"I told yo' he was blind," said Ferguson. "P'raps I didn't use jest that word, but I told ye that he didn't look as well as some hosses."

But Napoleon wasn't satisfied. He shouted: "An' den yo' tal to me dat he jas'-de-hoss-I lak', he jas'-de-hoss-I-lak'."

Ferguson got into his wagon and picked up the reins. He turned and said calmly:

"Napo, the English language is too much for yo. The next time ye start out to trade hosses, ye'd better git an' official interpreter."

Ferguson was out buying cattle, and he spent that night at a tavern in an adjoining town.

When he went out to the stable to get his horse in the morning the hostler asked him:

"Say, where'd ye git that saw mill on four laigs?"

"Whatjmean?"

"Why, that saw mill, that pulp grinder, that thing that looks like a hoss, but hain't. He et down his crib last night and commenced on the sides of his stall, an' then hooked his head around and was catin' through the floor jest now when you come out."

"Is that hoss a cribber?" asked Ferguson.

"Cribber? Is he? Wal, when yo git home yo put him to work on yor woodpile an' he'll beat a portable saw mill."

"Bites when he eats, does he?" muttered Jase to himself. "Wal, I reckon in these international hoss trades it's the safest way to have official interpreters on both sides."

Volunteer's Opinion of Flying Jib.

In the last issue of the Chicago Horse Review, that outertaining writer Volunteer says of Flying Jib, the once champion pacer:

Mr. E. A. Lord, of Chicago, one of this city's representative horsemen and a member of the Tommy Britton 2:06½ syndicate, dropped in the other day. He is just back from California, where he says, and the ruddy bronzo of his complexion testifies, he found it hot. While on the Coast he saw most of the horses at the trotting centers and says that the good ones that are coming East look, most of them, very good. He put in one day at Pleasanton and remembers it chiefly, not because of the prospects that are there in shoals, but because of the acquaintance he renewed with an old friend. This was the famous gelding Flying Jib 2:04, whose world's records are now all gone but one—that mile in 1:58½ with running mate—but whose name and fame will none-the-less not soon be forgotten.

"The Jib" is owned by Mr. C. L. Griffith, of San Francisco, son of the late Capt. Millen Griffith, who found out his phenomenal speed while driving him to pole on the road, and owned him during his meteoric turf career in Monroe Salisbury's hands. The ex-champion is sixteen now and his once rakish outlines are hidden under a heavy coat of flesh. At present he is being driven on the roads about Pleasanton by Mr. G. A. Davis, the owner of the fast pacing stallion Rey Direct 2:10 and a close friend of Mr. Griffith's. It has been many moons since he has been given a fast mile, but he can still speed very fast, and Mr. Lord got up behind him and drove him a mile to cart close to 2:30, letting him step the last quarter in 34 seconds. They say he can brush as fast as Rey Direct for a short distance, and several buyers for the New York speedway have tried to get hold of him, but Mr. Griffith will not price him—he is a life-pensioner of the Griffith family.

In our imaginary revisions of turf history we are often prone to dilate on "what might have been," and sometimes I try to think of what Flying Jib's real destiny had been had the unmerciful "Salisbury lemon-squeezer" not practically ruined him in his first season. So far as real effort goes, I am at least sure of this—neither Pointer, Patchen nor Gentry could ever reel off a quarter in 30 seconds with so utter an absence of it as could Flying Jib. He was the first horse that I ever timed a quarter, in a public race, in 30 seconds, and he did it under a pull with George Starr looking back over his shoulder at the fierce but unavailing drive that Goers was making in his effort to get Robert J. past his wheel. It was that frightful first year's work, topped off by the heart-breaking, record-smashing race at Terre Haute, in which the Jib, on the outside all the way, paced that heat in 2:05½ that it took eight years for the green pacers to equal or surpass, that ruined him. It developed a grumbling splint into a bad one and converted a paragon of manners into the terror of starting judges and a traditional "bad actor."

"The fastest horse I ever saw step" was "General" Turner's verdict the first time that Flying Jib was turned loose for him. It is said that there was some reasonable doubt about the accuracy of that running-mate mile of his in 1:58½, which still stands as the fastest one ever covered at either harness gait, but that it was still below two minutes is just as sure. And I like to think that, under different circumstances, he could, and would, have been the first legitimate two-minute pacer. In my memory, at least, his image is unfading—the glamor that hung around his name will never quite be dispelled. Does not Tom Moore sing—

"You may break, you may shatter the vase as you will,
But the scent of the roses cling 'round it still."

Review of the Chicago Horse Market.

That intense activity still reigns in the horse market is well evidenced by the following review of the past week by the Drivers' Journal of Chicago:

"The transactions of the week demonstrate the intense activity of the light harness horse trade. The demand from all quarters is of extraordinary proportions, the buying on foreign account being urgent and the volume of orders larger than last year. Never in the history of the Chicago market have so many foreign dealers competed with larger orders than featured the coach horse class this week. While the inquiry from domestic sources is of flattering volume, the urgency of the foreign demand overshadowed domestic competition and 75 per cent. of the drivers that sold above the $200 mark for the week were negotiated to foreign dealers. A feature of the offerings is the numerous consignments of specially prepared lots that are coming forward for the spring trade.

With the development of the wholesale markets has originated a systematic selection and special preparation of harness horses for the trade by dealers who make the best demand an intense study. Buyers for export and professional domestic dealers are very critical in their exactions, and the animals must come up to the best standard to command the top prices. The breeder does not get a fancy price for his horses, as the dealer is never certain until put through the grand preparation for market if the animals are valuable prospects. The country shipper seldom has more than five horses in a load that are top-notchers, while the other seventy-five per cent. cost an average price and hardly pay out. It is the same with professional stables, the money is made on a few sensational show animals, while the residue but little more than pay expenses. The entire light harness horse industry is gradually drifting into the hands of horsemen who keep close inspection of the markets and select manner and coach horses for fanciers. The breeder no longer consigns his horses to the wholesale market, but relies on the expert dealer to close out his surplus stock. Everything associated with the industry is being organized on a systematic and scientific basis, and breeders themselves are forced out of business who do not keep up with the procession and breed the class of harness horses that the best trade demands. It is no longer an ideal matter with breeders, they are literally compelled to breed the class of animals in demand or make a failure of the industry.

Calls Him "The Oregon."

WINTERS, April 23, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I wish to claim the name "The Oregon" for the dark bay or brown colt by Altament out of Algenio, the dam of Kelly Briggs 2:10½, foaled to-day. This fellow stands 42 inches high and looks as if he were ready to score up for the word right now. I only hope he will be as great a race horse as "The Oregon" is a fighter.

Yours, GEO. H. MORRIS.

SADDLE NOTES.

Beau Ormonde, the son of Ormonde and Miss Brummel, showed himself to be a horse of high class on Wednesday, when conceding pounds of weight to a good field of handicap horses he won over a mile and one-sixteenth. Although tiring at the end he responded gamely to the whip and succeeded in beating out the lightly weighted McGlyde, who came fast through the stretch. Jockey Gouin rode an unusually well judged race on the winner, opening up so great a gap the first six furlongs that the others were unable to cut down his lead at the finish.

Gotobed was started on Monday at Tanforan after a long rest and won quite easily from a good field. The ring suffered over his victory as he was backed down from sixes to threes.

With the bad lot of horses and worse jockeys performing at present, reversals of form may be looked for, but nothing like the Meehanus-Hermoso race should be dished up for turf patrons. This event looked to be a strictly two horse affair between Meehanus and Hermoso with the rest of the field hopelessly outclassed. The result, however, showed two, forty to one shots struggling for the long end of the purse with Hermoso all out to beat a hundred and fifty to one shot a neck for the show money, and Meehanus finishing in last position.

Jockeys Willie Martin and Charlie Thorpe returned East last Monday.

Jockey Rausch is not meeting with the success to be expected from a boy who has the choice of the mounts at the track. The proverbial expression that "good horses make good jockeys" does not seem to hold good in his case. Many of his efforts during the current week have been unworthy of the veriest novice.

Green B. Morris is meeting with good success at New York with his horses; Pupil, Janice and Golden Cottage all having won races, besides finishing in the money on other occasions. It was the opinion of those who witnessed Golden Cottage's first race at Aqueduct that he should have won and would have done so with a stronger finisher than J. Daly in the saddle. The boy let the colt cover much ground at the post and was of little help to the youngster, The Hoyden, under Burns' hard finish, getting the verdict in a drive.

Lonnie Clayton has made his appearance in the saddle again after an absence of three years. The well known colored rider will probably have plenty of mounts during the coming season as there will be a scarcity of good jockeys in this country.

Jockey Buchanan has been suspended by the English Jockey Club for erratic riding at Newmarket on April 16th.

Jockey Jack Martin has returned from Canada and is again riding for Carruthers & Shields. He had his first mount last Tuesday and immediately began to indulge in his old practice of rough riding for which he was taken to task by the judges and threatened with suspension in case of a repetition of the offense.

The Fretter ran a most disgraceful race in the handicap on Thursday finishing last, and displayed no speed whatever during the race. The owner had a stable boy named Fallehey engaged to ride the horse originally but Turner was substituted by the judges. Despite his efforts The Fretter rode far below his usual form and the betting in the ring indicated that there was a strong pronouncement before the race that such would be the case.

Trout Streams of Santa Clara County.

An interesting description of a near at hand region, not generally known to the majority of anglers, appeared in the San Jose Herald recently and was written by Mr. Lewis Foster, Game Warden of Santa Clara county. The writer in introducing his subject says:

"In years gone by nearly every stream in California was filled with trout, but if there be 'good fishing' this year it will be due chiefly to the fostering care of the State, which for a number of years has maintained hatcheries from which the leading streams have been replenished with trout stock from time to time, and to the further fact that through the supervision of the State Board of Fish Commissioners and the wise co-operation of boards of supervisors, protective measures have been taken and an earnest and systematic effort made to preserve both fish and game. Unfortunately several counties have not yet awakened to the importance of enforcing the fish and game laws, but public sentiment in this regard is rapidly growing, and it is not too much to say that this enlightenment is due very largely to the work and influence of the Santa Clara County Fish and Game and Protective Association, which, although essentially a local organization, has made itself felt in all portions of central and northern California, and has become recognized throughout the State as the leading exponent of wise and just protective laws and the foremost agency for their enforcement."

Very true, the Santa Clara association has undoubtedly been a strong factor in fish and game affairs. There is at present in the county mentioned over eighty deputy state fish commissioners. The civil emoluments the officials here referred to are entitled to is no doubt a well earned return for the fact that the county is so well policed, which conditions should make the streams here so charmingly described teeming with trout.

Every writer on the topic of fish protection is careful to frequently refer to the constant and increasing "depletion of streams," intimating the recklessness of individuals in killing fish in and out of season, etc., etc., which is to a large extent unfortunately true, but a cause for the spoiling of trout streams that is a larger factor than is ordinarily thought of is the settling up of a section of country, the opening of new roads and trails across streams, pasturing of stock and the many other disturbing elements attendant upon the breaking up of new country districts or forest sections. The "vandal" is the culminating result of these conditions which are so destructive to fish life. But as this article is intended to describe certain trout streams we will refer our readers now to the continuation of Mr. Foster's story:

"There is no section in easy reach of San Francisco that presents more attractions for the angler than Santa Clara valley. The delightful climate, the picturesque scenery and the accessibility of the valley are all conditions which count in its favor, and there is no county outside the far away and almost inaccessible Sierras that possesses so many fine trout streams. Coming down the bay on the western side of the valley, the first stream is the San Francisquito, which for some distance is the dividing line between Santa Clara and San Mateo counties. This stream, which carries a large volume of water, heads in the Santa Cruz range of mountains back of the Searsville lake, near the summit, and empties into the bay northeast of Palo Alto. The San Francisquito and its tributaries have afforded excellent trout fishing in the past, and will continue to do so in the future if the citizens and authorities of San Mateo county will only take steps to prevent fishing in their waters during the close season. The San Francisquito is a charming stream, and the beauty and freedom of a day with nature the essential. Coming south on the west side of the valley are Adobe creek, a small trout stream which crosses the county road between Mayfield and Mountain View and empties into a slough of the bay, and Permanenta creek, which flows into the bay just below the latter town. The Permanenta, although small, is one of the best trout streams in the valley during the first two months or so of the open season. Just south of Mountain View the Stevens creek flows down, its head being many miles back in the mountains, near the summit and not far from the Alpine road, between the valley and the Pescadero side of the range. This is a beautiful stream, but owing to its accessibility it has been pretty well fished out, although good fishing may be expected in its water this spring. A county road follows the meanderings of the stream toward its rise, and there are two or three commodious camping places on its borders. Far up the canyon through which it flows tiger lilies and other flowers grow in profusion, and the scenery is highly attractive."

The next stream, still following the Santa Cruz range southward, is Campbell creek, which flows through the town of Saratoga. This is a very fair trout stream, and the beauty of the mountain scenery of which it is a part makes it a popular resort, if the word may thus be used, for people of San Jose and the central portion of the valley who desire to take a day's outing. The creek is noted more for the five-fingered ferns that grow on its banks than for the trout that inhabit its waters, but during the first few months of the open season an angler who knows how to use his rod and flies will have no difficulty in hooking at least a "good mess" in this creek. There is a short stream, seldom fished, which flows down between Saratoga and Los Gatos by the Austin school house that is worth visiting occasionally by the local angler. The Los Gatos creek was for many years one of the most famous of the trout streams in the bay counties, but because of incessant fishing it has of late years lost its prestige. There is no more picturesque stream in all California than the Los Gatos, which rises away up in the lofty gorges of the Loma Prieta and after flowing some miles makes a sharp curve at Wrights, finally emerging into the valley at the town of Los Gatos, and passing by Campbell and through San Jose finds an outlet in one of the southern arms of San Francisco bay. The Los Gatos has several charming tributaries, such as the Lynden, Lime Kiln, Cavanaugh and Hooker, all of them trout streams. As the heavy rains of this winter have made it possible for the Los Gatos to flow through to the bay continuously for a long time, thus enabling the trout to ascend, I have no doubt that anglers who will try that stream or any of its tributaries this spring will make satisfactory catches.

Next comes the Guadalupe, a popular trout stream which, after flowing through several miles of canyon and down the valley, makes junction with the Los Gatos before passing through the limits of San Jose. There is a fine camping place on this stream some distance above the site of the old quicksilver mine. The Alamitos creek comes next, passing by the Hacienda of the Almaden and so on out into the valley. Next south is the Llagas, and some miles beyond is the Uvas both splendid trout streams with several tributaries. These are among the best streams for trout in Santa Clara county, and the large volume of water which each now carries insures the best of fishing during the coming season. There are resorts on these streams at which the lover of outdoor recreation and sport may find first-class entertainment, and for those who prefer to rough it each of the streams affords numerous camping places. The Uvas, which flows down the valley near Gilroy, finds an outlet southward to the ocean through the Pajaro river while other streams in the county, on either side of the valley, wherever they may head, finally emerge into San Francisco bay through some of its sloughs.

I have enumerated, I believe, all the leading trout streams on the west side of the valley, and it will be seen that they are quite numerous. The Santa Cruz range of mountains, in which all of them rise, is one of the most varied and picturesque in scenery of any mountain range in California, and a day spent upon any one of the streams mentioned, whatever be the luck of the angler, will always remain a green spot in his memory. The leading stream on the east side of the valley is the Coyote, which heads far back in the Hamilton range and after flowing southward for several miles emerges into the valley, turns northward, passes down between San Jose and East San Jose, and empties into the bay in the vicinity of Alviso. The Coyote before it reaches the valley is as good a trout stream as one could wish to cast a fly over; it is a perennial stream, has many deep holes, and the trout have never been "fished out." This will apply also to Smith creek, which rises not far from the source of the Coyote, but flows northward. A few miles below the Smith Creek hotel the Santa Isabel, another trout stream which rises in the Mt. Hamilton range, joins it, and below the junction the stream is known as the Arroyo Honda. Still further down, in Calaveras valley, it is called the Calaveras creek; and when it emerges into Niles canyon, in Alameda county, it is known as the Alameda creek. For a number of miles through the big Morrow ranch above Smith Creek hotel no fishing is permitted, but all the way down from that ranch the stream is open to all who delight in angling, and it is one of the best trout streams in Central California. In the big riffles and deep, dark pools of this stream the expert angler will find trout large enough to test his skill in "playing" and to produce the thrill of triumph which comes with the conquest of game that battles to the death.

The Penetencia, the beautiful little stream which flows through Alum Rock Park, has afforded near-by sport to local anglers, and there is still some fishing in it during the early portion of the season.

The streams I have mentioned, with their tributaries, make as inviting a list as can be found in any county in California, and their proximity to San Francisco and easy accessibility make them especially attractive to the city resident who may wish to take a day's outing or to spend his summer vacation amidst delightful surroundings, in camp, cottage or hotel. Several of them have been stocked at various times by the State Fish Commission, the last importation having been made last fall, when 50,000 fry of the rainbow trout were distributed in the Stevens, Llagas, Guadalupe, Los Gatos, Coyote and Packwood creeks. The species of trout natural to our local streams have had ample opportunity this winter to run up from the bay, and as the streams during the past month have been well patrolled there has been little illegal fishing, so that altogether there should be better trout fishing in this county during the season about to open than there has been for many years. Now if during the open season those self-styled "anglers" who fill their baskets with fingerlings in order that they may boast of the number of their catch will abandon this illegal and contemptible practice, there is no reason why our streams should not continue to increase in trout instead of diminishing; and in this connection it is pertinent to say that the Warden and members of the Protective Association propose to stop the hooking of trout below the size permitted by law if there is any virtue in arrests, trials, convictions and fines.

As I have been talking of our home trout streams, which are not excelled anywhere for their beauty and the rugged grandeur of their mountain scenery, would it be inappropriate to conclude this brief sketch with a few lines inspired by them some years ago when, in the homely but suggestive words of old Isaac Walton, I used to "go a fishing"? They are entitled

BESIDE THE STREAM.

Beside the stream the tiger lilies glow,
The ferns in fronded masses dip and gleam,
And the azaleas flaunt their blooms of snow;
Beneath the redwood boughs
Wild roses nod and drowse
In rhythmic motion with the water's flow,
Beside the stream.

Beside the stream the ice-grass damp and cool
Stands all day long as in a waking dream,
Watching the trout leap from the silent pool;
The far call of the thrush
Startles the forest's hush;
King fishers sweep on pinions beautiful,
Beside the stream.

Beside the stream with noiseless step I steal;
The flies I cast glint in the sun's warm beam;
And to the music of the clicking reel,
With many a dart and splash
And iridescent flash,
Half-pounded, dripping, drop into my creel,
Beside the stream.

Our Petaluma correspondent favors us with some "fish lines" this week as follows:

Striped bass fishing in Petaluma creek and the neighboring sloughs has been very slow the last two weeks. "Billy" Shattuck of the Pacific States Type Foundry of San Francisco made the banner catch at the preserves of the Petaluma Gun Club Sunday before last. He caught ten nice fish while club members all round him fished all day with the total result of but two fish. Shattuck has a new hunting boat which he has named the Mutton Chop Swanhide in honor of his famous "mutton-chop" song which he sings without rest during every blessed minute of the time he is fishing. Shattuck imagines his singing charms the fish, but his Petaluma friends aver that his music paralyzes them so that they cannot get out of the way of his hook and to that they allow themselves to be caught rather than live and listen longer to Shattuck's singing.

Sunday last but four bass were taken. Salmon creek which until a few days ago yielded some fine strings of big trout, seems to have been pumped dry. For the past week no fish to speak of have been caught in that stream.

Nicasio creek appears to be the best stream in this section at present. It is not fished so closely as the Paper Mill and from its junction with Paper Mills up to the Nicasio bridge there are quite a few trout ranging from six inches to over a foot in length. Several good catches were made on Sunday.

We might add that it is a fact known to many anglers, that when fish are not very plentiful in the Paper Mill the fishing in the Nicasio is generally better in a corresponding ratio of excellence.

H. Kerrison and Louis Javette made good scores on rock fish at California City on Sunday. At unknown depths and known currents Kerrison broke 14 hooks out of 20. Javette sat on the 28 foot seat and scored 13 pound sinkers out of 25. In a miss and out at porgies, Kerrison lost the race on his twentieth bite, a straight away fat porgie from No. 4 hook dropped out of bounds just abait the binnacle. Javette then dropped his line and landed a fast driver that tackled the No. 1 bait and won the match for him.

Joe Uri, under the guidance of Tom Irving, last Sunday sought a stream which empties into Tomales bay and enjoyed some excellent fishing. Mr. Uri used a "polled angus" fly and hooked 35 splendid fish, averaging from one-quarter to three pounds in weight. George Walker told the story with tears of lamentation, his own basket was empty, consequently the tale must be true.

A few of the many anglers who fished the Paper Mill on Sunday were "Del" Cooper, G. Monk Walker, Wm. Chambers, Louis Rondeau, Chas. K. Kewell, James Lynch, E. W. Currier, Elmer Irwin, Wm. Decker, Andy Legaspe, H. Battu and J. Fatjo. Modesty forbids recording the catch reported.

Jim Pariser and a friend named Bliss visited the sloughs near McGills on Sunday, bent on hooking striped bass; the catch was 115 catfish without regard to age, sex or previous condition of servitude.

GUN.

At the Traps.

The San Francisco Gun Club regular monthly live bird shoot at Ingleside and the monthly blue rock shoot of the Empire Gun Club at Alameda Junction constitute the two trap attractions for shooters to-morrow.

It is probable that a 100 bird friendly match will be arranged within the near future between Clarence A. Haight and Nate Neustadter. The latter gentleman has been showing great improvement in trap shooting recently and is ambitious to go against a strong shooter "just to try himself out." The race should be an interesting one.

The blue rock shoot of the Olympic Gun Club was the record breaker for Ingleside this season. The novelty for the day was the announcement that gold and silver bars would be awarded shooters making runs of 25 and 15 straight respectively. Many attempts were made to win the trophies, whilst no shooter was successful in annexing a gold bar, eleven silver strips were easily won. The winners in the prize merchandise shoot were Otto Feudner, A. M. Shields, B. Burnell, Edg. Forster, A. J. Webb, E. A. Klevesahl, W. J. Iverson and G. Gordon. The winners of silver bars are noted in the scores which follow:

Portland Bench Show.

The Portland Kennel Club bench show, April 17th to 20th inclusive, was the most successful dog show ever given in that city. The attendance was excellent for the four days and doggy affairs seem to have taken on renewed life in the Oregon metropolis. The officers of the club are Frederick V. Holman President, J. A. Taylor Vice-President, P. W. Lingley Treasurer, W. W. Peaslee Secretary, Board of Directors, W. F. Burrell, T. J. A. Tiedeman, C. F. Wills. Messrs. Burrell, Taylor and Frank B. Thorn composed the bench show committee. The show was under P. K. L. rules. The judges were: Chas. R. Harker, of San Jose, Cal., St. Bernards, Mastiffs, Great Danes, Newfoundland and other large breeds; Norman J. Stewart, of Aromas, Monterey county, Cal., Collies; James Cole of Kansas City, Pointers and Setters and C. D. Nairn of Ballston, Or., who judged the small breeds. There was, it is reported, 355 entries in the show.

The St. Bernards, Princess Sheherazade and General B. again won out in their competition as they did in Seattle.

On the opening day the great surprise to the local sportsmen came when W. W. Peaslee's Printer's Ned and J. A. Taylor's Bright went down in defeat before Pete, owned by Fred Evans, of Seattle. These dogs were in the open class of Pointers under 55 pounds, and the competition was keener and the interest more intense than in any other class of the show. Peaslee's Ned had won in the Seattle show over Taylor's Bright, and in the Portland show of 1900 the decision had been just the reverse. Pete was second to Ned in open at Seattle the week previous. The fight had been sized up as being Printer's Ned and Bright against the field. In the opinion of Judge Cole the field won, for first place was given to the Seattle dog Pete, a pretty well-pointed liver and white dog. Peaslee's Ned, lemon and white, took second prize, and Will C. Gibson's Printer's Boy, another liver and white, was awarded third place. Taylor's Bright, the lemon and white favorite, took reserve mention. Another surprise was sprung when in the competition of the winners of the various classes of Pointers, first place was given to Whitestone, owned by A. B. Jackson, of Spokane, which had been awarded first place in the limit dogs under 55 pounds. Evan's Pete was given the reserve place. Both are splendid specimens of Pointers, and their victory over such a fine field is all the more notable.

Other dogs known to our fanciers who were among the winners were W. B. Coutts' Pointer bitch Bennie Belle, "Sanford Fly's" Collies Rob Roy IV and Bob Son of Battle. O. J. Albee's Ch. Ormskirk Emerald Jr. swept his field in Collies winning the cup for best, the Collie Club medal and first open and winners. Mr. Albee's Queen's Bounty and Alto Clifton were also in the ribbons and medals. In Fox Terriers, Charles K. Harley's Klickitat was placed over Warburton Blanco, the dog which beat him at Seattle and took the cup for best. Pearl Coutts' Intrepid was also placed over Blanco, which was a reversal of the Seattle award. Mr. Cole judged at Seattle. In bitches Mr. Harley's Lolita won second in limit and reserve in winners. The list of winners is the following:

THE FARM.

Dairying in Denmark.

In an address delivered by Prof. W. A. Henry at a recent meeting of the Wisconsin Dairymen's Association upon observations made by him during a recent trip to Europe, he described the dairy industry in Denmark as follows:

"Denmark is to-day the highest example in all Europe of agricultural push and progress. Covering but a quarter the area of Wisconsin, it supports 10 per cent. more people and exports more than twice as much butter as we make in all our creameries. Denmark has as much poor land proportionately as Wisconsin. While in Holland the cows universally roam freely over the pastures, in Denmark they are kept in the stables, or tethered in the fields, which are generally unfenced. It is not an uncommon sight, as one rides along the railways, to observe in one long row fifty to one hundred cows in a pasture field tethered by ropes. When they require water a wagon resembling a sprinkling cart drives through the field, and the water is let out into a small tank supported at the rear and hanging low; the wagon passes down the line of cows, supplying each animal with water. At evening time the cows are milked in the field, and the milk drawn away in a wagon. The creameries of Denmark are, generally, larger affairs, and well managed. We saw one creamery which, together with its storage rooms, pasteurizing plant, etc., represented an outlay of over $60,000.

"Denmark's educational work in dairying has been without an equal anywhere in the world. In no other country has the government accomplished so much practical good for dairying, both directly and through its support of its agricultural colleges. Not only have graduates gone out from the dairy school by the thousands, but the government has interested itself in dairying in other ways. For example, it keeps an expert studying dairy markets in Great Britain. Then it conducts a system of sampling and testing Danish butter, which is of the most practical character. At the agricultural college, Copenhagen, is a building devoted wholly to testing dairy butter. At intervals throughout the year, those in authority telegraph to two or three score of creameries on a given day, to that day send a sample package (over 100 pounds) of butter already made to the dairy school. There is no previous notice, and such butter as the factory may have on hand must be shipped the day the telegram comes. These lots of butter from forty or more factories are arranged in the special building for inspection.

"Inspectors employed by the government examine the package and report on the quality of the butter by number. It was my pleasure to witness an inspection which was in progress at the time I was at the college. The reports of the inspectors, with criticisms, commendations, etc., are sent to the various creameries, and the butter is sold at the best obtainable price. The cost of this simple line of educational work amounts to about $10,000 annually, being borne by the government."

Sheep shearing will soon be in full blast in Wyoming and Montana. Last season the general price per head for clipping was nine cents, but owing to the low figures for which wool is now selling the owners agreed to pay only eight cents this year. That agreement did not last long and now nine cents is the going price just as it was last season. The shearers have already arrived at Casper, Wyo., where the first operations of the season will be conducted.

In California the wool growers pay six cents for shearing and make two clips per year, which brings the annual cost to 12 cents per head.

Two Foods That Kill Pigs.

The Indiana State Board of Agriculture, in a report, says:

Wheat and Barley Beard.—It not infrequently happens that after hogs have been turned upon wheat and barley stubble some will die. The symptoms which the pigs will present are quite variable. In some cases it will be an intensely sore mouth, in others it will be those of general bowel disturbance, and in a third it will be those of loud and difficult breathing. The writer has post-mortemed many such cases and found accumulations of beards in the mouth, stomach or windpipe. A roll of beards may form and get down by the side or at the root of the tongue and penetrate the mucous membrane. The animal cannot get rid of them; the parts become intensely swollen and inflamed, interfering with eating, and starvation will occur. Plugs of the beards may lodge at any point between the larynx and bronchi, producing loud, distressing breathing and coughing. The foreign body cannot be removed, and death takes place from suffocation. In the stomach the beards may puncture the walls. The injury may be so slight as to cause only a mild inflammation and interference with the appetite for a short time, until the beards become softened and pass on, or the inflammation may be so severe as to cause death. The trouble is not one amenable to treatment except in those cases in which the beard is in the mouth.

Effects of Cockle-Burrs.—Numerous articles have appeared in the swine breeders' journals and agricultural papers indicating that young cockle-burrs were poisonous to hogs and calves. While the cockle-burr is young and only three to four inches high it is very fleshy and tender, and relished by stock. The claims of poisoning of stock attracted sufficient attention to induce the Indiana Experiment Station to make a chemical examination and a feeding test to determine the poisonous properties, but in both the results were negative. The young plants, stripped of the burrs, were fed to calves, pigs, rabbits and guinea pigs. They were allowed all they would eat. In no case was any untoward effect noticed. We have been called upon to post-mortem some animals claimed to have died from such poisoning, and in all cases death was due to burrs. A few burrs would be swallowed with the young plants, and their horny prickles would irritate the stomach wall and cause inflammation, which finally terminated in death. In three cases the burrs lodged in the throat and could not be expelled.

Don't Cross the Breeds.

It seems that line upon line is needed on this subject. Among the latest illustrations of the folly of mixing breeds is given by a correspondent of the Rural World, from Illinois. The writer says that many herds show the patch-work in breeding to a Jersey to get rich milk, then to a Shorthorn to get size and meat, and next to a Holstein to get larger flow of milk. The result is a lot of low-down, ring-streaked and speckled cows, one-half of which do not earn their board. Forty years of actual experience in breeding farm stock convinces me of the truthfulness of the doctor's statement. A cross breeder with an idea of mixing breeds for something better than either of the original breeds fails in hogs and horses as in cows. The ordinary farmer will have scrubs of all colors. We have hogs of all colors and shapes, so that any man can find a breed to suit his tastes and wants. Select your breed and stick to it, getting new blood by getting new sires. In all the breeds there are different types to select from, but don't try to cross. If there is a feature of your pure breeds you wish to intensify, do it by getting a sire strong in this particular.

I once tried to breed a particular kind of a coach horse by getting Percheron grade mares and an improved Cleveland bay stallion, but did not succeed well; the result was lack of uniformity. But where I bred pure roadsters to coach stallions I succeeded, because both are roadsters. Mixing breeds is like mixing paint: better leave it to experts and take their best results, the pure bred, and don't call pure breeds thoroughbreds. This applies only to a breed of running horses native to England.—Indiana Farmer.

Corn and Pork.

How many pounds of pork, as represented in a live hog, does a bushel of corn represent, is a question which has frequently arisen. It has been the custom in past years to count a bushel of corn as equivalent to ten pounds weight of the animal. Doubtless this may be a fair approximation, under careless feeding, such as turning the animals in the field to help themselves to corn, or other wasteful methods. But careful feeding may bring far more important results. Mr. C. G. Neff, of Cincinnati, is interested with his brother in farming operations near Yellow Springs, Green Co., Ohio.

On December 13th they weighed a bunch of 50 hogs and again weighed them on December 20th and 28th. The gain for the corn fed during the first period was an average of 14.8 pounds in weight per bushel of corn, and for the second period a gain of 15 3/4 pounds per bushel. In the first instance, calculating hogs at $4.50, the feeding value of the corn was 68 1/4c per bushel, and in the second instance, at $4.65 for hogs, the result represented 70 3/4c for corn. The market value of corn at the time was 32c per bushel. This is an interesting illustration of what profits can be realized in converting grain into fat animals.—Cincinnati Price Current.

Selling the Culls.

One of the hardest things for a young breeder to do is to discard animals that are not up to the standard for breeding purposes, says Swine Advocate. There are always buyers for pure-bred animals at a price. It matters not if the animal is inferior it will often command enough more than a grade to tempt the breeder to part with it. Here is where a great many breeders help tear down their reputation even while they are trying to build it up. Inferior breeding stock sold to somebody has lived to vex many a man who thought he was getting rid of his culls to advantage. It requires courage to send pure-bred animals to the shambles, but it pays when they are not the kind to keep. It requires courage also to refuse good prices for high class breeding animals; but that also pays if a man is in the business for keeps. In these two things is where most men who have a start in breeding live stock are likely to make a mistake. The safe and eventually the profitable plan is to sell good ones and keep better ones.

Some idea of the possibilities of cattle rearing in Texas and the improvement that has of later years been wrought in the cattle of that State may be gathered from the statement that last week a Texas breeder placed on the St. Louis market some fed yearling heifers that averaged 1075 pounds and sold for $4.25 per cwt for dressed-beef purposes. Some older cows were marketed at the same time by the same consignor. They averaged 865 pounds and brought but $3.25. That tells the story.

Good, well bred pigs, farrowed in February or March, by being properly cared for until six months old, can be made to gain about one pound per day from birth, and by October 1st, or any time before the large run of fall hogs is ready for market, they can be sold for a good profit for all food consumed, says Jas. Wilson in Farmers' Guide. There is another profitable way. This is by raising late summer pigs that may be weaned by September and they have the run of a field of rape and a good feed twice a day of middlings or ground rye; or if you do not have the rape, pumpkins make a grand good feed for pigs, especially when a little green corn is fed. But be very careful how you commence feeding green corn, as more disease is caused by feeding too much green corn for the first week than by any other cause. If a field of rye sown very early, say in August, can be had for them, it will furnish green feed for the whole winter and when spring comes the pigs will be ready for heavy feeding.

Twelve loads of Colorado fattened lambs went through Kansas City, April 6th, billed to Buffalo. There they sold for $6 per cwt, all but one car, which made $6.10, according to telegrams received. A lot previously shipped to Buffalo from Fort Collins via Kansas City lost time on the road and only four loads of a dozen sold for the $6, quite a good many of the sheep going at $5.85 and that after eight or ten days on the road.

What is thought to be the largest goat ranch in the world is located near Lamy, N. M. It covers 28,000 acres of land and harbors 17,000 head of Angora goats more or less well graded up. C. S. He has a warehouse and factory in Philadelphia where the product of the ranch in skins and mohair is worked up into the shape in which it commands the highest price in the metropolitan market.

Mares will receive the best of attention. BOODLE possesses all the qualifications desirable in a stallion. Considering the number of his colts that have been trained, no stallion has ever made a better showing as a sire. Mares may be sent to San Martin by S. P. R. R. Send for tabulated pedigree.

Mr. B——, a prominent horseman from the East, recently remarked in hearing of a crowd of horsemen: "I believe Boodle is destined to be a great sire of speed, but laying speed aside, his colts with their size, style, beautiful mane and tail and toppy appearance in general, with 3-minute speed, will sell East for more money than the little bullet-shaped cyclones such as are frequently produced with 2:15 speed."

JOTTINGS.

SACRAMENTO will in all probability be selected by the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association as the place for holding its meeting this year and the time will be a week during the month of July. At a meeting of the Directors last Monday three propositions were submitted to the Board, one from Vallejo, another from San Jose and the third by Messrs. J. W. Wilson and J. O. Bowers, representing the citizens of Sacramento and Mr. Martin lessee of the State Agricultural Society's track at that city. The proposition submitted left no room for doubt that the Sacramentans were alive to the advantages that would result to the city from the Breeders meeting being held there, and it was decided to postpone definite action in the matter until Monday next, May 6th, when the Board will finally determine upon the place and date and announce a number of purses for trotters and pacers. Horsemen at Sacramento and others who have visited the track recently are unanimous in their verdict that Mr. Martin, the lessee, has succeeded in making the track as near perfection for harness horses as any track in California can be made, and the assurance is given by the Sacramentans that it will be as fast and as safe as any track on the Coast when the "Breeders" call up the horses for the first race. I do not think the association could select a better place for holding its meetings this year and as soon as the announcement is officially made that it will be held there, I know of at least a half dozen trainers who will move their strings to the State track. The fact that no stall rent is charged the horsemen by Mr. Martin is appreciated by those who train there, and I believe this feature is peculiar to the Sacramento track. There is plenty of stall room, running horses are compelled to keep on a separate track and the climate of the capital at this season of the year is just about perfection for training. The Breeders will have to take into consideration when selecting a date for the meeting, whether the district associations in the central portion of the State will desire to become members of the circuit or not. If Santa Rosa, Napa and Vallejo give meetings it would probably be best for the Breeders to hold their meeting about the last week in July, so that the circuit would be continuous, as Woodland's meeting will be during the last week in August and will immediately precede the State Fair. If these places do not hold meetings this year then the Breeders might select an earlier date as horsemen would probably prefer an interim of six or seven weeks to one of but four between the Breeders meeting and the opening of the regular circuit. All these matters will have to be considered and discussed at the Directors meeting next Monday. That the Board will weigh every question well and act for the best interests of the horsemen, I have no doubt.

The situation further convinces me that the idea heretofore advanced in these columns that the Breeders Association should give more than one meeting this year is a correct one. The P. C. T. H. B. A. was founded for the express purpose of encouraging the breeding, training and racing of the light harness horse in California. It has a large list of members and among them are many men of great wealth identified with the State and its progress and whose names are familiar to those who know anything at all of the great commercial, manufacturing, mining and farming enterprises of the golden west. No industry has done more to advertise California's glorious climate and wonderful soil than the fast harness horse. The trotters and pacers bred in this State and raced by Stanford, Rose, Valensin, Salisbury, Corbitt and others over the leading tracks of the East some years ago placed the word California before the eyes of the world daily during the Eastern racing season, and led to millions of dollars being paid to our breeders for animals produced here, and also led many to seek this State as a place to establish homes and become valued members of this commonwealth. The Breeders Association has been in the past a large factor in all this progress. It has distributed since its organization many thousands of dollars net to horsemen and in the years of depression, when horse breeding but shared the losses that came to nearly every industry in the country, the association kept the interest alive and provided opportunities for horsemen to race which but for it would have been entirely lacking. Now that there is a disposition on the part of many of the district agricultural associations to hold fairs only during the second fiscal year, as by so doing the entire amount appropriated by the State can be utilized for one fair, it would be the proper thing, in my opinion, for the Breeders Association to give several meetings this year and thus fill up the gap that will otherwise result. Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Vallejo and San Jose would all welcome a Breeders meeting and I believe the association could give one at each place that would not only benefit the town and the horsemen, but be of vast help to the breeding interests of the entire Coast.

A desire to look at the horses that will go East from Pleasanton this year to do battle on the Eastern circuits for some of the many big purses that have been hung up over there for trotters and pacers, took me to Pleasanton last Saturday. The day was blustery, the wind and a few fleecy clouds portending the rain which began falling next day and which received such a generous welcome from one end of the State to the other. On the train, which left the Oakland mole at 8:20 A. M., were a number of notable personages bound on the same mission. Among them were Monroe Salisbury, Judge W. E. Greene, Martin Carter, L. E. Clawson, Ira Pierce, J. W. Thoms, Chas. Griffith and others. Pat Farrell, probably the oldest of the California veteran trainers now in active service, was also on the train and there were a half dozen more going up to look at the horses. The famous track looked to be a very busy place, and there were at least fifty "railbirds" perched on the fence watching the workouts. James Thompson had the big pacer Goshem Jim out when we reached the track. The son of Moses S. is a better looking and a better moving horse than he was last year and I look for him to pace some faster. Thornway, the three year old pacer by Steinway belonging to Col. J. C. Kirkpatrick of this city, Rajah, the four year old pacer by Chas. Derby owned by Mr. Goodall and Little Thorne 2:07½ make up a bunch of side-wheelers that will add to California's reputation as a producer of fast horses. Mr. Thompson has a trotter that will also gain a "rep" unless some accident happens her. This is Algonetta, the handsome bay mare by Eros that trotted so well on our local circuit last year but failed to get a record. She is owned by Mr. R. E. Muleahy of this city. Last Friday Mr. Thompson worked her several heats, the fastest in 2:17, and a last quarter in 32½ seconds. She is very steady and game as a pebble, though not of the most rugged build and conformation. Mr. Thompson has let up on all his horses, preparatory to shipment. He will leave Pleasanton about the 9th. Every member of his string is in good shape now.

Millard Sanders leaves to-day for Cleveland direct. He has four mares in his string that I believe he intends to campaign on the Eastern circuit, and it is certain that two of them will be—Venus II, 2:11½ by Cupid and Czarlina 2:13½ by Dexter Prince. Both were bred and owned by Mr. A. B. Spreckels of this city. Venus II. has been over the mountains before and got her record there. The late Tom Keating had her. When she came home she was suffering from a bad foot and lost a portion of the hoof, but a new one has grown and after a year's rest she looks good. Czarlina has a wonderful flight of speed, but was a bad actor last year. She has improved greatly, however, under Mr. Sanders' careful training and I believe she will win a few races this year and ought to get a mark around 2:10. The other two good ones are Dolly Dillon 2:11½ and Janice 2:13½. I see that both are consigned to the Cleveland sale by the Santa Rosa Stock Farm, but when Mr. Ira Pierce was telling me Saturday about them he remarked that they would both "come back to California this fall with reduced records." He gave a sort of chuckle when the fact that they were being largely advertised for the sale was mentioned, and I have an idea that if they are put up there will be a large reserve price on both.

I don't believe any handsomer mare than Janice ever stepped on a race track, and her disposition is very near perfection. She worked a mile in 2:14 flat Saturday. That is the Pleasanton track record for a trotter I think. They say Azote 2:04½ stepped that track in 2:14 and that up to Saturday the Pleasanton trotting record was his. A mile in 2:14 at this time of the year, and over the Pleasanton track, which is very slow, is something to think about. And when it is further stated that the mile did not distress Janice in the least, it leads one to expect a very low mark for this daughter of William Harold 2:13½. She was bred and raised by Mr. H. W. Meek of Haywards, who has in his son of Sidney a most promising sire. Mr. Sanders worked Dolly Dillon 2:11½, a mile in 2:15 last Thursday and from what I saw of these two mares on the circuit last year I believe she will remain the fastest. Her mark is two and a half seconds below that of Janice, and if the latter trots in 2:08 as they expect, I believe Dolly will reach 2:06. A more rapid gaited one is seldom seen. She is a little erratic it is true and trots so fast at times that it is almost impossible for her to hold her feet and keep her gait, but she will probably improve in her manners this year and if she does 2:06 ought not to stop her. Mr. Sanders will take eight or ten head of trotters and pacers to the Cleveland sale from the Santa Rosa Stock Farm and they are a good looking lot.

Bert Webster has a very fair racing prospect in Domino, a son of Rect 2:16½, out of a mare by Robert McGregor. Domino is a pacer and has been well entered over East. He acts and looks like a good one, and is in fine condition. Rect is now a gelding. He is by Direct 2:05½, out of Congressman Frank Coombs' famous old mare Lilly Stanley 2:17½. Rect is a trotter and an extra good gaited one at that. Webster is working him some and he may be raced again. Chas. Griffith, who owns him and Domino, was giving his champion stallion Bonnie Direct 2:05½ his work last Saturday. Mr. Griffith takes great pleasure in going up to Pleasanton once each week and driving this handsome horse. He has not yet decided whether he will take him East or not, but if he does he will go about July 1st. Bonnie Direct is in extra fine condition, never makes a break and although no fast work is given him, is allowed to brush an eighth at two minute speed once in a while, a thing that he does not have to be urged to do. Some high class mares have been bred to him this year.

A high-class pair that will make the round of the Grand Circuit in charge of William Cecil, is Rey Direct 2:10 and Bob Ingersoll 2:14½. The black pacer first named was the best green pacer out last year in California and Bob Ingersoll is considered by many to be the best green trotter, although such good ones as Janico 2:13½ and Charlie Mac 2:17½ were on the circuit. As Cecil will not take any other horses over East, but will devote his time to these two he should be able to make a mighty good showing as he certainly has two high-class horses. He has only had charge of Rey Direct for a short time, Mr. Davis having kept the son of Direct in the stud during the early part of the year. It need surprise no one if Rey Direct is a big winner at the close of the season. Cecil is a good driver and will take as many chances to get through an opening as any reinsman in the business. He knows how to get speed out of a horse and the only times I ever saw him stop driving was when he was so far in the lead that nothing could catch him, or so far behind there was no earthly use. Rey Direct is one of the very greatest of the Direct family. He has an iron constitution and two-minute speed. Bob Ingersoll was trained and developed by Cecil. He won more money last year than any California trotter except Dolly Dillon. He is in good shape now, has more speed than ever and I see no reason why he should not trot in 2:10 this year. He can win in his class without having to trot that fast.

Cecil has been working several young trotters and pacers by Nutwood Wilkes at Pleasanton. Martin Carter, who owns them, will not race in the East this year, but will enter several of these youngsters on the California circuit if there are races for them. A three year old sister to Central Girl worked a very handy mile in 2:39 last Saturday, last half in 1:16½ and last quarter in 37½ seconds. Mixer, a two year old full brother to Bob Ingersoll, paced a quarter in 38 seconds and an eighth in 18 seconds, a pretty good showing for a youngster that is only taking its first lessons and has had but very few at that. T. C., the big three year old by Nutwood Wilkes, first dam Zeta Carter by Director, second dam Lida W., the dam of Nutwood Wilkes, worked a mile in 2:30 very nicely, last half in 1:13. T. C. is a constant improver. He will probably not be raced until he is five years old, however. Supervisor Horner's gelding by Nutwood Wilkes worked a mile in 2:27. All the Nutwood Stock Farm's colts are in fine fettle and showing speed.

Millard Sanders worked Judge Green's Directum colt Saturday, while the Judge and Monroe Salisbury looked on and admired the youngster. "He's more like his sire than any colt I ever saw," said Mr. Salisbury. "Not quite so much action in front, but a faster colt at the same age," he added when a quarter in 37½ seconds was trotted in a business like manner by the little fellow. The colt is just 22 months old. He is entered in the Hartford and Kentucky Futurities for next year. "The only thing that is against his chances to win that I know of," said a veteran who saw him at work, "is the fact that he was foaled in June. He will have three year olds foaled in January to compete against in those events."

It was worth a longer trip than the one to Pleasanton to hear Mr. Salisbury's comments on the horses working there. While looking at Bonnie Direct and uttering many expressions of admiration, Mr. Griffith said "I was offered ten thousand dollars for him." "That's no price for that horse" returned the king maker; "he is worth fifty thousand just as much as one of those business blocks in San Francisco is worth what it cost. He has done what no other horse ever did—took a record of 2:05½ his first year out. He is as handsome as any horse anyone ever saw, and where can you find a better bred one? He will pay good interest on fifty thousand dollars in the stud, and he can win that much racing. Ten thousand dollars was a very small offer, and the man that made it probably thinks so too."

Up at the depot before the train left I saw Mr. Salisbury holding conversation with the Pleasanton Nasby

Jos. H. Neal. During all the years of Mr. Salisbury's prominence on the track Joe Neal was his superintendent and right bower. He was "the man behind the gun" who saw that Mr. Salisbury's orders were carried out to the letter, and a great deal of the success of the horses racing under the Salisbury colors was due to the fact that Joe always obeyed orders and was constant in his attention to duties. Since retiring from the horse business Mr. Neal has entered the employ of Uncle Sam in the postal service. He says he does not enjoy riding much now, as after having ridden behind so many crackerjacks the ordinary horses seem too slow. If Mr. Salisbury (who will soon leave for Cape Nome) should realize his hopes, I expect to see him again the owner of the Pleasanton Stock Farm and Joe Neal as his superintendent. And every man in the country who knows the two, will say, "so mote it be."

Seattle to Have a Fair.

The Seattle Fair Association has recently been organized. It has a capital stock of \$100,000 and has purchased 210 acres of ground $\frac{1}{4}$ miles south of the city which is to be immediately improved by the construction of the necessary buildings and an exhibition race track one mile in length.

It is proposed to spend $70,000 in the enterprise. The primary object of the incorporation, are:

"To develop the stock, dairy and farm interests of Western Washington; to promote good roads and encourage driving thereon; to encourage the general improvement of street, street railways and farm roads in King county."

The incorporators are: George W. Dickinson, Sol G. Simpson, R. C. McCormick, J. M. E. Atkinson, S. S. Bailey, A. T. Van De Vanter, James F. McElroy and E. F. Sweeney. All are well known business men who have substantial interests in Seattle and King county.

In the live stock department there will be spacious buildings for horses, cattle, including beef and dairy stock, sheep, swine and poultry. Especial attention will be paid to the dairy, cattle and poultry departments.

Another department will be devoted to fisheries, in which all kinds of the smoked, canned and pickled fish will be exhibited and a showing made typical of this industry in the State.

A large building will be devoted to the manufacturing exhibit. Among other features planned will be a shingle mill in full operation; an exhibit of all kinds of dairy machinery, including creameries and butter making machines and other representative industries in the manufacturing line.

In the dairy and manufacturing departments there will be an exhibit of condensed and sterilized milk and cream and evaporated fruits and vegetables.

Naturally much space will be devoted to the exhibition of all kinds of agricultural products, in securing which special attention will be paid to obtaining a representative display of the varied resources of King county. In addition there will be a large building for the display of mineral resources of the State and of Alaska and British Columbia and another building for an art gallery.

The grounds will be accessible to the city from the Grant street line, which is soon to be double-tracked. It is stated that the Seattle Electric Company will provide adequate car service, with large cars and fast trains to and from the grounds.

It is the intention of the promoters of the enterprise to make the fair representative in every way of the live stock, agricultural and manufacturing interests of Western Washington. It will not in any way interfere with the State Fair at Yakima, but because of the fact that it will bring additional exhibitors to the State will, it is believed, be of actual benefit to the State Fair.

It is stated that work on the grounds will be inaugurated at once in order that the first exhibition may be held this fall.—Seattle Farm and Home.

Old Jack Saved Them.

Some time since a party of surveyors had just finished their day's work in the northwestern part of Illinois, when a violent snowstorm came on. They started for their camp.

The wind was blowing very hard, and the snow drifting so as to nearly blind them. When they thought they had nearly reached their camp, they all at once came upon tracks in the snow. These they looked at with care, and found to their dismay that they were their own tracks.

It was now plain that they were lost on the great prairie, and that if they had to pass the night there in the cold and the snow, the chance was that not one of them would be alive in the morning. While they were all shivering with fear and cold, the chief surveyor caught sight of one of their horses, a gray pony, known as "Old Jack," and said: "If any one can show us our way out of the blinding snow, Old Jack can do it. I will take off his bridle and let him loose, and we will all follow him. I think he will show us the way to our camp."

The horse, as soon as he found himself free, threw his head in the air, as if proud of the trust. Then he snuffed the brooze and gave a loud snort, which seemed to say, "Come on boys. Follow me; I'll lead you out of this scrape."

He then turned in a new direction and walked off, and the men followed him. They had not gone more than a mile when they saw the cheerful blaze of their campfires. They all gave a loud hurrah at the sight.

They felt grateful to God for their safety, and throw their arms around Old Jack's neck to thank him for what he had done. I know this is a true story, for my father was the chief of the party on the occasion.—Geo. T. Angel in "Our Dumb Animals."

The Standard Rules.

In forwarding information to Registrar observe the following points:

When a pedigree is forwarded that runs into that of an animal already registered, don't fail to refer to that animal and show the relationship. When an animal has a record, don't fail to give that record, with the time and place where made.

Select three or four good names for each animal in the order preferred, and the first one not taken will be accepted. The name of an owner as a prefix will not be accepted. No more "Hambletonians" nor "Mambrinos" nor "Wilkes" nor "Pilots," etc., in any form will be accepted.

The American Trotting Register Association adopted the following rule: "That every stallion and colt will be registered under a name distinctly his own, and the name of a distinguished ancestor or sire will not be repeated in any form when naming animals further removed than the immediate progeny of such ancestor or sire; that no stallion or colt will be registered by a name already recorded for another animal, or by a prohibited name, unless he has started in a public race under said name prior to January 1, 1892, and that no mare foaled after January 1, 1890, will be registered under a name by which another animal has been registered, except as above provided in cases of stallions and colts."

At the annual meeting of the American Trotting Register association, April 3, 1895, the following rule was adopted: "That the instructions to the Registrar in regard to the registration of non-standard animals are hereby modified so that any horse, mare or gelding may be registered in said non-standard department provided its pedigree is established under the rules of the association and the registration fee is paid."

All animals upon which rank depends must first be registered at the expense of the applicant. If a performer makes its sire or dam standard, it must first be registered.

Let it be observed that the standard itself makes registration a condition and requisite to standard rank.

THE TROTTING STANDARD.

When an animal meets these requirements and is duly registered it shall be accepted as a standard-bred trotter:

1—The progeny of a registered standard trotting horse and a registered standard trotting mare.

2—A stallion sired by a registered standard trotting horse, provided his dam and grandam were sired by registered standard trotting horses, and he himself has a trotting record of 2:30 and is the sire of three trotters with records of 2:30, from different mares.

3—A mare whose sire is a registered standard trotting horse, and whose dam and grandam were sired by registered standard trotting horses, provided she herself has a trotting record of 2:30 or is the dam of one trotter with a record of 2:30.

4—A mare sired by a registered standard trotting horse, provided she is the dam of two trotters with records of 2:30.

5—A mare sired by a registered standard trotting horse, provided her first, second and third dams are each sired by a registered standard trotting horse.

THE PACING STANDARD.

When an animal meets these requirements and is duly registered, it shall be accepted as a standard bred pacer:

1—The progeny of a registered standard pacing horse and a registered standard pacing mare.

2—A stallion sired by a registered standard pacing horse, provided his dam and grandam were sired by registered standard pacing horses, and he himself has a pacing record of 2:25, and is the sire of three pacers with records of 2:25, from different mares.

3—A mare whose sire is a registered standard pacing horse and whose dam and grandam were sired by registered standard pacing horses, provided she herself has a pacing record of 2:25, or is the dam of one pacer with a record of 2:25.

4—A mare sired by a registered standard pacing horse, provided she is the dam of two pacers with records of 2:25.

5—A mare sired by a registered standard pacing horse, provided her first, second and third dams are each sired by a registered standard pacing horse.

6—The progeny of a registered standard trotting horse, out of a registered standard pacing mare, or of a registered standard pacing horse out of a registered standard trotting mare.

The fee is $2, and double fee for animals over two years old. On and after November 1, 1898, the fees charged for registration of all animals over two (2) years of age shall be double the regular fees (the age of animals to be computed from the first day of January in the year in which they were foaled).

Uncle Sam Wants Horses.

Col. Atwood, chief quartermaster of the Department of the Lakes, has been ordered to purchase nearly 1000 horses for the United States army. He has placed one order with a Chicago firm for 630 specially selected cavalry horses, and Col. D. D. Wheeler has been assigned to the duty of inspecting the animals. Two hundred of these horses are wanted for the Fourteenth Cavalry regiment, now being recruited at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. The rest of the animals included in this order will in all probability be shipped to Cuba for the use of the troops on the island. An order for 290 cavalry horses were received at headquarters in the Pullman building, Chicago, recently. Twenty-five heavy draft horses are also desired for siege guns.

Caustic Balsam is Good for Sweeney.

Farmington, Minn., July 5, 1900.
I have seen my father use GOMBAULTS CAUSTIC BALSAM with good results and if I remember, it is good also for sweeney on a horse. As I have a horse that is sweeneyed badly I thought I would get a bottle. Please find enclosed $1.50 for same.

Prejudice Against White Feet.

In Continental Europe, horses with white legs and feet are shunned according to a correspondent of the London Live Stock Journal, who says: "I happen to have spent from time to time a good portion of my life among stock breeders in France, Spain, Italy, the Mediterranean and the United States, and I have from time to time endeavored to induce the Continental breeders, especially of heavy draft horses, to come over to our shows here and buy some of our breeding stock, with a view to help along horse breeding generally in this country. In, I think, 1897 and 1898, the government professor of agriculture for the West District of France attended officially, and on my recommendation, the Shire horse shows in London, with a view to buying some stallions; but when he saw the amazing amount of white in nearly all of them he absolutely and entirely declined to have anything to do with them, and on his second visit hinted to me that I had brought him over on false pretences! When I suggest to Italian and Spanish breeders to come to this country for their horse-breeding stock, and I have to own to the presence of white legs, feet and blaze, they shake their heads and at once decline. In this way the chance of a foreign market for some of our surplus stock is reduced, and this is a fact that should be regarded seriously by our breeders."

In response to the above, Raymond writes as follows in the Horse World: "In this country, however, that prejudice does not seem to be noticed on the part of the buyers for export, for if a horse is a good individual they seem glad to get him white feet and all. Among our harness horses the ones with white feet seem to be not only very plentiful, but among the best we have. To begin with about the best wearing performer the turf has known is Joe Patchen 2:01 $\frac{1}{2}$, and he has four white feet. Star Pointer 1:59 $\frac{1}{2}$ has two white hind feet. Nancy Hanks 2:04 has one white hind foot, and among the prominent performers of last season with one or more white feet are: Prince Alert 2:02, one white fore foot; Anaconda 2:02 $\frac{1}{2}$, one white hind foot; Coney 2:02 $\frac{1}{2}$, one fore foot and both hind feet white; The Abbot 2:03 $\frac{1}{2}$, one hind foot white; Frank Bogash 2:03 $\frac{1}{2}$, one hind foot white; Searchlight 2:03 $\frac{1}{2}$, both hind feet white; Lord Derby 2:07, both hind feet white; Bay Star 2:08, one hind foot white; Borama 2:08, all four feet white; Gayton 2:08 $\frac{1}{2}$, both hind feet white; Dare Devil 2:07, both hind feet white; York Boy 2:09 $\frac{1}{2}$, one fore and both hind feet white; Lamp Girl 2:09, all four feet white; Contralto 2:10, one hind foot white. Many others could be mentioned in the same category, and if white feet are more likely to become unsound quickly, the fast trotters and pacers with white feet should show it as quickly as any other class of horses."

Horseflesh for Food.

The trade in horseflesh for food is so little known in this part of the world that when the authorities of Hempstead, Long Island, the other day prosecuted a butcher for selling horseflesh to his customers it was considered an incident of sufficient general interest to occupy a paragraph in the New York papers. In countries less abundantly blessed with food materials this would hardly have been the case. As everybody knows, horse meat is commonly sold for human food in the poorer quarters of Paris, for instance, the municipal authorities only taking care to enforce the rule that this particular viand shall be sold separately and not on the same counter with beef or any of the more highly favored kinds of meat. In New York the case is quite otherwise. The sanitary code altogether forbids the slaughter of horses for human food.

The reason of this sweeping prohibition, as an officer of the health department explains it, is to be found in the extreme improbability that healthy horses would be handed over to the butcher. When a horse is being sold in sections the presumption is that he was not hygienically whole at the time of his disease. The task of distinguishing the sound from the unsound horse meat is one which the healthy authorities could hardly hope to perform with invariable success, and so horseflesh as food is forbidden altogether.

However difficult it might be to enforce this ordinance if meat were less plentiful here, there is in reality no difficulty about it. Even the French colony on the west side of Manhattan borough does not, as many native Americans are inclined to think, hanker after horse meat; the French cook regards "fille de cheval" as a "pis aller," not as a treat. The cat's meat man, who in London goes his daily rounds with repulsive-looking scraps for sale, to feed the "harmless necessary" felines in the basements of well-to-do houses, is not a New York institution, and therefore no purveyor of human food here is tempted to buy horseflesh ostensibly slaughtered for the cats.

"It is an easy law to enforce," said the health officer. "No one tries to slaughter horses in the regular abattoir, and that would be the only way to get the meat on the market. Anyone who tried to pass off horse meat for food would have to take his horse to some out-of-way place and slaughter him there, and it would be easy for the police to trace him. It would not be worth while to try."

All this is reassuring for the dweller in New York. However, should automobiles and the like mechanical advances so far discount the efforts of the horse as to make it commercially profitable to the owners of healthy animals to palm them off as beef, it might be well to remember that horseflesh, cooked or uncooked, never looks exactly like beef. Anyone with an eye for color can easily distinguish the lighter and cruder red of the equine article.—New York Tribune.

At Honolulu on April 21st, Aggravation defeated Virgio A in a mile race and it is said $7000 changed hands. The mile was run in 1:46, good time for the island track.

THOROUGHBREDS.

THE TIME AND PLACE of the meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association would have been announced in this issue, but at the meeting of the Board of Directors held last Monday, some of the representatives of the cities that are bidding for the meeting asked for a little more time in which to make their offers. The meeting of the Board was therefore adjourned until Monday next, May 6th, and at that time the place and date should be decided upon. From present indications it looks very much as though the meeting will go to Sacramento, the citizens of the capital being anxious that it should be held on the excellent track of the State Agricultural Society, and will offer inducements that can hardly be declined. As the Sacramento track is in better condition than it has been for years, and is said by those training there to be almost perfect for harness races, horsemen all over the State will hail with delight an announcement that the Breeders will hold their meeting in Sacramento this year. The Board thought it best, owing to this necessary postponement of final action in the matter of selecting place and date, to also defer the announcement of the purses to be offered, but it was fully decided to advertise four and probably six early closing events of $1000 each, three for trotters and three for pacers, and they will be arranged so as to provide for the classes of horses that will race in California this season. It was the opinion of those present at the meeting that the Breeders should open the circuit and that a week in July would be selected, so that there can be three or four weeks of racing at least before the State Fair opens. The entry lists all over the Eastern and Middle States are larger than ever before in the history of harness racing, and in Oregon and Washington it is the same. There is every reason to believe that in California good purses will draw as many entries as have ever been made here and the fact that there are more horses in training than for several years past should spur every district association to action and lead to an early announcement of purses.

A GREAT MEETING will be held on the celebrated "hill top track" at Cincinnati, in September, by the New Oakley Driving Park Association, and six early closing purses are already announced, one being $5000 for 2:30 trotters, another $3000 for 2:14 class trotters and another $2000 for trotting three year olds. The remaining three are for pacers of the 2:09, 2:14 and 2:24 classes, and $3000 is hung up for each class. The entrance is five per cent. in several easy payments. The New Oakley Driving Park is one of the best tracks on the Grand Circuit and by far the best improved one. The stables are the best that money could build, there is plenty of shade, which is a great desideratum in that country in the summer and early fall, and there is an abundance of blue grass. A splendid club house is on the track and it is an up-to-date place in every respect. At least two hundred harness horses are in training there now, and all the horsemen say it is an ideal track for training and racing. The meeting advertised will open September 16th and continue five days. It is certain to be one of the largest and best meetings on the Grand Circuit this year. Secretary J. C. Wood will send entry blanks to any and all who apply for the same, but should any of the California horsemen going East not have one on the date of closing, they can write their entries on any old piece of paper and they will be accepted if made in proper form. The date of closing is Wednesday, May 15th.

GOING TO DENVER? It will be a good place for California horsemen this year, the new association there having made extra inducements for California horses. There is a big list of $500 purses for trotters and pacers and many generous purses for the runners. The meeting opens June 15th and runs two weeks. There are two tracks at Denver, a mile track for the harness horses and a seven furlong track for the runners. Both are in fine shape now and will be kept in the very best possible condition. For those who are going East to race Denver offers an opportunity to stop off and earn a few dollars while resting up from the long ear ride. The new managers are progressive and responsible gentlemen who will do everything possible toward making the visiting horsemen comfortable and their stay there pleasant. The Denver meeting will close in time for owners who desire to race in California this year to get back in time for the opening of the circuit, or if they desire to go to Montana the shipment is short and the fare low. Address all entries to W. H. Shuckman, Secretary, Denver.

THE SUGGESTION is offered to the managers of tracks throughout this State where harness horses are being trained at the present time, that they can do a great favor to associations giving meetings this year and advertise their tracks if they will have prepared a list of all the trotters and pacers in training at their tracks, giving gait of each horse, record if any, and name and breeding where possible. If such a list is prepared and sent to this office, it will be published in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN and will materially aid Secretaries in arranging classes for the purses to be given this season. It does not make any difference how obscure the track is or how few horses are being worked over it, all the owners desire to race, and would like classes to suit them. If they or the track managers will simply write out a list of the horses and the classes wanted, they will be printed and Secretaries will have data on which to arrange their programs.

GOLDEN GATE PARK Driving Association has not yet secured a track for its regular annual Memorial Day meeting, but expects to have the Oakland track unless the running meeting now in progress there is continued clear through this month. Many of the members favor going to some of the nearby towns where the track is better suited for trotting and pacing horses. San Jose and Santa Rosa both have elegant tracks and many advantages. Pleasanton track, were it fenced and provided with a grand stand would be seriously considered. The association is assured of a big entry list and a large attendance wherever its meeting is held.

LOS ANGELES will give a two weeks meeting, opening September 28th and closing October 13th. Entries will close July 1st. Secretary Teed writes that the advertisement will be sent the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN next week.

THE STALLION, no matter how great a speed producer he has proven himself, must not be expected to get a fast trotter or pacer every time. The mare must be considered and it is very unwise to breed one that has no ancestry, speed or other qualities that will lead one to expect speed from her produce, with the idea of getting a fast one. Palmer Clark of Chicago writes as follows on this subject: "In discussing the all-absorbing breeding problem with one of the leading Western breeders recently, he was very imperiously trying to impress his auditors with the merits of his premier stallion, and used the assertion: 'I don't care what class of mares you breed to him, he will get trotters from anything.' He has a good stallion and it is not my intention to detract from the merits of his or any other stallion, but I contend that, as in the case of mankind, nearly every great trotter must have a great mother, and if it could be mathematically determined I would say that the foal is 75 per cent of what the dam makes it, as far as the uniformity of the laws of heredity can be maintained. The greatest of all trotting sires or progenitors of trotting speed—Hambletonian—sired over 1200 foals, and from these came but forty trotters that took records of 2:30 or better, and only 230 of his sons and daughters produced 2:30 speed—making about three per cent in the first generation and 10 per cent in the second, and these, remember are the figures concerning America's greatest trotting sire. The number of foals produced by regular brood mares will average about a dozen, but we will say fifteen, so as to be safe, and on this basis there are hundreds of mares that can beat the old horse's record. Running hastily through a list of the great broodmares I give just a few samples: Minnehaha produced eight 2:30 trotters, six of her sons were sires of 2:30 speed, and her daughters produced sixteen standard performers. In these same classes Green Mountain Maid has nine, four and nine respectively; Emeline has eight, one and six; Beautiful Bells, nine, seven and four; Alma Mater, eight, seven and one; Belle of Clarence, seven, one and three; Bicara, six, four and nine; Primrose, six, ten and two; Miss Russel seven, six and eight; Old Ned, seven, three and seven, and many others that could be named, all averaging at least 75 per cent of their entire offspring as either performers or producers of suez.

RACE AT "TERRY HUT" and you will be in the swim this year. The Wabash for 2:20 trotters has $5000 bung up. The Sidewheeler for 2:25 pacers is of the same value. Then there are four more purses of $1500 each for 2:28 and 2:15 trotters and 2:25 and 2:14 pacers. The old four-cornered track at Terre Haute holds the world's trotting record, The Abbot 2:03 1/2 having made it there last year. It is one of the most famous tracks in the world and one of the best places to race. The early closing purses advertised in our issue to-day, and which close Monday next, should receive a large entry list from California. It is on the Grand Circuit.

The Death of a Great Young Mare.

The trotting mare Sarah Madden died so suddenly at the Patchen Wilkes Farm last week that it is believed she was poisoned. Her death removes from the turf what would probably have proven one of the fastest mares in the country. As a two year old she showed a mile below 2:30. Sickness early in her three year old form prevented Orrin Hickok from taking her up until mid-summer when he brought her to Cleveland to prepare her for the Kentucky Futurity. She worked a mile in 2:15 1/2 in September, and while he felt confident that she would improve enough by the day of the race to win a part of the big purse he asked her owners not to take chances on injuring so great a filly by starting her in a hard race so soon after her sickness. His wish was complied with and Hickok continued giving her careful work until late in the fall. Before the Lexington meeting had closed he worked her a three year old trial of 2:13 1/2. She was brought to Cleveland again last spring and was taking her work nicely when a slight accident put her out of training and Hickok decided that it would be best to wait another year before starting her. Her owner could have sold her on more than one occasion since her three year old form for $10,000. She was a beautiful mare and an own sister to Marguerite A. 2:15 1/2. Axworthy 2:15 1/2 and others, by Axtell, dam Marguerite by Kentucky Prince, second dam Young Daisy, dam of Greylight 2:16 1/2 by Strideaway.—American Sportsman.

Answers to Correspondents.

W. D., Chico—Please give the breeding of Purisima 15,944. Has he any 2:30 performers, and if so how many?

Purisima is a bay horse foaled 1891, by Sidney 4770, dam Lady Tiffany by Gibraltar 1185, second dam Kitty Gavin by Royal George 83. He has no standard performers.

S. L. W., Bouanza, Oregon—E. H. Sherley is a bay horse, foaled 1890. His sire is imp. Bonny Brown, and his dam Despatch by Gorlitz, second dam Southern Express by Helmbold, third dam Maggie G. by Brown Dick, fourth dam Sally Reddlesworth by imp. Reddlesworth, fifth dam Quaker Girl by imp. Leviathan.

One of the Very Best.

On our front page to-day is reproduced a recent photograph of the three year old filly Zephyr, by McKinney's best son Zombro 2:11, out of Gazelle 2:11½ (the dam of Zolock 2:10½) by Gossiper 2:14½. This filly is owned by Mr. C. A. Winship of Los Angeles who has consigned her, with several others, to the Blue Ribbon sale at Cleveland this month. Zephyr is, without any doubt, one of the greatest three year old prospects that California has produced, as shown by her work at the Los Angeles track. She trotted a mile last month in 2:18, the last quarter in 32½ seconds, and every horseman in Los Angeles believes she will be equal to a mile in 2:12 in June if it should be asked of her. As shown by the engraving she is a very handsome filly, greatly resembling her sire, with a grand conformation and most intelligent head. Outside of her beauty and speed she has the most royal breeding, and as a broodmare when her racing days are over should be invaluable.

Zombro is the best son of McKinney, the best son of Alcyone, the best son of Geo. Wilkes. Gazelle 2:11½ has produced Zolock 2:10½ at the pacing gait and this filly will get as low a mark at the trot. The dam of Gazelle is in the great broodmare list, the second dam has two producing daughters and is a sister to Pink 2:22. The second dam is by Gen. Booth 2:30½, a son of old Geo. M. Patchen; the third dam was by Echo, the fourth dam by the celebrated Oregon horse Lummo, and the fifth dam was a daughter of old Gray Eagle. Seven thousand dollars was refused for Zolock a few weeks ago and this filly is a greater prospect than he for a money winner as she has no record and is a trotter. What will she bring at the Cleveland sale this month?

The London Busser.

Year in and year out the type of horses known in the markets as the London busser is exported in larger numbers than any other horse sent abroad from this country. Thousands of these animals are shipped to England annually. The general type is akin to that of the express horse—a short-backed, short-legged, deep-ribbed, smoothly turned horse, weighing in the neighborhood of 1250 pounds, with plenty of bone and not too much daylight under him, and with a good degree of snap and activity about him. The owners of these horses are subsidized by the British Government at so much per head per year being paid by the war office for the right to draft the animals on short notice for military service.

The London road car, or 'bus, as it is more commonly called, is the public conveyance which has supplanted the old-fashioned stage coach and the hackney carriage plying for individual hire in the early part of the century. Ordinarily the 'busses were, like the hackney carriage, the property of many different owners, but to-day nearly all are owned and operated by two companies. They run not only in the thickly populated portions of London, but to and from all the outlying suburbs. Each 'bus seats fourteen passengers inside and sixteen outside, and woe betide the conductor who carries even one more than the regular number. The first policeman who sees him will stop the 'bus, take the conductor's badge number, and the next day it will be "forty shillings and costs" at the nearest police court.

England and the Continent formerly supplied thousands of horses used annually in this service, but the United States has of late years gobbled the trade. John Grant, a New York horseman, who is familiar with every angle of the export trade in American horses, says 90 per cent. of all the London 'bus horses are nowadays raised in this country.

Mr. Grant states that the 'busser is one of the best treated and best cared for horses in the world, his daily labor being comparatively light, and the feed stabling and attention he receives being unsurpassed.

Keep Your Best Mares.

While there are plenty of high class stallions in this Western country there is a scarcity of good broodmares. This is mainly owing to the fact that many farmers have sold off their best mares when offered good prices. The dam exerts a controlling influence on the quality of the foal and to obtain the best results a good mare is as essential as a good stallion. It is a sad fact that many of the choicest mares in the country have been sold for exportation, to the supreme detriment of the horse industry. With the entire country threatened with a shortage of horses, farmers cannot do better than retain for the home the best mares. Horses have once again reached a valuation where their breeding is a most profitable agricultural industry and breeders have every encouragement to keep their best animals for the stud. It never did pay to raise nondescript horses and good foals cannot be produced by inferior ancestry. Keep the good mares on the farm and breed them to the best stallions accessible and the resultant progeny will show a handsome profit on the cost of production when ready for the market.—Spirit of the West.

St. George says: "In England, where breeding the thoroughbred is conducted on scientific principles and where heredity and its laws are strictly adhered to, a yearling was sold last autumn for $50,000 and at the same sale one by a full brother to the high priced filly and out of a mare that was a sister in blood to the costly one's dam, brought $100, and yet in point of looks there was little or no difference between the two. While it does not follow that the fifty thousand dollar filly will race more successfully than the cheap one, the greatest racers in England have been bred by strictly following this rule. There a stallion is discarded if he is a failure on the turf and although some turf failures have developed into useful sires, the instances are comparatively rare."

Los Angeles Selects a Date.

The Los Angeles fair and race meeting will open earlier than usual this year. The fear of being caught by the early rains has prompted the directors of this progressive association to move its dates forward a few weeks earlier than last year and at a meeting last week they selected Saturday, September 28th as the opening day. The meeting will close October 12th, thus giving thirteen days of racing. A list of early closing purses for trotters and pacers is now being arranged and will be announced within a few days. In no part of California has the harness horse jumped into greater popularity than at Los Angeles, and the Directors of the association there can arrange a program of harness events with the absolute certainty that the gate receipts will be large if the purses fill. It is proposed by the Los Angeles association to offer special inducements to California horse owners this year. The Eastern associations are offering larger purses than ever before, and racing will be continued there until the first of November, which precludes Los Angeles from pursuing its usual custom of selecting a week after the eastern racing closes and inducing some of the stars of the Eastern circuit to come to California. This being the case the management has wisely concluded to advance its date, and hang up good big purses for the California horses. The Los Angeles track is one of the best in the State, the climate in the fall months is as near perfection as in any part of the Pacific Slope, and the opening of the new coast railway line makes it much easier of access from all points north. When the purses are announced we shall expect to see Los Angeles get one of the largest entry lists in the history of California racing.

Woolly Horses.

A correspondent of the Buffalo Horse World writes in a recent issue of that paper as follows:

In the issue of the Trotter and Pacer, for August 9, 1900, a freak colt is mentioned that is owned by Daniel Y. Lewis of New Jersey. The colt was foaled without mane or tail and with a coat as curly as lamb's wool. He is four years old and a fast trotter, and is bred for one as he was sired by a grandson of Guy Wilkes 2:15½, and his dam was sired by the Hambletonian-Star stallion, Jay Gould 2:20½. He has two crosses to Seely's American Star, as Guy Wilkes' second dam was by that horse. It is said that there were many of these freak colts in California, sired by Guy Wilkes. It was thought there that to learn the reason of these colts' peculiar coat, one must look to the maternal side of the great Guy Wilkes; that somewhere in his maternal ancestry is some outcross which would account for the woolly hair. It is not an accident, for now one of Guy Wilkes' grandsons has sired one of these woolly colts; another one was bred and is owned at Schuyball Stock Farm, near the writer, a bay colt now gelded, foaled in 1898, without hair on mane or tail and with a heavy coat of hair as curly as a lamb's wool, and after shedding his coat each spring it comes in again as thick and woolly as before. He was sired by a son of Anteeo 2:16½, now owned in Central New York, that had a dam that was also sired by Jay Gould 2:20½. The dam of this curly colt was sired by a son of Nutwood, granddam by a son of Seely's American Star (Padelford's). So it will be seen this colt, like the one in New Jersey, has a double cross to the most wonderful broodmare sire, Seely's American Star, whose blood flows in Nancy Hanks 2:04, Cresceus 2:04, Directum 2:05½, Coney 2:02½ and other champions. If any of the readers of The Horse World have freak colts of the above stamp no doubt many others would be pleased to learn, as would the writer, how they are bred. S. W. S.

PADELFORDS, N. Y., April 20, 1901.

California horsemen will remember the woolly son of Guy Wilkes. The late William Corbitt was very much exercised over his appearance and offered the owner a big price to kill him, which was refused, and the owner added to the displeasure of Mr. Corbitt by calling the woolly fellow Corbitt Wilkes. The correspondent of the Horse World is in error however when he states that there were many of these freak colts sired by Guy Wilkes.

In the production of half tone engravings the California Photo Engraving Company is surpassing anything in this line that has been attempted heretofore on the Pacific Coast. In this day of high art advertising first class photo engravings are an absolute necessity. Those made by this company are of uniform excellence, and those wanting anything in this line should send them an order. The reproduction of animal photography is given particular attention and engravings of horses, cattle, etc., for newspaper or catalogue illustration will be made on short notice. 513 Markot Street.

Budd Doble's Devotion.

In 1866, when Budd Doble and Barney Jackman were trying to buy Goldsmith Maid, they visited Alden Goldsmith at Washingtonville, N. Y. Twenty thousand dollars was his price, and no less. Jackman offered $12,000. Goldsmith said no. They left, and Doble and Jackman held a consultation. Doble said to Jackman: "Is she worth $20,000?" Jackman said: "I think she is." "Then," said Doble, "she is worth $20,000 to us." Jackman answered, "It is easy for you to talk but you have no money and I will have to mortgage every dollar I own and go in debt besides." "Well," said Doble, "I will promise this. I will sleep in the stall with that mare every night if you buy her until she has paid for herself." Then they bought her. And Budd Doble did sleep with Goldsmith Maid until his promise was fulfilled. How his eyes would stick to that mare whenever he was near her. How he would watch her between heats, apparently full of thought and in silence. How carefully each little boot she wore was made to fit like unto a lady's glove, and how neatly it looked when on the knee or the quarters of Goldsmith Maid. Where do you see such devotion to the trotter nowadays? The writer pauses for an answer.

We find the above in an Eastern exchange without signature or credit and do not know the author. Budd Doble has a trotter under his charge now—The Roman 2:18½. He does not sleep with him, but any person who has seen the colt hitched up under Doble's direction, and watched the careful manner in which every boot is placed in position and every strap buckled, will see that his "devotion" is the same now as it was in Goldsmith Maid's day.

Haltering a Colt.

W. M. Marteny, an Arizona horseman, says a headstrong colt can be taught to take the halter in this way:

"Put the colt in a corral or barn where he can have at least thirty feet square, and so that escape is impossible. Then go in where the colt is, holding halter in one hand and a good buggy whip in the other. First try to halter the colt, and when he raises his head whip him on front legs. There is no need of whipping him too hard, but keep it up, commanding colt to take halter. If he turns his heels whip him around the hind legs until he faces you, offering him the halter every few moments. Do not try to force him by pulling on his mane or pulling his ear, but show him the halter; tell him to take it; if he refuses, whip him, and in less than thirty minutes from the time you begin your colt will follow you any place and take any kind of a halter or bridle. This will cause no injury to the colt and is a sure remedy for the bad habit he has.

His Eminence won the Kentucky Derby last Monday at Louisville in the presence of twenty-five thousand spectators, in the good time of 2:07½. In the betting ring there was a jostling, surging crowd, and the eighteen books did a rushing business. Alard Scheck, by his work-out Friday, was favorite, and when the odds of 7 to 10 were first chalked up money came in at such a lively rate that the books could not handle it. But it is doubtful if all the books quit winner on the race, for loads of money went on His Eminence at 5 to 2. The contingent from the Blue Grass section of the State came down prepared to back San Nazarro, and they put their money in goodly quantities. On the second attempt the horses got away on even terms. Down the stretch they came toward the grandstand and a length did not separate the five colts, with His Eminence in front. Driscoll second, Alard Scheck third, San Nazarro fourth and Amur last. When they straightened out on the backstretch. Winkfield was hugging the rail, still a length in the lead, Alard Scheck had moved up to second place and was a half length in front of Amur, who was about the same distance from San Nazarro and Driscoll, who were moving down the backstretch on even terms. As they reached the three-quarter pole Jockey Woods loosened his rein and called on the Schorr entry to overtake His Eminence, but the Memphis horse was not equal to it, for little by little he fell back, and as they entered the stretch San Nazarro had moved up into second place, followed by Driscoll, and Alard Scheck was left to fight it out with Amur. San Nazarro made one final effort, but it was of no avail, for His Eminence was under the wire a length to the good, with San Nazarro a half length in front of Driscoll, Amur fourth and a length away, with Alard Scheck, the favorite, last by three lengths. The summary: One mile and one-quarter, the Kentucky Derby, $6000, of which $700 to the second horse and $300 to third—His Eminence, 117 (Winkfield), 2½ to 1, won, San Nazarro (O'Connor), 4 to 1, second, Driscoll (Boland), 25 to 1, third. Time, 2:07½.

Read the advertisement of the purses of West Oakley Driving Park published in this paper to-day.

Dick Benson has about thirty head of trotters and pacers in his string at Oakley track, Cincinnati.

The Chicago Horse Show Association declared a dividend of 25 per cent. on a capital stock of $25,000.

The Washington State Fair has opened two $1000 stakes, one for 2:30 trotters, the other for 2:20 pacers.

The rain has put all the tracks in good condition and compelled many horses to be let up on that sorely needed it.

Joe Rea, trainer at Bitter Root Farm, says the foal by Prodigal 2:16 and out of Ellorice 2:08½ is the finest looking colt Prodigal ever sired.

Rancho del Paso is to have a sale of trotting and thoroughbred horses at the ranch on May 14th, 15th and 16th. About 175 head are to be sold.

Whisper, the dam of Zombro 2:11, has been bred back to Stam B. 2:11½. As was stated in these columns last week Whisper has a handsome colt by Stam B. at foot.

The busiest man at the Cleveland, O., track is Charles Tanner, who has forty horses in training, most of which should be ready for the spring matinee June 1st.

Mr. Griffith has not yet decided whether he will take Bonnie Direct east to race but will make up his mind in regard to the matter by June 1st. The horse never looked better.

The mare Minnie Maddern by Axtell that Orrin Hickok has trained for the past two summers, and that trotted a trial for him of 2:12½ last year, is dead. She is supposed to have been poisoned.

James Gormley, of Brooklyn, N. Y., owner of Georgena 2:07½, says that the mare is jogging soundly on the road, in spite of reports to the contrary, and he is very hopeful of getting her to the races.

Clem Beachy, of Lexington, Kentucky, had the misfortune to lose recently by death a handsome bay suckling filly by Monterey 2:09½, dam Little Bess (the dam of Bowman 2:17½) by Bayard 53.

Neeretta 2:09½ was started in a race recently in Austria but was defeated by Axmere 2:13½, a son of Axtell. Axmere has defeated the majority of the best ones in Europe, among others Col. Kuser.

Lexington has decided to give $125,000 in stakes and purses at the fall meeting of the Kentucky Breeders. The Transylvania has been raised in value from $5000 to $6000 and the class changed from 2:13 to 2:12.

The $6000 Horse Review Futurity which was decided at Buffalo last year will be raced for this year at Indianapolis at the State Fair. It is for three year olds and is in two sections $5000 for trotters and $1000 for pacers.

There will be plenty of racing in Oregon and Washington this summer. New tracks are being constructed in many localities and much interest is manifested in the harness horse. The early closing purses have all filled well.

Clipper 2:06 is now being driven on the road by his owner, Mr. J. C. Kirkpatrick of this city. James Thompson, who has been handling the horse at Pleasanton will go East in a few days with his string. Clipper has no eastern engagements.

C. K. G. Billings will try this year with Franker to beat the two-mile record of Greenlander 4:32. The famous mare Princess, dam of Happy Medium, was formerly owned by the father of Mr. Billings, who drove her on the road in Vermont.

Freight rates on horses have been reduced ten per cent. by railroad companies from points east of the Cascade mountains, to St. Paul, Chicago, St. Louis and Missouri river points. It is to be hoped the railroads will do a little reducing on freight rates in California this year.

There will probably not be any races for the free-for-all pacers in California this year, but the 2:11 class pacers ought to put up a good contest. There are eight or ten horses here that should stand a chance of pacing close to 2:10 in a race and some of them could beat it a second or two.

Secretary C. M. Jewett is negotiating for a special race between Peter the Great 2:07½, Lordy Derby 2:07 and Boralma 2:08 for the Readville Grand Circuit meeting. With the first two named in good order the public will know the chances Boralma will have against The Abbot and Crescaus.

Two weeks ago at Goshen, N. Y., the ex-queen of pacing mares, Lottie Lorraine 2:05½, foaled a filly by the champion harness horse, Star Pointer 1:59½. It is the property of Captain B. H. Tuthill and a born celebrity because its average speed inheritance surpasses that of any other colt (or filly) ever foaled.

We have received from Tom James of Des Moines, Iowa, two photographs of his stallion Barondale 2:11½, by Baron Wilkes out of Nathalie (the dam also of Grand Baron 2:12½) by Nutwood. The picture shows Barondale to be a very handsome horse. He made his record in the third and fourth heats of a race when he was a four year old.

The Palo Alto consignment to the Cleveland sale left the ranch last Wednesday. There were forty-nine youngsters in the consignment, many of them richly entered and many that have shown great speed at the farm. The entire lot will be sold at Cleveland without reserve. This is one of the best consignments ever sent East from famous Palo Alto.

Mart Demarest, who will handle Prince Alert 2:02, this year, authorizes the statement that the fastest of hopped pacers will be matched against Mr. Rice's Anaconda 2:02½, for $5000 a side, the race to take place at Charter Oak Park in September, and to be three in five, or a dash, just as Mr. Rice prefers. Mr. Demarest is willing to take on Coney on the same terms.

Det Bigelow removed his string of trotters and pacers from Pleasanton to Woodland last week. He has four good ones that should get a share of the money this year. Tags 2:13 is in fine shape, and Pearl S., the mare by Hanford Medium, out of the dam of Kelly Briggs, is a great prospect. The Diablo colt out of old Lucy B. 2:17½ will step to a low mark this year.

The Southern cities, including Atlanta, Jacksonville, Savannah, Waycross, Valdosta and Bainbridge are arranging for their fall meetings. The success met with in 1900 by these racing centres has encouraged the associations to increase the size of their purses. Northern horse owners have been handsomely treated at the far southern meetings, and the entry lists this year will be unusually large.

Sewell Harris of Yuba City, read the statement in last week's BREEDER to the effect that Mr. A. G. Gurnett's McKinney filly out of Lassie Jean was probably the only filly living out of that mare, and writes us that he owns a daughter of Lassie Jean. She is called Daphne, and is by Hark (a son of Brigadier out of Lou Wall by Echo). Daphne has a yearling colt and a sneaking filly by McKinney 2:11½.

May 1st, Frederick W. Baker, manager of the Chicago Horseman, will leave for San Francisco, whether he goes to take the management of a large patented proprietary concern. The success of the Horseman has been largely through the energetic business methods pursued under his management. His successor will be George J. Dietrich, the bright young editor of the American Sportsman of Cleveland, Ohio.—Inter Ocean.

An English syndicate has an agent in this country with instructions to buy 500 horses a week for an indefinite period. The order extends to hunters, high steppers, drivers, coaches, busses, extra heavy drafters and heavy general purpose grades. Along with this order will be the wants of the British Government, which are for horses of from fourteen hands two inches to fifteen hands two inches for war purposes, as well as for horses suitable for home government utility.—Chicago Horseman.

An offer of $2500 was made by an Eastern gentleman the other day for Dora Doe 2:12½, the handsome mare by Don Lowell 2:14½, that took her record on the California circuit last year. Dora Doe comes nearer being an ideal roadster than most any animal in training in California, and Mose Hart, who has her in charge, says he thinks she is faster than last year. The offer was refused, as Dora Doe's owner, Mr. Stearns of this city, wants her to use as a roadster and does not think he could replace her for the money.

The range horses are now being rounded up all over the new Northwest. Hundreds of men are now engaged in this work. The young colts and fillies are being branded, and the older animals are counted and a notation made as to how many have been lost by storm, disease, strays and theft. The surplus are placed upon the market. The better classes are broken for use in the West or to make up train loads for the East, while the poorer grades are sent to the horse factory at Linton, Ore., and canned for the European markets.

But little has been heard out here in California of the brown colt El Milagro by McKinney out of Adeline Pattii (dam of Margaret Worth 2:15) by Effingham, that Rudolph Jordan consigned to the Fasig-Tipton New York sale in 1898. Senator McCarthy of Brooklyn was the high bidder on the colt which was a yearling then, and paid $700 for him. We notice the colt's name among the list of entries in some of the Eastern meetings this year. He is entered by Parkway Farm, Goshen, New York, in the 2:20 trot at Brighton Beach which has 95 entries.

S. H. Hoy, of Winters, Yolo county, owner of Bayswater Wilkes, sire of Kelly Briggs 2:10½, had two mares entered in the Pacific Breeders Futurity, both of which were bred to his stallion last year. One, Margaretta by Don Marvin, foaled twins the other day, both of which died. He has substituted the mare Clara Belle by Privateer in her place. Margaretta foaled a fine bay colt April 23d, a son of Bayswater Wilkes. Mr. Hoy's mare Coupon, also entered in the Breeders Futurity, was bred to Bayswater Wilkes last season and has a fine black colt at her side.

Some claim that King Rene Jr. 2:17, formerly owned by A. A. Bonner, but now the property of Dr. H. H. Kane, President of the Road Drivers Association of New York City, is the handsomest horse driven on the New York Speedway. His sire, King Rene, when in his prime was a noted winner in show rings. The dam of King Rene Jr., Crepe Lisse, was a very handsome daughter of George Wilkes 2:22.—Am. Horse Breeder.

A few days ago T. W. Pemberton of Phoenix, Ariz., sold, at auction, all his colts, to close out his breeding establishment. While the horse market there is necessarily very limited, probably 200 people attended the sale, and the thirty or thirty-five yearlings, two year and three year olds by Boydello 2:14½, Iowa Chief 2:23½, and Durango Chief 2:31½, brought from $100 to $175 per head, all bargains at the price; yet, considering conditions existing there, showing a much improved demand for good, well bred horses. Three years ago these same colts would have brought not more than 60 per cent. of these prices at auction.

Among the visitors to Pleasanton this week was Mr. C. H. Du Bois, of Bradford, Pa., who is one of the most enthusiastic of horsemen and has greatly enjoyed watching the trotters and pacers in their workouts. He carries a kodak with him and has nearly five hundred snaps of harness horses that he has taken since he left home, and has a complete memoranda of fast quarters, halves and miles he has seen trotted and paced by horses in their work. Mr. Du Bois has taken many high class trotters to Europe and started horses in several of the big events there. He won one of the trotting derbies there with Prose 2:16½.

Mr. R. M. Whidden of Santa Cruz is the owner of a very promising colt that was one year old on the 29th of last March. On that day the colt weighed 780 pounds, and stood just 15 hands high. He has named him Montwood. His sire is Gen. Montgomery, a full brother to Ethel Down 2:10, being by Boodle 2:12½, out of Nutwood Weeks by Nutwood. The dam of Montwood is Pacific Queen by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½; second dam Catchup by Rustic 2:30; third dam Huntress by Don Victor, son of Williamson's Belmont, and fourth dam by American Boy Jr. From a photograph sent Montwood is a racy looking colt, well formed all over, and on his breeding and looks should trot fast.

John Blue will probably go to the Denver meeting and may take in the Montana circuit if there is a good program of harness horse purses. He recently went to Oakwood Park Stock Farm and purchased a three year old son of Chas. Derby out of Abanteo 2:17½ that looks very much like Owyhee 2:11½. This colt is a trotter and entirely green, but has a way of going that gives promise of great speed. Mr. Blue recently purchased from James Marshall, of Dixon, a three year old colt by Diablo out of a mare by Alex Button that is a great prospect. Johnny is getting together a small stable and as he has mighty good judgment in picking out a horse, it is very likely that he will have a string of campaigners that will be worth watching. He is still handling a number of young horses for Mr. Juan Gallagos of Mission San Jose, there being two or three very fast ones among them.

One of the most interesting events booked for the Orange County Driving Park meeting at Goshen next summer is a sweepstake race for two year olds, owned in Orange county. The event will be worth $1400 to the winner, as there are seven entries at $100 each and the Orange County Driving Park Association added $100 to each entry. Among the breeding establishments represented in the entries are Marshland Farm, owned by Gen. B. F. Tracy; Parkway Farm, owned by Senator John McCarthy; Stony Ford Farm, Empire Farm and the Anchorage. Marshland Farm's bay colt, Kentucky Wilkes Jr., has been selected by so good a judge as W. J. Andrews, who is familiar with all the entries, to win. The race will cause a great deal of feeling in Orange county and it is estimated that fully 25,000 people will see the baby trotters battle for the money and honor.—Exchange.

Speaking of the growing scarcity and increased value of high class carriage horses, John B. Doerr, president of the Fiss, Doerr & Carrol Horse Company in New York, said: "We were lucky in getting together nearly two hundred coach horses before the busy season opened. People seem to be just finding out that we keep fancy carriage horses, and our sales in this department are going far and away ahead of last year. Without a big reserve stock to draw on we could never supply the demand this spring, for it is simply impossible to buy horses of this type as fast as we are selling them. We are still buying, but horses of the right sort are very scarce, and we have to pay like sixty for them. I estimate that we saved fully $15,000 by purchasing heavily last fall. In other words if we had to buy now all the horses we have on hand at the training farm in Westchester county they would cost us not less than $15,000 more than we paid for them last year."

Sam Gamble used to advertise his stallion Delwin as the fastest broken legged horse on earth, but it is doubtful if any horse ever recovered so completely from a broken limb as the pacer Grasshopper, owned at Binghampton, New York. An exchange says this horse was very carefully treated after his misfortune, and to-day his ankle, where the break occurred, looks so nearly normal as to be noticed only by a horseman looking for a defect. As he is only eight years old, his age probably has something to do with his unusual recovery. Last summer he started in nine races, winning one, being second in two, third in two and fourth in three, and was outside the money only once and then on account of a broken sulky. In three of his races there were five heats better than 2:20, and in one they were at the half in 1:05½. He paced a mile in 2:18½, last half in 1:05½, and the same day paced a quarter in 30½ seconds, last summer. Last winter he started in 19 half-mile brushes on the ice and won them all and it is entirely within the range of probability that he will this year reduce his record materially.

THE SADDLE.

This Year's Three-Year-Olds.

It has been several years since a three year old came from the West to do battle with the best of his age in the East without proving a disappointment since the mighty Morello's time, and later, when Henry of Navarre and Ornament came East and "made good" to the entire satisfaction of their Western friends, the star three year olds have been Eastern horses, says a writer in the N. Y. Telegraph.

Just about this time last year A. Featherstone was pretty generally conceded to have in Mesmerist a three year old of the highest class, judging by his two year old form. However, Green B. Morris was confident that he had in Pupil the best colt of his age, and Jockey Bullman, who rode him in his exercise gallops, expressed the conviction that he would make Mesmerist look cheap the first time the two met. Notwithstanding Mr. Featherstone's confidence in Mesmerist there were predictions at the time that a dozen three year olds would take his measure.

Very little was heard about Prince of Melbourne or McMeekin, yet these two proved the best of their age last year, while Mesmerist, Pupil and others that had been touted as world beaters ran most disappointingly when they were asked to prove their quality.

The extravagant claims made on behalf of the Esher-Silk Gown colt, Garry Herrmann, may therefore be taken with a grain of allowance, for the season is yet very, very young.

If last season's crop of three year olds was below the average, this season's crop is rich in promise, and it would be a difficult matter to name the very best of them at this meeting.

Commando, the son of Domino-Emma C., reported to have wintered well, would unquestionably be favorite in any contest between three year olds, weight for age, that might be framed up just now. That Garry Herrmann is made favorite over him in the future book on the American Derby is accounted for by the well grounded impression that the Keene crack will not be a starter in the Chicago event.

Commando started but six times last year and was defeated but once. Jockey Spencer, who was blamed for the defeat of Commando by Beau Gallant, has not ridden since. Many who watched the race closely contend that Beau Gallant was the best horse that day.

Ballyhoo Bey only started three times and his two victories were creditable ones, though to be sure the running of the Futurity and the Flatbush called forth much acrimonious talk. His one defeat was not disgraceful.

Garry Herrmann's record is really a remarkable one. Out of twenty-five starts he won no less than eighteen times; was second four times; third twice and unplaced but once. In his public trials at Churchill Downs Garry Herrmann has shown that he is in prime condition.

Bellario, the $15,000 colt purchased from Newton Bennington by Richard Cooker and Senator McCarren, is likely to be a factor in the solution of the three year old problem. He was a high-class two year old, winning four times and being second five times out of fifteen starts, and he always ran against high-class horses.

Julius Bauer, trainer for A. Featherstone, recently declared that he has in his charge a three year old of the very highest class, one who is sure to take a good deal of beating. Black Fox, the imp. St. George-Marie Jansen colt, is the animal upon whom Mr. Bauer bases his fond hopes.

Unlike Mesmerist, who was a brilliant two year old, Black Fox did not show his quality last year, for the reason that he was ailing. However, he won the only race in which he started, a four-furlong affair at Morris Park. He beat Lanceman, Yorkshire Boy, Maiden and Princess Pepper on that occasion.

By all accounts Black Fox wintered well and may be expected to give a very good account of himself.

There are very few good three year old fillies this year and absolutely no world beaters among them.

Three of the best fillies the west could produce ran in the Tennessee Oaks at Memphis. Lady Schorr by Esher-War Mantlo, Lady Strathmore by Strathmore-Lady Loud, and Miss Bennett by Russell-imp. Memoria, was the order of the finish. Lady Schorr was a head in front and Lady Strathmore was six lengths in front of Miss Bennett, the distance, a mile, being covered in 1:42 3/4.

As a two year old Miss Bennett won twelve races out of seventeen starts and was only once unplaced. Neither Lady Schorr nor Lady Strathmore can show anything like so clean a sheet, but they met a higher class of horses than the Bennett filly. Lady Schorr won five times, was second four times, third five times and unplaced nine times.

The Goldfinch-Lydia filly Sweet Lavender may be a factor in the running of three year old stakes. As a two year old she only started twelve times, winning four races and being unplaced four times.

Club Races at Riverside.

A Los Angeles paper says:

The races to be given by the Riverside Polo Club open May 3d and all events have filled. There will be eight races in all. The track is easily reached, as the electric road runs to the gates of the new park on Magnolia avenue.

There will be at least six starters in every event, and some well known horses will perform. From Santa Barbara Dr. Bacscke will bring two ponies and the horse Finosse, a consistent runner at San Francisco a few years ago. The old reliable Hacienda, who surprised the northern talent at Los Angeles in 1889 by running a mile easily in 1:41, is entered out of her distance.

For Freedom, an own sister to Yankee Doodle, fast but flighty, will try conclusions with the ungracious Gracias, the fast mare that Ed Ryan spent so much time and money on. Picton, the pride of San Bernardino, will start, and Abano, the Australian bred one who broke his maiden by walking away from the The Phoenician at Del Monte last August, will also run.

Don Marcus Foster's entries have not been received yet, but they are probably on the way, as this well tried sportsman will not let a meeting of this kind, where all starters are out for the money, though it is small, slip by.

Riverside will consider itself in bad case if Marcus' old-time trainer does not appear with a string.

The railroad companies appreciate the endeavor of the Riverside Polo club to get up some sport and they are going to issue return tickets to Riverside from all stations from April 30th to May 6th at one and one-third rates.

SADDLE NOTES.

The California Jockey Club has been unfortunate as regards the weather during the past week. The condition of the track has prevented the owners of good horses from starting their animals and consequently the fields have been of poor quality. This has affected the attendance and betting has been light.

Frank Bell, with 121 lbs. in the saddle, equaled the Tanforan track record for five and a half furlongs, running the distance in 1:06 1/2 in the face of the strong wind which was blowing down the stretch.

The Gebbard Handicap, the last important two year old event of the current racing season was decided at Tanforan last Saturday. On this occasion the youngsters were asked to go farther than heretofore, the distance being the short six furlong course. Flora Pomona, a filly from the Schulte Stable, was made favorite and succeeded in winning out by a neck in a long hard drive after making the running throughout. She was closely pressed by Divina, who with better racing luck might have won; as it was it took all Nash Turner's skill to land the favorite in front. Sister Jeanie, one of the Jennings entries, downed Louwelsea for the show.

The bay three year old Terminus by Blazes out of Miss Bishop, was purchased by T. P. Hayes at Louisville, Kentucky, this week for $10,000. Terminus won the Autumn Handicap at Toronto last year as a two year old and is a very promising colt. He is eligible to the American Derby.

Burns & Waterhouse have purchased the good two year old Corrigan from Barney Schreiber for $10,000. The buyers will race the colt and it is stated that there is an agreement that Schreiber is to have the colts winnings during the next six months. Corrigan will be placed in the stud early as Mr. Waterhouse, who negotiated the purchase believes he will make a great sire. He is by imp. Sain, dam Ada Reese by Lelaps.

Marty Bergen is displaying first class form in the saddle at present. He seems to be riding as well now as in his palmy at Guttenberg and Clifton, many of his winning finishes in the two year old races being especially notable exhibitions of horsemanship.

Trainer Peter Wimmer, who has the care of Kinley Mack, last year's Brooklyn and Suburban winner, predicts that the horse will duplicate last season's great performance and capture both the big handicaps this year. Though confident, Wimmer is not at all boastful, and does not pretend to ignore several rivals of Kinley Mack. "I guess they are as good as they are said to be," he says, "but Kinley Mack will be in real good form, and if he is beaten it will be because the winner was better." The old black mare Imp, loved by all race goers, will not face a starter until the season is well under way. When she does it will be when Wimmer feels that she can win. She is not likely to start before the Saratoga meeting, though she may be sent to the post during the Brooklyn or Brighton meeting. It is known that Mr. Harness, the owner of the famous mare, is anxious to put her through her last season of racing with as near an unbroken string of victories as her admirers could wish for.

John F. Schorr has sued Wells, Fargo & Co. for $21,800 on account of the injuries to eight of his race horses by a collision on the Oakland mole in November 1900. The most valuable of the horses was F. W. Brode. The horses were shipped from Ogden in charge of Wells, Fargo & Co., a special car being arranged for them and $256 being charged for the transportation. Schorr alleged that the value of F. W. Brode was $10,000 up to the time of the accident, but that the animal was now worthless. A similar suit was brought against the Southern Pacific Company.

The resumption of racing at the Oakland track last Monday drew out a much larger crowd than had been seen for many days at Tanforan. The climate of the region where the Oakland track is situated is so superior to that of windy and bleak Tanforan that comparisons are odious. During the time the track has been closed a coating of sand was put on the Oakland track, and the mud which resulted from this week's rain was not as holding as formerly. There were fourteen books doing business in the ring, besides the field books and as the racing was very good it may be said that the meeting opened auspiciously. The defeat of Articulate and Frank Bell in the six-furlong race by Rio de Altar, a son of Emperor of Norfolk from the Baldwin ranch was a surprise. Rio de Altar is a great mud horse, and Articulate is not the wonder he was cracked up to be early in the season.

Odd "Horses."

When Lord Curzon, the Viceroy of India, went to visit one of the native princes recently he was surprised to see in the gorgeous procession which met him two rhinoceroses ridden by postilions, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. A team nabob is the team of four zebras owned by Walter Rothschild. The banker drives the boasts himself, and they never fail to attract attention.

All visitors to Belgium are familiar with the little carts carrying fruit, milk or vegetables, and drawn by one or more powerful-looking dogs. In former days dogs were much more used for draught purposes than they are now. A well known character who was known as "Old Lal" used to race the coaches on the North road running out of London with a team of dogs. He constructed for himself a sort of buckboard and had harnessed to it four foxhounds, who would cover long distances at a great pace. Later on Dumsdale used to appear on the highways and race the coaches with a team of bulldogs driven tandem to a small wooden cart. Sometimes the dogs would cover twelve miles an hour, though their natural pace was about seven miles an hour. Dumsdale's favorite trip was from East Grimstead to Brighton and back, a distance of forty-eight miles. He would make the journey in forty-eight hours, including stoppages for rest and refreshment.

More than one instance is on record of ostriches being used in place of saddle horses or for drawing light traps. A big ostrich known as Oliver W. may be seen any day pulling a buggy along the roads near Jacksonville, Fla.

A wealthy man of Vienna named Doller once built a carriage to which he attached two bears, while a third was trained to sit beside him on the box seat. With this extraordinary turnout, Doller appeared in the streets of the Austrian capital, but complaints were soon made to the police that the bears scared horses and provoked runaways. Doller was forbidden to drive his team in the city. He then started a team of trained wolves, but again the police objected to his displaying his eccentricities in the streets of Vienna, and he gave up the attempt to divert the public with strange turn-outs.

But the palm of eccentricity in turnouts must be given to an Englishman named Huddy, who, when 97 years old, traveled from Lismore to Fermoy in an oyster tub set on wheels and drawn by a pig, a barge, two cats and a hedgehog. He wore a red nightcap on his head and carried a whip in one hand and a tin horn in the other.

The Walking Gait.

The walking gait is of the utmost importance in any class of horses and is an excellent means to determine the general make-up of an animal. The stride should be even and the foot should be snapped quickly from the ground with that energy characteristic of a highly developed nervous system. The foot should be well flexed, lifted clear from the ground and thrown forward with strength and energy, while at the same time the movement should be straight ahead, hand over hand as it were, without the slightest swerving from side to side or spreading at the knee or hock. If all the parts of the animal structure are in perfect accord there will be no wobbling or dishing, as the case may be, but if defects are present they will be made apparent by the unsteady gait of the animal and the imperfect balance displayed in the movement of the body and limbs.

Of the several actions demanded in the light horse, that of the high stepper commands the highest price. This is brought about by the high flexing of the knee and the hock and the throwing of the leg well under the body and its quick reverse to an inordinate high degree. While this form of action is pretty to look at it is a tremendous strain on the animal and soon uses it up. Its only value is for pleasure driving. It will not stand very much hard work and its use should not be attempted in this way. An explanation of the high price brought by this class of animals is found in the rapidity with which they are used up.

The Fly-Casters.

The fourth Sunday contest at Stow Lake will be held to-morrow, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M. The rainy weather last Sunday caused the postponement of the event.

The weather conditions last Saturday afternoon were exceedingly baffling for the accomplishment of anything like good scores in the three events which took place. A strong, gusty west wind handicapped the efforts of the casters to a great extent. The scores for the day were the following:

SATURDAY CONTEST NO. 4—Stow Lake, April 27, 1901. Wind, gusty. Weather, clear and very cold.

Fishing a Trout Stream.

Happily, fishermen, like hunters, do not always agree, nor in the many of the details of the fly-fishing art do they think and act alike.

One would think, having read and inwardly digested the wise sayings of the old kings of the business, Sir Izaak Walton and Cotton, nothing further could be said. But no, the details of the art are inexhaustible, and the enthusiastic sportsmen, with unabated interest, pore over Sir Humphrey Davy and Professor Wilson, Hallock and Hoffland, Dawson and Scott Norris, Herbert (Frank Forester) W. C. Prime, Fred Mather, John Burroughs, Dr. Garlick and many others, see new points and new beauties flowing out like the sparkling trout streams they so pleasantly portray, never tiring, wait and watch for more from them.

Taking advantage of this weakness in the average angler, to lend a listening ear to his brother angler, a little of the experience and observation of more than fifty years in the business, is fearlessly added to the pile.

Having fixed your mind on some untried, or tried and favorite trout stream, and the time when you will start, the excitement and preparations begin. "Hope may end in fruition." But no matter; you will live thence in ecstasies of imagination. Your reels are overhauled and lubricated, your eight-ounce split bamboo rods examined, the fly-book replenished, new casting lines made, and the old ones repaired, your fishing "tank" reviewed, to make sure that it contains a small box of tools, a "hank" of gut for extra snoods and casting lines, a pair of nippers, scissors, drinking cup, and small bottle of oil of tar and alcohol to keep off the gnats and mosquitoes, a lump of shoemaker's wax, securely wrapped in a fold of bladder, fuse and common matches, a knife, hammer and a corkscrew, gloves, extra linen thread and waxed ends, needles and thread, beeswax and a barometer, and then await with heroic patience the starting day.

Being all ready time lays dreadfully; you almost wish you had a thirty days' note to help shorten up the time. At last the day and hour comes, and you have arrived on the banks of the sparkling, bubbling trout stream, as far up as you design to fish down that day. Having moistened your casting lines and flies, you repair to some cool shade, quietly to prepare for business.

For the first trial in the pool where your practised eye has already located the spot, you loop on a "golden pheasant" for a "stretchor," a "governor" for a "coaxer," and a "coachman" for a "dropper," and then sneak (yes, "sneak" is the proper word here) cautiously toward the "spot," with a pulsation of the heart and a breathing you can plainly hear, eager, impatient, but gently, "Like a child that sucks at its mother's breast."

Noiselessly and skillfully whip out your line to the desired length, and with a quick, graceful motion of the wrist, make your first "grasshopper" cast. A half-pounder swirls toward your drop-fly, breaks the water enough to indicate his size to your practised eye and is gone.

An electric thrill shoots through your elbows and darts along your spine! With a quick motion you retrieve your line and cast again, but not there now—anywhere else for a minute or two—giving him time to regret his loss of that fat fly; now cast there again, che-chug! che-r-r—you have him! Watching and waiting, the instant your fly struck the water, he took it with a spring that carried him more than a foot in the air, with the hook in his mouth, or it may have been taken before the fly struck the water at all. Of course you struck lightly, but as quickly as possible; always do so with a fly; you cannot strike too quick; a worm or bait they may gorge, if you wait and give them time, but an artificial fly, never. The moment the trout seizes the artificial fly it is as far in his mouth or throat as it ever will be, therefore, it is sound to repeat, you cannot "strike" too quick after you have seen or felt the trout.

Having fairly hooked him, and believing there are more like him in the same pool, lead him gently and noiselessly away, where you can give him play, and finally land him with your net and deposit him safely in your creel. Be particularly careful not to "slosh around" and scare every trout within ten rods of you. The cool, skilled sportsman will often take from one to twenty out of the same trout-hole in the same day.

Having "done" that pool, glide cautiously down to the "riffles" and eddies, behind the boulders that are likely to be there, cast in the best places first and then cover the whole ground, leaving no nook or spot untried. You will in this way soon learn whether the trout are that day in the pools, or on the riffles, or scattered along in both. When the discovery is made, work the ground accordingly.

The reasons for always fishing down stream (especially if the brook or river be a rapid one) are so numerous and palpable that they need not be recounted here.

When the water is unusually low, and the day clear, seek the deep pools and shady hiding places. But when the water is at medium height, just after a rain, the trout are apt to lay close along the earth banks, where they search for the worms which the moisture brings to the surface of the soils, to be washed away and carried along by the rapid stream, and gobble them up as they wriggle by.

Fish slow. Never be in a hurry, except when you are tired and it is eleven o'clock, a beautiful grass island just ahead of you, and your friend, who carries the "refreshments," is sitting there waiting for you.

If trout are plenty, but do not rise, change your flies and tactics until they do, or failing in that, wind up and go home, and smoke your pipe. It is an off day, and to persist without a change of weather is a waste of time.

In shallow, rapid streams, use long rubber boots for wading, to the soles of which are fitted and securely fastened, sole leather sandals in which hobnails are thickly riveted; or hobnailed brogans, with wading stockings of rubber cloth, to keep you from slipping on the slimy pebbles and rocks.

Have your landing net staff hollow, so as always to be able to carry an extra tip, and screw the butt end, to keep the tip dry, and in it place a tight fitting stopper, with a thread above and below the shoulder; and, beyond the shoulder and thread, screw a steel spike, to hold you steady in the swift current and on the smooth rocks, while wading. When not used in wading, reverse the stopper, inserting the spike in the tube, using the thread on that side of the shoulder to hold it in its place. You will use your head as well as your muscle; and a thousand and one nice points will soon be learned, and become part and parcel of your angling culture, and will tend, largely, to enhance your pleasure and to fill your creel.

The common brook trout deposit their spawn in the gravelly beds of the streams in the autumn months, while the mountain or California trout spawn in the spring, and so rapid is their growth that in three years, all things being favorable, their size may reach eight to ten ounces, and afford attractive sport for the angler and a delicious breakfast for the epicure.

They should be wiped clean of slime, rolled in corn meal or flour, fried quick and brown in a little very hot lard or butter, seasoned and served hot.

The great Dr. Johnson's idea of an angler was "A rod with a fly at one end and a fool at the other." But he and never lost a chance to fire a volley, even if he hit a friend.

"Was a most sarcastic man,"

All who fish are not true disciples of grand old Izaak, any more than all long-faced men are saints. The genius that would cruelly delight in drowning a blind pup might rival the immortal Walton himself in catching bullheads and suckers! But this ought not and does not degrade the sensible pleasures of angling in the minds of those lovers of the sublime and beautiful, who see—

"The lofty woods, the forest wide and long,
Adorned with leaves and branches fresh and green,
In whose cool bowers the birds with many a song
Do welcome with their choir the summer green;
The meadows fair, where Flora's gifts among
Are intermingled with verdant grass between;
The silver-scaled fish that softly swim
Within the sweet brook's crystal, watery stream."

"All these and many more of His creation
That made the heavens, the angler oft doth see;
Taking therein no little delectation,
To think how strange, how beautiful they be;
Framing thereof an inward contemplation,
To set his heart from other fancies free:
And whilst he looks on these with joyful eye,
His mind is rapt above the starry sky."

—David W. Cross, in the American Angler.

The rains made many streams high and roily for the angler during the week. Conditions generally are not looked upon as favorable to trout fishing to-morrow. The farmer is thoroughly happy, however, and that is good.

Striped bass fishermen have had but little luck recently in hooking the wary bass. The continuance of cold weather is looked upon by the salt water viscacres as one of the reasons that the fish will not be seduced by the luscious clam.

In using clams for bait, one of the virtues claimed for it is that the bivalve is so luminous that it attracts the fish by reason of the amount of phosphorus which is a component of the shell-fish. An oyster used for bait in the same manner is said to give out a very bright light.

Mr. James Watt and his friend E. W. Currier fished Boulder creek a week ago to-day. "Doc" caught seventeen nice fish and his companion took but four. The water in the creek was somewhat too high for better results.

At the Traps.

The Board of Governors of the California Inanimate Target Association met last Saturday evening and arranged for the holding of the State blue rock tournament at Ingleside on May 25 and 26. The tournament committee will publish the schedule of events next week. A new system of purse division, arranged by Edgar L. Forster, will probably be adopted. Under this arrangement an equitable distribution of moneys has been devised and side pools will be obviated. Trophies will be contributed by each of the gun clubs participating.

The clubs represented at the meeting were the Antioch Gun Club, Fresno Gun Club, Garden City Gun Club of San Jose, Olympic Gun Club, San Francisco Gun Club, Lincoln Gun Club, Empire Gun Club and Union Gun Club. The Needles Gun Club of Needles, Cal., was elected to membership in the association.

Clarence A. Haight was elected secretary-treasurer of the association by acclamation, vice Ad. Gunzendorfer of Monterey, who resigned last year after the Fresno tournament.

The president, Dr. W. S. George of Antioch, appointed the following committees: Tournament Committee—Edgar L. Foster, Chairman; S. C. St. John, Fresno, Joseph Ross, Antioch; Dr. A. M. Barker, San Jose; Joseph Moomaw, Porterville; William Higby, Stockton; Clarence Monaghan, Needles; Dick Itgen, Morton C. Allen, Joseph J. Sweeney, J. B. Hauer and Jules Bruns. Recording Committee—C. A. Haight, John H. Durst, R. Wenzel, G. Harlan, Hollister and A. E. Holmes, San Jose. Membership Committee—Len D. Owens, George Anderson San Jose, Lee Durham, Antioch, A. H. Wright Stockton and P. C. Montgomery, Porterville. Grievance and Appeals—Ed. Schultz, H. H. White, V. J. La Motte, S. C. St. John and Dr. A. T. Hyde of Merced. Finance and Auditing—W. J. Golcher, Jos. J. Sweeney and Chick Lion of San Jose. Transportation—M. C. Allen, Len D. Owens and S. C. St. John. The board will convene again one week before the date fixed for the annual shoot.

Mr. J. B. Hauer, Secretary of the Empire Gun Club, sends us the following report of the club shoot last Sunday: The weather interfered materially with the shooting at Alameda Point and only part of the regular program was completed. The Allen handicap gun event was postponed and part of the entries in the Sweeney medal only were completed. Webb made the best average for the day in this event and also the highest score for the season in this match. Taking into consideration the weather conditions and that he was obliged to shoot 5 birds from the 16-yard mark, 5 from the 18, and broke three pair of doubles and the first bird of the fourth pair from the 20-yard mark, making a total of 17 breaks, he certainly did a very clever performance. The complete scores for the several events that were shot through were as follows:

First event, 10 bird pool—"Chestnut" 7, Cullen 7, Swales 9, La Motte 6, Reed 6, Allen 5, Fish 8, Gordon 10, Juster 8, Miller 9, Boyce 5, Hicks 6, Wilkins 5, Emigh 8, Frank 6, Hauer 8, Webb 10.

Second event, 10 birds—"Chestnut" 10, Ma Motte 9, Reed 8, Cullen 10, Swales 10, Juster 6, Hicks 5, La Motte 8, Emigh 10, Webb 10, Emigh 6, Frank 7, Gregg 3, Ireland 7, Hauer 7, Swales 7, Frank 7, Juster 7.

Third event, 15 bird pool, entrance $1, 3 classes—Fish 12, La Motte 15, Webb 15, Gordon 10, "Chestnut" 15, Emigh 8, Walker 9. La Motte, Webb and "Chestnut" divided first money, Fish took second and Gordon third.

Fourth event, 15 bird shoot—La Motte 11, Miller 12, Boyce 12, Frank 12.

Fifth event, 25 bird shoot—La Motte 23, Allen 22, Emigh 18, Ireland 21, Swales 17, Juster 15, Miller 19, DuBoise 15, Webb 24, Emigh 15, Frank 18, Gregg 9, Fish 24, Cullen 21, Frank 20, Ireland 18.

An attempt was made to run through the Sweeney Record Medal match but owing to the rain the event was postponed; the scores of those who shot were as follows: Swales 10, Ireland 1, La Motte 5, Webb 17, Hauer 1. Webb made the best average for the day, which is also the highest score for the season in this event.

The San Francisco Gun Club members and visiting trap shooters turned out in force at Ingleside last Sunday notwithstanding the inclement weather. Thirty-two shooters faced the traps in the regular club race at fifteen pigeons. The wind blew in squalls all day and drove the rain into the shooters' faces, making it at times extremely difficult to put a charge of shot into a bird effectively. Many of the birds dropped dead out of bounds and some, which were centered properly in flight were blown beyond the boundary line by the heavy wind. The birds supplied were rather a fast lot many of them leaving the traps with the speed of a rocket. In the main race a side pool of $52.50 was subscribed. John Karney and R. C. Rosenberg, who made clean scores, divided $42, the men who dropped fourteen birds each divided the balance. Ed Schultz also made a full score, but was not in the pool. A number of back scores filled out to thirty-six entries in the club race.

Following the main event, six-bird sweepstakes were shot, Dr. Barker of San Jose winning 50 per cent and George Anderson of San Jose, Newt Neustadter and C. A. Haight taking the balance of the first pool purse.

In the last six bird race the losers paid for the birds, Achilles Roos who had been shooting good, bad and indifferent was bantered into a small wager on his third bird. He used both barrels and the bird sailed away apparently uninjured but lit inside of bounds. The laugh was on Roos as he plodded through the wet grass after his bird, which was a wary one, and flew several times always alighting in bounds, Roos finally succeeded in hording the bird into the retrieving pit where he triumphantly secured it. A. L. Wiel and Geo. Anderson also made some clever retrievers out in the field. A pleasant feature of the meeting was the jollity and good-fellowship prevailing amongst the gathering of shooters who huddled together in the shooting booth for shelter from the exceedingly disagreeable weather. The scores made during the day was as follows:

The Capital City Blue Rock Club held its regular shoot at Kimball & Upton's grounds, near the American river bridge last Sunday. Considering the weather a good number of shooters were on hand, and they all enjoyed the fine day's sport.

The team race caused considerable excitement. For a time it looked as if the Newbert team was a sure winner, but the last squad of Stevens' shooters came in and finished up in grand style.

The club will hold its next shoot Sunday after next. Its membership now numbers sixty-five. Following are the scores:

A friendly 100 bird race was shot at Ingleside on Thursday morning. The match was between Otto Feudner and N. H. Neustadter. Feudner allowed his opponent five birds out of the 100. The result shows Feudner a winner by one bird. The first half of the birds shot at were a strong lot, but those trapped in the latter half of the match were easier. Henry J. Stellings, Jr., acted as referee and Achille Roos and George H. T. Jackson were the scorers. Neustadter had the match in hand but losing three out of his last five birds gave the race to Feudner. The scores show that Feudner killed all of his birds, four dropping dead out. Neustadter's score of 23, 24 and 23 out of 75, before the last section was shot, shows a very creditable performance, particularly so as this was the young gentleman's first 100 bird race. The men shot from the 30-yard slat. The complete score is as follows:

A gathering of representative sportsmen and good fellows will meet at the Hotel St. James in San Jose this evening. The occasion will be a banquet given by the Santa Clara County Fish and Game Protective Association "in honor of those who so nobly assisted in our recent game legislation." The editor of this department is under obligation to the association and its worthy President, Dr. A. M. Barker, for a courteous invitation to the function.

Life and Sport on the Pacific Slope, by Horace Annesley Vachell, published by Dodd, Mead & Company, is a volume of nearly 400 pages, written in an entertaining manner by a clever writer.

In the pages devoted to fishing and shooting, and they are not the principal portion of the book, the author does not offer anything particularly new to Coast or American sportsmen. The chapter on deep-sea fishing is not new by any means and is in the style of Prof. Chas. F. Holder, who has written so much on Catalina Island fishing in the interest of the hotel at that lovely resort.

The matter pertaining to small game shooting is only general and to those familiar with the writings of Thomas S. Van Dyke would not be very interesting.

The work on the whole will be of more interest to Englishmen at home and to tourists.

Lace, Liberty Bell and Love. Geo. Thomas, Jr., of Philadelphia, has entered the Irish Setter Prince Bloomfield and the English Setter Sport's Solomon. The Webster Groves Kennels, Webster Groves, Mo., have entered the Scotch Terrier Noregay Sweet William. Brandywine Kennels will bench Bahertou Lass. The foregoing brief list enumerates a higher class of all breeds than the most sanguine of our fanciers ever imagined would be seen at a local show for many years. The success of the show seems well assured.

Pacific Kennel League Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Pacific Kennel League was held in Seattle on April 13th. The officers elected for the ensuing year are: Julius Redelsheimer, President; Chas. R. Harker, San Jose, H. A. Wegener, San Francisco, Stephen Holbrooke, Tacoma, W. F. Burrell, Portland, Vice Presidents; Norman J. Stewart, Aromas, Monterey county, Secretary-Treasurer.

The following resolution, which was adopted, seems to indicate that the rejection of overtures made by the Pacific Advisory Board will be permanent:

WHEREAS, the Secretary and President of the Pacific Advisory Committee, have sent this League a communication, asking this League to dissolve and join the eastern organization known as the American Kennel Club, and place its clubs under the guidance of said Committee, therefore be it

Resolved, That the Pacific Kennel League is more than satisfied with the progress it has made during the three years of its existence and the high opinion it has won in the minds of the fancy of the Coast.

Resolved, That this League can see nothing to be gained, but much to be lost by an affiliation with any organization foreign to the Coast. Resolved, that the Secretary of the League be instructed to forward a copy of these resolutions to said Committee, stating that while this League would be pleased to receive into membership all clubs and all fanciers of the Coast, it cannot entertain any thought of dissolution.

A show will be given under P. K. L. rules in this city next spring which will be designated as "an all Pacific Coast show," not a San Francisco show in San Francisco. The league officials propose to offer larger cash prizes than have ever been given on the Coast and an effort will be made to have "the highest and best show that has ever been seen on the Pacific Coast."

The P. K. L. rules were also changed as follows:

Rule III. altered to read:

3. The breeder of a dog is the person owning the bitch at the time of her being bred.

Rule II., Novice Class added, to read as follows:

A Novice Class, for all dogs that have never won a first prize in any class at any previous show, puppy classes excepted.

Rule II. (2) altered to read:

2. The Limit Class shall be for all dogs never having won four first prizes in Limit or Open Class at any recognized show, but no dog having acquired the title of Champion shall be eligible to this class.

Rule IV. (4) altered to read:

4. The Winners' Class shall be open only to winners of first prizes at any show giving three of the before mentioned classes, and the winner of five wins in this class will thereby become a Champion of Record, will be so recorded in the Pacific Kennel League Record of Wins, and will be entitled to a Pacific Kennel League Champion certificate. Before awarding "Reserve" in this class, the dog or dogs having been placed second to the winner in any of the regular classes, must be brought before the judge for competition with the remaining dogs in said Winners' Class. No class winner can be withdrawn or withheld from competition in the Winners' Class, and no entry fee shall be charged for said competition in this class. A dog that prior to December 31, 1900, has won once in the Winners' Class shall qualify as a Champion by two additional wins in the Winners' Class, and a dog that has won twice qualifies with one additional win in the Winners' Class, or any dog who has won four first prizes in Open Class prior to December 31, 1900, shall qualify as a Champion by three additional wins in Winners' Class.

The Winners' Class can be divided by sex provided that the required classes announced in the Premium List are also divided by class.

N. B.—Judges are requested to be particularly careful in awarding a prize in the Winners' Class. While a puppy might merit a first prize in the Puppy Class, it by no means follows that he is worthy of a first prize in the Winners' Class if alone.

Article III, Sec. 3. Altered to read:

The annual dues of each Club shall be $5 per year. Each Club holding a show shall remit to the Secretary of the League $5 in addition to the annual dues. Said $5 to accompany application for dates.

The English Setter Club.

"The English Setter Club of America" has been duly organized, and the following officers elected: President, Dr. James E. Hair, Bridgeport, Conn.; First Vice-President, Mr. S. W. Carey, Jr., Orange, N. J.; Second Vice-President, Mr. W. S. Hawley, Long Hill, Conn.; Third Vice-President, Mr. W. L. McConnell, New Castle, Pa.; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. S. M. Sterling, Bridgeport, Conn. Executive Committee—Mr. J. B. Vandergrift, Pittsburg, Pa.; H. A. Waldron, Providence, R. I.; Mr. Frank Windholz, New York City; Mr. F. Von Hoffman, New York City; Mr. Geo. W. Neal, Westville, Conn.; Mr. M. C. Byers, Grand Rapids, Mich.

The following standard was unanimously adopted:

Head, 20; neck, 5; body, 30; legs and feet, 20; tail, 5; symmetry, coat and feathering, 15; color and markings, 5; total, 100.

Head—Should be long and lean, with a well defined stop. The skull oval from ear to ear, showing plenty of brain room, and with a well defined occipital protuberance. The muzzle moderately deep and fairly square; from the stop to the point of the nose should be long, the nostrils wide, and the jaws of nearly equal length; flews not to be pendulous; the color of the nose should be black, or dark, or light liver, according to the color of the coat. The eyes should be bright, mild and intelligent, and of a dark hazel color—the darker the better. The ears of moderate length, set on low and hanging in neat folds close to the cheek; the tip should be velvety, the upper part clothed with fine silky hair.

Neck—Should be rather long, muscular and lean, slightly arched at the crest, and clean out where it joins the head; toward the shoulder it should be larger and very muscular, not throaty though the skin is loose below the throat, elegant and blood-like in appearance.

Body—Should be of moderate length, with shoulders well set back, or oblique; back short and level; loins wide, slightly arched, strong and muscular. Chest deep in the brisket, with good round, widely sprung ribs, deep in the back ribs; that is, well ribbed up.

Legs and Feet—Stifles well bent and strong, thighs long from hip to hock. The fore-arm big and very muscular, the elbow well let down. Pastern short, muscular and straight. The feet very close and compact, and well protected by hair between the toes.

Tail—The tail should be set on almost in a line with the back; medium length, not curly or ropy; to be slightly curved or scimitar-shaped, but with no tendency to turn upward; the flag or feather hanging in long pendant flakes. The feather should not commence at root, but slightly below, and increase in length to the middle, then gradually taper off toward the end; and the hair long, bright, soft and silky, wavy but not curly.

Symmetry, coat and feathering—The coat from the back of the head in a line with the ears ought to be straight, long and silky. (A slight wave in it, not objectionable), which should be the case with the coat generally; the breeches and forelegs, nearly down to the feet, should be well feathered.

Color and markings—The color may be either black and white, orange and white, lemon and white, liver and white, or tricolor—that is, black, white and tan; those without heavy patches of color on the body, but flecked all over, preferred.

The judges recommended by the club are: Mr. John Davidson, Dr. James E. Hair, Mr. Chas. H. Mason, Mr. H. W. Lacy and Mr. John Brett.

The Dachshund.

The inoffensive-looking little Dachshund has been the subject of much argument, both as to his origin and proper type. The English association of "hund" and "hound," has presumed that this dog is a hound, an entirely erroneous conclusion.

During the past twenty-five years, in England, the tendency was chiefly in favor of the long drawn out type of the breed, which is more or less a fancy growth on a much smaller and more compactly built little Dachshund, something on the terrier order.

In the shows of ten years ago, the big, coarse hound type was all the go. This was when Mr. Manice of Pittsfield, imported so many from England. But later since the formation of a Dachshund Club, the tendency has become marked toward a Dachshund shorter in ear and body, and cleaner in the head. The main peculiarities and characteristics of the breed, however, are retained.

The Dachshund is probably with the Grayhound and one or two other breeds, a distinctively ancient production. Some have maintained that the breed is comparatively modern and that the distinctive crook of the forelegs and other peculiarities were derived from inbreeding. But history accounts for the breed even as far back as Thothmes III., who reigned over Egypt more than 4000 years ago. On this Egyptian monarch's monument is a dog resembling, in every way, the modern Dachshund, and inscriptions bear witness to the dog's popularity at court. The Dachshund, a dog resembling it, was discovered on early Assyrian sculptures.

The Dachshund suffered like other breeds from the carelessness of German breeders, and dogs of varied type may be found in different sections of the country. The peculiar build of the dachshund, its strength and pertinacity and its keen nose for fresh blood, make it adaptable to various forms of hunting. The breed is an anomaly in so far that its admirers say it is not a hound, still, in many sections of Germany it is an invaluable aid in the finding of wounded deer and in tracking out wild boars and other animals.

Their great forte, however, is underground work, to which their peculiar formation lends itself admirably. The strong broad paws and crooked forelegs enable the Dachshund to burrow, while the length of neck and head combined enable the dog to effectually protect his feet from the badger or fox that may be in front of him. His office in going to ground is not to kill, but rather to worry the quarry, so that it will halt; but if it should be necessary to fight there is no gamer dog living, and they make a nasty bite. Their power of jaw and indifference to pain are proved in the killing of a hedge hog, which they will tackle on sight—quills and all.

Although the Dachshund, through his caricature of a body, has been a prolific subject for comic pencils, the breed has a store of dignity unapproached by any small dog. They have a very retentive memory and never forgive an injury. This is a trait which, while not exactly peculiar to the Dachshund, is more apparent than in most breeds. A thrashing they will never forgive, and will resent a blow even from their master.

They are excellent horse guards, and being on such short legs seem, from their nearness to the ground, to have a quicker sense of hearing, and will give the alarm before longer legged dogs take any notice of the sound. A peculiarity of the breeds is that they are inveterate enemies. Other breeds will have an argument and be as good friends as ever when all is over—not so our German friend.

If kennel companions once quarrel, they must be separated or one or the other will be destroyed. Their low build gives them much advantage in a fight with even bigger dogs, for they fight low, twist in and out and do much execution on legs and other vulnerable parts. But they are not quarrelsome, and rarely strike the first blow. They are full of spirit, and when attacked are aggressive, even to foolhardiness.

As a rule, until trained, they have a stubborn will, but once educated are very amenable.

The type of dog which obtains at our shows at the present time is one that makes for a smaller dog than heretofore, showing more quality and a happy medium between the extreme hound type which stands for absurd lengths, and to short, natty German terrier type, and this will be our guide in describing the points. In Germany special trials are held on fox and badger, the one that shows the greatest pluck and holds his quarry in quickest order being accounted the winner.

In general appearance the Dachshund should be small, short legged, with long but compact, well muscled body. In spite of the disproportion between short legs and long body they appear neither cloddy, crippled nor clumsy, but weasel-like and slender, with hold, defiant carriage of head and intelligent expression.

The head of a Dachshund is long and lean, the muzzle beautifully chiselled to a tapering finish; the skull is moderately broad and somewhat conical, but not peaked; there is no slope; the jaws must not be snipy, but of good punishing power and never undershot or pig-jawed, although in every day show dogs these faults are often met with. The jaws should be capable of being opened until the aperture extends behind the eyes. The skull should never wrinkle.

The eyes should be medium in size, oval and set obliquely, with a clear, sharp expression and brown in color, showing great depth, except in the grays and mottles, when the eye is together, and also in the red dogs. The ears are set comparatively well back, fairly high, with front margin close to the cheek; they should not be narrow, pointed or folded, but broad, medium and beautifully round at the tip and soft in texture. The inside of the ear should lie to the cheek and not point outward like an elephant's ear.

The neck is moderately long, lean and muscular; it must not be throaty; it should run with graceful lines into the shoulders, which lie obliquely, and be well muscled. The work of a Dachshund under ground demands strength and compactness, therefore the forepart should be deep and wide. The brisket should be so prominent as to show hollow at each side, but not pigeon-breasted. The forearm should be as long as the shoulder, but the lower arm is short and bent inward at the knuckle, conforming easily and closely to the body. The chest, deep and strong, swings between.

The body should be long and muscular, ribs fairly sprung, loin short and strong and moderately arched, flank tucked up.

Forelegs very short and strong in bone, well crooked until the knuckles almost touch, but not standing over; elbow neither in nor out and arm well muscled; feet should be large and strong, with thick pads and strong nails. Hind legs are very well muscled but smaller than forelegs and higher. The stern (tail) is set on moderately high, is strong and tapering, but not too long. The tail must not be a smooth rat tail, neither must it have a hush, and should be carried level with the back.

The coat is important and should be short, close and glossy, loose and supple; it may in repose be lifted from the body in folds. This peculiarity is said to be an obvious aid in close work in turnieg in burrows. Color varies, but the best is black and tan, liver and tan and all shades of red. No white is allowed, except perhaps a small spot on the chest, but never on feet or face, except in what are termed tiger dachs, that have a silver gray foundation, with dark, irregular spots of dark gray, brown tan or black. These are almost unknown in America. The weight of a dog should not exceed 22 pounds, and legs and feet count the most in judging.

There is a club devoted to the breed in America, with headquarters in New York. The breed has become quite popular in recent years, mainly through the large exhibits made at all the shows by the principal breeders, Dr. Molschenbacher of New York and L. A. Klein of Guttenberg, N. J.—Boston Herald.

THE FARM.

Breeding Draft Horses.

The success of a firm of English tenant farmers in winning the championship of the last London Shire Horse Show with a two year old colt of their own breeding grants a text from which a pointed paragraph may be written. The breeding of draft horses is a business in which farmers even in the most moderate circumstances may engage with every hope of success. It is moreover the line of horse breeding in which the most certain returns are promised. The London champion Bearwardcote Blaze assuredly cost his owners only a very small sum to rear and place in the arena where his great honors were won. That he can now be sold for a long price, several thousand dollars, perhaps, is equally certain. The same path may be trodden by all farmers in all countries where drafters may be reared to advantage. Right at this moment the demand for pure-bred stock is greater than it ever has been in this country. A farmer can make no better investment than in a few pair even of pure-bred mares of the breed he most fancies. He can always find a good stallion to mate them with and the opportunity to exhibit the progeny will always be afforded him at the state fairs and the International Show in Chicago. The mares will do the farm work to perfection. If they are wisely selected in the first place and mated with a sure and certain market will be found for their foals at almost any age from weanlings up. In the event of one of their foals showing excellence enough to permit him to carry off an important prize a large price will be immediately offered for him.

At the recently held International Exposition the female championship in the Clydesdale section was won by a firm of farmers. Among the Percherons the American gold medal was also won by a farmer, these animals successfully competing with the representatives of the studs owned by rich men. Farmers likewise won the mare championship among the Shires. Is there any reason why in time these mares should not produce colts capable of following in their footsteps? As a matter of fact a Clydesdale colt exhibited by a firm of farmers came within an ace of carrying off the championship among the males of that breed and many good judges contend to this day that this colt should have won. The late Mark Dunham was a farmer and in the dairy business when he first appreciated the possibilities of the draft horse business. On that foundation he built the magnificent Oaklawn estate which he left to his son Wirth S. Dunham. And now is the time. Good pure bred mares of the Shire, Clydesdale, Percheron and other draft breeds are purchasable at very reasonable figures in foal or with foals at foot, but they will be higher before they are lower. Therefore, now is the time to buy. A farmer may even go in debt for such mares and with good management win out in a short time. He can make no better investment but he must choose wisely and hew to the line.—Breeders' Gazette.

Mules for the Philippines.

On April 17th Marion Briggs loaded two carloads of mules at the corral at the local railroad yards, says the Biggs Argus. There were forty head and they were shipped to San Francisco where they will be loaded on the Government transports and taken to Manila for the use of the American army. Mr. Briggs has shipped from here four carloads of mules in the last six weeks, and Wednesday's shipment finished a big contract made by him with the United States Government. It is not authoritatively known just what price the animals were sold for, but as near as can be learned it was about $75 per head.

Dairy Notes.

At the Iowa State Dairyman's Association meeting Professor Eckles said that while straining the milk improved its appearance, it left it but little cleaner as far as bacteria is concerned, as about 60 per cent of the manure and dust from the cows is soluble. Cleanlines must come from having the animal clean before beginning to milk, and protecting the milk from anything which might fall or be blown into it. He spoke of a covered pail with hole in the top only six inches in diameter to milk into, and said that in milk drawn into such a pail they found but 3200 germs, where there were 43,200 in same amount of milk drawn into the ordinary milk pail with flaring top. This difference of forty thousand germs made so much difference that, while the milk from the open pail soured in forty-seven hours, that from the covered pail kept sweet sixty-four hours.

Mr. George A. Cochrane, a well-known exporter of butter from Boston, in a letter to the New York Journal of Commerce, takes the same ground that we have often taken in these columns, that the cause of the decrease in the exports of butter from the United States since 1880, the year when they reached the largest amount, forty million pounds, is not due to any failure on the part of our dairymen to make as good butter as those in other countries, or of our exporters to send good butter when there was a surplus of it here, and a good price to be obtained for it there, but to the fact that in years when our exports were reduced, as notably in 1895, when they went down to 5,600,000 pounds, butter was scarce in this country by reason of a short grass crop, and abundant at a low price in continental Europe because of good crop. Similar conditions of scarcity here and plenty in Europe prevailed in 1900, when thousands of packages sent to England in 1899 were brought back because they would sell for a higher price in New York and Boston than they would in Liverpool or London. In 1897 we had an abundant grass crop, and were able to export thirty-one million pounds, the highest amount, except in 1879 and 1880.

We acknowledge, as does Mr. Cochrane, that the governments of Canada, Australia, Denmark and Russia have done much in the way of supporting dairy schools, and by providing facilities for cold storage at home and during transportation to enable them to compete with success against the butter from the United States, but we know too well the general improvement of the quality of the butter in our markets since 1880, or even back to 1860, to think we have not made as much progress in dairy work during that time as has been made in either of those countries. While we regret the making of renovated or ladle-packed butter, we do not think that they are greatly hurting our export trade, excepting that many English buyers, if they could not find them or something equally as low priced, might be obliged to buy a better article. We know that this winter English buyers have called for butter at twelve to fourteen cents a pound, because, as they said they had not a demand for such butter as we quote from eighteen to twenty-four cents now.

The renovated butter makes a final market for such as the farmer sells at eight to twelve cents a pound, store pay, and if one could only forget the many imperfections that had been in it before the renovating process, and could trust to its remaining in good condition until it had been used up, we might rejoice that it no longer went to the bakers because it was cheaper than oleo or lard, or reached what many have said should be its ultimate destination and sold as "axle grease."

In raising a heifer calf to a dairy cow, we have often had occasion to give caution to hired help to see that the food was at the right temperature, and that there was enough, and never too much. These points were so important that we sometimes forgot that there were others which were important, and which we did not leave for anyone else to look after. If any grain was added to the skim milk it was not put in raw, but always well cooked before mixing, to a good porridge, and then added to the milk when they were at or very near the same temperature. After they were old enough to eat hay or grass well they would eat dry meal or shorts, we preferring the latter when we had early cut clover hay or rowen for them, and at least a part meal when on grass or poorer fodder. Another point not less important was to have plenty of sunlight in the stalls where they were kept, as neither animal or vegetable life will be healthy without it. Pure air can only be obtained by keeping stalls well cleaned and well ventilated, and ventilation must be without exposure to direct draughts of cold air on them, especially at night. We do not have faith in the idea that night atmosphere in the country, or when pure, is not as wholesome as that of the day, but when impure the cooling causes injurious bacteria to settle down, and also sleeping lowers the temperature, causing lessening of vitality and greater liability not only to colds, but to any other disease germs that may be afloat in the air. This is the reason for the general opinion that night air is injurious to man or beast, and only holds good when night air is not pure air.—The Agriculturist.

Sheep in the Orchard.

A writer thus enumerates the advantages of keeping a flock of sheep in the apple orchard: Sheep, if properly fed, will keep down the weeds and grass, eat the fallen apples, and add very materially to the fertility of the soil. Orchards are continually overrun with insects, which are multiplying on every hand and are more destructive than ever. Among them are the caterpillar, the trypteta or maggot borer, etc. The spraying pump will subdue many, but one little fellow that bores through the fruit right and left we cannot reach by spraying—the trypteta. The only way is to destroy the fallen apples containing it as soon as they drop. The apple grower has no better assistant than sheep. To use the sheep to advantage there must be a sufficient number to keep the grass grazed short. A ten-acre orchard must have a hundred sheep, and smaller in proportion. Put in twice as many as the lot will pasture, with a liberal addition of grain or bran. It costs $3 a week to feed 100 sheep, and with this money buy 250 pounds of bran and an addition of meal. This will give them fifty pounds a day, or half a pound for each sheep. Three special objects are thus obtained. The sheep are the insecticides, and will exterminate the codling worms and all the apple maggots that fall. They crop the weeds and enrich the soil with their droppings. The spraying pump fails to accomplish a part of these, and the machinery costs more than that of the sheep when already owned. Mr. Woodward states that he has an orchard that has not been plowed for seventeen years, pastured in this way, which is remarkably healthy, and makes an annual average growth of full fifteen inches on the limbs. The leaves are dark green, and he ascribes its good appearance and health to his over-stocking it with sheep. They are kept from gnawing the bark by wire netting, with meshes one and one-half inches in diameter, and three or four feet wide. All the winter-made manure is applied at least every second year.

Poultry Points.

Prof. James W. Robinson of the Canadian Department of Agriculture has sent out a bulletin, "Pointers for Poultrymen" which contains much that is suggestive to poultrymen who live elsewhere than in Canada.

Among other things the bulletin says: Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte, Dorkin, Cochon, Brahma or Indian game chickens or crosses of these, are more easily fattened than chickens of lighter breeds. Many buyers object to black legged poultry.

The most profitable period for fattening is about four weeks.

Be careful not to overfeed chickens during the first week. Feed lightly three times a day. Remove any feed left in trough half an hour after feeding. Keep the trough clean and sweet. After first week give chickens all they will eat regularly twice a day.

The oats must be ground very fine; oats ground as for horse feed are not suitable.

Feeding skim milk whitens the flesh, which is desirable.

Put a little salt in the feed.

Give water in the trough twice a day.

Give some form of grit twice a week. Sifted gravel will do.

Feed tallow during last ten days. Begin on one pound per day to seventy or one hundred chickens, increased to one pound to fifty or seventy chickens.

To prepare tallow. Weigh quantity required for three days, melt it and thicken while hot with ground oats. Mix one-sixth of this paste with the morning and one-sixth with the evening feed.

Rub a pinch of sulphur under both the wings and tail of the chickens to kill the lice.

Keep a record of ground oats, and of skim milk fed to fowls per week, and also their gain in live weight per week.

If a chicken gets off its feed, remove it from fattening pen for a few days, allowing it free run.

Do not allow fowls any food thirty-six hours before killing.

Kill chickens by bleeding in the roof of mouth. Use care so that no outside blemish is made.

Dry pluck at once, while the fowl is warm. Pluck clean.

As soon as plucked, place chicken on shaping board to give it a compact, square shape.

When cool, wrap in clean paper, and pack tightly in shipping case to prevent injury from knocking about.

See that fowls, paper and cases are kept perfectly clean.

I also have a filly by Nutwood Wilkes out of the dam of my McKinney colt. My horse is well patronized and I can get all the mares I want bred to him. JOTTINGS.

EULA MAC, the unbeaten filly by McKinney, has been consigned to the Cleveland sale, and leaves Pleasanton to-day in charge of Millard Sanders, who intended to start on his trip last Saturday but was detained owing to a delay in getting a car. Eula Mac ought to bring a good round figure and I hope she will. She is a good mare, was bred by a good man and is now owned by one, and if she falls into good hands will trot to a very low record. I never saw a three year old with more speed than she possessed, and her way of going is so easy and frictionless that a record several seconds below 2:10 is in store for her so sure as she is treated right and no accident befalls her. She is not one of those big, strong, vigorous youngsters that have to be pounded on the back and reefed along to make trot, but is a natural born flyer and impresses one with the conviction that her nervous temperament and high rate of speed are such that she will be a greater one when five years old and fully developed. Given the care and training necessary to keep her sound and in good health she ought to be a great race mare. Since her campaign as a two year old when she started three times and won three races, in straight heats, getting a record of 2:27½, she has been talked of by California horsemen as one of the coming 2:10 performers. Last year she beat all the three year olds here and there were some fast ones out. She never lost but one heat in her life and that was when her sulky broke down in a collision, and being permitted to start again won the race. She started three times last season and closed it with a record of 2:17½. Ever since June 30, 1900, at Santa Rosa when in a workout, she came the last half of a mile in 1:04, her wonderful speed has been the cause of many predictions made of her future, and as she is now four years old without a pimple or a blemish, with a good head, good legs and good feet, there is absolutely no reason why she should not fulfill all the promise of her youth. Eula Mac was bred by the late D. E. Knight, of Marysville, and is now the property Wm. Hogoboom, the man that broke, trained and raced her. He is selling her because he needs the money she is worth and thinks Cleveland is the place to get it. Eula Mac is by McKinney 2:11½, dam Balance All (the dam also of Lynall 2:16) by Brigadier, son of Happy Medium; second dam Nelly McCracken by Billy McCracken. She is one of the handsomest fillies in California and if she reaches Cleveland all right Mr. Sanders will show her speed on the track before the sale. There will be no doubt in the minds of Eastern horsemen in regard to it, after Millard has driven her while they hold the watch.

Millard Sanders has been smashing track records right and left up at Pleasanton. He drove Janice a mile in 2:14 week before last as stated in these columns, and last Saturday he knocked all previous miles on the track into "has beens" by sending Dollie Dillon around the oval in 2:10½, last half in 1:04 and last quarter in 30½ seconds. What speed that daughter of Sidney has! She is a speed marvel, and ought to win well in her class over East this year. I think a mark of 2:06 is not beyond her reach, and it should not take her very many months to reach it. Mr. Sanders was in town last Tuesday and said that the rain of last week made the Pleasanton track very nearly perfect. He also told me that owing to a delay in regard to securing a car he would not be able to leave Pleasanton until to-day. He should arrive at Cleveland about five days thereafter.

Speaking of tracks and the keeping of them in condition, it can be said with truth that not one race track in ten in this State gets water enough during the training season, and for that reason more than any other, many horses are knocked out and go lame. As a general thing the majority of California tracks are laid out on light, loamy soil. The dry season which prevails from May until October causes the water in the soil to evaporate until it is dry to a depth of ten or twelve inches. If the surface is only wet down an inch or so by the sprinkling wagon, the track cups out badly when a horse trots or paces fast over it. By soaking the track to a depth of six inches or so this can all be prevented and the footing made safe. If there is not water enough or money enough to have the entire width of the track well wet down, put the water on half of it. Water is expensive in some parts of the State, but good horses should not be endangered by lack of it.

The Golden Gate Park Driving Association, which will give its annual Memorial Day meeting this year at the Taftoran track, is very seriously contemplating the building of a half-mile ring with all the necessary stalls, stands and other buildings. The location that is being considered at present is a tract of land containing a little over sixteen acres near the beach, about half way between the west end of Golden Gate Park and the old Ocean House. It is only five or six blocks from the electric car line that leads to the beach. The land is a sand waste at present, but there is good yellow clay in abundance cropping up all through the sand and those who have examined it say there is sufficient to cover a half dozen mile tracks. The proposition that meets with most favor is to form a corporation, buy the land and build a half mile track. The entire cost of land, buildings, etc., would be less than fifty thousand dollars and it is proposed to issue five thousand shares of stock at ten dollars each. Plans have been drawn for a track sixty feet in width the entire distance, the track to lie north and south, with a grand stand on the beach side facing east. The location is on the line of one of the leading drives out of the city, and would doubtless leap into instant popularity were it built and properly managed. President Aitgeltinger will subscribe for one hundred shares as a starter and others will do as well. It is stated that the owner of one piece of property offers to take the larger portion of the price of his land in shares of the corporation, while a half dozen parties stand ready to pay a good rental for the club house privilege. All that is needed to make the proposed track a "go" is for some one to take the matter in hand and push it along. Mr. Aitgeltinger is a very busy man, but we believe he will find the time to devote to it, and if he does the track will be built and that before long.

Over eight hundred dollars was added to the treasury of the Woodland fair association last week by a rather novel scheme. It seems that there was a maid of honor to be selected from among the fair daughters of Yolo county, to attend the court of Edith, queen of the Sacramento carnival, which has been such a success this week. It was decided to select the most popular young lady by vote, and the directors of the fair association were put in charge of the contest. Now the population of Yolo county is largely made up of Kentuckians and Missourians and their descendants, and they have very strong convictions (hereditary beyond any doubt) that the young ladies of that county are as richly endowed with good looks and grace, as their horses are with speed. There is a great diversity of opinion, however, as to which of the many young ladies in the county is the most popular, and it was on this condition of affairs that the association founded its scheme. Knowing the gallantry of the men and the long-wished-for desire of some of the fair sex to exercise the ballot it announced that the cost of casting one vote in this contest would be five cents and that no one would be barred on account of race, color, sex or previous condition of servitude, and anyone could vote as many times as he or she was willing to pay five cents for the privilege. Several candidates were placed in the field and the contest waged for days. When the hour of closing the polls arrived it was found that over twenty thousand ballots had been cast and that a thousand dollars was on hand. One hundred and fifty dollars were expended on a robe for the young lady who won the contest and the rest was put to the credit of the fair association whose fair and race meeting will be one of the best held in California this year.

Secretary Thomas tells me that the Woodland association would have announced its race program ere this, but is awaiting an opinion from the Attorney General of the State as to whether, now that the Legislature has added Sacramento county to District No. 40, it will be necessary to reorganize and have the Governor appoint new directors. As soon as this opinion is given it will be acted upon, and a program announced immediately thereafter. Secretary Thomas says that there will be purses ranging from $750 down to $500 and that all classes will be provided for. The slow or green classes will be given good purses and the association will make an effort to get the fastest pacing and trotting horses in the State to enter and race at Woodland. The meeting will be the week preceding the State Fair.

Every time one visits a training track complaints are heard about sulky tires wearing out, and there will be opinions expressed of the various makes of tires, each trainer having his ideas as to which particular brand is the most faulty in construction. Few will be praised, but on the other hand there is pretty sure to be a general condemnation of all makes. A few trainers know the principal cause of tires wearing out rapidly and it is these few who do not condemn them but have their sulky wheels lined up so that the wear is avoided. If a wheel runs true almost any of the standard makes of tires will last a long time, but if not they wear so fast that one of the big items in the trainer's monthly expenses is new tires or repairs. It does not take much of a strain to throw the wheels of a bike out of line, and many that are true before being hitched to a horse are thrown out by the points of the shafts being drawn together by the belly band. A veteran trainer of this city who had paid for two sets of tires within two weeks and who swore he would not have any more of the same brand at any price, was induced by Kenney the bikeman to permit him to put on a new pair of the despised brand with a guarantee that he need not pay for them unless they lasted a year. Kenney lined up the wheels so they would run true, and explained the cause of the trouble to the trainer. That pair of tires lasted for five years and saw plenty of hard usage during that time. Trainers can save a lot of money each year by keeping the wheels of their bikes so that they will run upright and true.

The Los Angeles Driving Club was to have had a matinee yesterday, report of which will not reach here until to-morrow or next day. From the program published it should be one of the most interesting meetings ever given by that popular club. In one of the races George W. Ford was to start his stallion Neerut 2:12½ and M. M. Potter's mare Sweet Marie by McKinney was named in the same race. Sweet Marie has worked a mile in 2:15 this spring. In another race, a free for all pace, the fast mares Nellie, Elceta, Floretta Belle and Primrose will meet.

A carload of good ones left Oakland on Thursday of this week for Cincinnati, where they will work at the Oakley track until the Grand Circuit opens, on which all are well entered. There was The Roman 2:18½ in charge of Budd Doble, Phoebe Childers 2:10½ in charge of Grant Lapham, Key Direct 2:10 and Bob Ingersoll 2:14½ under the care of Wm. Cecil and Little Thorne 2:07½, Goshen Jim 2:10½, the green pacers Rajah by Chas. Derby and Thornway by Steinway, and the green trotting mare, Algonetta by Eros out of a mare by Algona are in James Thompson's charge. There were nine horses all told in the car and as they are a high class lot, they should be able to win their share of the money. The Roman will go into Dick Benson's string at Cincinnati, and it is probable that Mr. Doble will be up behind him when he starts. Phoebe Childers is expected to be a good mare in her class, and the class will be a very warm one. Key Direct will lower his record and Bob Ingersoll ought to prove to the Easterners that he is a 2:10 trotter before the season is over. Thompson's string all look well and have been working fully up to expectation at Pleasanton. Little Thorne is the only one that is not engaged thus far, he being in the 2:08 class, races for which have not yet been advertised, but will be later on.

John Blue, Dr. Boucher, B. O. Van Bokkelen and W. G. Durfee are yet to start East with their strings and all will go to Denver. Blue has five horses in his string, Dr. Boucher but one (Harry Logan, the four year old son of Miss Logan 2:06½) and Van Bokkelen has but three or four. Durfee has a half dozen. These strings will all go Denver and as racing does not begin there until June 15th, they have plenty of time to reach the mountain town and will probably not get away from here much before the first of next month.

Now that the Breeders Association has advertised its preliminary purses (six of them of $1000 each) horsemen will begin training in earnest for the California circuit. With the Breeders, the State Fair and Los Angeles offering purses of this size, and two or three other associations giving purses ranging from $300 to $750, a winner can earn quite a sum this year in California. It would be quite a benefit to the harness horse industry if the smaller district associations, like the ones at Ukiah, Redding, Red Bluff, Chico, Willows, Colusa, Concord, Hollister, Salinas and others would arrange three-day meetings with purses from $200 to $500 for trotters and pacers. There is not one of them but could fill from six to nine races with sufficient entries to almost pay the purses.

Horses Working at Stockton.

There are quite a number of horses working at the Stockton track at present.

Dr. Stimpson has located here and is training Kohlan King. He intends to give him a low mark this year.

Charley Helm has a good green filly by Derby Ash that is stepping quarters in 33 and 34 seconds very handy at the pace.

Emmett Dolan has three runners working here, all likely looking racers.

C. J. Harkins is working a good green pacer by a son of Dexter Prince.

I have Delphi 2:12½ and Toppy by Delphi, dam full sister to Aster 2:12 that I intend to race if classes are given for them. I also have a fine three year old filly by Silver Bow that I am working for J. K. Wagner, and Kate H. 2:25 belonging to B. J. Pope.

I have W. Gannou working the track and I have never seen the Stockton course in as good shape as now. We charge no stall rent, but everything is free.

Yours, C. WHITEHEAD.

A Speedy Lot.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 3, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I have just shipped to an eastern party (a Pennsylvanian) two very promising young horses, five years old, by McKinney dams by State of Maine, one a solid black, except a star in forehead, 15.2½ hands high, the other a bay 16 hands high, with a few white hairs in forehead. The latter is a pacer. Both have stepped my five-eighths mile track better than 2:20, the pacer considerably below that mark. Neither of them has had much work; were well-broken at two years old and then turned out and let run until about one year ago. Since then they have been handled, off and on, until the present time, just enough to break them thoroughly and get well-established gaits. They never have been fed with grain until within the last two months, since which they have been asked to step along some, with the result as above stated.

The black one I named Judge McKinney, because of his great, noble-looking head and wise-looking eyes, as mild as a maiden's except when aroused by a contest of speed, when they flash like a brilliant, indicative of determination and a will that admits of no defeat. He is a pure, square-gaited trotter, without a flaw, each step in perfect time with the other; a gait that will train on, it only being a question of making each movement a little faster. In other words, more steam; the machinery is all right for a high rate of speed. 2:10 will not stop him.

The pacer never was honored with a name. He is a high-headed, grand looking horse, with a fine, smooth, regular stride, can trot a 2:40 clip, and glide from that into a 2:10 pace, seemingly without an effort. It is the prettiest performance I ever saw. Like the "Judge" he will train on, and on account of his grand style and pleasant driving qualities, will make an ideal gentleman's matinee horse. Of these two horses I predict, if they fall into the hands of a good trainer (and I am assured by their purchaser that he intends they shall) they will add new lustre to the already famous speed-producer, McKinney 2:11½, who in my judgment, stands head and shoulders above all other stallions in that important qualification.

I have excellent grounds for the above assertion in my own stable, which, a few months ago, contained six by McKinney, including George W. McKinney, record 2:14½, and five other green ones—one a five year old and four four year olds. The five year old stepped a quarter in 34½ seconds, and three of the four year olds a quarter in 35 seconds, being four out of a possible five, all green ones that could show a 2:20 gait or better, which, in my judgment, is sufficient evidence to make a case.

George W. McKinney is making a season at Hueneme, in charge of Mr. Henry Delaney. He went there about March 1st, and up to date has on his book forty mares; had he gone there earlier would have made a great season, and will yet add a few mares to his present engagements.

Have not decided yet whether he will go through the California Circuit this year or not, but am of the opinion now that he will. E. L. MAYBERRY.

News From the North.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

Dr. Powell Reeves is having Diodine, Guycesca, Tennysonian and Floxie D. trained over a half mile track on his farm.

Spokane is still figuring on a spring meeting to catch the horses going to Montana from California and Oregon points. About June 17th will be the date.

Dr. L. P. Holbrook, recently from Mount Vernon, Ohio has bought 735 acres of land in Thurston county, Wash., and will stock it with fine stock for a breeding farm.

Hank Long came down with a car load of trotting bred horses from W. L. Whitmore's Mayview farm last week. Most of these horses were well bred, being brothers, sisters, cousins, uncles and aunts of some of our noted track horses.

Lady Grey, the dam of Caryle Carne 2:11½, has a fine filly foal by side, this spring, sired by Guycesca 2:26, a son of Guy Wilkes and Francisca, the dam of I Direct 2:12½, Sable Frances 2:15½. This high bred little miss is owned by Dr. Powell Reeves, of Seattle, which he has named Lady Frances.

Wm. Frazier has placed his pacing stallion Mac Gose by Antrim, out of the dam of Bill Frazier 2:14, in J. W. Tilden's stable to be trained for the races. Mac Gose is one of the handsomest stallions to be seen anywhere, and carried off the blue ribbon at the Oregon State Fair last year in the standard bred class.

The Whatcom county, Wash., Agricultural Association has been organized with a capital stock of $10,000. Simon McLeod is President, R. L. Klein Secretary, T. W. Gillette, Geo. Spiers, Geo. W. Loggie, W. R. Moultray and L. P. White Directors. Fair grounds have been purchased, a good half-mile track is being built, exhibition buildings are being erected and a county fair will be held Sept. 17th to 21st, inclusive.

Was Too Careless.

Wm. Dagler, a well known horseman of Rushville, Ind., was seriously injured a few days ago by a stallion he was leading behind a cart. He was bitten on the face and neck, pulled to the ground and had two ribs broken by the horse pawing him.—Exchange.

We saw a man riding in a cart and leading two stallions the other day. The stallions were kept apart by a long iron rod like the jockey bars used on the leaders of a mule team, while a pole kept them back from the cart. They could neither reach the driver nor each other.

Are Early Closing Stakes Unprofitable?

The unprecedented large entry lists which the eastern early closing stakes have received has caused much comment among horsemen, and while many look upon them as one of the necessary features in keeping up the interest in harness racing by providing the opportunity for horses to earn large sums of money, there are others who believe them harmful as they lead horsemen to incur too many liabilities and put up their money too liberally. Palmer Clark, in a recent issue of the Chicago Inter-Ocean says:

"The Grand Circuit secretaries are doubtless congratulating themselves on their entry lists, and well they may, for in the events already closed few will cause their associations to go down into their pockets to make up a deficit. But it is a question if horsemen generally should share in the congratulations that are being showered on these enterprising secretaries, when it is remembered that they are the ones that are footing the bills. I have never considered early closing events outside of the regular breeders' futurities of value to anybody save the association that announces them. The horsemen put up their money months ahead, while the associations in the meantime have the use of, and the nominator takes all the risk of his horse during the season taking sick, going lame or meeting with any other misfortune that prevents him finally from going to the scratch."

The argument that the horsemen take all the risk is one that is made every time a purse or stake fills with a big list of entries, but it will not stand the light of the whole truth. Every association in the East that offered a list of early closing stakes this year took a chance at giving its meeting at a loss. Because the Secretaries worked hard and the horsemen entered liberally (so liberally, in fact, that the entrance money will more than pay the purses) it does not disprove the fact that the chances were taken. To induce owners to spend money for training, there must be money in sight, and had it not been for the associations of the Grand Circuit taking a chance, a large majority of the horses named in the events now closed would be running in pasture or doing road work instead of being in the training stables. There was a season of grand opera here in San Francisco last winter that, it is stated, cleared fifty thousand dollars for its manager. Few of those who point to this fact as evidence of the vast profits made by him, stop to think that he took the chance of losing the same amount when he organized his company and headed it for this city. Had two or three of his leading singers contracted a cold or "bowed a tendon" in the throat, the people would not have tumbled over each other in an effort to pay five dollars for opera seats. The astute horseman cares not whether the purse he wins is made up of contributions made by the public or small sums put up by those who race against him. It is the opportunity to race and the assurance that he will get his money if he wins that he demands—nothing more. When an association hangs up a lot of big purses it takes a big chance of having to pay them out of the directors' pockets, and in many instances this is the result. Because some owners are injudicious and enter too liberally, piling up bills for entrance that they cannot pay, is no reason why early closing purses should not be given. They make the earning capacity of a trotter or pacer greater and thereby increase his value, and encourage the breeding of the best, and are of value to all connected with the business.

Will Race at Tanforan.

At a meeting of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association held at its room in the Palace Hotel last Tuesday evening, it was decided to hold the club's annual Memorial Day races at the Tanforan race track, the use of which was kindly offered free of charge by President Thos. H. Williams, of the California Jockey Club. In response to a letter written by Secretary Patrick of the driving club, Mr. Williams stated that it would not be possible to grant the use of the Oakland track, as the jockey club would be using it for their own racing that day, but that the driving association was welcome to use the Tanforan track on the day in question. The offer was accepted and the association will give five races for purses of $100 each. Entries will close Tuesday evening, May 21st, at the club room.

Acting upon the suggestion of Mr. T. J. Crowley, of this city, who was present, the Golden Gate Park Driving Association will give one race on this day according to the new system now known as the Murray Howe plan, in which the races are finished in three heats, the first at a mile, the second at a mile and an eighth and the third at a half mile. If this race fills the association will have the honor of giving the first race under the new plan in the United States, and it will be watched with a great deal of interest by horsemen in this locality. All the other races given by the Driving Club on Memorial Day will be mile heats, two in three.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 27, 1901.

Mr. W. F. Young, Springfield, Mass.
Dear Sir—About the first of March I wrote you concerning a lump on my horse's knee that I was trying to remove with your Absorbine. Upon receipt of your reply I used your medicine as directed and am pleased to state that in two weeks time the lump was entirely gone. I feel satisfied now that your medicine will do all you claim for it. Some of my neighbors noticed the condition of my horse and they are now using it on some of theirs for similar troubles. I never lost a day's use of my horse while using your remedy.
Very truly yours,
HENRY B. REA.

Letter From Santa Rosa.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Horse news in this, the flower garden of California, is not as plentiful as in some sections, but there is more interest manifested in driving, training and breeding than for years past.

Mr. M. J. Streining has purchased the great mare Maud P., that showed a mile in 2:11, for a road horse; W. E. Healey is driving Philosopher 2:21 and the little horse is faster than ever; Wm. Frazier has Dempsey 2:22 by Illustrious. This fellow is a hard one for any horse to try to beat on the road; Mr. Einhorn drives Pick, which they all think is good; R. Leppe has his little brown Banner Wilkes by Montana Wilkes, that some have to take their hats off to; Mr. E. Merritt drives Nancy, a large bay mare by Daly 2:15 that looks good enough to take to the races. She is a big, fine road mare with speed enough to work on; Mart Rollins has his old pet May Day by Anteco, one of the first sired by that horse in Sonoma county. She took second premium among the large number of Anteco colts exhibited here in 1887 as yearlings. She is old and tried and Matt thinks she is still good.

Mr. W. Randall from Spokane is driving a bay gelding over our roads that can show his heels to many of the "brushy" brigade. He is out of the dam of Bonner N. B. C. C. Belden, of the harness firm of Belden & Hehir, drives a big bay gelding that can go some; in fact, the boys are all a little afraid to go up against him, and well they may be if the stories they tell of his speed are all true.

F. Yandel has a new one. Look out for him as Fred says he is coming fast.

W. J. Swank has a pair that will make the natives stare when he gets them hitched. They were sired by J. J., a son of Hero, he by Director. They are bays and good lookers, but Bill is alone as he has no competition.

Dr. William Finlaw drives a big fine brown gelding by Daly, dam by Steinway. He is a full brother to Favor 2:20½, and a big fine looking fellow. Rumor has it that he can go down the pike with any of them. Mr. B. Prince has a bay mare by Count Anteco that suits him, so he must be pretty good.

And the ladies drive some up here at Santa Rosa. Mrs. Finlaw is not afraid to take a brush with her bay Demosthenes and she can handle the reins to suit the most fastidious. Mrs. Hogoboom has one by Waldstein that looks like a good one, and Miss Bess Riley showed a road driver the other day how her black by Anteco could give him the dust.

There are several horses in training here and talk of a fair and race meeting to be given this year by the Agricultural Association. OCCASIONAL.

Training Cripples.

Every year, one or more horses supposed to be cripples are put in training, and the public is greatly interested in how the experiment will turn out, writes Raymond in the Horse World. This year the two horses of that class most talked about are The Monk 2:08½ and Georgena 2:07½. Several good judges, including Ed. Geers, who formerly trained The Monk, think he will train into form to race, and it is evident that his owner holds that view, or he would not make the attempt. A trainer of long experience, who was speaking recently on the subject of training cripples, holds to the view that the experienced trainer and faithful groom are the factors of success when a cripple is asked to race. He said: "It is all very well for owners to believe a veterinary can put their horses in condition to race, but while 'vets' are all very well in their way when a horse needs firing, yet it is the intelligent trainer of long experience and the faithful groom who help to do the needful for bad feet or weak, groggy legs, that bring the broken-down horse to a race, if at all. It has been a somewhat costly experience for me to prove the truth of my conclusions, but I've proven them to my own satisfaction in the cases which I have had."

In one instance a trotting mare in my stable had a very bad ankle forward and her cords were knotty. I got them right enough to race "without the aid" of a "vet," better than ever she raced before, as she earned a record of 2:09½ that season. The next year she was given to another trainer, who had not the experience with cripples that many of us old trainers had. The result was that she never got to a race with him, nor has she since. While this will not be concurred in by the veterinarians, the average owner of experience will trust more to the skill of an experienced trainer and a careful groom, when it comes to fixing up a "dickey" leg to race, than to the remedies of a "vet," not on account of any lack of skill upon the part of the veterinarian, but because the trainer knows more fully what a horse has got to stand, to take a racing preparation, and is with him all the while, watching him constantly and giving him his work in proportion as to his condition of the suspicious leg. There are certain well known forms of unsoundness, which a veterinarian should certainly be called upon to treat, but when it comes to nursing a "dickey" leg and preparing its possessor for a campaign, the average trainer of experience is the man who will be most likely to succeed.

Chilian cavalry horses have been put through a remarkable test of endurance. Twenty-one officers mounted on their ordinary chargers rode 250 miles in three days, covering eighty-one miles the first day, eighty-one the second and eighty-eight the third. The route was over rough mountain roads, in some places 3000 feet above the sea level. All the horses were bred in Chile.

Seaside, the fast race mare by imp. Mariner, owned by Phillip Siebenthaler of Sacramento, foaled a fine chestnut filly by Nephew on the 1st of April last. Nephew is a son of Springbok, out of The Neice by Alarm.

THOROUGHBREDS.

ST. CARLO	James McDonnell, Portola
-----------	--------------------------

SIX ONE THOUSAND DOLLAR PURSES are pretty good for a starter, and owners and trainers of trotters and pacers will be pleased when they read in this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association's preliminary announcement of these rich stakes. No partiality has been shown the gait, but three classes are offered for each. While the date or place for the meeting are not definitely fixed the assurance is given that the latter part of July will be the time and a track within one hundred miles of San Francisco the location. As before stated in these columns three or four tracks are bidding for the meeting, Sacramento, Vallejo and San Jose being the most energetic in the matter. The date and place will be determined and announced by June 1st, which is two full weeks prior to the date of closing, and this will give every owner plenty of time to ponder over the question before he fills out his entry blanks. As soon as entries close for these stakes a list of purses will be made out for other classes and there will be an earnest effort made to provide such purses and classes as will please the majority of horsemen and give all a chance to win something. With this preliminary announcement by the Breeders Association it can now be authoritatively stated that there will not be less than seven weeks of good racing in California this summer, even though not another association enters the field beside those that have already made announcements. The Breeders will give one week sure and possibly more; Woodland will give a week, the State Fair two weeks, Stockton one week and Los Angeles two weeks. At all these meetings the purses for trotters and pacers will be as generous as it is possible to make them, the range being from $500 to $1000 and over. There will be other meetings besides those mentioned, but were they the only ones, it would still be the longest circuit of races for the largest purses given in any State of the population of California. As the Breeders will open the campaign, it is desirous for the good of the harness horse industry that a good list of entries be made, so as to encourage other associations to fall in line, and it is to be hoped that there will be a general response from every trainer and owner in California. Many of the best and fastest horses owned in the State have gone or are going East to compete on the Grand Circuit against the best and the fastest that the whole country can produce. While they are engaged there, those that remain at home should not be kept idle, but should be getting the racing experience here that will stand them in hand should they develop speed enough to be considered Grand Circuit material. This is the year above all others that horsemen who are engaged in breeding, or who own or train trotters or pacers should unite to make every meeting given on this Coast a success. There is a demand for good horses that cannot be supplied. The buyers want speed and good looks, but while the latter qualification is plain to the eye, the former must be made so to bring the money. When a buyer looks at a horse now it is a case of "show me" his speed if a green one. If he has a record and is sound, it is taken for granted that he is equal to it again. The place to give a horse a reputation is in a race, and if one will stop to consider for a moment the values that were made by the California Circuit last year, he will be compelled to admit our local racing is a paying proposition to horse owners and breeders. Had it not been for our circuit The Roman would not have been developed and sold for $5000. Zolock 2:10 1/2 raced and got his record on this circuit and his owner refused $7000 for him recently. These are but a few of many instances where big values were made by the Breeders, the State Agricultural Society and the District Fairs giving race meetings, and they are worth to the State and to the horse breeders particularly much more than they cost. The Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association kept the spark of interest alive when the years of business depression almost extinguished it. It has distributed many thousands of dollars to owners in excess of the amounts they have paid in entrance fees and dues. Its officers have worked hard to make its meetings successful and it has paid its purses promptly on every occasion. No association in America has given better or more honest racing, and it has always had the confidence of the horsemen and the public. Its meeting this year is worthy the support of every person connected with the harness horse industry and it is due the association that the six purses of $1000 each, entries to which will close June 15th, receive the largest list of entries in the history of the organization.

THE STANFORD STAKE OF 1903 is advertised by the State Agricultural Society to close June 1st this year. It is for trotting foals of 1900, now yearlings, and the entrance is $50, of which $5 must accompany nomination June 1st, and the balance made in various payments at intervals. The race will be mile heats, three in five. The Stanford Stake is one of the stakes in which every owner should have one or more entries. An entry not only puts the colt in line for a chance to win, but it adds materially to the value of the animal should it be offered for sale. This stake was won by The Roman last year and was worth $765. This year this stake will be worth at least twice as much, as the entries were more numerous, and the probabilities are that it will be won by a colt that will not have to beat 2:20. As the stake closes when the colts are yearlings, owners take fewer chances of accidents happening the youngsters than when they are entered at foaling time. Every owner of a trotting bred yearling in California should name it in this stake June 1st.

MEMPHIS, Tennessee, will be the place of a great trotting meeting this year in the last part of October. The magnificent new track being built by the Memphis Trotting Association of which Murray Howe is the Secretary, is nearly completed and is the latest and best of the many race tracks built by Seth Griffin, the chief of all track builders. There are five stakes of $3000 advertised to close June 1st, and these are but a starter for a big program of purses to be offered later on. Of these stakes the 2:14 trot and the 2:20 pacer are to be raced under the already famous Memphis system which is an invention of Mr. Howe. As this system has been exploited in all the turf papers the horsemen have a pretty fair understanding of it, and it will only remain for it to be tried in an actual race if the owners will enter in these races. We call the attention of all our readers to the advertisement in this issue in which the plan is fully set forth and ask the Californians who race East to enter in these purses if they have horses that are eligible.

THE BIG PRICES which all classes of horses continue to bring at public auction sales can not be but pleasing to the breeders. Not only are fast trotters and pacers bringing twice as much money as they were two years ago, but the demand is way beyond the supply and this demand is sure to increase much faster than the slight increase in breeding will take care of. There is no question but that prices will continue to go upward for at least half a dozen years no matter how much the improved condition of the market may stimulate the breeding industry. With the increase of wealth in this country the demand for park and coach horses is becoming very large and as the "society horse" is largely recruited from trotting ranks, this also means an ever-increasing source of profit to breeders. One of the best sales of carriage horses ever held in this country was that at the American Horse Exchange, New York, last week. The forty-one head disposed of brought $71,225, an average of $1,737. Dr. J. E. Ryder bought the highest-priced horse in the sale, a brown animal of 15.1 hands called Happy Thought. He paid $7,600 for this trotting bred hackney, and later gave $4,705 for Norwich and Norfolk, $4,400 for Clinton and Corinth, $2,500 for Broadway, and $3,000 for Rock Island, making a total of $21,000 for six carriage horses. It was said that all his purchasers were made for Oliver H. Belmont. Thomas W. Lawson telegraphed an unlimited order to Mr. Grand to buy Pembroke and Pemberton, superb pair of cobby built bays. Andrew Miller bid $6,750 for this pair, but they went to Mr. Lawson for $7,000. Daniel G. Reed paid $4,500 for Bremen and Brunswick, and $4,300 for Impression and Imperious, four grand looking big horses that have been driven together as a four-in-hand team. W. B. Leeds bought a pair of chestnut geldings for $5,650, and odd single horse for $3,225. The trotting-bred horse is more than holding his own against the hackney in the high-acting classes at the horse shows and his greater speed and endurance make his superiority still more marked in actual work on the road. The future looks very bright indeed for the breeders of light harness horses and those who have held on during the hard times, happily now passed, will if they conduct their business intelligently, find a ready market for their stock at paying prices. —Boston Courier.

THE DATE OF CLOSING of the six big purses offered by the New Oakley Driving Park Association and advertised in this paper, has been changed from May 15th to May 31st. The meeting will be held in September on the famous Oakley track at Cincinnati, whence a carload of crack campaigners from California left on Thursday last. The track at Oakley is one of the best in the world and is magnificently fitted up. The six purses advertised are the 2:30 class trot, $5000, the 2:14 trot, $3000, and a three year old trot, $2000. Then there are three purses of $3000 each for 2:24, 2:14 and 2:09 pacers. There will be a couple more earloads leave California soon for the Eastern Grand Circuit, and the New Oakley Driving Park Association should receive a large number of entries from among them. Remember that the date of closing has been changed from May 15th to Friday, May 31st.

A GOOD SULKY is necessary when the bell taps for the race. If a horse is hitched to a bike that does not fit him, runs hard or is faulty in construction he is handicapped and many a race has been lost by reason thereof. The McMurray sulkies and carts have all the good points and when Kenney the bikeman, who is agent for them out here, fits one to your horse, it will not be the fault of the sulky if the horse does not win. Read the ad in this issue.

BOISE, IDAHO, will give six days of racing in September, and has offered ten thousand dollars in purses. Provision is made for both runners and harness horses and there are three specials of $1000 each for 2:20 trotters, 2:15 pacers and runners to go a mile and a quarter. Entries will close June 1st. If you are going to Denver and Montana, enter at Boise. See advertisement.

THE NEXT SESSION of the San Francisco Veterinary College begins in this city June 10th. Catalogues will be sent on application to M. L. Parncoast, Secretary, 510 Golden Gate avenue. See advertisement.

The California bred pacer You Bet 2:12 1/2 by McKinney, that was quite a good three year old when first brought over the mountains three years ago by P. W. Hodges, is now the property of Channey Sumner, of Galena, Kan. The sexless son of McKinney will be campaigned this season through the Western Circuit by Frank Ervin, who now has him in his stable at Kansas City, Mo. It was Frank Ervin who campaigned Don 2:07 1/2 for Mr. Sumner two years ago. Ervin has at the Kansas City track the following other record horses: Riley B. 2:06 1/2, who has been in his stable since he was such a good three year old two years ago, and the Oklahoma mare Little Squaw (3) 2:09 1/2. Both of these two look like sure enough 2:05 pacers this year and he will be at a few Grand Circuit meetings with them.

Death of Colonel Dickey.

Every road driver in San Francisco and many elsewhere will be pained to learn of the death last Monday of Col. James R. Dickey, one of the pioneer horsemen of this State, and for years a popular caterer to the public at the famous road house near Golden Gate Park known as Dickey's. The following interesting account of his life, written by one who knew him intimately, was published in the Call of this city last Tuesday:

Colonel Dickey has been a familiar figure to two generations. His life in the city, singularly enough, was spent among the sandhills. From the early sixties to the present time he was identified with the roadhouses, patronized by the men of finance, politics and brain-workers generally, who found temporary surcease from business struggles in a drive to the beach, with a breakfast or a lunch at some popular wayside place.

Born in Madison County, New York, Colonel Dickey's youthful ambition took him to the metropolis. Two years after he had arrived there the discovery of gold lured him to California. It was in June, 1850, that he arrived in this State. For ten years he brushed against fortune and misfortune while struggling for the attainment of wealth in the mines. Partial success smiled upon his efforts, and with a small fortune, accumulated by the endurance of hardships, he came to San Francisco determined to win.

San Francisco was at that time a seething, bristling community. Men made money quickly, and it was spent with a lavish hand by those who had hit the nail of success on the head. Men of means in their leisure hours drove to the beach over the old road which now runs by Ingleside to the ocean. Colonel Dickey saw the possibilities of a fortune in the establishment of a roadhouse at the point of intersection of the road with the beach. He built the old Ocean House, the first of its kind on this Coast. Millionaires made this place famous in the old days. Within its four walls at one time or another the bonanza kings, the speculators and the gay, strong men of the early days supped and drank in effervescing wine to a life that was full of excitement and struggle. Colonel Dickey's cuisine and wines became famous.

His patrons were all men of endeavor. Many of them owned horses of speed and blood. Colonel Dickey himself was an admirer of horseflesh. After a few years of this life he conceived the idea of building a racetrack in the vicinity of his road resort. Close to the Ingleside track of today he constructed a half-mile racecourse. It was on this track that the famous Norfolk and Lodi met, the first race of acknowledged thoroughbreds in the far West.

A defect in title drove Colonel Dickey away from the old Ocean House in 1865. Colonel Dickey moved to Calistoga, where he conducted a hotel adjoining the springs. This proved but a slow, uncongenial venture and his return to San Francisco followed hard upon his departure from the dunes, winds and fogs. With Ned Bennett he started the Turf House, situated upon the northern side of the peninsula, a new road to the beach. His next move took him to the old half-mile track, about a mile from the Cliff House. From 1869 to 1874 this was his habitation, and the name of Dickey became once more a byword to the old-timers.

Colonel Dickey, in company with Harris R. Covey, J. N. Killip and Charles M. Chase, built the Bay District race course in 1874. It was by all odds the finest racing grounds which had been constructed in California up to that time, and not many in the United States were nearly its equal. The Ocean View track, on which of the first of the $20,000 purses, heats of four miles, running, were run, had become sadly dilapidated, and that at its best was far from being suitable for a metropolitan racing ground.

A half-mile track on the Point Lobos road was the only harness racing place on this side of the bay, and while the track at Oakland was good in itself the appointments were inferior. The trip across the bay was a great drawback, and the Treat track, where Occident and Lucy trotted, was still further out of the way and subject to the same objections.

A great many of the wealthy men of San Francisco in those days were fond of driving, but the Point Lobos road was the only ground on which that taste could be gratified, and the road houses along the route were not very satisfactory.

The projectors of the Bay District were well aware that a really first class place would bring liberal success, and planned accordingly. The track was expensive to construct among the sand hills, where deep cuts and corresponding fills had to be made. Quite a hill inside the limits had to be cut down in order not to obstruct the view. Hundreds of Chinamen moving the hill into low places was a queer sight to visitors lately arrived from the East. The top coating to cover the sand had to be hauled from a distance, and when course, grand stand, club house, hotel and stables were completed a large sum was invested. The estimate that the wealthy people of San Francisco would aid the enterprise was based on good grounds. A club was organized with a membership fee of $500, and more than a hundred signed the roll.

Colonel Dickey was a potent element in securing members. His capacity as a caterer was of the highest order. Urbane and accomplished in the art of pleasing, an old-time resident of California and acquainted with nearly all the prominent men of the State, his department of the partnership—hotel and club house—was conducted in the best manner. His associates were capable and the place was thronged with visitors from the day of the opening.

Safe to say the Bay District Association contained more very wealthy men than any other company of a like character in this country. It was the very first club in the United States to place all the officers on the salary list. Permanent judge, secretary, superintendent, clerk of the course, etc., were paid liberally and the money was allowed for purses and premiums on a generous scale. With the exception of the first of the series at Ocean View, all the big $20,000 and $30,000 purses, heats of four miles, were seen on the Bay District, and the largest purses and stakes for trotters in California were decided on that track.

Colonel Dickey was the only one connected with the Bay District from the day of the opening until it was closed and was the last survivor, though the oldest of the partners.

With the death of Colonel Dickey the last of the "old roadsters" have passed away. In the prime of his days Dickey's name stood for many things and its very sound awakens in the minds of the old millionaires memories of dinners and entertainments which cost thousands of dollars. It is said that on special occasions when the drivers of trotters had gathered at the old Bay District Dickey's sheds covered $150,000 in horseflesh, while the owners on the inside made merry with the fleeting hours. There is no more of this now. The bicycle and the street car have popularized these out-of-town resorts. The old-timer behind a span of trotters making this road resort the goal of his off-duty hours has given way to all classes carried from town by car, wheel and every variety of horse and vehicle.

Gathered about the table and green cloth at Dickey's these men of money and political influence met in social spirit and congeniality. Here men sat down, lost thousands among themselves and smilingly ordered a dinner for the company. Nearly every regular patron owned one or more fine horses. Differences of opinion would arise and nothing would settle matters but a race.

A few years ago Colonel Dickey proposed a scheme to the Park Commissioners and it was all but consummated. At the end of the speed track alongside the line of sheds he planned the erection of a park resort. This was to be his last venture. His own money was offered for the building of a handsome casino, of which he was to be absolute proprietor. The hitch came in a legal technicality—some State law antedating the charter—which placed the ban upon the sale of liquors in the park.

Recently Colonel Dickey was called before the Police Commissioners to show cause why his rooms in this his last resort should not have their walls lowered in accordance with police regulations. He appeared and said: "Gentlemen, my place was built for gentlemen and for ladies escorted by gentlemen. If you tear down the walls the roofs and sides will fall in and rather than this should happen I will close my doors." Some of the Police Commissioners visited Dickey's and their report was such that neither the walls nor the sides fell in.

Many a man has felt the kindness of Colonel Dickey. He was unostentatious in his charity and whole-souled in everything he did. During the last days of the Bay District many an unfortunate horseman was placed upon his feet by the ready generosity of Colonel Dickey.

A few years ago Colonel Dickey lost his wife. Since then his health steadily failed. A trip East to his wife's home did him no good. During his last days one of the greatest pleasures of California's most famous road house proprietor was to sit around with a few of his old friends and tell the story of the past over and over again. Running beneath the reminiscence gossip would be an ever-present regret that he had outlived his wife, who had been his companion in all his adventures.

The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon and was largely attended. The floral tributes consisted of twenty-five beautiful pieces and several wreaths. In the sentiment of sympathy expressed in floral offerings many well known citizens joined.

The officiating clergyman read the service provided by the Book of Prayer. The Press Club Quartet, consisting of Fletcher Tilton, Charles Goetting, D. M. Warde and Charles Parent, sang "Still, Still With Thee," "Consolation" and "Good Night." The parlors where the service was held were appropriately decked with flowers. The pallbearers were: P. B. Quinlan, C. J. Reilley, Dr. William Bryan, Alex. McCord, William Bridge, Martin O'Day, J. M. Wilkens, Judge James Harworth, Captain Stone, Mr. Rust, E. Gladwin and A. B. Patrick. The body was borne to Laurel Hill Cemetery for interment.

The Natural Trotter.

The real value of blood lines and the greatest proof of the ability to transmit speed and racing capacity is found in the colt trotter. For many years fast horses sprang up from more or less obscure breeding, and in some instances from absolutely unknown ancestry. As a consequence a few misguided men insisted that blood lines, heredity and pedigrees were delusions, and by citing instances of cold-blooded performers sought to disprove the theory that like begets like or the likeness of some ancestor, and to deride the idea that breeding was a science. It is true that during the past twenty-five years several trotters have accomplished great deeds in whose veins there flowed very little blood from whence might come the trotting instinct, and even today such an occurrence is not altogether uncommon.

While this can be said of the matured trotter it is not so of the precocious colt trotter, for this distinguished member of the trotting family is always found to have a trotting inheritance. If there is an instance of a very fast two year old that was not the descendant of a trotting brood sire and dam, we have never heard of it, and this fact alone is the greatest proof of the value of blood lines. The colt trotter, as he has come to be called, is the acme of scientific breeding; he is valuable almost necessarily for two reasons; he can be raced in colt stakes if his owner wishes, and most important of all, he can be allowed to mature into a trotting race horse. A fast colt is an assurance that his owner has a trotter, for one does not have to wait through the months of development to know that the genuine article is there. A colt that can not trot may develop into a trotter, while one that can trot is sure to, or if he does not the horse is not to blame. By a colt trotter, a natural trotter is meant, not one that after months of grueling succeeds in trotting a mile, but one that from the first has speed and can brush fast quarters without being forced. The natural trotter at colthood should make the crack trotters at maturity, and will do so if they are judiciously trained. The greatest trotters in America to-day were colt trotters. Taking, for examples the four that have been so much discussed of late—The Abbot, Cresceus, Boralma and Charley Herr. The former, while owned by a man that disapproved of early training, showed extreme speed at three, and when four trotted in 2:11. Cresceus was a mighty three year old; Boralma trotted as a two year old in 2:17, and Charley Herr was a fast yearling. Directum, the mightiest trotter ever seen, was a wonderful colt. Nancy Hanks was the sensational three year old of her year, and Peter the Great trotted in 2:15 at two years of age.

A fast colt, when allowed to develop and mature, with careful training, will make a better horse than one that has little or no speed during colthood, for the latter has more to learn than the former. It is not the possession of speed that prevents many of the best colts from becoming high-class horses at maturity, but the injudicious hammering that the trainers give them, for many men fail to distinguish the difference between early education and what they are pleased to term training. The ideal colt or natural trotter to-day would be one that could trot a quarter in thirty-five seconds as soon as he was thoroughly broken and taught what was wanted of him. This would be natural speed; and as a matter of course the colt would have to be a gaited trotter, needing nothing in the way of artificial appliances. Such a paragon of horseflesh would, if allowed to develop, become a very fast matured trotter, and would be able to receive light training as a youngster without the slightest ill effects—in fact, would thrive and develop better in every way than if allowed to run out until he was older.

By all the laws of heredity such a condition will surely come, and within the next few years, for while the trotting gait is not a natural one in the sense that a gallop is to thoroughbreds, it has been brought to such a state of excellence that yearlings now have as much speed when bridle wise as they ever do.

Generations of trotting blood, when produced by careful selections, will surely bring the trotter to at least an approximate state of excellence. As soon as youngsters, as the result of inheritance, trot naturally, colt trotting will not be looked upon as injurious to the future prospects of the animal, always provided the trainer does not have to be taught how to train. What is needed now as much as anything is a school for trainers.—Kentucky Stock Farm.

A Clever Ad.

The following ad, which appeared in a Manchester, England, paper, September 16, 1829, was recently unearthed by the London sporting paper, The Referee:

SPANKER.

The property of O—D—, Saturday, the 16th of September next, will be sold, or set up for sale, at Skibberdeen:

A strong, staunch, steady, sound, safe, sinewy, serviceable, strapping, supple, swift, smart, sightly, sprightly, spirited, sturdy, shining, sure-footed, sleek, smooth, spunky, well-skinned, sized and shaped sorrel steed, of superlative symmetry, styled Spanker; with small star and snip, square-sided, slender-shouldered, sharp-sighted, and steps singularly stately; free from strain, sprain, spavin, spasms, springhalt, sciatica, staggers, strangles, seeling, sellander, surfeit, seams, strumous swellings, sorrancess, scratches, splint, squint, seurf, sores, scattering, shuffling, shambling-gait, or symptoms of sickness of any sort.

He is neither stiff-mouthed, shabby-coated, sinew-shrunk, spur-galled, saddle-backed, shell toothed, slim-gutted, surbated, skin-scabbied, short-winded, splay-footed or shoulder-slipped, and is sound in the sword-point and stifle joint. He has neither, sick spleen, sleeping-evil, set-fast, snaggle-teeth, sand-crack, subcutaneous sores or shattered hoofs; nor is he sear, sulky, surly, stubborn, or sullen in temper. Neither shy nor skittish, slow, sluggish or stupid.

He never slips, strips, strays, stalks, starts, stops, shakes, snivels, snuffles, snorts, stumbles or stalks in his stall or stable, and scarcely or seldom sweats. Has a showy, stylish switch of the tail or stern, and a safe set of shoes on; can feed on stubble, straw, sedge or Scotch grass. Carries sixteen stone with surprising speed in his stroke over a six-foot sod or stone wall. His sire was the Sly Soberides on a sister of Spindle-Shanks, by Sampson, a sporting son of Sparkler, who won the sweepstakes and subscription plate last session at Sligo. His selling price sixty-seven pounds sixteen shillings and sixpence sterling.

At a recent meeting of the directors of the New England Breeders Association it was voted to hold a horse show at Readville, next September. During the week of the breeder's meeting. The horse show which they gave last fall was quite an expenso, but was very satisfactory to the management, and it is thought that it can be made a profitable as well as a pleasing feature of their annual meeting.

J. Malcolm Forbes has entered his promising young trotter Admiral Dowey in the race for the three year olds at Brighton Beach. The colt is a son of Bingen 2:06 and Nancy Hanks 2:04. His speed inheritance is faster than that of any other trotter that has yet appeared, and horsemen everywhere will watch his performances this year with unusual interest.

There has been considerable discussion in this country and in Europe among veterinarians as to whether curb is transmissible unsoundness. It has been demonstrated that an injury can be transmitted, and it is certain that constitutional unsoundness is hereditary. It matters not then whether curb is an injury or constitutional defect; it is transmissible. The writer was shown several youngsters and was surprised at the tendency to curb in every one of them. The whole secret became plain when the stallion was shown.—Newark Call.

Mr. George H. Ketcham has sold the six months old colt Cresceus Dire, sire Cresceus, dam Miss Wooliver, a half-sister of Cresceus, to Mr. R. H. Plant, of Macou, for $5000.

From entries that have been published it looks as if there will be more good horses raced in 1901 than for several years.

Secretaries, now is the time to prepare for the races. Get everything in readiness and don't forget to order one of those Hess time announcers. They are simple and fill the bill.

Lord Derby 2:07 is entered in the $10,000 free-for-all purse of the New York Trotting Association. So is Charlie Herr 2:07. It will be seen that this race is no hippodrome affair.

Mr. C. A. Durfee's fine mare Rose McKinney, has a lusty looking black colt by Direct 2:55½. She will be bred to Mendocino this year.

There will be six days racing at the Inter-Mountain Fair, Boise, Idaho, September 16th to 21st. There is $1000 for 2:20 trotters and the same amount for 2:15 pacers. Entries close June 1st.

Kenney the Bikemau sold a McMurray cart to a gentleman at Bakersfield the other day, and when the buyer's friends saw it they ordered a couple more. The McMurray cart is all right.

Henry Elder, the oldest living road driver in New York, celebrated the anniversary of his ninety-fifty birthday on Saturday of last week.

Lord Derby 2:07 is said to be in the pink of condition, and many of the men who have watched Geers give him his work at Louisville this spring look for him to trot in 2:05 or better before next fall.

Sam Hoy's stallion Bayswater Wilkes has been bred to about forty mares so far this year. Among them are quite a number with fast records.

It is said that Grattan Boy 2:08 steps quarters in 32 seconds easy in his work. His admirers look for him to have something to say when it comes to dividing the purses for the fast class of trotters.

Lord Brilliant, the famous show horse for which Dr. John L. Wentz recently refused $10,000, was sold at auction in Boston some years ago for $125.

Charley Doblo has taken his horses in training to Syracuse, N. Y. In his stable are Jack D. 2:11½, Perry Vincent 2:20½, Mattie Smeltz 2:27½ and four or five green ones.

John Dickerson will have charge of General B. F. Tracy's horses this season, and will also train and drive Lady Geraldine 2:11½, winner of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Stake at Detroit last year.

A handsome six year old mare, well bred and speedy, is offered for sale together with a pneumatic road buggy, a pneumatic road cart and a new harness for $500. Can be seen at Kelly's Stable, 1629 Pine street.

According to several watches Jack Curry drove old Azote 2:04½, a half mile in 1:07 on the New York speedway two weeks ago. The old fellow has some of his speed left, but a half in 1:07, if the best he could do, is only a relic.

Superintendent John Bradburn, of Village Farm, owns the last of the get of the dead sire Mambrino King. It is a brown filly, foaled in July, 1900, and is out of Brilliant by Almont Jr. 2:26, second dam Topaz by Strathmore.

Mr. C. E. Parks, of this city, has put his seven year old gelding Imp 2:22½ by Diablo into training again. Imp is in the hands of Jo Corey, who has charge of the horses that Grant Lapham has been training, Mr. Lapham having gone East with Phoebe Childers.

James Butler has bought of Frederick T. Steinway the black colt by Direct 2:05½ that is credited with a trial in 2:20 last year at Empire City Park. Mr. Butler has changed the name of the fast three year old trotter from Josef Hoffmann to Direct Light, and has entered him at Brighton Beach.

A syndicate of Canadian horsemen authorized Frank Secord to buy the Chicago pacer Major Muscovite 2:07½ for $10,000. The owner of the horse, Eugene Sullivan, not only refused to dispose of the stallion at that figure but requested Mr. Secord not to make any more offers as he did not wish to part with his fast pacer.

The dam of Stam B. 2:11½ was bred to Zombro 2:11 last week and the dam of Zombro has been bred to Stam B. There is reciprocity as well as good sense. Suppose the result of these two matings is a colt and a filly; how would it do to mate them? A tabulation of the foal's pedigree would be a curious and interesting study.

John Blue's three year old pacer by Diablo 2:09½ out of a mare by Alexander Button, that he purchased recently, is already showing speed of a high order. He has had but very little training and when Blue got him two months ago was in very poor condition. However, he worked a mile in 2:26 the other day and a quarter in 34 seconds.

It is reported that C. W. Lasell, of Boston, owner of Oakhurst Stock Farm, Whitinsville, Mass., the home of Rubinstein 2:05, Terrill S. 2:10½ and other good ones, has publicly declared that he will become a professional driver. Mr. Lasell is also the owner of the three year old Allerton colt Melton that he recently paid W. J. Young, of Lexington, $5000 for.

Mr. H. K. Devcreux, of Cleveland, Ohio, has sent us a photograph of the handsome and now historical $1000 cup won by his champion stallion John A. McKerron 2:10 at Readville last year. While the photograph is an excellent one it can only give a suggestion of the great beauty of the cup, which is of an elegant design and faultless workmanship.

During the past two or three seasons Cresceus 2:04 has finished his preparation at the Glenville track, Cleveland, O., but it is now reported that he will shortly be shipped to Oakley Park, Cincinnati, where he will remain until July 4th, when he makes his first public appearance of the season in an attempt to beat The Abbot's wagon record of 2:05½.

Highland Baron 2:30, the fashionably bred trotting stallion formerly at the head of the Bonner Farm stud, is to be docked and transferred into a high stepper. The horse is now owned by Thomas W. Lawson, who bought him at the closing out sale of the Bonner Farm trotters last year. Highland Baron is by Baron Wilkes 2:18, from Irma 2:18½ by Nutwood 2:18½.

Addison 2:11½ is now being driven over the park roads by Mrs. T. J. Crowley of this city. Addison, by the record he holds, is the fastest horse ever driven in Golden Gate Park by a lady. His kind, tractable disposition makes him an ideal road horse, and as few of either the trotters or pacers driven there have more speed than he can show, his appearance in the road brigade is in itself quite an attraction.

A. H. Miller of Buffalo, New York, has sold Agitato 2:09 to E. J. Trantor, and the son of Steinway will go into the stable of W. B. McDonald at Jewettville to be trained for the campaign this season. When Keating took his fast pacer East in 1899, Agitato had a very severe attack of distemper and was in poor condition all last year in consequence. He has wintered well, however, and is believed to be all right again.

Dr. J. W. Madara, a former well known Kentucky breeder of trotters, has been appointed assistant surgeon in the United States Army, and has received his commission from General Miles. His orders were to proceed at once to San Francisco and report to the commanding officer of the Department of California, there to be assigned to duty in the Philippines, where he has been on a similar duty for the past two years.

John A. McKerron's breeding season is about finished and Tanner will soon start fitting him for matinee engagements. The champion to wagon has been well and carefully wintered, he is as sound a horse as lives and with his well-known speed and gameness he should add much to his reputation this year. He has been bred to fifteen high-class record mares and his prospective foals should give him a good start as a sire.—American Sportsman.

A Lexington correspondent writes: At the February sale of Woodard & Shanklin, J. H. Thayer purchased the yearling bay filly Tourmaline by the Bondsman, dam Moonstone (2) 2:28 (dam of San Mateo 2:13½) by Sultan, second dam Montana Maid by George Wilkes, for which he paid $600. Since he took his stable to the Louisville track Mr. Thayer has worked the filly a little, and she has shown that she is a most promising youngster. It is stated that Mr. Thayer has been offered $2500 for her by Fred Gerken, of New York.

Hi Hogboom is handling quite a string of horses at Sacramento. He recently swapped horses with Sam Hoy and got Monroe S. 2:20 and is getting him ready for the races. He is just breaking a pacer belonging to Mr. B. W. Cavanaugh, of Sacramento, that is as racy a looking youngster as we have seen for some time. He is by Gossiper 2:14½ out of a mare by Almont Patchen, and as one would suppose from that breeding, will not stand still long enough for Hi to tell how fast he has shown. Those who know Mr. H. may doubt this statement, but it is a fact nevertheless.

After the racing season of 1901 is over Daniel 2:07½ and Connor 2:03½, will be driven to polo in an effort to reduce the world's team record for pacers which is at present 2:08, made by Robert J. and John R. Gentry at Glens Falls, N. Y., October 8, 1897. Alta McDonald is of the opinion that the two Rochester horses are capable of turning the trick and local horsemen have great faith in what he says. Both horses are very steady and recover from breaks easily. It is figured that if Connor can step to pole in 2:04 he can pace Daniel to a 2:06 clip or even better.

R. O. Newman of Visalia claims the name of My Direct for a black colt with no marks, foaled April 28, 1901. The sire of this colt is Direct 2:05½, and the dam Daisy Basler 2:20, second dam by Pasha son of Sultan third dam by A. W. Richmond. The colt is entered in the Breeder's Futurity.

One of the best looking green trotters we have seen this year is a six year old bay gelding by Bayswater Wilkes that is in Sam Hoy's string at Sacramento. He is a trotter and a large rangy fellow with plenty of good looks and style. He has had no work to speak of but can march a mile inside of 2:30 and ought to be a good horse for the green classes. His dam is Clara Belle by Privateer.

The Kentucky Stock Farm Futurity, value $7500, for foals of 1901, to be trotted as three year olds, has just closed with over 750 entries, the got of over 200 stallions. Allerton 2:09½ leads the list with thirty-eight eligibles, a wonderful percentage of his this year's foals. Boreal 2:15½, the sire of Boralma 2:08, is second to the popular son of Jay Bird, with twenty-eight to his credit. Twenty eligibles each have Moko, Ashland Wilkes 2:17½ and Bingen 2:06½, while close behind come Abdell 2:23, Prodgal 2:16, Baron Wilkes 2:18, Directum 2:05½, Direct 2:05½, Constantine 2:22½, San Mateo 2:13½, Sphinx 2:20½, Pilatus 2:09½, Wilton 2:19½, Jay Bird 2:13½ and Ponce de Leon 2:13.

J. Fred Roberts, of Denver, and George Bernard, of Colorado Springs, have agreed to race their trotters Trilby P. and Ima Electrice, the contest to take place at Colorado Springs the last of next month, when the driving club there will formally open its season. Mr. Roberts' mare has a mark of 2:13 and Mr. Bernard's mare is marked 2:15. As the rules of the association prohibit races for money the loser will settle for a spread to be given to the members of both the Denver and Springs clubs on the evening of the day of the race. Mr. Roberts' mare is the representative trotter of the Denver club and Mr. Bernard's mare, which he purchased only a short time ago, is said to be the best stopper in the club at the Springs. Both horses will be driven to wagon.

A fitting tribute is to be paid to the great "monarch of the homestretch," Robert McGregor, who has the additional distinction of being the sire of the champion Cresceus 2:04. George H. Ketcham of Toledo, Ohio, has purchased a large red-granite stone, and will erect it as a monument in his honor. Robert McGregor died at the Ketcham farm three years ago, and the remains of the grand old trotter are buried in a pretty grove that will be used as a cemetery for all his descendants that pass away. The monument will be erected at an early date and will be dedicated with appropriate exercises at the close of the racing season the coming autumn. It will be a costly one, and will have plenty of space on it for inscriptions of the most noted members of the McGregor family of trotters, consisting of the dates of foaling and death, the age of the animals, and a record of the best performances of each deceased member of the McGregor clan. And still they say horsemen are devoid of sentiment.

John Splan takes the Boralma side of The Abbot-Boralma argument. Here is what he says: "Boralma was born great. There has never been a time since he was two years old that he couldn't trot a part of a mile at a 2:00 gait. He has trained on from one class to another and never met a horse that could make him race. Everything he has been asked to do he has done, and I believe he has a chance to do more this year than any trotter ever did. It wouldn't surprise me to see this young horse beat The Abbot." Another Boralma devotee is Andy McDowell, who, like Splan, is a veteran of a hundred hard fought contests, and who has driven to their record two faster trotters than any other trainer in the country. And here is Andy's prophecy: "When you find a horse that has never been beaten, don't bet against him, especially if he has met the class of horses Boralma has and has won the kind of races he has won. Records don't count for anything, but when you go to comparing records just remember that Boralma's mark at four years old is as fast as The Abbot's was at five. Give the chestnut horse another year and a special preparation, such as the other horse had last year, and he'll make a record as fast as anybody's trotter."

The horseless age is gradually beginning to have a new meaning, writes Palmer Clark. Instead of being an age in which the noble animal had outlived its usefulness it is getting to be a case where his uses are exceeding his capacity to supply the demand. At no time in the history of the harness horse have good horses been so hard to find by a prospective buyer, and this also applies to ordinary horses as well. One Kentucky firm, which had contracted to furnish the British government with officer's mounts to the number of 1000, after scouring the entire south could secure only 150 of the grade desired at the contract price and consequently have applied for an addition of 50 per cent on the price agreed upon or they will relinquish the order. The large entry lists which seem to be the fortune of both early closing racing stakes as well as show classes at the horse shows do not present the anomalous situation that such conditions would apparently indicate, but only emphasize the fact that more people of the better class are entering the field of horsemanship, both for sport and profit than ever before, thereby enhancing values by the additional demand. The New Orleans horse show has just opened the circuit of Southern horse shows, which comprises Memphis, Mobile and Birmingham, with the largest field of entries ever recorded in the South. In the extreme Northeast, on the other hand, at Montreal the entry list was so large the management were forced to add another day to their advertised dates to accommodate all the exhibitors. These conditions are indeed gratifying to horsemen who have bravely stuck by the horse during all the years of depression and adverse report, and should forever silence praters about a mechanical age that is to supplant with some sort of artificial mechanism the Anglo-Saxon's inherent love for the living epitome of his own nature—the horse.

THE SADDLE.

The American Saddle Horse.

Below will be found an address delivered by General John B. Castleman of Louisville, on the American saddle horse, at the National Live Stock association of the United States, at its annual meeting at Salt Lake City. General Castleman is president of the American Saddle Horse Association of America, and is a leading authority on American saddle horses; he has done more than any other one man, probably to make the Kentucky gaited horse a favorite in the east and north and speaks with authority on all matters connected with that most attractive of all the equine race.

Mr. President, and Gentlemen of the Association: In accepting the invitation to address the National Live Stock Association, I honor myself in the opportunity to assure you of the united support of the interests you have asked me to present, and the cordial greetings of the good State of Kentucky, rather than in the hope of being able to contribute to the enlightenment of this great body.

In all ages people adapt their transportation to the conditions which are presented, and gradually conform to the desire for the increased comfort and luxury. In new countries the horse's back transports man and commerce, and as countries develop and roads are made and railroads are built, the horse's back is relieved by the wheeled conveyance, the horse's shoulders perform the duties which his back has rendered, and finally the steam engine propels commerce and lightens the burden of man's best friend. In the transportation of man and produce, the easier gait is a necessity in most countries and at times where the horse is primarily used, and the ambling horse has been used in many countries for many centuries. As cities develop and the necessity for the saddle horse is gradually diminished, there is a corresponding diminution in the actual use for easier gait. Adapted to the use of mere exercise, any horse obtainable by the rider is put in use and is called a "saddle horse." So in all the world any horse used for driving is called a "road horse," but we know the "road horse" as that horse that has sprung chiefly from the loins of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, the great progenitor of "road horses" foaled in 1849, which in more than 50 years has produced a family distinctive in breed, in conformation, and in performance, which we have come to recognize as the "standard" or trotting horse. This horse, thus bred and trained, is known throughout the world as an American horse. We have in this country developed no great family of heavy horses and we have developed no family of small horses, but nature, taste, necessity and conservatism have combined to bring into being that horse which all of these influences have presented to the world as an American horse, the result of American selection and American training; and now it is that he is carried to the Old World for pleasure sometimes, sometimes for the stud, and the strains of the older country are grafted upon this American production, the great horse is being propagated with a view to building there, as we have here, the type contributing to the pleasure of man.

Back beyond the "standard horse" is an American family, antedating by ten years the foundation of the trotting family, when there came into Fayette county, Kentucky, a thoroughbred stallion called Denmark, foaled in 1839, there was produced from this horse's progeny the great family of what we know as "the American saddle horse." The sire of this Denmark was an imported English thoroughbred known as imp. Hedgeford, brought to America in 1825. When Denmark was brought to Kentucky he was bred to a fine and easy gaited mare, and this mare produced colts known as Gaines' Denmark and Rob Roy and Muir's Denmark. Gaines' Denmark, bred by careful selection, produced great stallions, and by continued adherence to type, came the family as distinctive in conformation and manner and gait as is the "standard horse," differing somewhat from other horses, finer than any and more useful than all.

The heredity ability to learn the easy gaits of the "saddle horse" doubtless comes from the ambling horse on which the thoroughbred was originally crossed, but the tendencies of "the American saddle horse" need to be developed just as the hereditary running tendencies need to be developed, and the heredity tendency in either is manifest by training.

"The American saddle horse" and the "standard horse" are nowhere else to be found. Both alike are American, born under our flag, claimed by our country, and entitled to the respect and consideration of the world everywhere. Sometimes it appears that the saddle bred horse shows great speed in harness; sometimes it is that the standard bred horse shows adaptability to the saddle; but these instances in either case are exceptional. It very often appears that the saddle mare, crossed upon the standard stallion, produces a great trotter; generally it is that the standard bred stallion on the saddle bred mare produces finish and beauty and utility, useful under the saddle, either in the roughest or in the easiest gaits, useful in light harness, and adaptable and beautiful always. In the selection and adherence to type, the average height of the "American saddle horse" is approximately 15.2 hands, and the average weight approximately 1050 pounds, and he has endurance, substance, remarkable intelligence, courage and docility. Under the saddle, in harness, used in either capacity, he equally adapts himself to either service, and the experience of the Confederate War demonstrated that no cavalry horse of the armies of the world has ever equaled him in endurance and movement.

For the better protection of this horse and the more uniform preservation of type, there was in 1891 established the American Saddle Horse Register and Stud Book. The interest induced by the foundation of this stud book has created a desire never before existing for obtaining a perfect type, and the result is that in many cases the greatest possible caution is exercised in the breeding of a horse whose number it not large, but whose characteristics are most pronounced. When the stud book was published there were inserted as foundation stock (just as the foundation stock of the "standard horse" is provided for in his original stud book) stallions thought to be worthy the distinction by reason of breeding and production.

In most of these foundation stallions there was a strong admixture of thoroughbred blood, and two of them trace their lineage to the dam of Denmark, and possibly owe to this origin their reproduction of the American saddle horse.

The history of cavalry service shows no parallel to the continuous fast movement of the cavalry under Morgan, and this service was rendered chiefly by the American bred saddle horse, and this horse of singular beauty and smooth, fast walk, stood the terrible strain where horses of other breeds gave way under the test of long marches.

It was not unusual to have these saddle bred horses last through the four years of the Confederate War, and it is a notable fact that one of the great progenitors of this breed of horses, Gaines' Denmark, entered the Confederate service at an advanced age, served two years with his descendants and collateral horse kin, setting his numerous offspring an example of courage and endurance, returning in 1865 to his original owner, honorably discharged as a soldier, and resumed his domestic duties. It is fair to admit that Gaines' Denmark did not volunteer his services, but entered the army somewhat after the fashion of the horse ridden by a member of Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge's regiment in Morgan's cavalry. The good soldier exhibited with pride a handsome horse to his colonel and said to his distinguished commander, "This is not only a good horse, but he has a good pedigree. He was got by 'Difficulty,' out of 'A Kentucky Stable.'"

And the great horse John Dillard, another foundation sire of the breed of the American saddle horse, did similar service from 1861 to 1865, carrying the very good soldier who was his master throughout the Confederate War, and sharing with Gaines' Denmark the honor of leadership and example and comradeship as he served in camp and on hard marches and in battle, and returned home when the war was ended bearing on his tireless back the young master, grown then to mature manhood, and resumed his duties in developing the great family of which he was an ancestor. Wallace, as far back as five years ago, accredited twenty horses in the 2:30 list among the standard (trotting) horses of the country to dams sired by John Dillard.

A visit a year ago to my farm by a representative of the German government for the purpose of getting information in respect to breeding of cavalry horses led me to emphasize the unequalled merits of the horse whose four years of service in war had proven him to be the great cavalry horse of the world.

But this horse cannot be bought for the very small price which our government limits, and which limit provides a horse possessing the governmental requirements as to size, color and soundness—yet our government prescribes nothing as to movement and breeding.

It is a matter of fact that the breeders of the American saddle horse have found it essential always to preserve and propagate a strong infusion of thoroughbred blood, thus giving the finish, the courage, and the beauty which the cross with the thoroughbred has been found to produce.

The thoroughbred horse is himself not a saddle horse. His action is different, his stride is not easy, his temper is often objectionable, but by proper selection there has been produced in the family of American saddle horses the most desirable characteristics of the thoroughbred. We have, in addition to the finish and courage, his ear, his eye, his shoulder, his coupling, his clean hard legs. There is no horse anywhere whose traits are more certainly transmitted than are those of the American saddle horse. Therefore it is that the stallions of the American saddle horse, crossed judiciously, produce horses of best utility, produce the best horse for the range, produce the best cavalry horses that can be found in the world, having the greatest intelligence, the fastest walk, the easiest canter and the clearest trot. The wish for these horses is coming not only from all sections of the country, but from the foreign countries as well, and it has not been possible in recent years to furnish the stallions for which there has been an active demand.

And, Mr. President, in addition to the general merits of the American saddle horse which I have undertaken to enumerate, this horse is most frequently the champion in light harness contests, in high-stepping contests, in jumping contests, and in the plain-gaited or walk, trot and canter contest in our horse shows. And even the barbarous practice of docking his tail when he is put to some of these uses, although eliminating one of his chief ornaments and robbing him of the God-given power of self-defense, does not destroy his matchless beauty and his unequalled grace.

SADDLE NOTES.

Fred E. Mulholland has been appointed presiding judge of the Montana racing circuit and R. J. Havey will be the official starter. Both are well qualified for their positions and their appointments meet with favor.

The entire receipts at the California Jockey Club's Oakland track to-day will be turned over to the Fabiola Hospital, a most worthy institution. The club has made Fabiola Day a feature of the annual spring racing here and it always brings out a large crowd and puts a big sum of money into the hospital's treasury.

The Law and the Pari-Mutuel in France.

[New York Rider and Driver]

According to the laws of France, no race meeting may be held without the consent of the Minister of Agriculture, and only by associations having for their object the improvement of the breed of horses in France, and approved by that minister after consultation with the official who has control of the government horse-breeding establishments. These associations must submit their accounts for the approval of the Ministers of Agriculture and Finance. A similar condition of affairs could be reached in this country by creating at Washington a National Racing Commission (on the lines of our State Racing Commission) to act with the Secretary of Agriculture in giving authority to hold race meetings. The law in France also makes it a penal offense for any person to offer to bet with all comers, in any way, directly or through an intermediary, or in any form at any race course. This law applies equally to those who permit such betting (book-making) on their property, etc., also to those who sell tips. Associations which enforce the above laws and conditions are allowed, by special request of the Minister of Agriculture, to carry on the mutual system of betting (pari-mutuel) exclusively, subject to a percentage agreed upon. The law provides that an assessment of 2 per cent. of the gross receipts of the mutuals be made for the benefit of local charities, and another allowance of 1 per cent. of the gross receipts for the horse-breeding interests of the country. In 1887, the first year of this arrangement, the money that passed through the treasury of the Jockey Club from the pari-mutuel amounted to 13,549,905 francs, and this has increased during the twelve years, until, in 1899, the total for the year was 64,432,265 francs (over $12,000,000) an increase of 68 per cent. These mutual machines are placed in the paddock, on the lawns and in the stands, but they all constitute one pool and all tickets have the same result, no matter where they may be bought. In the early years of this system most of the betting was done in the paddock; now more than half is done outside by the general public. The advantage of this form of betting is so apparent that it seems silly not to adopt it here. There could be no city pool rooms, because there would be no published odds, or "post odds," the basis of the pool room's business; there would be little inducement to lose a race purposely, because there would be no way of betting against a horse; furthermore, it would divert the profits of book making from the pockets of a class that does harm to racing, and turn it, through the mutuals, into the treasuries of the racing associations, whence it would be distributed, according to law, where it would benefit the poor and improve the types of our native horse. The difficulty at present in the way of this is the clause that forbids the posting up on the grounds of a race course of any sign or list of starters, etc.; but this was aimed at the exhibition of book-making, not the pari-mutuel, and should be changed.

At the Traps.

The trap shooting card for to-morrow at the Ingleside grounds includes both live bird and blue rock shooting.

The regular monthly pigeon shoot of the Olympic Gun Club will commence at 10 o'clock in the morning with the club match at fifteen pigeons, following which, six and eight bird pools will be shot.

The San Francisco Gun Club members will use the blue rock traps at Ingleside to-morrow for the May trap shoot of the club. On the 19th inst. the club will hold their regular live bird shoot, one week earlier than usual in the month. The ground will be used on the 24th and 26th for the California Inanimate Target Association Tournament.

The Empire Gun Club shoot across the bay at Alameda Junction will doubtless draw a good attendance of trap shooters. An excellent program of events is offered. Besides the regular club events, the open-to-all contests for the Yellowstone and Schumacher trophies will be resumed.

The program for the Olympic Gun Club blue rock shoot to-morrow is an attractive one. Five races are billed, the first at 25 targets, club race, followed by three 15 bird events, high guns, 50 cents entrance, with added money by the club. The closing race will be an open-to-all merchandise prize shoot at 25 blue rocks, entrance $1. Gold and silver bars will be given for 25 and 15 consecutive breaks. The shooting will commence promptly at 10 A. M.

The California Wing Club shoot last Sunday brought out sixteen guns to the traps. In the club shoot at fifteen birds, five straights were made. Haight and Feudner were the high guns for the day, each losing but one bird. Following the club shoot, eight bird pools were shot. A summary of the scores is the following:

The Union Gun Club members turned out in force at Ingleside on Sunday last. The regular club events and practice shooting kept the sets of blue rock traps going at a lively clip throughout the day. Otto Feudner was the only shooter who made a straight string of 25 breaks. In the club handicap match the high men were C. W. Debonham, Fred Feudner and M. Burnell with 24 breaks each; they were tied in the contest for the monthly first class medal. For the second class medal five men tied with 17 breaks each. On the shoot off of the second tie between Fischer and Pisani the former won on the score of 7 to 5. In the ability handicap medal race W. H. Williamson, Fred Feudner and "Slade" tied; the shoot off will take place at the June meeting. In the side pool first money went to Fred Feudner and H. Justins annexed second money. In the club added money handicap race Ed Schultz, Fritz Walpert, H. Kerrison and H. Justins divided the purse. The scores in the club events for the day were the following:

Sportsmen's Banquet in San Jose.

The Santa Clara Fish and Game Protective Association banquet at the St. James Hotel, San Jose, on the evening of the 4th inst., was tendered by that organization to members of the recent Legislature and others interested, who had been instrumental in procuring the enactment of the new game laws. The affair was an enjoyable reunion and passed off in a very agreeable manner. Nearly 150 members of the association and invited guests sat down to the tables, and partook of an elaborate menu. President Dr. A. M. Barker was toast master and introduced the following speakers, who spoke upon various topics germane to the sentiment of the gathering: Jackson Hatch responded to the toast "Our Guests." Hon. Alden Anderson, of Suisun, made a happy speech in reply. Speaker Pendleton, of Los Angeles, next entertained the assembly. Deputy Fish Commissioner Charles Vogelsang responded to the toast "The State Fish Commission." Captain H. L. Wells, of the San Jose Mercury, illustrated the connecting links between "The Press and Game Protection." Leo Archer gave an entertaining response to "The Prosecution of Game Law Violators." Among the other speakers were Hon. Chas. M. Shortridge, State Senator Taylor, Horace Briggs of Colusa, Assemblyman Higgins of San Benito, Hon. Eli Wright, Joseph Patton and H. T. Payne, who spoke, as usual, of the decline of fish and game, the necessity of protection laws, etc., etc.

It was 2 o'clock in the morning when the speech making ended and the social gathering of the sportsmen was brought to a conclusion, but not before all present had unanimously passed a vote of thanks to Governor Gage for signing the game bill.

Mr. John Spalckhaver, who is at present managing the Coast business of the U. M. C., Remington and Colt's agency, has rapidly acquired a host of friends among the local and visiting sporting goods trade representatives and dealers.

Mr. Spalckhaver was the export manager, having the supervision of a large corps of travelling men, for the Union Metallic Cartridge Company in the New York office, an important branch of the big ammunition company's manifold business, requiring executive and diplomatic abilities to a high degree, which qualities have been observed and admired since the advent of the New York gentleman in this city.

The Bench Show.

The fifth annual dog show of the San Francisco Kennel Club opened on Wednesday morning with strong prospects for not only a successful exhibition but also for an assurance that the "gate" would be a healthy one. The bench show committee, Will S. Kittle, N. H. Hickman, E. Courtney Ford, Dr. F. W. D'Develyn assisted by Secretary J. P. Norman accomplished much and have worked hard and persistently for the success of the club show. The judging commenced at 3 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, Great Danes, Mastiffs, St. Bernards and Greyhounds were run through the inspection of Mr. Henry Jarrott and Mr. J. J. Lynn. Judging was commenced on the following forenoon and finished yesterday. The specials were partially awarded last evening, the visiting dogs dividing with the local cracks an elegant, handsome and liberal lot of cups and trophies, exceeding in value and design, in this respect, some of the Eastern shows.

The catalogue shows an entry of 617 dogs, which is a good showing for the fancy, notwithstanding the large number, comparatively, of Eastern dogs here. The quality of the dogs this year is, generally speaking, high class in nearly every breed, particularly among the small fellows.

Mastiffs, with the exception of one or two dogs, old champion California Cube, were hardly worth the time they took in the ring. St. Bernards showed a number of good ones among the fifty entries. Great Danes were well represented and introduced several good puppies and two handsome harlequins. Greyhounds showed coursing quality and good records for the few entered. Foxhounds were well represented and wore a general good lot.

Pointers and Setters, over 100, were better in quality than we have had for several years. Irish Water Spaniels were few but good. Cocker were plentiful, both local and Eastern and show class and quality to a degree in the aggregate. Collies were fairly good with several fine ones to make up for a showing of this breed not up to what we have noted in past years.

Bull dogs, Bull Terriers, Fox Terriers, Scotties and other terriers all showed class and quality in the extreme. The Eastern visitors, particularly Norfolk Kennels Fox Terriers, went through the blue ribbon bobbin at wholesale speed.

Pot and miscellaneous dogs were few and generally good. A full report and also the list of awards and specials will appear next week.

The Nervous Temperament of Dogs.

There are so many educated, thoughtful people who have taken up the keeping of dogs, that we may not unnaturally look for some reasons for such a course. It is not so many years since those who had anything to do with dogs were looked upon as belonging to the lowest class, and if by chance a breeder offered any of his surplus stock for sale, the general tone of letters he received was very different to what he will have in these modern times. A person who had a penchant for dogs, and who was locally looked to for guidance, was not unfrequently met with the term "dog dealer" in a tone of opprobrium.

In all probability the great attraction for dog-breeding or keeping is to be found in the possibility of always having them for companions, of being able to understand their wants, their ways and their habits, and lastly of one being able to keep them in smaller space than other livestock. We are able to admire them, to caress them, and to attend to their comforts in such a way as to make them fairly happy in themselves, and a source of pleasure to us. If, however, we wish to keep abreast of the times, and to produce such animals as are likely to be successful in these days of keen competition, we must study them far more deeply, so as to understand and to appreciate the fine qualities and the temperament of each individual.

If we look around and for a few moments take stock of the list of the most successful breeders, we shall find men and women capable of deep thought, and such as would be likely to be successful in other directions. We should seldom find any shallow-pated ignoramus amongst the successful ones, they would be incapable of deep thought upon any subject; how then should they be able to master the details of such a complicated piece of anatomy as the dog? We often find men in other spheres fond of what they call sport, but this generally means they simply follow up some line of onlookers because they derive a little pleasure from what fills the eye. The man who gambles on a horse-race frequently has never seen the animal upon which he spends his money, and he has "his bit on" from a most superficial knowledge of the horse in which he is interested. He has absolutely no sympathy with or knowledge of the animal.

On the other hand, we find some of our deepest thinkers, men of letters, and those who have had the benefit of the best possible education and training—clergymen, doctors, lawyers and such-like—taking the greatest possible interest in dog culture.

All this must tend to the benefit of the dog, and it is these points, which have been such great factors in bringing the dog of the day up to the high state of excellence, which we see at shows now. In former days our best shows always had a large number of good quality dogs, and even small shows could boast of a fair percentage of such animals; but in all cases the majority were "not in it" with the general quality to be found to-day. Compared with the exhibits seen at such a show as Manchester or the Crystal Palace, those of the old days would be found far behind. Every year, and indeed every week, something is being added to the world of dog science, and those who wish to be successful must keep abreast of the times.

It is therefore of the utmost importance that a dog exhibitor should be a man of perception, and of intellect sufficient to appreciate the various changes he may meet in his experiments. He must be able to see when he is off the right track, or when he has gone even a little too far in some direction. His breeding operations may have led him to seek for intensity of quality, but this may be at the expense of some other important developments, which he must make careful note of, and possible stop in that particular direction he has been going, or even have to turn back and go on a different road entirely. Disappointments are sure to meet everyone, and it is the man of intelligence who can most readily appreciate and learn from such what is meant. It will be a lesson to tell him he must try again. The less instructed would be likely to throw up the game as being an impossible one in which to achieve success. Indeed there are breeders who court failure because it thus tells him, like a danger signal, where they are. Thus the being able to appreciate their failures is as important as being able to express pleasure at success. Deterioration, instead of improvement, it quite as likely to result from their efforts. Their own ideas of what is best may be totally opposed to the ways of nature, and often one may be apparently working in the wrong way when really he has made a large step in the right direction—the very good he wished to reach—but it is not immediately apparent to the observation.

The efforts of breeders of all kinds of animals have produced a higher degree of excellence in a much easier stage of development. What is true of the thoroughbred horse and of cattle is equally true of the races of dogs. The working abilities, the habits, and dispositions of dogs have been materially changed for the better. Instinct and adaptability for work have been more easily discernible than in days gone by. Instinct is an indefinable something which we can vary well notice, and we can see its development. Instead of being dull and stupid from the first, we notice our Fox Terriers bright, lively and full of intelligence. By careful mating we may be able to still further increase this quality, and possibly increase other characteristics at the same time. In working any particular plan for improvement, we must have the law of correlation full before us, lest, whilst we attempt to get a great breaking away, we upset the balance and go backward instead of forward.

We must carefully study pedigrees, and, if possible, obtain a concentration of what we most urgently desire—qualities which have been in the possession of certain strains or of individual animals for several generations. If we want good fronts, we must, if possible, exclude all faulty ones from our breeding stud. If we want character we must find in which it has been most fully developed; and if we look for good heads, ears, or expression, we must see which line or family has been most celebrated for what we require, and then go to the best living specimen obtainable. We shall probably find after all our work that whilst we have effected changes in the shape, make and abilities, we have also brought about an alteration in the nervous disposition of the animal. We shall notice it in the general excitability of the animal. It will be noticed in his general busy disposition, his keener pluck, his being always ready to work, and his more lively and brighter disposition. We may also observe that he is much more easily excited, and this excitement may be of such a character that he is just as likely to seize friend as foe, and in such cases is more difficult to break of bad habits for which he has a penchant. In such cases we must be persistent in our treatment, never coarse nor too harsh as to break the spirit of an animal with such high-strung nerves. It is not a very difficult matter to break an ordinary farm-bred cart horse. Almost any hand, if a moderate rider, can mount him and lead him straight; but it is not so with the highly-bred blood horse. He must be mildly treated, and carefully handled, or he may do serious injury to himself or to those in charge of him. Such being the conditions under which a highly-bred nervous horse is managed, do they not in a great measure apply to Fox Terriers of high courage and good pedigree? The great object is to inspire confidence, without which none of the best qualities of the dog can be seen. He must be gently treated, and taught exactly what is wanted of him, and this will bring to the front his good points. He will be bold in the ring, literally asking for the prizes, instead of standing cowering, tail between legs, fear appearing in every action.—Fox Terrier Chronicle.

LATE ROD NOTES.

Harry Baum, Chas. Raynaud (the Fox) and George Rumpf fished Pilarcitos lake Sunday.

Reports from Boca state that the fishing is daily improving. Early during the week the river was high and muddy, but nevertheless some good catches of large sized rainbow were taken on a spoon by several anglers.

George and Allen Powers fished in the Truckee one day last week near Boca, using spoon and bait, and the catch was 30 rainbows, from eight to fifteen inches long, taken between eleven in the morning and three o'clock P. M.

Chas. B. Hollywood and George Walker fished the Los Gates last Sunday. A few fish, averaging about eight inches long, were taken with bait. The stream was high and muddy, the recent rains raised the water four feet during one day.

We regret to note the passing away in Cincinnati recently of Dr. Edwin N. Lowry who was, about two years ago, a prominent member of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club. Dr. Lowry was a gentleman of high standing in his profession and a sportsman and angler, endeared to his associates by reason of his genial disposition and many amiable qualities.

The Crockett Striped Bass Club will open the season at Rodeo to-morrow, so announces C. R. Laidlaw, the secretary. Chas. H. Kowell and other members of the San Francisco Club will attend.

Joe Bell caught a ten pound fish at Point Richmond on Sunday and a catch of eight large bass taken at the "drawbridge," Napa, on Sunday is reported.

Pilarcitos lake is open now for the angler. Last Sunday George Wentworth, Chas. Broidonstien, Arnold Glaser and Chas. Precht fished the lake, results were fair. Many bait fishermen were out in boats and along the banks, few fish were caught. Broidonstien, Precht and Glaser found that a fly and spoon gave fair returns. The fish averaged about nine inches. The killing flies now for this water are the coachman, red spinner, march brown, black and silver. For the morning's fishing the angler should use a bright silver spinner; later in the day when the sunlight is bright a burnished copper spoon is best.

Point Reyes until last Sunday had been the resort weekly of a large number of eager anglers; results generally were indifferent for most of the fishermen. Last Sunday Bert Spring and Will Patterson were the only fisherfolk present. Bert Spring caught 17 pounds of steelhead, none less than nine inches in length, in the "white house pool," about as fast as he could handle his tackle. After the rains there was a run of fresh fish, it seems, and the tide waters were teeming with hungry trout that snapped a No. 2 Wilson burnished copper spoon with a worm on the hook with avidity, in fact, while playing a fish, other trout would go for the bait and spoon. Mrs. Tom Irving caught fifty fish in a very short time during the morning. It looks as if the "regulars" missed what was probably the best day's fishing at the Point for this season.

Trout Flies—Their Seasons and Descriptions.

"All trout baits pale before the artificial fly, which is the most legitimate, the most scientific and most exciting of all the methods used."—Frank Forester.

The old anglers tied their fishing flies themselves, and, in fact, made all their fishing tackle, save, perhaps, lines. To-day, few men think of tying their general flies or making any tackle, owing to the expertness and moderate terms on the part of the professional manufacturers, though every careful angler is expected to be able to tie a fly or two on some occasions, just as every field sportsman should know how to load his gun shells in cases of emergency.

Though there are thousands of different shades and colors and dozens of sizes followed in making the artificial fly, there are but two distinct archetypes of the fly proper, if we exclude the English two-hook idea, which is merely the ordinary lure with two hooks instead of one. The difference in the two distinct designs from which the various patterns are made, though of marked degree, is hard for the tyro to distinguish, and as the majority of young anglers have never had this difference clearly pictured I will proceed to describe the matter in a brief word or two. The artificial trout fly known to us all is shaped thus: The wings flowing away from the shank of the hook in the opposite direction to the point, while the other pattern, which is known as the fluttering fly, is tied after this fashion: the wings flowing toward the shank instead of away from it, as in the make-up of our universal fly.

The difference in the water is in the fluttering fly's wings expanding and fluttering, instead of closing up to the hook like our first and most commonly used fly's wings.

Artificial flies are made of the wild turkey's tail, the tail of the American ruffed grouse, the neck and tail of the English grouse, the yellowish-tinged neck feathers of the ptarmigan, the tail of the cock and hen pheasants, the neck of both these, and the wing coverts of the hen; the black, white, brown and white-barred feathers from under the wing of the gray duck, wood duck, canvasback, mallard, teal and widgeon; the neck and tail of the peacock, the neck feathers of various colored cocks—commonly called hackles (black, red, yellow, gray, marled and white, for dyeing blue, green, plum, claret, brown, etc.)—the wings of the woodcock, starling and landrail; the tail of the wren, the tail, coverts and neck feathers of the guinea fowl; the various colored feathers of the macaw, the blue, red and yellow feathers in the tail of the same; the neck feathers of the cock of the rock, the neck, top pins and tail of the golden pheasant; the tail, tail coverts and neck of the great African buzzard; the rump coverts of the golden plover, the neck and tail feathers of the argus pheasant, the wings of the English jay, the tails and necks of parrots of every color, the topknot of the American kingfisher, the skin of the English species, the tail and wing feathers of the capercaillie, particularly those deeply and closely barred with white; the guinea fowl's feathers dyed green, orange and claret; the thickest and best ostrich feathers of various colors, the tame turkey's tail feathers of various tints, the feathers of the scarlet ibis, three or four barred feathers from the quail's tail, the tail of the long-tailed thrush, and the feathers of many other birds, besides gold, silver and bronze tinfoil; gold, silver and brass wire; every shade of Berlin wools, floss silk, the various colors and tints of pig's wool or mohair, the furs of the muskrat, field mouse, black, red and gray squirrel, mink, marten, young cub, coon cub, green monkey, porcupine belly, the ear of the English hare, the ear of the polecat and the fur of many other animals.

"To frame the little animal, provide
All the gay hues that wait on female pride;
Let nature guide thee—sometimes golden wire
The shining bellies of the fly require;
The peacock's plumes thy tackle must not fail,
Nor the dear purchase of the sable's tail,
Each gaudy bird some slender tribute brings,
And lends the glowing insect proper wings.
Silk of all colors must their aid impart,
And every fur promote the fisher's art;
So the gay lady with extensive care
Borrows the pride of land, of sea, of air;
Furs, pearls and plumes the glittering thug displays,
Dazzles our eyes and and easy hearts betrays."

—Gay.

On the streams the smaller flies should be used; on large ponds, lakes and rough waters, the large numbers. And this ancient advice, even set forth so long ago as the days of Charles Cotton, who contributed the information to Izaak Walton's Complete Angler, is a good general rule to follow: When the day is bright and where the water is clear, use small flies and plain colors, and in deep and dull waters and on dark days and in the evening flail the brighter and larger patterns. When you buy your flies, buy lots of them, for, be you tyro or practical rodster, you will lose them easier than you imagine. Be careful to select finely made and new goods—the best material from the best makers. Avoid the cheap, dried-up, duster-feather, clumsy, penny-a-dozen abominations. They are tied by shop girls who do not even know what they're used for, and sold by indifferent shopmen who never saw a trout stream and who couldn't distinguish a trout from a codfish. Let your flies come from persons who flail them as well as make and sell them. The man who does not angle and study the natural history of trout and trout flies cannot tie a fly correctly, and he will not—for penny-wise-and-pound-foolish business reasons—use proper material in its making. This is the fellow who never saw an artificial fly outside of a showcase and who would palm off dried-up goods on you, goods that would snap at the snail at the first cast, if anybody tried to flail them, and which, if they ever did get as far as the stream's surface, would sorely puzzle every trout who tried to solve the identity of the clumsy species. Buy of the reputable maker or dealer who throws a fly himself once in a while. He knows what he's talking about, and he's worthy of being trusted if he's a brother angler. There's plenty of them in all the great cities, and in fact in all parts of the United States.—Chas. B. Bradford in Amateur Sportsman.

A communication dated Beswick, May 4th, from "Billy" Hobson, who travels for Clabrough, Golcher & Company, contains some interesting angling data and is as follows:

"I arrived here to-day on my way home from the Modoc trip. I find the fishing at Klamath Falls and Keno excellent.

Al Cummings and wife, C. M. Osborn and wife of San Francisco and Mr. J. S. Bush of Red Bluff and the Rev. Dr. McLean of Oakland are all here fishing. The season has been very backward this year and the fish here are just beginning to raise. "Musty Spawn" and the Golcher Red Star Spoon have been necessary up to a few days ago but now the salmon flies are putting in their appearance and the fish are commencing to take the fly. Al Cummings brought in 23 rainbows this evening all good size. Mr. Osborn was only out part of the day and got nine. Mr. Bush used only the spoon and went far up Shovel Creek and got five large trout ranging four lbs. each. At Klamath Falls and Fall River Mills the fishing is better than here.

Mr. A. M. Venham, manager of the Stato Fishery, informs me he closes this station about the 12th of this month. At that time the trap will be taken out of the river and the thousand of fish up there now will come out of Shovel Creek.

It is understood that F. H. Bushnell and J. W. Coleman are making arrangements to come up here shortly."

The office of the Fish Commission has been removed from the seventh to the fifth floor of the Mills Building.

THE FARM.

Peas for Sheep.

There is no better food for sheep than peas, and when they can be raised in conjunction with oats they make a profitable crop. I mix them with half oats, and when sowed they yield nearly as many to the acre as if sowed alone, says James Ridgeway in the Michigan Farmer. There is a decided advantage in sowing with oats, because the oat stalks hold the peas upright so they can be easily cut with a mower. A variety of oats for this work should be selected that naturally produces a strong, stiff straw. Two bushels of the small Canada field pea to one bushel of oats makes about the right combination. On good land this seed mixture will do well and produce an abundant crop that will make most excellent food for sheep. Corn stubble land is the best for this work if one has it, and it will always prove easily workable for the oats and peas. If sod ground is used it should be fall plowed, or turned over as early in spring as possible. When in good working order harrow lightly and sow two bushels of peas to the acre. Plow these seeds under from four to six inches, and see that the work is done thoroughly so that they are all well covered. Then a week later sow one bushel of oats to the acre and give a thorough harrowing to cover the peas planted deep in the soil, and the oats lightly. In this way the peas will be near the surface. This is the way these two crops need to be planted. If put in together and covered with the same amount of soil one crop or the other will prove a failure. The peas do well when planted deep and the oats require a surface planting, and the growth of the oats will not interfere with the peas coming up, while the two together will pretty effectually exterminate the weeds. The oats and the peas get a pretty even start in this way, and they grow side by side in the most satisfactory manner. After the oats have been planted it is a good plan to roll the soil when the harrowing is finished, for this leaves the ground in such good condition for harvesting. Soon after the peas get beyond the eating stage, while still green, cut the crop with a mower, and when cured, so they will not mold, but not enough so as to lose their leaves, put them into cocks of 200 to 300 pounds each, and after a week of good curing weather they can be simply aired out and put away into the mow. If they are to be kept outdoors put them into good sized stacks with cheap hay or swamp grass. Otherwise, if they are allowed to get wet through they will spoil. The crop may be threshed with a machine, but for sheep feeding it is better to feed as they are, and the animals will eat up everything clean.

Next spring Secretary of Agriculture Wilson will distribute throughout the country young trees, as well as garden seeds. Authority for this new departure was secured at the recent session of Congress and an appropriation was made. The distribution of trees is Secretary Wilson's own idea. The people of the country have been cutting down the natural forests with so much recklessness that it has become necessary to start artificial ones. The division of forestry of the Agricultural Department has made a survey of the country and has ascertained the particular trees which thrive best and are most useful in each local ty. According to the program for the distribution of trees, next year a given number of seedlings will be allotted to each member of the House of Representatives, who will be asked to furnish a list of constituents to which he would like to have them sent. The Agricultural Department will do the rest. The seedlings will be grown in the propagating houses and forwarded to their destination with specific instructions as to how they should be planted and cared for. In this way Secretary Wilson expects to start several millions of trees growing throughout this country every year.

The Michigan Experiment Station of which Prof. H. W. Mumford is in charge, has of late concluded a twelve week trial in fattening steers. It is not made plain why the steers were sold before being finished as their lack of weight and fat obviously detracted from their value, placing them in a class which the exporters will not touch. The cattle were grade Herefords purchased in Michigan and two years old. The object was to determine the relative value of various rations in producing good beef. The lot fed corn silage and the lot fed husked corn and fodder did the best of the four. One steer 1640 pounds, sold for $5.75 per cwt: twelve steers 1229 pounds average, sold for $5.50 and seven steers 1101 pounds average, made $5 per cwt. Clay, Robinson & Co. sold the cattle in Chicago and in the "Live Stock Report" state that the bees lacked weight and finish which could have been added in acceptable measure if the feeding had been continued six weeks longer.

An action to recover damages done by a dog was brought to an issue recently in Scotland. A sheep-worrying cur attacked a flock of sheep which fled at its approach. Terror-stricken, the flock of twenty fine ewes raced over a steep bank into a deep river and all were drowned. The owner of the sheep sued the owner of the dog for $500, being the value of the twenty ewes at $25 per head. The dog owner claimed that his cur was not responsible for the death of the sheep as he had not worried any of them; indeed he had not touched one of them in any way. The jury, however, refused to look at it in that way and gave the plaintiff his damages as claimed. Therefore it is not necessary for the dog actually to worry sheep before the owner of them may recover damages.

A cablegram from Copenhagen, Denmark, has the following: A Danish butter-maker has discovered a new preservative which excels everything in that line heretofore known. By means of this preparation it is possible to preserve butter, meats and all kinds of perishable merchandise. Experiments show that butter, for instance, can be preserved, melted and cooled off again, without losing any of its freshness. It can also be placed among goods that are decomposing or contain rank odors without being affected. The preparation is not injurious from a sanitary point of view and will, it is believed, create a revolution in the shipping of perishable merchandise.

The world's wool supply for 1900 is estimated to have totaled 2,025,060,000 pounds. This is the smallest since 1890 when the total for the entire globe was only 1,944,000,000. According to expert calculations the gross output of 1900 equaled 1,121,000,000 pounds of clean washed wool. This is a shrinkage in cleansing of something less than fifty per cent. Further figures offered by the experts give the average utilization of wool per capita of the world's population at 4.45 pounds in the grease and 2.46 pounds cleansed. This again is the smallest per capita consumption of wool by the world's people for many years. In 1895 it was estimated at almost 3 pounds per capita of clean wool.

A duck farmer doing business in the little hamlet of Lincoln Park, N. J., last year marketed in New York and Jersey City no less than 21,000 ducklings of the Pekin variety. The profits were very large for the capital invested. A large number of ducks are maintained as layers and the hatching is all done in incubators. The layers and the drakes with them have a small arm of the sea to splash in, but the ducklings are reared and fattened in a dry sandy pen, or rather a great many pens. It is said that the success of this plant is largely due to the fact that the rearing places are used but once in several seasons.

Mr. H. B. Gurler of DeKalb, Ill., who keeps two hundred cows, and sells his milk in Chicago at twelve cents a quart, told the Connecticut Dairy Association that his milk goes to market in sealed jars, with date on the seal as a guarantee of freshness. He cannot from his farm meet the demand for his milk. To have pure milk one must have healthy cows, kept in good sanitary conditions. The cow stables need perfect ventilation more than the dwelling-house, as it has more inmates, and the doors are opened less frequently. They should be kept so clean that a person going in blindfolded would not know by the odor that he was in a stable, and if it is so that the barn odor fills a person's clothes it also flavors the milk. His cows are groomed once a day, a half hour before milking, and the udder is washed just before milking, with warm water in winter and cold water in summer, and one man can do the washing for ten milkers. Dr. N. S. Mayo of Storrs said that Connecticut is well adapted for raising healthy cows, as it has fine, well watered pastures and is cold enough in winter to kill disease germs. Calves need good food, pure air and healthy exercise. There is too much breeding of cows that are not well matured. As tuberculosis is most frequently contracted before they are matured, the calves should be isolated from older cows, and the older cows isolated as much as possible, and given plenty of pure air and sunlight.

The Navajo Indians are said to own 1,000,000 sheep. The famous Navajo blankets, however, it is alleged, are not made of the wool raised by the tribe. Only the coarser and commoner of these very expensive coverings are produced from the wool shorn from the backs of the Indians' own sheep, the best and finest examples of the Navajo art of weaving being made from wool that is given up by Merinos of the finest fleece. There are 22,000 Indians directly or indirectly concerned in the ownership of the sheep.

At the June K. King Shorthorn sale in Kansas City last week twenty-five bulls brought $6700, average $268. Seventy-two females brought $14,305, average $198.65. The entire ninety-seven head brought $21,000, general average $216.55.

MURRAY HOWE, Sec'y., Memphis, Tenn.

NOTE.—In the Memphis System we have incorporated as many features of the running turf as will be consistent in heat racing. The plan is simply a compromise between the heat and the dash systems. We have decided to try this plan of racing because the present condition of the sport in Memphis, Chicago, New York, San Francisco, Louisville and all cities where running is extremely popular, demonstrates beyond question that the people of those cities prefer the methods of the running turf to those of the trotting turf.

Purses for all classes, $1000 or more each, to complete programme, will open about September 1st, to close September 15th.

The track and plant will be one of the finest in the world, and will be specially equipped with the view of making it an ideal place for winter training.

AT THE SACRAMENTO RACE TRACK.

5—Captain Jones, blk s by McKinney, dam by Gossiper. Owned by John Pender.

2—Bay colt by Arthur Holt 2:30¼. Owned by O. J. Holmes.

4—Pelzote, bay trotter by Bayswater Wilkes. Owned and trained by S. H. Hoy.

JOTTINGS.

AT SACRAMENTO there are forty or fifty horses in training for the California circuit, and Lessee Martin has the track in better shape than it has been for years. The coating of clay which was put on last year by the directors of the State Agricultural Society was a great improvement, and the intelligent manner in which it has been worked by Mr. Martin, has made the track an ideal one for training. On the day of my visit, Saturday, May 4th, it looked good enough for record breaking, and I noticed that every trainer and groom had a word to say in its praise.

Vet Tryon has a string of ten trotters and pacers stalled at the track and there are some green ones among them that will get marks away below the standard 2:30 before the season is over. He has Margaretta 2:15, the daughter of Direct and Rosita A. that J. E. Terry paid a thousand dollars for last season just before the circuit opened. She was a fast mare, but after that eight-heat race at Vallejo (which she should not have been started in as she was in poor condition) did not do much. She worked a quarter in 35 seconds at Sacramento the last week in April this year, and is looking like 2:10 now. Vet has a three year old filly by Algonia that is being pointed for the Occident Stake this fall. She is called Jennie H. and is owned by Dr. McClellum. A green mare, six years old, by Mendecino out of Maud Merrill is going good for Mr. Tryon, as is also a four year old stallion by Silver Bow out of Grace (the dam of Daedalion 2:11) by Buccaneer. This is not only a good looker but he is fast enough to head for almost any of the big stakes. He is a square trotter and picks up his feet like a winner, and he will be one sure. Vet saw a couple of ladies come on the track one day recently with a gray trotting mare and his experienced eye saw that the mare was a trotter. It was evident that they thought the gray a pretty good one; and when they let her step a mile Tryon had his watch out and caught the time as 2:39. He thought that was pretty good for a lady's road mare, and a few days after made an offer for the mare and got her. She is by Director Jr., and the boys say will win races. Another in Tryon's string is Belle Air 2:14, a pacing mare by Pathmont. She is acting well and looking good. A gelding by Rainbow out of a mare by the Sidney horse Memo stepped a quarter in 37 seconds for Vet a few days ago, and he has another, a bay, by Easter Wilkes out of a Premier mare that is almost as fast. A four year old filly by Easter Wilkes, dam Nellie Waldstein, is quite promising. Vet has a sorrel gelding by Steinway that belongs to W. J. Irvine and the latter expects him to trot in 2:10 by next fall. This horse was raised at Oakwood Park Stock Farm. Sequoia is the name given a two year old by Silver Bow, dam Belle Caprice by Steinway, that Tryon is training for S. S. Stiles, of San Francisco. For a youngster he is very promising and like all the Silver Bows he is a good looker.

John Pender who brought his handsome stallion Captain Jones by McKinney to Sacramento a short time ago, is making a fair season with him. Captain Jones is a very handsome horse as will be seen by his picture on the front page of this paper, and I don't know where one would look for a better bred one. By McKinney dam by Gossiper, second dam (the dam of McBriar 2:15) by Den Wilkes, a son of Alcyone, third dam by Mambrino Patchen, fourth dam by Almont 33. Menroe Salisbury was looking at him the day I was there and was very enthusiastic over him. Mr. Pender worked Captain Jones a mile in 2:25 and he stepped the last quarter in 35 seconds. A two year old by Captain Jones that Pender is working is one of the fastest things at the track.

The big bay stallion Oboul 2:22, by Stamboul is at the Sacramento track in the hands of trainer Clark. He is a big rangy horse and has more speed than his record shows.

A stud colt by Zombro, dam by Berlin that Mr. Mitchell is training, is one of the most promising of this year's two year olds. He is a trotter, like all the Zombros, and looks like he might trot very fast.

Geo. Beckers has his great stallion Zombre in fine fettle. I think he is undoubtedly one of the grandest looking of California stallions, and there is not one of his got that I have seen thus far but looks like him. Wherever one hears of a Zembro colt or filly he hears of its trotting ability, and it need not surprise anyone if Zombro some day stands in the front rank as a sire of speed as his sire stands now. His head is one of the most intelligent looking I ever saw on a horse and his legs and feet are like iron. His colts have the head and limbs just like him. Beckers is working a fine two year old filly by him, out of a Silver Bow mare that is a good one and not only good gaited, but fast.

Hi Hegoboom has quite a string of horses. Tuttle Bros., of Rocklin, placed their great young stallion, Stam B. 2:11, in his care this year and Hi has made quite a season with him. Stam B. would take many a prize were he to make the rounds of the Eastern horse shows. They could not beat his sire in the show ring, and he is just as showy a horse. Breeders who want to raise colts to sell should not overlook the opportunity to breed to Stam B. Mr. Hegoboom has Menroe S. 2:20, which he will race this year, and a very fast and promising mare by Waldstein that is one of the beauties of the Sacramento track. There is a big, fine looking chestnut gelding by Waldstein also in Hegoboom's string and four or five others that he is just breaking, among them a young pacer by Gossiper 2:14 that he thinks lots of and is predicting great speed for.

Mrs. Callendine is having Abdine 2:17 worked at the track. He stepped a mile in 2:20 the other day, and came the last quarter in 32 seconds, and they all say that he'll do. Mrs. C.'s yearling by Nutwood Wilkes out of the dam of Diaweed 2:11 and Abdine 2:17 is one of the handsomest things of his age in the country.

Tom Holmes got a son of his stallion Arthur Holt out on the track for the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN'S camera. He is a good looker (the gelding, not Tem) and can go some. I believe he worked this fellow a mile in 2:24 last fall. Mr. Holmes has thirteen head in his string, among them a pacer called Lanky Bob that has a mile in 2:23 to his credit. A brown mare that has no record but has stepped a mile in 2:24 is quite a prospect, as is also a very fine looking filly in his string that is by Zembre 2:11, dam by Stambeul 2:07, second dam by Abbotsford 2:19.

Sam Hey, the well known Winters horseman, has four good ones at the track. They are in charge of his son who, judging by their looks, knows how to keep a horse in condition. Mr. Hey goes over to Sacramento twice a week to drive them. Kelly Briggs 2:10 has had no hepples on this year, and he had not worked a mile better than 2:30 up to the day of my visit. He certainly has the cleanest set of legs of any horse I know that has as fast a record. There is not a puff or a pimple on them. Peizote is the name given the big gelding by Bayswater Wilkes whose picture is one of the front page group this week. He is a natural trotter and can step along pretty well. Sam told me he had worked him a mile in 2:25 and thinks he has the making of quite a horse. McNally 2:15 looks better than ever. He struck himself last year and it was thought for a while the tendon would bow where it was hit, but the leg is all right and if the bees don't swarm he will trot close to 2:10 and win money. Rita H., his brown pacing mare by McKinney out of the dam of Brilliantine 2:17, is the remaining one of his string of good ones. Sam is working a dozen or so over his own track at home, but is just breaking them and hardly expects to take any of them to the races this year. His stallion Bayswater Wilkes is doing well and has had something over forty mares.

Chris Jorgensen has a string of nine horses at Sacramento. They belong to different parties and Chris is breaking them to drive and teaching them how to go. His brother Hans is also in the business and has six head.

Quite a number of hersemen are talking of moving to the Sacramento track and the fact that it is in such tip top condition and that stall rent is free will cause many more to follow now that the race programs are being announced and they see that there is money in sight for one that can win.

At Willows Track.

A representative of the Willows Promoter says of Col. F. G. Crawford's string of horses now being worked at the Willows track:

The entire stable is under the supervision of W. P. Hamner, who deserves great credit for the splendid condition and speed which the entire string shows. If they are entered in this year's circuit we are confident that they will not only make a great showing, but will surprise some of the old horsemen. Mr. Hamner is working five at the present time as follows:

Bay mare Maud, six years old, by Monaco. Has shown a mile better than 2:25.

Sorrel gelding, six years old, by Clarence Wilkes, a square trotter. He has shown a mile better than 2:35.

Sorrel gelding Prince, 6 years old, by Reno Prince. He is a fine large horse and will make a good campaigner.

Two bay pacers, Dott and Spot, by Falrese, five years. Although young they have shown a wonderful burst of speed and no doubt will reach the 2:20 mark before the end of the season.

Mr. Hamner informed our reporter that it was more than likely that one or two of the above horses would start in the Breeder's association races which will take place some time in July.

The little brown pacing mare handled by Jo Reedy was working out a couple of heats and showed some wonderful bursts of speed. Jo thinks he will have in her another Don, who, under his supervision, paced a mile in 2:10. This mare is a full sister to Den. The track is at present in net the best of condition, but when a little more work is done on it no doubt some fast records will be recorded.

Alice Mapes 2:14, the fastest two year old of 1900, was a prize winner at the recent Brooklyn horse show.

Fast Time at Los Angeles.

At the matinee given by the Los Angeles Driving Club Friday of last week, Mr. M. M. Potter drove his pacing mare Primrose a second heat in 2:10, thus lowering the California amateur record and the record of the mare at the same time. Mr. Potter also drove his McKinney mare Sweet Marie a fast mile the same day. He started her to beat 2:17 and made the mile in 2:13, which is a very fast mile for a trotter this early in the season. The following account of the day's races is from the columns of the Los Angeles Herald of Saturday last:

Twenty-five hundred people or more attended the matinee of the Los Angeles Driving Club yesterday afternoon and were given one of the most enjoyable entertainments that has ever been provided by the club. The day was a trifle cool for racing, but the track was lightning fast, and the spectators were treated to seeing Milo M. Potter's pacer Primrose cover a mile in the remarkably fast time of 2:12. This reduces the matinee record and cuts the record of the mare a second.

There was nothing to the first race except Sweetheart, owned by M. M. Potter. She easily disposed of the only other entry, Tom Moore, in 2:19 and 2:24.

The second race for trotters and pacers did not materialize, and in its place Mr. Potter drove Sweet Marie to beat 2:17. After three attempts she covered the mile with one break in 2:13, the time for the fractional quarters being 0:32, 1:04, 1:40 and 2:13.

The third event was a horse race from start to finish. Although a two in three event it required four heats to decide the winner, each of the three entries taking a heat before the final mile was paced. The race was for pacers of the 2:20 class, and Bessie B. was believed to be the good thing. She eventually won. The first heat fell to her easily, but she broke in the second after getting away badly, and the heat was won by Bastina. Dr. Hitchcock came along with Dewey in the third heat, the others acting badly, and won by several lengths. In the final heat Dewey went to the front and stayed there until the far turn. At the three-quarters the others closed up and Bessie B. came along on the outside with a great burst of speed. The pace in the stretch was too fast for Dewey and he was carried off his feet. Bastina finished second, a length behind Bessie B.

Only two showed up for the "Alfalfa Handicap, a mile dash," as the program had it. Those having the grit were D. E. Llewellyn, who drove a mule harnessed to a buckbeard of antique pattern, and Dr. J. A. Edmonds, who had a mule attached to a breaking cart that had seen better days. The outfit went the full mile and in the finish Llewellyn's mule, which rejoiced in the classic name of "Llacollana," managed to cross the wire first, being urged by a liberal use of a quirt wielded by Ed Smith. This feature afforded no end of amusement.

The free for all pace was annexed by Primrose with ease. The only horse that was entered that gave Milo Potter's entry an argument at any stage of the game was Electra, driven by Thomas Hughes, and this was only in the first heat. Not only did Mr. Potter guide Primrose to victory, but he drove her to a matinee record, 2:12, reduced the horse's record a full second and in the first eighth of the first heat made a separately timed record of 15 seconds, a 2:04 clip. He drove through the stretch in the second heat at a gait that seemingly left the other horses in the race standing still. The time by quarters in the fastest heat was 31 seconds, 1:05, 1:39, 2:12.

J. W. Speener's handy mare Pole was the only horse that figured in the sixth race, a mixed trotting and pacing event for horses in the 2:25 class. In both heats Pole easily went to the front and was never headed.

Dave Llewellyn and Otto Zahn were the riders in the running race for aides and marshals of the Fiesta parade. Zahn was mounted on Hiawatha and Llewellyn on Baby May. It did not make much difference as to the names of the runners. Zahn took the lead at the start and came in first by two lengths.

For Clean Sport.

[Los Angeles Times, May 11.]

The Los Angeles Driving Club is composed of gentlemen who love horses and enjoy their feats of speed. It was formed on the idea that true sport is not necessarily allied with gambling or, in fact, with money-making in any form. The idea thus embodied is proving immensely successful, and, hence, as a comparatively new departure, it is commanding the attention of the sporting world.

The club was organized in October, 1898, with a membership of sixty. This membership has been increased to 200. In January of the present year the club was organized and was regularly incorporated as a social organization.

The expenses are met entirely by the membership. No purses are offered on races, no admission fees are charged either to owners of horses or spectators, no gambling or pool-selling is allowed, and the meetings are held wholly for the entertainment of those who enjoy horse racing for its own sake. As the horses do not contend for purse, premium, stake or wager and no admission fee is charged, the horses participating do not acquire record or bar; that is to say, the matinees are simply a workout under the auspices of the club.

The Driving Club endeavors to have a matinee once each month, selecting holidays so far as possible. Thanksgiving Day, Christmas, Washington's Birthday, St. Patrick's Day and other festive occasions have thus been celebrated, and the Fiesta was rounded out by one of these affairs yesterday. These matinees have attracted the best people of Los Angeles and the attendance has been very large, sometimes reaching as high as five or six thousand. Society ladies and men of refinement have no scruples about attending, for they are assured that the affairs are conducted without any features of gambling or rowdiness. They are, in fact, society functions in which the elite of Los Angeles, Pasadena and surrounding towns participate with the utmost satisfaction.

Notwithstanding the fact that these affairs are made free to the public, and that no reasonable expense is spared on details, the expense is not onerous on the membership, the admission fee being only $3 and the monthly dues only $1. All reasonable outgo can be met by this revenue. Elegant programs are provided and the details for the accommodation of visitors are more carefully attended to than with the most noted racing associations.

The matinees of the Los Angeles Driving Club have not only elicited great local popularity, but they have also attracted attention from the sporting press of the country. The New York Sunday journals and such papers as the New York Spirit of the Times and the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN record all of the events with careful attention. Thus the work of the club is attracting national notoriety, and it is undoubtedly setting a precedent that will be followed in many other places.

The officers of the club are: President, W. H. Stimson; Vice-President, Dr. M. L. Moore; Treasurer, J. J. Fay, Jr.; Secretary, J. G. Mott; Directors, H. G. Bundren, Walter L. Vail, J. Byron Erkenbrecher, Dr. H. Bert Ellis, N. W. Myrick, Dr. W. le Moyne Wills.

Practically all of the members of the club own horses, in which they take pride, but there are fifty or sixty members who own notable roadsters.

The club holds a lease on Agricultural Park, controlling it the year round, except on the two occasions annually, when the Sixth District Agricultural association holds its meetings. This lease runs a year from last January, with the option of renewal for another year. Thus the association is assured a habitat for some time—long enough, perhaps, for it to acquire a driving park of its own.

The club is interested not only in promoting true sport along the lines named, but it stimulates the driving horse industry. It popularizes good horses, and incidentally works for good roads. In this latter respect it co-operates with the Merchants' and Manufacturer's Association, the Chamber of Commerce and the Good Roads League.

Among the fine horses owned by members of the club, the following may be cited: W. H. Stimson's stable: Richmond Chief, trotter 2:14; Julia M. (three year old filly), trotter, 2:22; Lord Kitchener, four year old trotter 2:26; Hanford Medium, bay, pacer, 2:11; Sophie R., black, pacer, 2:14; Maude Gonne, untied, three year old bay filly, who has worked a mile in 2:27.

Dr. W. le Moyne Wills has a bay gelding, seven years old, which he picked up for a song a year and a half ago. The animal had been a business road horse. Since then the gelding has had four months of training and has developed wonderful speed. He is a clean, natural pacer, and on the road will trot half the time. He has great staying qualities, and, barring accidents, will give a good account of himself. His name is Cour de Lion.

Milo M. Potter's stable: Primrose, pacer, 2:12; Sweet Marie, trotter, 2:13; Sweetheart, pacer; Maud McKinney, trotter; Sister, trotter, and about ten others in training. Mr. Potter has the largest and best racing stables in Southern California. Kent is his trainer.

Byron Erkenbrecher is the owner of five race horses. Two of these, Wilhelmina, whose pacing record is 2:11; and Floretta Bello, have figured in the matinees at the Driving Club. Floretta set a mark of 1:03 for the half mile in a pacing race at Agricultural Park last June. His three other fine horses are black filly, a yearling by McKinney, Galotto Wilkes, trotting record 2:12, and Miss Barnabee. The latter, whose sire was McKinney, held the three year old trotting record for California for '99—2:21.

Tom Hughes is justly proud of his Electa, a mare by Silkwood. Not long ago she defeated Mr. Stimson's Hanford Medium in a miloraco for a $100 dinner. She has paced trial heats in 2:14.

Dr. W. W. Hitchcock's well known pacer, Dewey, is said to be one of the fastest buggy horses owned in the State; he has a record now of 2:19, and has been the hero of several remarkably close races—private affairs. Dewey was beaten in a mile race a short time ago by Ligero, belonging to Schumacher, the photographer, by the very narrow margin of four inches.

N. W. Myrick has a couple of very pretty horses in Rogue and Baby Lee, the latter by Gifford. Rogue took second prize in the class of ladies' saddle horses in the show here two years ago. Dr. M. L. Moore is now the possessor of Mr. Myrick's Tuckee, this magnificent eight year old mare having changed hands some three weeks ago. Tuckee won the blue ribbon in the last local horse show as the finest horse exhibited by a gentleman.

D. E. Llewellyn owns a pretty little running mare named Baby May. She has covered half a mile in 52½ seconds and a quarter in 25 seconds. His Rex Alto, whose record of 2:07½ places him among the fastest horses in Southern California, was sired by Atto Rex.

Kenneth V. Redpath is one of the charter members of the Los Angeles Driving Club. He has taken part in a number of matinees and has always owned a good horse. He has a very handsome seal brown mare by the name of Bastina. She is a very stylish and clever animal and has stepped trial miles in 2:13. Mr. Redpath expects to start her in the free-for-all class at the matinee in the near future. He has another two year old, Lord Lovell, half-brother to Bastina, a very high class animal, sired by Nutford 2:15, and first dam by Silkwood 2:07. Mr. Redpath expects him to be very fast.

R. J. Duncan owns Sunday, a sorrel horse, with silver mane and tail. The animal is very speedy; has stepped a mile in 2:19½, and ought to make a mile in 2:10.

Mr. Spooner owns Polo, with a record of 2:19, and has stepped a mile in 2:16. She is a small bay mare by Nutford, and one of the speediest pacers in the club.

Frank G. Schumacher owns Ligero, who has won several matinee races—a natural pacer; has been driven by Mr. Schumacher, without training, in 2:22. Ligero has recently been in the hands of Maben, the trainer, who decided that the horse has good parts. With a few months' training Ligero has trotted a mile in 2:16.

Milo M. Potter has a fine string of horses, the very best stable in Southern California. It is the only sport for which the proprietor of the Van Nuys cares. He passes up baseball, he has no use for golf, he does not know a catboat from a yawl, and as for prize fighting he would not walk across the street to see Jeffries and Fitzsimmon fight to a finish.

His bay mare Primrose, which yesterday lowered the track record for gentlemen's events at Agricultural Park, is a wonder in her way. There is nothing which wears harness that can go too fast for her. And she is as game as the gamest pickerel that ever infested a New England stream. Sweet Marie by McKinney is a fit stable companion to Primrose, and there is no telling just how fast she can go when she is in shape and put to the test. She stepped a mile yesterday in 2:13½, with a three-second break at the half. And she did this after scoring half a dozen times and going into the air before she reached the quarter.

In Sweetheart Mr. Potter has a wonderful filly. A mark of 2:19½ for a two year old is something very much out of the ordinary, and she can do better than this if she has good company. Let her get into a bunch where she can be pushed, and the fifteen notch is not beyond her. If she is handled carefully and gets the good training which her blood entitles her to, next year she should be the star of the stable.

The Brighton Beach Free-for-all.

There is no event that has closed thus far this season that has attracted as much attention as the free-for-all race at Brighton Beach, and which includes in its list most of the great trotters of the present time, writes C. R. Bently in American Sportsman. To be sure one or two are named that have nothing in their past racing history to warrant their being in such good company, but there are enough good ones named to insure a great race, perhaps the greatest race of the year. Six of the number named, if fit and right, are sure to be factors in the event.

They are York Boy 2:09½, a horse that started out in the slow classes last season, and out of thirteen starts was first ten times, second once and unplaced once and distanced once. Unquestionably the greatest race he won was at Lexington in the 2:10 class. His driver did not try for the first two heats, in which he finished fifth and sixth respectively, the heats going to Neeretta in 2:11½ and 2:11. In the third York Boy tried and won it in 2:10½ from the former heat winner.

After this he had to fight it out with Mr. Geers' mount, Onward Silver, who forced him out in the fourth heat in 2:12 and in the fifth in 2:09½, his present record. This was his last race of the year and he showed continual improvement all season, as this race will show. In all York Boy won 31 heats that average 2:17½. Fifteen of these heats were won over half-mile tracks, so that the average is good. He beat 2:10 two different times, once at Roadville in a third heat, trotting in 2:09½, and again at Lexington, in the fifth heat of the 2:10 trot, where he secured his present record of 2:09½. When it is considered that last year was his first season out it is but reasonable to suppose that he will improve to quite an extent. Added to this is the further fact that he is a steady-going horse, always trying to do the right thing at the right time, making him one to be feared in any race he may start in.

Another horse in this event that will bear watching is Directum Kelly 2:08½. Scott McCoy, who handles him, is one of the best conditioners and trainers in the land, and should this pair nick well and Directum keep sound, there is bound to be trouble for some one. In 1899 an effort was made to get Directum Kelly into racing form, but it failed, and after one or two starts he was sent home. Last season we believe no effort was made to get him ready to race. His claim to renown as a race horse rests on his campaign of 1898. That season he started eight times, and won every race in which he took part. He opened the season at Hartford and then went to Detroit, where he won the great $10,000 M. and M. stake. After dropping the first two heats to Belle J. he won the third in 2:11½, the best record for this event up to that time. The two succeeding heats he won in 2:13½ and 2:14½. His best race of the season, however, was at Buffalo, Fort Erie, in which event he dropped the first heat to Mattie Patterson in 2:14. The next heat he won in 2:08½ (his present record), and the third in 2:10½, and the fourth in 2:10½. In all he trotted thirty heats in races that season, losing six and winning 24, the average being 2:13½. It will be remembered that he started out with a record of 2:24½, which mark he secured as a two-year-old.

Another name that appears in the Brighton Beach list of entries is that of Georgena 2:07½. Last season she flashed up like a meteor on the trotting horizon. Her first start was at Albany where she won second money. After that she did not lose a race and but one heat, and that to Alameda in the $10,000 Charter Oak Stake at Hartford. This proved to be her best race, the three winning heats being in 2:09½, 2:09½ and 2:10½. In all she trotted sixteen race heats and was beaten in four, winning twelve, and averaging 2:11½.

There is nothing that excites the admiration of horsemen so much as a good, game performer. For the past three seasons Charley Herr 2:07 has been in the public eye as much as any trotter that has ever gone down the big line, and there is not one of the many competitors in the different events in which he has taken part but what has felt the sting of defeat at his hands. Every season when he would go into winter quarters the wise ones would say that he would never be heard of again, but the spring would come, and with it the announcement that Charley Herr was again rounding into form.

Last season was his busiest, fourteen starts standing to the credit of the iron horse, six of them he won, was second three times, third three times and unplaced once. He started in just fifty race heats, winning twenty-one of them and trotting one dead heat with Gayton at Fort Wayne. The average time of his winning heats was 2:10½. Twelve of these were in 2:10 or better, an average of 2:09 11-12. His fastest three winning heats in a race were just a fraction over 2:08. His greatest performance, however, was in the big stallion race at Roadville. He won the first two heats in 2:07½, and in the third he lost by such a small margin that no one only those over the wire could decide the winner.

Lord Derby, winner of the three fastest heats ever won by a horse starting out green in the spring, is a horse that those in a position to know believe to be the coming champion trotter, and his name also adorns the list of nominations in the big free-for-all. Ten starts stand to his credit, four of which he won. He was second three times, third once and fourth once. He trotted forty-one heats in contests, winning thirteen of them, the average time being 2:11½. His best race was at New York, where he trotted the most remarkable race ever stepped by a trotter in his first season out, his time being 2:07, 2:07 and 2:08. Many think that he has reached his limit, owing no doubt to his rather poor showing last season, but the cause of this was purely a local one and easily removed. We are prepared to say at this time that if no further misfortune befalls him this season we think there is only one horse that has any license to beat him, and that is Peter the Great, the magnificent son of Pilot Medium. It is said of Peter that he is perfectly sound this spring and further than that, he has never been raced to death. He has had a year's rest, and is now six years old.

He has started only seven times, once as a two year old, at Lexington, where he won second money in the Futurity; once as a three year old, in the same event, where he won the three year old division. As a four year old he started five times, winning three firsts, one second and one third. His fastest race is the one he won in New York in 2:07½ and 2:08½, but his greatest races were the two he won at Lexington, Ky., the first being the Transylvania, in which event he won the first two heats and lost the third.

There has always been a question about this third heat. Many think he won it, but the decision was against him. His memorable race with Tommy Britton is still fresh in the minds of all horsemen who saw it. How those two rushed down to the half in the first heat in 1:01½, and paved the way for another to win in the time that would only be too easy for Peter had he been saved. Those first two races are the ones that have led me to believe that fit and right in his six year old form, he can give any trotter that lives a race. As a four year old he won ten heats out of the twenty in which he took part, the average for the ten winning heats being 2:09 2-5. In all his races as a four year old he never won but two heats that were not in 2:10 or better, a showing that is unsurpassed by any four year old up to the present time.

Attorney 1005, sire of the dam of Alix 2:03½, was destroyed May 1st by his owners, G. Ives & Son, of New Boston, Illinois. The stallion was running in a paddock and was kicked on the shoulder by a gelding that had escaped from his stall. The shoulder was shattered so that it was necessary to kill the horse. The best son of Attorney is Atto Rex 2:21½, owned by E. B. Gifford, of Los Angeles county. Atto Rex is the sire of Rex Alto 2:07½, Bello Patchen 2:16 and five or six more with standard records. Nine of Attorney's sons are producing sires, and his daughters produced Alix 2:03½, Redonda 2:07½, Emmet H. 2:10½, and twenty-two more with records below 2:30. Attorney was by Harold out of a mare by Abdallah 15.

THE OAKLEY RACE TRACK, at Cincinnati, Ohio, where a number of the California horses that will race on the Grand Circuit are now stabled, has been purchased by Andy Welch and O. A. Jones, owners of the celebrated Charter Oak course at Hartford, Conn. The purchase was consummated last week and in the advertising columns of this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN will be found a change in the advertisement of the big harness meeting to be given at the Oakley track. Messrs. Welch & Jones have secured the services of P. J. Campbell as Secretary. Mr. Campbell was Secretary at Detroit, Michigan, for ten years, and is a very competent and popular official. It will be noticed that the time of closing the purses advertised has been changed to June 1st, and that the date of the meeting remains the same as first fixed in the circuit. The new owners of the Oakley track are known to harness horsemen all over the East, are both popular, and as they own one of the best racing plants in America, horsemen will want to train and race at Oakley. The Californians now there have written in the highest praise of the accommodations and the condition of the track. They are shown every attention and advise every owner who will race over East this year to enter at the Oakley meeting.

THE TEXT of the decision of the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association in the rehearing of the famous John A. McKerron record case is not yet at hand, but the telegraphic advices are that the former decision was reversed and that the horse's record is now 2:12 1/2 instead of 2:10. A strong fight was made by Mr. Devereux and several other representatives of the matinee clubs and the dispatches state that the Board decided the case by a vote of three to two.

SIX THOUSAND DOLLARS in six stakes of one thousand each is the very generous sum which Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association has offered as starter to put the harness racing ball in motion in California this year. After these events are closed an additional number of purses will be given at smaller amounts and the endeavor will be to provide for all the horses in training here this year. The classes for trotters, for which $1000 are offered, are the 2:40, 2:20 and 2:14, while the pacing classes are the 2:25, 2:17, and 2:13. Entries to these preliminary stakes will close Saturday, June 15th, and two weeks prior to that date the exact date and place of the meeting will be announced. There are very few horses in training in California but are eligible to at least one of these events and the list of entries should be large enough to encourage other associations, whose purses will close later on, to advertise liberal amounts for the harness horses to compete for. Owners and trainers should take particular notice of the clause in the Breeders advertisement which states that the association will not give any special races at this meeting, so that those who wish to race must enter in the regular events. The "special" has been one of the evils of the circuit during the past four years, and has been given to help fill up a six-day program in response to an appeal from owners and trainers who had horses that were not regularly entered with which they desired to earn "oat money." In the majority of instances the specials have furnished unsatisfactory racing and the Breeders Association has resolved that so far as it is concerned it will be tolerated no longer. The big stakes already advertised together with a number of others to be offered later on will furnish all the racing necessary for a full week of racing, and horsemen need not expect, if they fail to enter in them, that a lot of special purses will be provided. There are a very large number of horses in training in California this year, enough to fill all the purses that will be given. It is true that most of the very fast ones, both green and record horses, have gone or are going East, but this should only encourage the more liberal entering of those remaining here. A horse that wins $2000 on the Eastern tracks during a season is considered a very profitable horse, and it is well to remember that a dozen harness horses raced exclusively in California last year earned that amount and more. Thirty-three horses won over $1000 each and the opportunities will be just as good this year. Seven weeks of racing are assured and there is every prospect of ten which is certainly in pretty good showing for one State.

TWO WEEKS FROM TO-DAY, which will be Saturday, June 1st, entries will close for the Memphis Trotting Association's meeting. The meeting will be from October 21st to 26th, on the new track at Memphis, which it is aimed to make the best trotting track in the world, and will follow the great meeting at Lexington, Kentucky, and virtually close the Grand Circuit. The five early closing events, already advertised, two of which are for pacers and three for trotters, show the liberality of the new organization, and are for $3000 each. The 2:14 trot and the 2:20 pace are to be under the Memphis system, an idea of Murray Howe, the Secretary, which is being talked of by harness horse men in every section of the country. By referring to the advertisement which appeared in this paper last week and which will appear again next week, the Memphis system will be understood, as it is there fully explained. Horsemen should remember that none but these two of the advertised races are to be under this plan, the others being the regular mile heats, three in five, which has been in vogue so long and given such general satisfaction to harness horse owners and trainers as well as the public. Secretary Howe and the other officers of the Memphis Association are progressive men, however, and willing to try any scheme which will likely be popular with the public and propose giving this new idea a fair trial. If these two purses fill well and the races prove attractive and exciting there will be more of them given at the next meeting. It is to be hoped that owners will enter liberally in both these events, and that a fair test will be had of the new system.

THE PALO ALTO CATALOGUE for 1900 has been issued and the receipt of a copy is hereby acknowledged. In Electioneer's roll of honor he is given credit for 169 standard performers and 92 producing sons. The catalogue contains the pedigrees of nineteen stallions whose get are represented at the farm, and there are 170 animals catalogued. The thoroughbred department consists of but three individuals, the Ormonde mare Rosormonde, a yearling filly by Nomad out of imp. Amalia, and a gelding by Flambeau. Some of the thoroughbred mares are in the trotting department and being bred to the trotting stallions.

OAKWOOD PARK STOCK FARM, comprising 6000 acres of land in Contra Costa county, the home of Steinway, Chas. Derby and Owyhee, and whereon was bred Klatawah (3) 2:05 1/2, W. Wood 2:07, Much Better 2:07 1/2, Derby Princess 2:08 1/2, Diablo 2:09 1/2 and many other great ones, will probably change hands in a few days. Negotiations have been under way for the past two weeks and are nearly concluded. Mr. John F. Boyd, the present owner, under whose management the farm has met with such great success as a breeding farm of great trotters and pacers, is not in the best of health and has desired for some time to retire. The purchasers are a syndicate of capitalists of Montana, and whether they will run it on the same plan that has been pursued in the past or devote it entirely to cattle breeding will not be determined until the new owners assume control of the property. Oakwood Park has turned out as many fast ones for the number bred as any farm in the world, and has a number of great broodmares in its ranks, and three of the greatest stallions in the country. Steinway is, of course, nearly past the age of usefulness, but his son, Chas. Derby, is rapidly coming to the front as a great sire, and his grandson Owyhee will follow in his footsteps.

NEXT TUESDAY, May 21st, is the date set for the closing of entries to the races to be given by the Golden Gate Park Driving Association at Tanforan Park, on May 30th. Members of the club must hand in their entries to Secretary Harry Patrick by Tuesday evening if they wish to start. There are a large number of horses in training for the five events, one of which is the O'Kane Cup Race, won last year by Alta Vela in 2:19 1/4. According to the conditions of this race horses eligible to the 2:20 class can be entered this year. Much interest is being manifested among the club members as to who will carry away the handsome trophy donated by Mr. Frank O'Kane.

ENTRIES TO THE STANFORD STAKE for foals of 1900, to be trotted at the California State Fair of 1903, will close Saturday, June 1st. The colts and fillies to be entered are now yearlings and although the crop in this State is not an extensive one, still the renewed interest in trotting bred horses should lead to a large entry list in this stake and make it the most valuable since its inception. The Stanford Stake has become one of the features of the State Fair and to own the winner of it has become a matter of pride and ambition to harness horse breeders generally. Entries close two weeks from to-day.

AMONG the new advertisements that appear this week in this paper that of the firm of J. O'Kane deserves especial mention. This firm, with factories at New York and San Francisco, employing none but the very highest class workmen, has established a great reputation for its harness for track and road, horse boots and in short everything that a horse wears, be he a runner, trotter or pacer, or a carriage horse. The catalogue issued by this firm is a gem and should be in the hands of every horseman to look over carefully before sending in his order. They can be had on application.

RACING AT VANCOUVER will assume greater proportions this year than ever, and the spring meeting of the Vancouver Jockey Club promises to be a great success. Quite a number of horses have been purchased in San Francisco this winter by residents of British Columbia who desire to win at this meeting, and the rivalry between owners is getting keen. Races will be given at the Vancouver meeting, which will be held May 24th and 25th, for both runners and harness horses and entries will close for them next Wednesday, the 22d.

THREE PURSES OF $1000 EACH are the leading attractions for the Boise, Idaho, Inter-Mountain fair which will be held September 16th to 21st, this year. The Merchant's Purse of $1000 is for 2:20 trotters, the Inter-Mountain Purse of $1000 is for 2:15 pacers, and the Capital City Purse of $1000 is for runners at a mile and a quarter. Entries to the harness events close June 1st, to the running race September 1st.

THERE IS TALK of a club being organized in Santa Rosa for the purpose of giving a harness race meeting this year. Two or three of the progressive citizens of that town are at work on the proposition, which is more than likely to be a success. Santa Rosa has one of the best tracks in America. If the meeting is given it will open the circuit and good purses will be given.

THE SALE OF HORSES from the Yerba Buena Farm of Pierce Bros., near San Jose, which was advertised to come off on the 20th of this month, has been postponed to June 5th.

Death of Directum's Owner.

The sad news was received here this week of the death of W. E. Spiers, the Glens Falls, New York, millionaire herseman, who, something over two years ago, purchased the California champion stallion Directum 2:05½ from the Green estate, paying $20,000 for him. Mr. Spiers made his purchase without seeing the horse, trusting the entire negotiations to Samuel Gamble. The wonderful showing since made by the get of Directum make the great horse more valuable still and he could probably be now sold for an increase on the big price paid. The following account of Mr. Spiers' death is from the Turf, Field and Farm:

Mr. W. E. Spier, who died at his residence, 29 West 72d street, this city, on Wednesday morning, May 8th, was very prominent in trotting horse circles. He had a beautiful home at Glens Falls, where his great breeding establishment, Suburban Farm, is located, and he was partial to the blood of champions. Directum, who as a four year old, trotted to a five year old record of 2:05½, and who swept everything before him in the Grand Circuit, was his premier stallion. He is by Director 2:17, out of Stemwinder by Venture 2:27½, son of Williamson's Belmont; and he was foaled in California in 1889. As a three year old he won a third heat in a race in 2:11½, and as a four year old he took the stallion record and defeated the trotting queen, Alix 2:03½. As a sire Directum has five in the list—Consuela 2:13½, Emma Winter 2:14½, Directum Bey 2:17½, Jummye 2:20½, and Jenny S. (p) 2:21. Adbell, who holds the yearling trotting record, 2:23, was also owned by Mr. Spier. He is by Advertiser 2:15½, out of the great broodmare Beautiful Bells, and was foaled March 30, 1893. He is already a sire of speed, his daughter Adabella having trotted last season to a record of 2:25½. Jefferson Wilkes 2:14½ by Alcone has been used in the stud at Suburban Farm, but it was the intention to trot him this year. Del Mar 2:16½ (son of Electioneer), sire of Copeland 2:09½, and eight others with records, was in quarters at Suburban Farm until it became necessary to destroy him. The great stallion, Robert McGregor, sire of Cresceus, was also once owned at Suburban Farm. Mr. Spier had a grand collection of broodmares, and he was producing from year to year a higher average of speed when death claimed him. It is a great pity that his ambitious breeding plans should abruptly end. He was a man of pleasant address and force of character, and was formerly treasurer of the International Paper Company. His residence in this city was purchased from Mr. L. G. Tewksbury, when that gentleman decided upon a trip to the City of Mexico. Mr. Spier was 52 years old. A son will succeed to the management of the estate.

Sale of Rancho del Paso Horses.

On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week about 175 head of horses bred at Rancho del Paso were sold by auction at a point on the ranch just across the American river from Sacramento. The horses were a miscellaneous lot, trotting bred and thoroughbreds, many of them unbroke and mere of them scarred and disfigured. There was a fair attendance of buyers but bidding was not very lively and while the prices were low the horses in many instances brought all they were worth. A bay mare by imp. St. Andrew, out of Maid of Honor by Joe Hooker sold for $15, and may at some future day be the dam of a Garry Herrman or His Eminence, but it is not likely. The highest price of the first day's sale was $102.50, paid for a chestnut mare by Algona out of Nora by Echo. During the first day sixty-two head were sold at an average of $48.42.

During the second day of the sale fifty-eight head were disposed of at an average of $52.50 each. The highest price reached during the day was $142.50. This figure was paid for a bay mare by Messenger Almont 2:59½, dam by Algona, second dam by Western. The same figure was paid for a good looking chestnut gelding by Robert Lee out of a mare by Algona.

Mr. R. E. Mulcahy, of this city, picked up two mares at the sale that should be worth five times what he paid for them. One was a bay mare, 6 years old, by Cœur de Alene 14216, first dam by Eche, second dam by Black Hawk 767. The other was also a bay, a five year old by Knight, first dam by Echo, third dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31. Both these mares are fine looking animals, only halter broken but showed remarkable action when led around the lot.

On Thursday, the third day, a better class of horses were to be sold than those offered on the other two days. The result of this day's sale did not reach us in time for this issue.

Home Made Wheels.

Kenney, the bikeman, is manufacturing ball bearing and roller bearing sulky wheels that cannot be beaten in workmanship, durability and price by any wheels made elsewhere. He can beat the eastern wheels in price and give you a better wheel for the money. He makes a specialty of taking old high wheel sulkies and fitting them with a pair of up-to-date pneumatic ball-bearing wheels, and some that own these converted bikes would not exchange them for one of the late patterns. If your bike is wearing its tires out you may be certain the wheels are not lined up and if you will take it to Kennen he will put it in shape so that it will run true and thereby save money that would otherwise be wasted in buying new tires.

He has a supply of McMurray road carts and bikes on hand and will guarantee every one. Call at 531 Valencia street and see them.

Mr. A. T. Van De Vanter, of Seattle, has been in this city this week, and left to-day for Pleasanton, where John Sawyer is working a string from the Van De Vanter Stock Farm.

Unsanitary Cars.

Herse breeders, owners and dealers in export horses are represented to have just cause of grievance against transportation companies for the unsanitary condition of the quarters in which horses are shipped to market. Cars and other transportation accommodations are not fumigated and disinfected as frequently as the condition and importance of the horse transportation industry demands. All the quarters that house horses in transit to market, or stable them in the interim before sold, should be kept in perfect sanitary condition. Horses en route to market and in wholesale bazaars are unavoidably crowded into close quarters, which without frequent disinfection will breed pinkeye, acclimation fever, epizootic and influenza. It is for the interests of all parties engaged in every department of the horse industry to enforce the highest sanitary laws for the prevention of sickness. It is a matter that should come under the inter-state commerce statutes and provisions made for the efficient and rigid enforcement of laws for the prevention of infectious and contagious diseases.

For the twelve months ending June, 1900, there were exported 64,709 horses and 43,340 mules of the total valuation of $11,531,534. An industry of such vast volume and stupendous import to American breeders, owners and dealers should come within the purview of government jurisdiction. Cars, stables, yards and vessels devoted to the industry should be subject to inspection and frequent renovation, and disinfection enforced. Unquestionably a large amount of sickness amongst horses could be obviated, if proper sanitary conditions were observed in the transportation and stabling accommodations while in transit, and before distribution.—Horse World.

Tags 2:13, Will Go East.

Det Bigelow will join the California contingent that is to try for some of the big purses on the eastern circuit. His mare Tags by Diablo has made such a good showing in her work that he concluded she was good enough for any country, so has entered her in the 2:11 class at Denver, and at St. Paul, Minneapolis and other places. Tags won about fifteen hundred dollars on the California circuit last year and was one of the best of the green pacers in training.

Some time ago M. E. McHenry stated that he would only race four horses this year, and one of the four, selected some time ago, was Dan Patch 2:16, a pacer of sensational speed, by Joe Patchen. Last week McHenry made arrangements for the second member of his string, and it is the trotting stallion Aegon Star 2:11½, that M. H. Tichenor & Co., of Chicago, recently paid $6000 for. This horse, now seven years old, was one of the most prominent of the Western brigade of trotters in 1899, but was last season raced very little. He was sired by Aegon 2:18½, son of Nutwood, dam Gypsy A. 2:25½, by Star of the West, grandam of Flying Cloud, and is individually a grand looking horse. He is very fast and said to be game, and in McHenry's hands he can be expected to cut considerable figure in such races as he is started in.—N. Y. Spirit of the Times.

At a meeting last week of the incorporators of the New York Trotting Association the following officers were elected: President, James Butler; Vice President, ex-Senator John McCarty; Treasurer, William E. Engemann; Secretary, C. A. McCully. Secretary McCully was empowered to open ten other purses, including a free-for-all pace for $3000, entries to close July 30. The association decided to join the National Trotting Association.

The total amount in stakes and purses to be distributed by the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association at Lexington in October foots up $125,000. The Transylvania Stake has been increased $1000 and made for the 2:12 class. The Louisville prize of $10,000 and the two match races between Boralma and The Abbot for $30,000 and Cresceus and Charley Herr for $10,000 are special features.

A New and Novel Plan.

New plans of giving race meetings crop out every year. The latest is promulgated by an ingenious secretary at Branford, Conn., and is given as follows in the Trotter and Pacer:

That there will be a season of exciting sport at the Branford Driving Park this summer is evidenced by the fact that Louis A. Fisk, the owner, and Secretary Harry Cushman have already in operation a plan for a series of races that will meet the approbation of a host of hersemen in the country. The plan as outlined by Mr. Fisk is to get the co-operation of 100 herse owners who own animals eligible to either trotting or pacing classes from 2:15 to 2:35.

There will be ten classes of ten entries each, or 100 in all, who will pay $100 entrance fee, and be entitled to enter in any race. Meets have already been arranged for the following dates: May 30, June 14 and 15, July 3, 4, 18 and 19, August 1, 2 and 31, September 2, 18, 19 and 20. Each owner is permitted to enter one herse only for the series and must thoroughly identify his animal, rings thus being barred. Membership follows the herse and no outside horses will be allowed to start in the races.

No meetings will be declared off and a herse is eligible to start through the series in his class. No record made by him after joining the combination will act as a bar. He is also eligible to start in any class offered for his division during the series. The N. T. A. rules will govern the contests excepting that hepples will not be barred.

The advantage of Mr. Fisk's plan will be apparent to every herse owner. To the $10,000 in entrance fees he will add $1200, which will make $11,200 to be raced for in prizes of purses of from $250 to $700 each. A herse that wins a first few moneys will net a good sum for its owner, and second moneys in most any race will bring the entrance money back. Communications from herse owners all over the country are being daily received and entries enough have already been received to insure the success of the plan.

Not only will these events be of value to the hersemen, but the plan assures many days of good, clean sport to the many people who love to see a herse race on its merits.

The opening meet will take place on Decoration Day, and a large force of men are at work on the track, and they will continue there until the track and grounds are in as perfect condition as modern skill can make them. Several new improvements are already under way, and this season the Branford track will come very near being what the management desire it should be—the gentlemen's driving park of Connecticut.

Answers to Correspondents.

The race record of Belle Button by Alexander Button is 2:18½, made at Oakland, August 1, 1893, in a race where she beat Leupe and Creole in straight heats. The race record of Tom Ryder by Alexander Button is 2:13½, made in the first heat of a race at San Jose November 2, 1894. The team record of these two pacers is 2:16½, and was made at Oakland, October 22, 1892. They beat Our Dick and Turk Franklin, distancing them in the second heat. The heats were in 2:16½ and 2:17½.

Reader, Haywards—Flora Temple was never in California. She was racing during the years from 1852 to 1861, and it was in July of the latter year at the famous Fashion Course on Long Island that she defeated Ethan Allen and his running mate in two heats. The second heat was in 2:20½ and Ethan Allen and mate were distanced. Flora Temple took her record of 2:19½ at Kalamazoo, Mich., October 15, 1859.

A subscriber asks us for the breeding of a herse called Nelswood. We cannot find any record of a herse by that name. We do find, however, that F. S. Hatch of Stockton, bred a herse by the name of Nelsen Nutwood. He was a chestnut roan and foaled in 1882. His sire was Nutwood 600, dam by John Nelson, second dam by Langford.

L. T., San Mateo—Eclipse, chestnut mare by Gny Wilkes, dam Manen 2:21 by Nutwood, was bred at San Mateo by John A. Goldsmith. She made her record at Anaconda in July 1892.

VETERINARY DEPARTMENT.

CONDUCTED BY

WM. F. EGAN, M. R. C. V. C., F. E. V. M. S.

Subscribers to this paper can have advice through these columns in all cases of sick or injured horses, cattle or dogs by sending a plain description of the case. Applicants will send their name and address that they may be identified.

Wm. D., Chico, Cal., May 13, 1901—Will you kindly let me know through the columns of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN what to do for a colt that twitches her nose all the time when you are driving her. She twitches her nose first one way and then the other, and sometimes snorts and strikes with one front foot. You would think there were gnat flies around her nose, but there are none at all when she is doing this. I have trimmed the hair all off from around her nostrils, but she remains the same or a little worse. She is a very promising filly and I don't like to let up on her.

Answer—This is due to a nervousness and is very difficult to prevent. Avoid feeding wheat hay, or barley. Feed bran mash every evening and a little oats every morning, with a moderate amount of tame oat hay. Give regular exercise daily. Anything that irritates the stomach tends to aggravate the trouble.

Sixteen thousand, seven hundred and seven trotters are now in the 2:30 list, 12,093 of which have made their marks in the last ten years.

SULKY NOTES.

The Breeders place of meeting will be announced June 1st.

Edith 2:10 by Dexter Prince has been stunted to Kohlau King this year.

A four horse team of draft horses sold on the Chicago market last week for $3000.

Geo. T. Bennett, the Honolulu horse, worked a mile in 2:10½ at Pleasanton last Saturday.

Enter in those $1000 stakes offered by the Breeders Association. They will be worth winning.

Mamie Griffin 2:12 was driven a mile in 2:29 by James Mulhall at the covered track at Jewettville last week.

The 2:15 class trotting, purse $1000, announced by the P. C. T. H. B. A. has been changed to a 2:14 class.

Vallejo hopes to raise the necessary money this week to induce the breeders association to hold a meeting there.

It is said that Anaconda has taken very kindly to Jack Trout's training and the two get along very nicely together.

Nearly 3000 loads of manure have been laid on the Lexington track and it is expected to be faster this summer than ever before.

You Bet 2:12½, by McKinney was sold at auction at Kansas City last week for $1500. His new owner is W. H. Riseling, of Joplin, Missouri.

Funstan, the roan pacer that Sandy Smith took East, had quite a sick spell the week before he started with him, but came out of it all right.

La Belta by Bow Bells out of Lottie Thorne 2:23½ by Mambrino Patchen, has foaled a filly by McKinney 2:11½. She is owned by Walter Hobart.

George S. Deitrich, who for the past five years has been associate editor of the American Sportsman, has assumed the management of the Horseman.

The half mile tracks in the East are raising their purses this year. They can well afford it as the entry lists are larger than ever all over the country.

"It is going to be a mighty tough year to get the money down the line," says McHenry, "and if I had one or even two really good ones I'd not ask more."

The Breeders will give a liberal purse for pacers of the 2:11 or 2:10 class this year. There are seven or eight horses eligible to it that should make a great race.

Al McDonald, trainer of the Sulphur Springs Farm trotters belonging to Mr. A. G. Gurnett of this city, has taken the horses to Sacramento to train for the circuit.

John F. Cockerill, New York, believes he has a speedway champion in Swift 2:16½, and he invites anybody and everybody who owns a trotter to meet him for a brush.

The income from the racing tax in New York State has nearly quadrupled during the past six seasons. In 1895 the tax amounted to $25,220; in 1900 it amounted to $98,671.

Eureka 2:15½ by Ira, that is now in John Splan's string, has trotted a quarter in 33½ one the Cleveland track, which is said to be the fastest quarter made on that track thus far this year.

As Split Silk with a pacing record of 2:08½ is showing a liking for the trotting gait this spring, she may be campaigned among the trotters this season. She is expected to show a 2:15 mark.

Daisy A., the dam of Daimont 2:10½, foaled a handsome chestnut filly by Lynmont last week. This is the first filly of Daisy's foals and Mr. W. Hogoboom, who owns her, is highly pleased therewith.

The Attorney General has decided that District No. 40 must be reorganized now that Sacramento county has been added to it. The Governor will be asked to appoint a new board of directors immediately.

The California bred horse Sid Durfee 2:20½, is being made ready for the campaign this year at Pittsburg, Pa., and is confidently expected to knock a few seconds off his record. He is by Durfee, out of a mare by Sidney.

Horsomen who wish to race early in the year and not get records should arrange their races at half-mile heats. They can race at this distance for fun, money or marbles, cups or any old thing, with or without gate receipts, and get no bars or records.

A telegram from Grant Lapham to L. E. Clawson, of this city, states that the horses in charge of Budd Doble, James Thompson, William Cecil and himself reached Cincinnati all safe and sound, and that the track was in good condition and accommodations first class.

The types in the caption under the picture of Mr. J. C. Kirkpatrick's colt Thornway published last week on the front page of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN described him as a gelding. Thornway is an entire horse and one of the best bred ones in the country. He is by Steinway, dam Algerdetta by Allandorf, second dam by Mambrino King, third dam a producing mare by Blue Bull 75, fourth dam by Tom Hal. Thornway is a full brother to Sable Steinway 2:23½ and Allandorn 2:18½.

The free for all pacing race with a purse of $3000 at Brighton Beach will probably bring such entries as Joe Patchen 2:01½, Prince Alert 2:02, Anaconda 2:02½, Couey 2:02½, Connor 2:03½, Searchlight 2:03½, Frank Bogash 2:03½, Hal B 2:04½, Hetty G. 2:05½, and some others with very low records.

John B. Doerr, of New York, has sold to an unnamed Pittsburg gentleman Miss Beatrice 2:13½ and Miss Kate 2:15½, full sisters by Direct 2:05½. Their dam Fanny K. by Redwood, son of Nutwood, second dam Pearl by Silvertail Hunter, son of Skenandoah, purchase price being $10,000.

We have received from Mrs. E. W. Callendine, of Sacramento, two handsome photographs, one of Abdine 2:3061, record 2:17½, the other of the yearling stallion Guynut 33375 by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, dam Abbie Woodnut, dam of Abdine 2:17½ and Diawood 2:11. The latter colt is a very racy looking individual, and gives promise of being fast.

Prospects point to the greatest wagon race on record at Cleveland next fall, when Boston amateurs will try to lift the challenge cup won at Readville park last season by Harry Devereux's John A. McKerron 2:10. Among the probable starters are Lucille 2:07, Boralma 2:08, Lamp Girl 2:09, John A. McKerron 2:10, Senator L. 2:12, Tudor Chimes 2:13, Miss Whitney 2:13½, Success 2:12½ and Praytell 2:09½.

Ellis Franklin, a young man who weighs but 129 pounds, and is of the ordinary stature, is the wonder of the village of Folsom, N. J., where he resides. One day recently he entered his stable and was kicked on the wrist by a horse. The kick broke the wrist, and Franklin, in a rage, struck the animal a terrific blow on the head with his other hand. The horse fell and died from the blow within a few minutes.

The chestnut mare Babe by Dawulight, dam Bee by Sterling, nominated in the Pacific Breeders Futurity, foaled on May 1st, a light bay horse colt with star and strip in face and both hind ankles and one front foot white. This colt was sired by Bayswater Wilkes, sire of Kelly Briggs 2:10½. Mr. E. C. Dudley, owner of Babe, has sent her to Sacramento to be bred to John Pender's handsome young stallion, Capt. Jones by McKinney.

Col. F. G. Crawford, of Willows, has been in the city this week attending the Presidential reception. Col. Crawford informs us that he is working several trotters and pacers at the Willows track, among them a four year old gelding and a four year old filly by Falrose out of full sisters to the dam of Don 2:10. The gelding is very much like Don in looks and action and is very promising. He has already worked a mile in 2:40 to cart.

Will A. Dickerson, who is training the horses at Senator John McCarty's Parkway Farm, at Goshen, N. Y., writes us that the farm's plans as to racing this season are not yet fully determined upon. He is at present working Joe Patchen 2:01½, Fred Kohl 2:07½, Alameda 2:09½, Helen Simmons 2:11½, James Shevlin 2:13½, Bessie Owens 2:13½, Flare Up 2:14, Belmont 2:15½, Jantina (2) 2:29½ and several green ones. From these it will be decided what to race.

In a business letter to this journal Mr. W. J. Carter, of Richmond, Virginia, incidentally states that the two California bred stallions, Kelly 2:27, full brother to Expressive (3) 2:12½, owned by James Cox, of Mount Jackson, and McZeus 2:13, full brother to Coney 2:02½, the property of W. K. Matthews, of Richmond, are well thought of in Virginia and some good mares are being bred to them.

George Starr says the Empire City Stud has decided to postpone its next Grand Circuit campaign from 1901 to 1902, and that its two recent expensive purchases, the $8000 Emma Winter (3) 2:14½, and $6100 Bay Star 2:08, will have a year's let-up. Aside from these two the Empire City stable consists of young colts and fillies alone. Many of them are showing extreme speed, but William Simpson has concluded to give them all a year more of training and development before asking them to do battle on the big ring.

Forty-one handsome horses from Tichenor & Co.'s Chicago stables sold at the American Horse Exchange in New York last Thursday night brought the unprecedented sum of $71,225, an average of $1737 each. This is said to be by far the best average ever obtained for a like number of heavy harness horses at auction, either in this country or abroad. The top price was brought by the brown gelding Happy Thought by Volunteer Swiger, Dr. Ryder of New York paying $7600. W. B. Leeds, the tin-plate trust magnate, paid $3225 for the chestnut gelding Kingbrook.

W. H. Wehrung, President, and M. D. Wisdom, Secretary of the Oregon State Fair Association, made a flying visit down through this State last week in the interest of the Oregon State Fair which opens in September. They called on the horsemen at Sacramento, Pleasanton and other places and saw some of the cattle breeders as well. They are much pleased over the results of their visit and expect quite a number of California horses and cattle at the Oregon Fair. The enterprise displayed by the officers of the Oregon association is commendable and we do not doubt but it will be rewarded with a highly successful fair this year.

On Thursday, May 30th, there will be races for local horses at the Vallejo race track. The first race is for named horses, the prize being a $50 set of harness. The horses named are L. Ledbetter's bay stallion Surreo, J. A. McGrane's bay gelding Star, A. Caprini's bay gelding Gus C., S. Sadler's sorrel gelding Echo, M. Corcoran's bay gelding Don L. and Z. T. Rucker's bay mare Belle. There will also be a match race between Vic Harrier's brown gelding Bay Rum to cart and Thos. McGill's sorrel mare Tribby to harness. As the horses in both these races are very evenly matched and all the owners popular road drivers of Solano county, there will doubtless be a large crowd to witness the sport.

On May 14th, Mr. F. H. Burke's bay mare Wanda 2:14½ by Eros, foaled a bay filly by McKinney 2:11½. This filly is full sister to The Roman 2:18½, and is engaged in the Breeders Futurity $6000, Hartford Futurity $11,000, Horse Review No. 7 $10,000, Kentucky Futurity $21,000, Kentucky Stock Farm $7500, and Terre Haute Matron Stake $10,000, a total of $65,500. If the little miss shows as much speed as her brother at three years she will be worth a lot of money.

Kolly Briggs, owner of the three year old pacing filly Pearl Sinclair (by Hanford Medium 2:17½, out of the dam of Kelley Briggs 2:10½) drove her a mile in 2:24 at the Woodland track last week. Pearl Sinclair was put in training March 5th, this year, and is in Dot Bigelow's string. Her mile in 2:24 is the fastest by a green horse at the Woodland track this year and as she was driven by an amateur is a good performance. Kelly says he could have made the mile several seconds faster and thinks she will get a mark close to 2:12.

A letter from D. F. Oglesby of Santa Barbara, states that the directors of the local fair association there have decided not to give any races this fall. Mr. O. suggests that a two days meeting would pay there and thinks races for two year olds, three year olds, and free for all district trotters would fill and draw good crowds to see them decided. Among the horses that would make a good race are Stanley and Ben Corbitt from Ventura and Paloma Prince and the Summerland horse of Santa Barbara. Mr. Oglesby says there a number of good three year olds and two year olds in that locality whose breeding is as good as any in the State. His mare Maggie E. dropped a fine filly last week to George R. There are a number of two year olds, yearlings and sucklings by Almonada and Neil W. that will be heard from later on.

Will Hogoboom, the popular horseman of Marysville was in this city this week. He is working seven or eight trotters and pacers at the Marysville track, mostly by his horse Lynmont and will have several ready for the races when the Breeders meeting opens the circuit. He states that the supply of road and work horses is just about exhausted in Sutter and Yuba counties. A buyer came there last month and secured 88 heavy horses, paying from $75 to $150 apiece and gave $210 for a fine large mule. Mr. Hogoboom sold one roadster by Lynmont for $600, another for $400 and one for $350. He says the farmers are alive to the fact that the horse supply is about exhausted and all are breeding their mares this year. He has three stallions, Lynmont 2:23½, Montague a standard bred trotter, and Duke a Clydesdale. All are being well patronized.

Says the Denver Times: "The horses of Judge Colburn of Colorado Springs will be missed from the Overland track this year. Edward Connelly, who has been acting as his trainer for a number of years, has resigned, and Judge Colburn has been unable to find another trainer to suit him and will not start his horses until he does. The judge owns some very fast horses, which have been inside the money in Denver almost every time they have been started. Last year Belvarado, a two year old trotter belonging to him, captured the trot in which he was entered in 2:56. Lady in Gray, also belonging to him, won the three year old trot. The most famous horse in the string is Kate Medium, good enough to go with the high class horses. Great things are expected of California by Silver Bow, a young stepper. The Colburn horses, and especially Kate Medium, have been a figure on the Denver track so long that the meeting will hardly be complete without them."

Racing men who have been watching the horses work out on the Overland track believe that there is a little mare in training out there this year which will make a sensation on the grand circuit. The mare is Dottie Smart, owned by Francis Smart and well known to Denver horsemen. She has been working on the Denver track for a number of years, and while brilliant at times, has not been consistent. This year she has been placed in the hands of Frank Loomis, and from her early exhibitions great things are expected of her. She stepped a mile in 2:19 the other day and did not turn a hair, and looked fit to chop a full ten seconds off this if she had been driven. On the grand circuit last year she was second in the heat won by Hetty G., in which that mare established a world's record for mares by putting the mark down to 2:05½. Lottie Smart was second by less than half a length in that race, and many who saw it expressed the belief that if she had been driven properly she would have won the heat and put the mark to her credit. The showing made in that race, and the fact that she is doing better this spring than she has ever done before, leads horsemen to think that she will pay big money on the circuit this year.—Denver Times.

Of the racing game in Hilo, H. I., the Tribune says as follows: Mr. McKenzie, manager of the Volcano Stables and Transportation Company, will go down to Honolulu for the Juno races, taking with him ten or twelve head of racing stock, mostly runners. The larger number of these animals have been brought down by McKenzie from the Coast, but among those known to Hilo race goers are Cronjo and Tom Ryder. Mr. McKenzie hopes while in Honolulu to make definite arrangements with the Honolulu racing men for a full representation from the Capital City at our July Fourth meeting. Mr. McKenzie is no less enthusiastic over Hilo races than the former manager of the stables, Mr. Wilson. The track at Honolulu Park will be altered somewhat in shape, and made more oval than it is at present. Commencing at the seven-eighths it will be nearly straight to the finish instead of having its present abrupt bend right opposite the entrance gate near the upper end of the grand stand, as now. "I shall not put up any of my horses to compete for the prizes offered by the Volcano Stables Company," said Mr. McKenzie. "If any of the visitors want to pull off some match races with me I will arrange for those on a separate day. But it don't look well to put up horses to compete, as it wore, for my own prizes, and I don't propose to do it."

THE SADDLE.

Another Curious Case.

[Chicago Horse Review.]

Once more thoroughbred breeders are having, among themselves, a terrible howdy-do. Last week the classic Kentucky Derby was run at Churchill Downs, Louisville, and the winner turned up in His Eminence, a son of Falsetto and Patroness, by Pat Malloy. The all-winter favorite in the ante-post books had been Garry Hermann, last winter's Western two year old crack, but he was not fit to start and was withdrawn. It will be remembered that this colt, Garry Hermann, was referred to by the Review several months ago in connection with the stir raised about his dam, Silk Gown, who had been brought up by the American Breeders' Protective Association, sold as a "plug" and her identity destroyed, thus losing her forever to the breeding world. And now it chances by a piece of poetic justice such as is seldom heard of outside of romance, that the dam of His Eminence is in the same category!

His Eminence was bred at Woodburn Farm, Kentucky, that most famous of all American nurseries of trotters and thoroughbreds alike. The breeding of trotters ceased at Woodburn in 1899. The breeding of thoroughbreds ceased in 1897. In the early days the Woodburn thoroughbred stud was without a rival—indeed the thoroughbreds were long the "paramount issue" and the trotters grew out of them as a sort of side issue. At Woodburn the immortal Lexington passed his entire stud career and sent to the turf the greatest galaxy of winners ever sired by an American stallion: imp. Australian and imp. Scythian were his stud companions, and in his later years were succeeded by imp. Glen Athol, Pat Malloy, King Alfonso, Lisbon, Falsetto and Powhattan.

To name only the most renowned race horses bred at Woodburn would be a laborious task and a work of supererogation. For two generations her productions swept the turf and her annual yearling sales were the events of their kind and productive of the highest auction prices. But, as with her trotters, Woodburn's thoroughbreds at last lost caste through the indifference of her managers to the changes of the times and the competition that ultimately dissipated her once-virtual monopoly. Finally, in 1897, breeding was abandoned and the remnant of her stud sold under the hammer. Among these horses was the broodmare Patroness. Though she was out of imp. Inverness, dam of Joe Cotton, a famous race horse and winner of the Kentucky Derby of 1885, she was by Pat Malloy, not an extremely successful sire; she was nearly seventeen and had produced nothing of note—so, although in foal to Falsetto, Woodburn's best sire since Lexington (unless King Alfonso be excepted) she was not sought for and went for the paltry sum of $75, being purchased by a Kentucky breeder, Mr. O. H. Chenault. The next spring she foaled a colt—His Eminence, now a Derby winner and the last on the long list bred at Woodburn. Mr. Chenault, however, did not care to keep Patroness, and in 1899 she was consigned to a Lexington combination sale, went begging, and was bought up by the Breeders' Protective Association for $50, and, with forty-four other outcasts, sold to Ferguson & Co., of Atlanta, who, in turn, sold her in the Atlanta market. If now living she is at work in the Georgia cotton fields or at some other menial labor. As in the case of Silk Gown, her identity has been completely lost and her reclamation made impossible.

It is, altogether, a very curious and interesting piece of breeding history. As remarked, it has created a great commotion among those people who, a short time ago, went into mourning over Garry Hermann's dam. That these bewailings were ill-judged was our opinion at that time—and despite the new case of His Eminence we still believe the work done by the Breeders' Protective Association—which, we hope, will be continued—a good work. As regards Patroness, her loss to the stud, is, after all, a slight one. If living she is now twenty. She had a long series of foals before she was banished into outer darkness and none but His Eminence ever became notable. And if that fact alone has made her blood desirable—why, there is nothing to prevent its perpetuation by the best possible means, His Eminence himself.

SADDLE NOTES.

The California Jockey Club has announced its Board of Stewards for the next season as follows: C. H. Pottingill (presiding), Charles F. Price, Col. D. M. Burns, Thos. H. Williams Jr. and F. E. Mulholland.

Eddie Busch appears to be the best two year old at Louisville. He has started three times at the meeting and finished first in all of his races, his last winning the Winonah Stakes. He was bred by J. N. Camden, Jr., at his Hartland Stud, and is by imp. Lord Hartington, out of Potina by Powhattan.

Gibraltar seems to have lost all form and has developed into a sulker. All his recent races have been below par and he should be given a long let up.

Yellowtail after having been placed in all kinds of "hard spots" and "soft spots" finally succeeded in winning a race from a very ordinary field last Tuesday.

Faversham was cut loose for a good thing on Tuesday and won all the way. The manner in which the horse was backed and the extreme confidence shown by his backers in hammering his odds down caused a bookmaker standing in the ring to remark: "This race must have been run last night."

A peculiar point in regard to the breeding of Banastar, winner of the Metropolitan Handicap at Morris Park, New York, May 4th, is that imp. Loamington was the grandsire of both his sire and dam, and that Lexington sired the dams of his sire Farandole, of his grandsire Enquirer, of his dam's sire Onondaga, and was the grandsire of his third dam Mariposa.

There is many a man in the racing business to-day who remembers Isaac Lewis, the old time rider. He has been lost sight of for a number of years, but he turned up again in Chicago a few days ago, according to the following report from the Chicago Gazette, which says: "Isaac Lewis, who for many years was among the best of the Western jockeys, won the fifth race at Worth with Oxnard by the narrow margin of a nose. Lewis was as much tickled as a child with a new toy, for this is his first winning mount in six years. The last time he piloted one to victory was on Ben Falk's Floriana, and after such a long time finally landed in front. After the race he stated that he felt like a two year old."

Mehanus is showing some of the high class form he was running in at New York last year. His last three wins proved conclusively that he was pounds the best in his races and his wins were of the easiest description.

Ducat is bound to make a success in the stud if the performances of the only one of his get now racing, Byron Rose, may be taken as a criterion. This three year old has shown ability to carry weight and win over a distance of ground; but his race at six furlongs, in which he conceded weight to such good horses as Sly, Yellowtail and others of that class and defeated them easily, shows him to be a sprinter of no mean order.

Jim Dyer, one of the oldest trainers in the business, has just returned from a trip to Austria. He had much to say to a representative of the New York Telegraph, concerning the sport in that country and about the American jockeys who are riding there. "The tracks," said Dyer, "are much wider than ours and all turf. I saw the big stake run for which Taral won and he should have been no better than fourth. Fifty yards from the judges there were three horses in front of him and he had been beating his mount for the last sixteenth of a mile. A few jumps from the winning post Taral began to gain, and the boys on the three horses in advance drew their whips. It seemed a peculiar incident, but every horse swerved and cut across the track, thus allowing the 'Dutchman' to get up and win on the post. Of course he came in for a great ovation." "Did you see many horses?" "Yes, some of them are very good, but the majority, like ours, are selling platers. Most of the races there are for native bred horses. There is plenty of betting on the races, and the attendance on big days is very large. The betting is done mostly on the Paris mutual plan, the State getting ten per cent. of all money handled and the association five per cent., making a rakeoff of fifteen per cent. all told. There were some bookmakers doing business, and their play was small, as the public generally is not acquainted with the system. But it is a nice country, and racing will no doubt improve, especially if the ideas of the management were somewhat broadened."

Ed Geers and the Bike Sulky.

In his recently published book Ed Geers writes the following interesting gossip of his first experience with the bike sulky:

"Soon after the bicycle craze became prevalent I commenced to ride a wheel, and soon became satisfied that if the ball-bearing pneumatic tire wheel could in some way be made available to the sulky it would be a great improvement, and I formulated a crude sort of plan in my mind for their adjustment to the high-wheeled sulky I then used, but did not attempt to put my ideas into any practical shape. There was a gentleman in the East who seemed to entertain the same views, that had the genius to gratify his ambition, and during the Detroit meeting of 1892 he shipped one of his contrivances to Budd Doble, and requested him to try it in a race. It consisted of a pair of pneumatic wheels adjusted to a high wheeled sulky frame, and made quite a grotesque appearance when it first arrived. For some reason Mr. Doble did not care to gratify this gentleman's desire, and for several days after its arrival the sulky stood unused. I had in my stable that season the horse Excellence, and one day I desired to work him four pretty stiff heats, and hitched him to my high-wheeled sulky and drove him a mile, and the time was 2:23½. I then told Mr. Doble I would like to make the next trial in that now-fangled contrivance of his, and he said he would be glad to have me do so. I hitched to it and drove him a mile in 2:21½. The next mile I tried my own sulky again and the best I could do was 2:23½. The next trial I again hitched to the new sulky, and he again trotted the mile in 2:21½. This trial satisfied me that a horse could make faster time in the new sulky than the old. That afternoon I was to start Honest George in a race, and borrowed his pneumatic sulky for that purpose; and when I appeared on the track with Honest George hitched to it, you could hear the spectators laugh for a block, and so curious did it appear to some that their comments would indicate they thought I was the advance guard of Buffalo Bill's show. But, notwithstanding the jeers and laughter, I won the race and this was the first time within my knowledge that this modern invention, that has been such an important factor in revolutionizing track records, was ever used in a race in the Grand Circuit. The next week I had Honest George entered in a race at Cleveland, and I borrowed this sulky again in which to make the race, and again won, which I doubt if I could have done in my own sulky, as Honest George was a strong favorite and, as is usual in such cases, the whole field was against me. After this race Mr. Doble became satisfied of the advantage of this sulky over the high wheel, and commenced to use it in his races, and it was not long before they were in quite general use throughout the Grand Circuit and elsewhere."

Handling the Horse.

Dr. Currier believes in the kindergarten for young colts, and said that he liked to begin the education of the colt when not more than a day old, says the "Co. Gent." First catch the colt and hold him by putting one arm in front and one back of him. The pivotal point of action is the center of the body; fasten him in front and he tries to go backward. Fasten him at the rear and he tries to go forward. We should understand this law, which is a part of the nature of the colt, when we try to govern him. You can easily hold the colt if you place one arm under the neck and the other under the ham. Handle the colt first on one side, then on the other, then give him a lump of sugar. He may not eat it at first, but pass it across his mouth and he will soon learn to like it.

You have now shown the colt your power over him, and that you do not wish to hurt him. Next give him a lesson in the use of the halter. If you put the halter on him and pull, he goes back. To counteract this, place a strap around his body just in front of his hind legs. Attach a rope to this, and run it through a ring in the halter. When the colt goes back, pull him up to you, then give him some sugar.

When you are able to handle the colt well with the halter, give him some lessons in driving. Let the old horse teach the colts their first lesson, and to do this, I take a pair of old carriage wheels on an axle. To these are clipped two wooden bars, 14 feet long, about two feet from the ends; the longest ends, extending in front, make the thills for the old horse. A cross-bar is placed just in front of the wheels, extending out far enough to hitch the colts on either side of the old horse. The colts are hitched to light bars placed in front of the horse, with ropes arranged at the sides to keep the colts in place. They soon learn from the old horse what to do, and they get used to hearing the wheels roll behind them, so that they are not afraid when hitched to a wagon.

Stallions should not be tied by the head in narrow stalls, or even kept continually in box stalls or small yards, but should be worked or driven daily, to sustain the vigorous digestion that comes from muscular exercise, and get the fresh air and sunshine, all which are as necessary to the health of the horse as for the human family. All the usefulness of the horse consists in his action, movement and work; they are comparatively worthless when idle boarders on our hands—feed, care and muscular energy are thrown away. It would be far better if stallions were kept at work every day, out of season. If owners of broodmares would insist on patronizing only the sires that are in the harness and kept at work daily, the result would be profit to the owners of stallions, and also to the patrons, as the offspring would be stronger, and there would be an improvement in the feet and legs of our horses; also in endurance and constitution.

Hummer and His Record.

A reader asks for information in regard to the record of the chestnut pacing gelding Hummer by Sidney. It is 2:18½ and was made at the Bay District track, San Francisco, October 18, 1891. There were three starters in the race, Hummer, Lilly S. and Alannah. Hummer won the first, second and fourth heats. The third heat was won by Lilly S. The time was 2:18½, 2:20½, 2:22½ and 2:21.½

Draft horses of good form sell almost according to weight, except that as weight increases, prices rise at a much greater ratio, so that extreme weights bring enormous prices if only the bone is satisfactory. Prices range from $125 to $300, with an occasional one higher, and with an increase of 100 per cent, when matched in teams.

One of the most dangerous candidates for the M. & M. is the five year old gelding Chase by Koeler, dam Euola by Axtoll, second dam Anna Thomas by Cyclone. Last year he showed a mile in 2:15½. The gelding is owned by J. L. Druien, Bardstown, Ky., and is now in Marvin's stable.

The Bench Show.

The fifth annual show of the San Francisco Kennel Club last week will go on record as far the best dog show, in regard to the quality of the principal breeds, which has been given to date on the Pacific Coast. The judging by Messrs. Jarrett and Lynn was generally acceptable to exhibitors. In the St. Bernard classes, however, Mr. Lynn's awards in several cases were subject to a deserved criticism, the placing of Emperor first in novice was not called for by reason of this dog's merits. Considerable surprise was manifested at the placing of Le King. We believe Le King should have received more consideration, but he should have been in better show condition to do the winning expected of him.

Another case, and where the judge was unjustly criticised, was in the placing of the Yorkshire, Endcliffe Mayor, over Prince Tiney. The latter outclasses Mayor in quality, coat and color. When the two dogs came together in the ring, it did not take Klein but a second to note that Tiney was "on three legs," he then showed up his dog's character and good points and outpointed the other dog to a winning finish. For best in the show it was a close race between Norfolk Handicraft, one of the sweetest Fox Terrier bitches ever shown in a San Francisco ring, and Champion Woodcote Wonder. If the latter had received the special it would not have been a bad decision by any means and in the opinion of many fanciers a deserved one. The more complete report of the show has been unavoidably crowded out this week. A partial list of the awards and the list of specials is given below.

Doings in Dogdom.

We have a demand for a Scotch Terrier puppy—who has one for sale?

Albert Joseph purchased the smart red Cocker bitch Plumeria Cleo, the winner of first puppy and novice and also six specials at the show last week.

We announce in our kennel advertisements to-day an opportunity to buy a handsome well trained and thoroughly broken lemon and white Pointer bitch two years old.

Phil C. Meyer, the genial owner of Glenwood Kennels, paid us a visit this week, being accompanied by his last purchase, a St. Bernard bitch, Queen of the Joaquin. This bitch has improved exceedingly since the show last year; she has a very good head, excepting the eyes, which show too much haw. She is well bodied and strong boned. She is not quite up to our hking in the hind legs and feet. But withal she will make a desirable brood bitch, for which purpose she was purchased from Mr. Muenther, of Lathrop.

Eric Hamber, secretary-treasurer of the Manitoba Field Trials Club, writes that the fifteenth annual trials of the club will be held again this year at Carman, commencing Tuesday, September 10th prox. The stakes will be three in number, viz.: the Derby, All-Age and a Championship stake. Mr. Simon C. Bradley has consented to act again as judge in conjunction with another gentleman to be appointed. Birds are reported to be very plentiful on the trial grounds. Entries can be made with, and further information obtained from, Eric Hamber, Winnipeg, Man.

L. A. Klein will remain in this city for a month or two. He has his string of dogs comfortably and conveniently located in a large outbuilding at the Conservatory, corner of Geary street and Central Avenue. The fancy and all lovers of dogs are invited to inspect some fine specimens of different breeds on Sunday afternoons at the location mentioned.

Mr. Klein will not take his string of dogs to the Victoria show as contemplated; he will, however, attend the show up there this month, and will, of course, introduce Ivel Rustie, or "Billy" as he is familiarly known, to the English admirers of the breed.

The following sales were made at the Chicago Show: Mr. F. F. Dole sold the Boston Terrier Edgewood Prince to Mr. J. B. Sears, Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Thomas Kelly sold the Boston Terrier Prince to Mr. James F. Drummond, St. Louis, Mo.; price, $500. Also the bitch Buttons to the same party; price, $125. Also the bitch Mascot to Mr. F. P. Smith, Chicago; price, $100.

Mr. R. S. Mattoon sold the Boston Terrier Sandy Janice to Mr. James F. Drummond, St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. E. M. Oldham sold the Clumber Spaniel Alverley Loafer and the Schipperke D'Artagnan to Mr. F. F. Dole.

Mr. E. M. Oldham, acting for Mr. Geo. Raper, sold the wire-haired Fox Terriers Raby Matchbox and Raby Firefly to Mr. J. Wallace Wakem, Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Henry Jarrett sold the winning Collie, Squire Wellesbourne, to Mr. Geo. Higginson, Chicago, Ill. Mr. Jarrett also sold the Collie bitch Old Hall Victoria to R. Hanna, son of Senator Hanna, at a big price.—Turf, Field and Farm.

Some interesting cases were disposed of at the recent meeting of the English Kennel Club as follows:

"The Committee of the late Ripon Show reported Miss M. Fassnidge to the Licensed Shows Committee for removing her dogs from the show, for resisting one of the Committee who attempted to stop her and for using intemperate language.

"It was decided: 'That Miss Fassnidge be suspended from judging, competing, winning a prize, or taking part in any show under Kennel Club Rules, for the term of six months.'"

A very important ruling was delivered in connection with a case brought before the Committee by Mr. Mosely, and which is reported as follows:

"The Committee decided, at their last meeting, to hear Mr. and Mrs. Mosely re the disqualification of Mrs. Mosely's dogs at the late Birmingham Show. Mr. and Mrs. Mosely were in attendance.

"After hearing their statement, it was decided: 'That in the opinion of the Committee, neither the Steward nor the Judge are entitled to disqualify dogs.'"

"Dr. Carey, of Borris, County Carlow, appealed against the decision of the Committee of the late Belfast Show, who refused to further consider his objection to exhibits 206 and 214, and returned the deposit. Dr. Carey objected to these dogs on the ground that general attention was directed to them, as it was supposed that their coats had been tampered with by being shortened by some process of cutting, clipping or singeing, or by some other means not allowable under Kennel Club Rules.

"The Secretary of the Show stated in writing that the objection was not made until 21 days after the show; that at the show the exhibitors of the dogs objected to would gladly have handed their respective dogs over to the Veterinary Surgeon for examination, and that Dr. Carey brought no evidence in support of his objection.

"It was decided: 'That in the absence of any evidence of the dogs being tampered with, the Committee of the Kennel Club are unable to deal with the case, other than by upholding the decision of the Belfast Show Committee.'"

"It was proposed: 'That steps be taken for the purpose of passing a rule to prevent in the future stewards exhibiting at any show under Kennel Club rules, under judges for whom they are acting as ring stewards, and that no ring steward shall be allowed to lead or handle any dog in the ring in which he officiates.'"

"The resolution was carried unanimously, and the Secretary was instructed to place this recommendation on the Agenda for the next General Meeting."

The California Inanimate Target Association Tournament.

The two days' tournament of the California Inanimate Target Association, May 25th and 26th, promises to bring many trap shooters to the Ingleside grounds. This shoot will be the first Stato shoot held in the vicinity of San Francisco for five years. The program for the first day, Saturday, comprises five 20 bird races and a three man team match—Event No. 1, The "Cinch Brothers" trophy. No. 2, E. T. Allen trophy. No. 3, Association trophy. No. 4, Golcher trophy. No. 5, Union Gun Club trophy. No. 6, Crystal Palace three man team trophy. Five 20 bird events and the Antioch trophy six man team race are billed for Sunday—No. 1, Olympic Gun Club trophy. No. 2, San Francisco Gun Club trophy. No. 3, Empire Gun Club trophy. No. 4, Gold Dust medal race. No. 5, Garden City Gun Club trophy. No. 6, Antioch six man team trophy race.

The entrance for the individual races will be $2 per shooter. Side pools will not be arranged. The moneys will be divided under the high gun system, which is elaborately explained in the published program. This change, now that it is generally understood by shooters, has been favorably accepted. It allows for a larger individual distribution of the purse.

Shooting will commence promptly at 9 o'clock A. M. each day. The association headquarters will be located at the office of the Equitable Life Insurance Company, first floor, Crocker Building. The Secretary's office will be open to receive entries Friday evening, May 24th, and Saturday evening, May 25th, at 7:30 P. M., at the association headquarters.

Loaded cartridges, of all kinds, can be obtained by shooters at the grounds during the tournament.

Arrangements have been made with Mr. Elliott, the proprietor of the Ingleside house (adjoining the tournament grounds), to furnish shooters with a first class lunch and any other accommodations desired.

The winner of the championship high average medal at Fresno last year was Clarence C. Nauman. The Empire Gun Club won the Antioch trophy. The Gold Dust medal was won by Nauman after shooting off a tie with Otto Feudner. The Lincoln Gun Club trophy was won by F. Varlen, of Capitola. Martines Chick won the Garden City Gun Club trophy. The E. T. Allen trophy was won by Nauman, who shot off a tie with Anderson, Lemoin, Varlen and Seaver. Fred Feudner won the Empire Gun Club trophy with the only straight score made during the first day's shooting in the rain. The Merced Gun Club trophy was won by Edw. Feudner. Chas. Merrill, of Stockton, led off the winners of the second day with the Olympic Gun Club trophy. Dr. Barker won the San Francisco Gun Club trophy. The Golcher cup was won by A. C. Hartley, of Antioch. J. E. Vaughan won the Fresno Gun Club trophy. Otto Feudner won the "match-box" trophy. The Olympic Gun Club won the Roos three-man team trophy (Nauman, O. Feudner and A. J. Webb composed the team).

In the preparation of the official tournament program issued last week, by an unintentional oversight, the Winchester Repeating Arms Company was not included in the list of corporations, etc., to whom the association expressed a sense of obligation for material encouragement towards the success of the coming tournament. The company, through the personal efforts and influence of both Manager A. Muller and Mr. Seaver has shown a cordial interest in the affairs of the association and a friendly spirit for the success of its affairs that might well be worthy of emulation by some other trade representatives in this city.

At the Traps.

The San Francisco Gun Club regular monthly pigeon shoot and the blue rock shoot for May of the Olympic Gun Club will be the combined trap shooting attractions for Ingleside to-morrow.

For the blue rock shoot five events are on the program. The club race at 25 targets, three 15 bird races and a prize merchandise shoot open-to-all, 25 blue rocks, entrance $1.00. The club tokens, gold or silver bars, will be awarded to straight runs of 25 or 15 breaks.

The Red Bluff Gun Club tournament will take place today and tomorrow. The card embraces both live bird and blue rock events, the meeting will draw a large attendance of sportsmen.

Two gun club shoots at both live birds and blue rocks attracted a large number of sportsmen to Ingleside last Sunday. Many of the shooters alternated between the blue rock and pigeon shooting sections of the association grounds. Several thousand inanimate targets were broken, the average of scores being excellent. Much practice shooting was indulged in, preparatory for the coming State tournament on the 25th and 26th insts. The principal feature of the Olympic Gun Club live bird trap shoot was the club match at fifteen pigeons, during which twenty-eight scores were shot up. The straight men were Otto Feudner and Charles H. Shaw, who divided first money in the side pool purse. Four men in the pool who grassed fourteen birds each divided the second portion of the money. In this race "Slade" showed splendid form in stopping many swift birds with the first barrel. George H. T. Jackson also scored a straight string whilst shooting up a back score. During the noon intermission he and Clarence Haight indulged in a "miss and out" at weasels, he lost on the first pop. During the club race a match for a dinner was decided between two teams of shooters: A. Roos, N. H. Neustadter and W. J. Gelcher against G. H. T. Jackson, H. B. Hosmer and Otto Feudner. The first mentioned trio lost by three birds, the team score being 42 to 38. Achille Roos claimed the dinner race was lost because Neustadter's gun was strained in long range shots. Following the club race eight-bird pool races and practice shooting was in order. The scores in the club race at 30 yards rise were:

Club match, 15 pigeons, 30 yards rise—

Squad shooting at 10 and 25 blue rocks were in order all day long and many excellent averages were shot. The scores in the regular club race at 25 targets were:

The Stockton Mail describes as follows, the meeting of the Stockton Gun Club on the 5th inst.: "Enthusiasm prevailed at the big blue rock shoot yesterday at the Mineral Baths. It was the opening of the season and the closing of the target aim of last year. The following Stocktonians shot last season and finished yesterday, the scores given being the combined ones, as last season's scores were left unfinished: C. Merrill 97, G. Ditz 96, A. J. Comfort 77, C. Johnston 73, P. Umlauf 74, H. Lonjers 72, W. Ditz 69, W. Keyes 47.

The score made in the opening shoot was added to the approximate score of last season, which had not been kept accurately. The opening shoot was for twenty-five blue rocks and the skill of each marksman is shown by the following score: H. Balkwill 20, H. Lonjers 19, C. Merrill 18, G. Ditz 17, C. Johnston 16, W. Ditz 14, P. Umlauf 13, W. Keyes 14, A. Comfort 12, J. Coats 8, A. Rosenbush 8, H. Sellman 4.

The prizes will be paid in cash."

The Willows Gun Club shoot on the 5th inst. was in the nature of a warm-up for the Red Bluff tournament. The day was a pleasant one for trap shooting. THE FARM.

A Tribute to the Cow.

At the opening of the great Wornall-Robbins' Shorthorn sale, held at Kansas City on March 5, 1901, Col. Woods, the auctioneer, paid the following beautiful tribute to the cow:

"Grand and noble brute; of all God's animal gifts to man, she is the greatest. To her we owe the most. Examine into all the different ramifications and channels of our commerce into which she enters, and note the result should she be blotted out. A Sunday stillness would then pervade the great stock yard industries of our large cities and grass would grow in the streets. Seventy-five per cent. of the great freight trains that plow the continent from ocean to ocean would side track, for there would be nothing for them to do. Fully 50 per cent. of the laborers of America would draw no pay on Saturday night and our tables would be bare of the greatest luxuries with which they are loaded. The great Western plains that she has made to blossom, financially, like the rose, would revert to the Indian, from whence they came, and millions of prosperous homes would be destroyed.

"None other like the cow; there is not a thing from nose to tail but what is utilized for the use of man. We use her horns to comb our hair; her hair keeps the plaster on our walls; her skin is on all our feet and our horses' backs; her hoofs are made into glue; her tail makes soup; she gives our milk, our cream, our cheese and our butter, and her flesh is the meat of all nations. Her blood is used to make our sugar white, and her bones when ground make the greatest fertilizer, and even her paunch, she herself has put through the first chemical process for the manufacture of the best white board paper and it has been discovered that that paper is the most lasting material for the manufacture of false teeth. No other animal works for man both day and night. By day she gathers the food and when we are asleep at night, she brings it back to re-chew and manufacture into all the things of which I speak. She has gone with the man from Plymouth Rock to the setting sun; it was her sons that broke the first sod in the settler's clearing; it was her sons that drew the prairie schooner for the sturdy pioneers, as inch by inch they fought to prove that, 'Westward the star of empire takes its way,' and the old cow grazed along behind; and when the day's march was done she came and gave the milk to fill the mother's breast to feed the suckling babe that was perchance to become the future ruler of his count y.

"Who says that what we are, we do not owe to man's best friend, the cow? Treat her kindly, gently, for without her, words fail me to describe."

Keeping Dairy Records.

I have learned from my own experience that bookkeeping must be adjusted to the nature of the business and simplified as much as possible for limited operations, and have learned that careful records are essential, however small the business may be. I believe this so firmly that in starting a miniature dairy as a foundation for an increase, I have undertaken to weigh the milk from each cow morning and evening, and take weekly tests of the butter fat. It does not seem feasible to charge the cost of maintenance separately, and I propose to get this by estimate at the end of the year, when comparing total outlay for feed with recorded value of products, says Mr. S. E. Watson, of California.

H. B. Gurler, a successful Eastern dairyman, suggests that if the milk cannot be weighed at every milking, it may be weighed periodically, for three successive days in each month, or four times a year, and the composite test be made. He says that a reasonably accurate record may be kept by this occasional test, and that by comparison with the actual sales it may be verified.

It seems to me that after the milk from an animal has been weighed and tested for a season, and its yield determined, that an occasional test is sufficient. It is not likely that the percentage of fat will vary from year to year, therefore, superficial records of the yield from a cow which has been thoroughly tested seems to be all that is necessary, but the close test suggested should be made after the animal has reached maturity.

The advantage of knowing the value of every cow is too apparent to require discussion, but there are secondary advantages which may be mentioned. While it is a satisfaction for the owner to know the earning capacity of each individual in his herd, the fact that he begins to keep a record will educate him in dairy principles. If the test proves him to be wrong in his fixed beliefs, the next step will be made in searching out the reason, and this opens a wide field for study, with the ultimate result that he will be taken out of the old routine, to the mutual benefit of himself and his cows.

Incubating Notes.

E. C. Huffaker suggests the following valuable rules for operating an incubator:

Keep the temperature as near as may be to 103 degrees. Turn and cool the eggs every twelve hours, beginning with the fourth day. Never leave the room while the eggs are cooling. Test on the third day for fertility, if you wish to use the infertile eggs, removing those in which no "horseshoe" appears. Test again at the end of the fifth day, and remove all the infertile eggs.

Test a part or all of the eggs on the eighth day. The eyes should now be prominent, and the chicks diving and turning continually. If their movements are sluggish, or if the eggs have a muddy or smoky appearance, increase the supply of moisture by partially closing the ventilators.

Test again on the twelfth day. The veins of the allantois should now be coming into prominence, and the eggs should be growing darker.

Test all the eggs on the fourteenth day and remove all those in which no trace of blood vessels can be seen, especially if a large portion of the egg remains persistently clear. There is at this stage no certain rule for determining which eggs will hatch.

At all stages remove eggs having a well defined red or dark ring around the embryo.

Note carefully the air cell, and if it occupies more than one-fifth the contents of the shell, add moisture.

Gradually increase the ventilation after the twelfth day. Test again on the nineteenth day, and if the cells are very large and no moisture has been added put it in, and close up the incubator until the hatch is over.

If at any time the air cells are too small increase the ventilation.

Never open the incubator except when cooling and turning the eggs.

If the development at any time seems too slow, slightly increase the temperature if too rapid, decrease it.

Do not try to help the chicks out of the shell until the hatch is over. If you insist upon it, and in doing so bleeding occurs, let the chick alone; it is not the chick but the allantois that is bleeding, and we must wait until the blood vessels have dried up.

When the hatch is over, break the unhatched eggs at the larger end of the egg, and note the condition of the contents, counting all chicks as having died in the shell of which the outlines can be traced, even though but half developed. Note the number which are wedged in the egg shell; these likely failed to get out on account of small air cells.

Treatment of Young Ducks.

Soon after the ducklings are entirely dry remove them to a pen 8x10 for twenty-five, made of foot-wide poultry netting or boards a foot wide. Have a comfortable coop in this pen, and a small dish of sharp sand, a shallow dish of water, with the chill off, and a pan or shallow trough for feeding. Dust the mother (if a hen) well with good insect powder, and grease her legs with coal oil and lard, half and half. If any lice are seen on the hen it is best to wrap the ducklings in coal oil sprinkled cloths for a few hours. Give a scant feed of soaked corn bread, with sharp sand mixed in thickly; give the mother all the whole corn she wants, and a can of water. Have the pen made on high ground, on a grassy plot if possible. Let the feed be the same the second day. After that mix a mash of two-thirds wheat bran and one-third corn meal; have the mash a little softer than for chickens, and if you have milk mix with that in preference to water. From now on feed all they want on this mash, as many times per day as they will eat mixing in sand twice per week in the proportion of a handful of sand to each quart of feed. Keep water in reach all the time, and after three days have it in a vessel deep enough that they can immerse their heads. Once a week mix in powdered charcoal. After two weeks they may be allowed the run of the poultry yard, but if intended for market it is best to not allow them water to swim in. The third week give two thirds corn meal one-third bran, and the eighth week feed all corn meal. After they outgrew the pen we never worried about their roosting in the coops, allowing them to sit around under berry bushes. This is the very best place for ducklings to roost. The bushes furnish quite a little protection and the ducks furnish much richness for the vines. If well fed they will not bother the berries. Ours never did. If from any cause, they fail to clean up their feed, go around and scrape theavings from the troughs. It is well to scald the troughs out once a week.—Emma Clearwaters.

The Care of Milch Cows.

The care of a milch cow should begin with the heifer before she has her first calf. If she is gently handled and well fed before calving, as a usual rule they will not be any trouble to break to milk and will make kind and gentle cows.

The calf should be taken away within twelve hours after it is born and not allowed to suck the cow afterwards but should be fed on the new milk for the two weeks and later it may be fed on skim milk.

It is as a general rule very hard to have a good milch cow and let the calf suck it, and it is far easier to feed the calf than to have a big calf pulling on a rope to get to the cow, and the cow refusing to give down her milk until her calf comes. It is also the tendency of all cows that the calves suck to go dry as soon as the calf is weaned, and a cow of that kind is not a good milch cow, even though she may give a good mess of milk for five or six months. The good milch cow should give milk at least ten months out of each year, and should not be dry over six weeks to two months before calving.

A heifer with her first calf should be milked as long as possible, even though the milk does not hardly pay for the milking, if possible to within six weeks of calving, in order to have a cow that will give milk the greater portion of the year, for as a usual thing a cow will go dry at about the same length of time after calving, and if she forms the habit of going dry in six months after calving she is not as valuable as she would be did she give milk ten months, as it is the milk we are after.

In feeding milch cows on alfalfa or other pasture it is a good thing to feed a little hay with the pasture or to have straw for the cows to eat as it keeps the milk from tasting so much of the green feed and also is a great help to keep them from bloating on alfalfa or alfalfa.

It is the utmost importance in taking care of milch cows to be gentle with them and not to dog them or run them to and from the pasture. Nothing will show the effects of either good or bad treatment quicker than a cow giving milk.—H. S. Bachman.

stands at the head of all veterinary remedies. Such troubles as Spavins, Curbs, Windpuffs, Splints, Bunches have no terrors for a horse if the master keeps and applies Quinn's Ointment. All well known horsemen speak of it in the highest terms:

Miller & Sibley of Franklin, Pa., owners of St. Bel, brother of late Bel Boy, write, "We have used Quinn's Ointment with great success and believe it fulfills all claimed for it. We cheerfully recommend it to our friends." For Curbs, Splints, Spavins or Bunches it has no equal.

Pig Pointers.

Every swine breeder should have ample pasture for the pigs, with abundant clean water.

Salt and ashes aid digestion in swine.

Cholera will be prevented if sulphur be mixed with the salt and ashes. The sulphur may be mixed with slop also.

Lice rarely infect hogs that have plenty of sulphur.

A clean feeding place for swine is a prime necessity.

Rusty old straw is one of the worst materials for bedding for swine.

Every hog showing any sign of sickness should be at once taken out of the herd and isolated for treatment.

Cholera in the herd travels swiftly from one animal to another.

When a pig refuses to eat and thumps and has his hair turned the wrong way, trot him out and give him a dose of ax. Make the dose a big one.

Let the pigs ask for their feed occasionally, just to put an edge on their appetite. As soon as they squeal for something to eat let them have it.

The healthy hog's stomach is as regular as clockwork in demanding food.

When feeding for fattening always watch for signs of indigestion. Obey the first sign by reducing rations.

Remember that stuffing and cramming and jamming food into a pig to fatten it in a short time is a wholly abnormal, unnatural performance. We must expect it to wreck some of the forced animals.—Colman's Rural World.

As the area devoted to the growing of alfalfa increases, more attention must be given to the use of this great crop in fitting lambs for the shambles. Much has already been done in Colorado, Utah and parts of Idaho. In Colorado this practice is followed more extensively at the present time than in any other Rocky mountain State. From five hundred thousand to eight hundred thousand sheep are fed in this State annually. The question of losses from bloat in sheep pastured on alfalfa is not a settled one by any means. Many breeders turn ewes after lambing into alfalfa with immunity and meet with almost no losses, while others report heavy losses from this practice. It seems from the evidence at hand that the best results are obtained when the alfalfa has reached a good growth before sheep are turned onto it. Some breeders say that sheep should be turned into pasture with empty stomachs, while others have the best results when the sheep have filled themselves on other food before feeding on the alfalfa and we favor the latter plan. At all events, it is best not to remove the lambs and ewes from the field when once they are turned in. The practice of taking the sheep out at night is not a good one, for then they return hungry and at a time when the alfalfa may be wet with dew, which increases the danger. A variety of grasses or other feed may be given with alfalfa and at the same time will mitigate the losses very materially.—Denver Field and Farm.

The United States Supreme Court has decided that sheep can not be driven from one State into another if the governor of the State invaded has issued a proclamation under authority of state statutes against such invasion. Last year a man named Rasmussen drove a flock of sheep from Utah into Idaho in violation of a proclamation issued by the governor of that State prohibiting the importation of sheep ranging within certain Utah counties. Rasmussen was arrested and convicted. He appealed to the Supreme Court of Idaho which sustained the action of the lower court. He then appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States, contending that the Supreme Court of Idaho erred in sustaining the validity of the act authorizing the governor to exclude certain sheep from the State and in holding that the act of the Legislature and the proclamation of the governor were in violation of the constitution of the United States. They contended that sheep owners have a right to utilize the grasses upon the public domain and that one State cannot exclude sheep of citizens of other States from grazing upon any lands of the United States but in this conclusion they were at fault and it must be inferred that we still have a few of the old-fashioned State's rights left to us.

Chicago packers have ceased to worry over the reported cutting off of American beef from the British army supplies, it being shown that probably not more than 75,000 pounds out of the total of 200,000 pounds of beef supplied to the British forces as home, has been of American origin, which forms only about 3 per cent. of the imports of American beef into the United Kingdom. The drawing of the whole army supply from English producers will simply cause a corresponding vacuum in the home market which must be filled by American beef. So it is a case of six of one and half a dozen of the other, with perhaps an added advantage of cultivating new demands in the English domestic markets. In view of what American soldiers in Cuba and the Philippines have done on a diet of American meat, it should not be surprising if the English should demand a similar ration for their troops in South Africa.

Third dam Miss Gratz by Alexander's Norman 25, sire of Lula 2:12, May Queen 2:30 and others Fourth dam daughter of old Gray Eagle, thoroughbred.

Monterey won 13 races, and he is the only horse I ever saw make Geers lay the whip on the peerless Abbot 2:03¼ to win the 4th and 5th heats in 2:08 and 2:09 in the free for all at Glens Falls in 1899, and Monterey was right on his neck. Monterey also got third money in the great stallion race at New York that year, Blngen 2:06¼ and others being distanced. Monterey won the western Stallion Stake and a $400 silver cup presented by President Henry J. Crocker for horse making fastest mile at Tanforan meeting in 1900.
